SIXTY-ONE MET DEATH IN A CLOUDBURST IN THE STATES

Pennsylvania and West Virginia Deluged Yesterday and the Loss of Life and Property is Enormous—All Towns That Were Visited by the Storm Have List of Dead and Missing.

Special to the Review.

Pittsburg, July 25.—The total death list as a result of a cloudburst which deluged Western Pennsylvania and West Virginia yesterday afternoon, is now known to have reached sixty-one, and when fuller details of the devastation are procured may exceed that. The places that suffered and the numbers reported to have been drowned or who are missing at each are: Uniontown, Pa., 14 drowned; Smock, Pa., 14 reported drowned; Grindstone, Pa., 12 miners missing and reported drowned. At Lynn, Pa., 2 miners reported drowned. At Wheeling, W. Va., 3 drowned; at Lamont, Pa., mine, 4 miners reported drowned; at Ellenwood, Pa., H. L. King, his wife and child drowned, at Newmartinville, W. Va., 6 reported drowned; Monongeh, W. Va., 1 drowned; Fairmont, W. Va., 2 drowned.

Of the list of 61 fatalities it has been possible to account for 23. Those who are known to have met death are at Uniontown, Wheeling, Ellenwood, Fairmont and Monongeh.

There was an enormous property loss. It will be days before a full list of fatalities can be obtained.

When the cloudburst swept over the stricken area most of the afflicted towns and villages were just recovering from a less serious deluge, which occurred Sunday. A wall of water rushed down the valleys and the inhabitants were forced to rush for the hills, where they spent the night in a heavy downpour of rain, with practically no shelter outside of a few blankets snatched up hurriedly in their flight, which were improvised to serve as tents. Thousands thus passed the night, suffering keenly from exposure, while in many instances their homes were laid waste by the rush of water. Scores of residences and other buildings in the lower portions of all the afflicted towns were damaged or completely demolished. Streets were torn up by the mile and piled high with debris carried down by the flood. Mine furnaces and coke plants were damaged, and at the Superba mine, near Uniontown, Pa., a number of miners were trapped by the rush of water into the shaft and drowned like rats.

Uniontown, Pa., July 25.—Caught like rats in a trap when water rushed into the manway of Superba No. 2 mines at Evans station, three miles north of Uniontown, yesterday afternoon, following a cloudburst, thirteen men were drowned and thirty-seven escaped after a most harrowing experience. The men were drowned about 100 feet from the mouth of the mines, their only avenue of escape. All but one of the victims was married and had large families.

Over thirty children are deprived of their bread winners by one of the worst catastrophes known to this region. The men who escaped were forced to half swim and half walk to the pit mouth through water ranging in depth from their waists to their necks. The majority were knocked down by timbers sent down the mine with great velocity in the raging current. Several were being carried back into the mine to certain death when rescued by companions who risked their lives.

Officials of the Superba Company say that it will take at least sixty days to clear the mine of water, and until that time bodies must remain in the water. Supt. J. W. Buttermore was the first man to see the high water start in the manway. He raised the alarm and all the men on the outside rushed into the mine yelling loudly as they went. In that manner more than half of the miners were saved.

The wives and families of the miners and drivers in the mines rushed to a large hole made by the rushing water at the manhole and frantically threw sticks, stones, bushes, poles and whatever other timber they could find, into the water to stop its rush into the mines, where their loved ones were earning their daily bread. Failing in that they rushed to the mouth of the mine and would have continued their mad dash into the water in the mine had they not been stopped by cool-headed persons who guarded that entrance.

Two Thousand People Marooned.

Jeannette, Pa., July 25.—A cloudburst flooded miles of territory between here and Greensburg yesterday. The lowlands were quickly inundated and hundreds of persons were compelled to flee for their lives. Residences and business places were almost completely submerged in some districts, while the Manor Valley and Turtle Creek Railroads, together with trolley service, were put out of commission.

Over 2,000 persons, including many women and children, are marooned in the hills of Oakford Park, where the annual outing of the employes of the Union Supply Co. from Westmoreland and Fayette counties was held yesterday.

Seventy-five families are homeless in Jeannette. The monetary loss will be heavy.

Heavy Loss Around Pittsburg.

Pittsburg, July 25.—For the second time since last Sunday the Pittsburg district was flooded yesterday by one of the heaviest rains in years. In the boroughs adjoining the city all small streams are out of their banks. The raging torrents have crippled the transportation facilities, while inestimable damage has resulted in a dozen of smaller towns.

At Haysborough the rising water from Four Mile Run drove many families to the upper portion of their homes. Later a call for help was sent to this city and policemen were sent to the rescue. Communication with a number of Western Pennsylvania towns has been interrupted.

Western Michigan Suffers.

Grand Rapids, Mich., July 25.—Western Michigan has been visited by a series of severe cloudbursts since Tuesday afternoon. Greatest damage is reported from Big Rapids, where bridges were washed away and the Pere Marquette Railroad tracks were washed out. The damage in the city is estimated to have exceeded $25,000. Great damage was done to crops in the surrounding country.

Ohio Valley Swept.

Wheeling, W.V., July 25.—The Upper Ohio Valley was swept by a most destructive wind, rain and electrical storm yesterday afternoon.

One and perhaps three lives were lost. William Burris, a Baltimore & Ohio track walker, was struck by a passenger train and instantly killed. At Wellsburg two boys were seen in a boat before the storm and have disappeared.

At Wellsburg the factory of the Wellsburg Glass Co. was blown down and much other damage inflicted.

Disastrous Floods In Wisconsin.

Wausau, Wis., July 25.—Flood damage estimated at $1,000,000, was wrought yesterday from the breaking of two dams on the Wisconsin River, north of Wausau.

TO CONDUCT LAND CAMPAIGN

Lloyd-George Said to be About to Resign Office.

London, July 25.—Discussing the present situation in the Liberal party, The Times says the question of moment in political circles is whether Mr. Lloyd-George will resign his office and conduct a political land campaign. It goes on: "Mr. Lloyd-George has appointed a committee on land policy with the sanction of Mr. Asquith. The body of land reformers in the Liberal party has been running to an extreme land tax policy at the bye-elections in the country with some success. Whether the country is or is not ripe for such a policy, the Liberal party, as a whole, is not ripe for it, but if the electorate can be captured by a political land campaign, there are many Liberals who believe they can win the next general election, and Mr. Lloyd-George is marked out as the protagonist.

"To conduct this campaign with freedom, Mr. Lloyd-George would have to resign his office. The question of the moment in political circles is whether the Chancellor will take the plunge."

Victor Ross' Condition.

Toronto, July 25.—The condition of Victor Ross, who was injured in the auto accident at Richmond Hill, does not show the improvement that was expected. His broken leg is healing slowly, and the shock to his nervous system on the night when R. A. Smith was killed has greatly retarded his progress. Lorne Campbell is recovering rapidly, and C. A. B. Brown was able yesterday to spend a couple of hours in his office.

POWER COMPANY WINS APPEAL

Toronto, July 25.—The Privy Council, sitting in London, Eng., yesterday allowed the appeal of the Toronto & Niagara Power Co. against the town of North Toronto. In giving judgment their lordships of the Privy Council said that the act of incorporation appeared to give appellants prima facia very large powers, which, unless they are restricted by the Railway act, entitle them to succeed in the present action, if taken by itself. Their lordships held that the act shows that the Canadian Parliament treated the company, whose works were expressly declared to be for Canada's general advantage, as proper to be entrusted with freedom to interfere with municipal and private rights.

Didn't Scale Mount McKinley.

Fairbanks, Alaska, July 25.—Prof. Herschell Park, of Columbia University, and Belmore Browne of Tacoma, arrived at Tolvina on the Tanana River late Tuesday night, and reported that they failed to reach the summit of Mount McKinley. Two attempts were made, one on the north and the other on the south peak. An altitude of 20,200 feet was reached on the south peak, and 19,000 feet on the north peak. A few weeks ago it was reported that they had succeeded.

Guarding Cabinet Ministers.

New York, July 25.—A cable from London yesterday says:

Additional police guards were detailed yesterday to protect the Cabinet Ministers, their families and homes against suffragettes. It is believed that Scotland Yard has been warned that an unprecedented vigorous votes-for-women demonstration is planned.

N. Y. POLICE DEPARTMENT SCANDAL FOLLOWS GAMBLER'S MURDER

CHARLES S. WHITMAN.
[illegible]

LIEUTENANT CHARLES BECKER.

Herman Rosenthal, one of the best known professional gamblers operating in New York, and who had caused a turmoil in the Police Department by his charges against Police Lieutenant Becker, whom he accused of having been his partner in the gambling house at No. 104 West Forty-fifth street prior to a raid on that place on April 15 last, was shot and killed almost instantly in front of the Metropole Hotel, West Forty-third street, near Broadway.

The shooting was done by three or four passengers of a taxicab.

The Rosenthal case first attracted public attention last week, when it became known that Captain Day, of the West Forty-seventh street police station, had been keeping a policeman on watch in Rosenthal's house ever since the establishment was closed after a raid by Police Lieutenant Becker, head of the strong arm squad. Police Commissioner Waldo and District Attorney Whitman are now the centre of one of the biggest police scandals in the history of the big city, and wholesale removals are sure to follow this sensational murder.

WITNESS IN ROSENTHAL CASE RETRACTS HIS EVIDENCE

Prosecuting Attorney Whitman Meets a Serious Blockade In His Efforts to Run Down the New York Gangsters—John Reisler Alters His Testimony on Seeing the Prisoners—Arrested for Perjury.

New York, July 25.—Fear of revenge at the hands of East Side gangsters yesterday temporarily blocked the efforts of District Attorney Whitman to draw closer the lines about the men who assassinated Herman Rosenthal eight days ago. Apparently awed by the presence of gangsters in the coroner's court, John Reisler, known to the sporting fraternity as "John the Barber," retracted at the coroner's made a few minutes earlier to Mr. Whitman. Reisler was later arrested on a charge of perjury.

The coroner's hearing was in the nature of an examination of 'Bridgie" Webber and Sam Paul, charged with complicity in the murder. Having failed to get desired statements from the witness, District Attorney Whitman secured an adjournment of Webber and Paul's examination for 48 hours.

Reisler was the first witness called. He declared that he had seen Webber in Broadway, near the scene of the murder, after Rosenthan was slain.

"Was he running?" asked Mr. Whitman.

The witness shifted uneasily in his chair and let his eyes drift toward where Webber, Paul and others were sitting.

"I don't know," he replied.

"Didn't you tell me ten minutes ago that he was, in your own words, 'running like hell'?"

"I was excited and don't remember," said Reisler

"Didn't you tell me that in my office, in the presence of Mr. Moss—that you were afraid to tell of the case? You knew the gang you were against and were afraid you would be killed?" asked Mr. Whitman.

"No," replied the witness, in a frightened manner. "No."

As Reisler was about to leave the enclosure in front of the bench, he was arrested at the order of Mr. Whitman, on a charge of perjury and locked up. Late yesterday Reisler requested that the district attorney call on him as he wanted to "talk," but Mr. Whitman was too busy to grant the request and will not see him until to-day.

Mr. Whitman said that he had not yet received an answer to his letters requesting the three detective lieutenants, Becker, Riley and Costigan, to appear as voluntary witnesses before the grand jury.

PRAYED FOR DEATH OF BRITISH PEER

London, July 25.—Fifty thousand strikers paraded through the city of London yesterday afternoon, and at a meeting held subsequently on Tower Hill, a dramatic incident occurred. Ben Tillett, one of the strike leaders, after an address in denunciation of Lord Devonport, chairman of the port of London authorities and a leader among the employers, asked the men to join him in prayer. Ben Tillett and the immense concourse, with bared heads, prayed: "Oh, God, strike Lord Devonport dead!"

In some quarters it is reported that a general strike of transport workers will be declared July 27.

There was a sharp conflict that afternoon between the police and a number of strikers who attempted to molest non-union workmen. Many heads were cracked.

DARROW CASE MAY BE THROWN OUT

Los Angeles, July 25.—A mis-trial under sensational circumstances is said to be imminent in the case of Clarence S. Darrow, for alleged jury bribing. Attorneys for the defence are said to have charged in a conference with Judge Hutton yesterday that the illness of Juror L. A. Leavitt was feigned and asked for an immediate investigation by the court.

Kingston Strike Petering Out.

Kingston, July 25.—Everything points to a speedy settlement in the painters' and paperhangers' strike, on since July 1. Some of the men are sick of the strike, and say they will return to work if it is not settled by the committee soon.

MOONLIGHT EXCURSION

By kind permission of the Commanding Officer the 57th Regiment Bugle Band will run their Annual Moonlight Excursion Friday Evening, August 2nd, 1912 Opera House Orchestra in attendance. Tickets 25c. Tickets may be had from the following members of commitee, Sergt. W. Sharp, Sergt. R. M. Beach, Corp. T. Thompson, George East, W. Allen, A. Spencley and M. Gillespie.

INCREASE WOULD WIPE OUT SURPLUS

New York, July 25.—W. W. Atterbury, vice-president of the Pennsylvania Railroad, was the principal witness yesterday before the arbitration commission sitting at Manhattan Beach to pass upon the demands of the locomotive engineers of all eastern railways for increased pay.

To grant the demands now made by the engineers would, the witness said, add to the operating expenses of the railroads the sum of $911,580 a year, and, if proportionate increases were made in the pay of all other employes, the cost would be $11,878,688, which, he declared, would wipe out the surplus of the Pennsylvania in one year

THE CITY MUST SPEND MILLIONS

Hon. Mr. Monk Says Toronto's Needs Are Serious.

Toronto, July 25.—That it is necessary to spend millions on the public buildings in Toronto in order to make them adequate for the needs of the city for 50 years, and that there should be a federal square around which all the buildings would be grouped were two statements made last evening by the Hon. F. D. Monk, Minister of Public Works, who was in the city for a short time before returning to Ottawa.

"I was in the postoffice to-day," said Mr. Monk, "and it is a disgrace to the city. I am strongly in favor of spending millions on a federal square and buildings, where accommodation would be provided for fifty years to come, and where the buildings could be seen and be easy of access. A great city like Toronto should have its public buildings so centred that they could be seen clearly and would be accessible from all directions."

Mr. Monk stated it was very regrettable that a city of Toronto's size should hesitate at the expenditure of millions of dollars on the harbor.

"It is a disgrace to your beautiful city; a great commercial centre to have the lack of dock accommodation and such poor access as I find in your harbor," continued the Minister. "I find fine possibilities for a great port not taken advantage of. Why, the city should spend millions on such a harbor."

Found Indian's Body In Woods.

Cornwall, July 25.—Dr. W. A. Munro, coroner of Cornwall, was notified yesterday of the finding of the remains of a man in the woods, three miles east of St. Andrew's. On investigating he found the scanty remains of a human being, the clothing on which would indicate that he had been lying there during at least a portion of last winter. No sight of foul play was discernible.

It was learned that an old Indian basket maker, who lived in a shack, had disappeared during the winter, and it is likely that it is his body that has been found.

Lo! the Poor Creditor.

Welland, July 25.—The Electric Steel Co.'s affairs have been settled. Receipts from sale of the plant were $3,899, and the expenses of liquidation $3,689, leaving a balance of $210 to be divided among creditors.

The liquidator received $447.15, and solicitors for disbursements and expenses $932.11.

Creditors who have a $5 claim will receive one cent.

Albanians Capture Town.

Constantinople, July 25.—Rumors which have been current for two days that the Albanians have captured Pristina, a town in the villayet of Kossovo, are officially confirmed. The town fell Sunday, the garrison surrendering.

CANOE SLIDE WILL BE IMPROVED IMMEDIATELY

Several petitions have been going around the city lately to have improvements made to the canoe slide at the Locks. A deputation accompanied by Mr. J. H. McClelland, went down last evening to see what could be done, and improvements of a temporary nature were decided upon and will be made at once. Further improvements regarding the safety of canoeists during the high water will be dealt with at a future date.

BRITAIN IS PREPARED TO SPEND MORE MONEY ON NAVY

First Lord of Admiralty Says That Britain Plans to Keep Ahead of Germany Each Year—Latter Country Is Hurrying Her Naval Construction—Merchant Ships Will Become Cruisers, Says Mr. Hazen.

London, July 25.—In the debate on the naval estimates in the House of Commons yesterday, Winston Spencer Churchill, the First Lord of the Admiralty, replying to the criticism that he had made inadequate provision to meet the menace he had described, said:

"We are spending $225,000,000 this year and we are going to spend more next year. We are raising the personnel of the navy to 141,150 by 1913, and to 146,000 in 1914. As regards construction, Germany this year is laying down two new battleships and we four. Next year Germany is laying down one extra, and we two. This year Germany is laying down two small cruisers; we are laying down eight. Germany in the course of the next 18 months is laying down 21 destroyers; we 43. There is no cause for panic or alarm."

To Protect Trade.

London, July 25.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—Replying to a deputation of the Maritime League yesterday, Hon. J. D. Hazen declared the question of protection to trade routes in time of war by the conversion of merchant ships into cruisers hadn't been overlooked by the Canadian Government and, further, he was sure he revealed no confidence by saying this important question had been the subject of negotiations by the Admiralty.

"Speaking of our mission here, I think there is a very strong feeling among the people and the electorate of Canada in favor of Canada doing something that may be regarded as fairly substantial towards the defence of the Empire. We realize we owe a great deal to the protection of the British navy. We realize our existence as a Dominion in very large measure depends on it at the present time. It would be premature and improper for me to say what will be the result of our visit here," he said.

Warning to France.

Paris, July 25.—That the world is not yet on the eve of the cessation of the struggle between Great Britain and Germany for naval supremacy is the prevalent opinion in France after careful study of the recent speech by Winston Churchill in the House of Commons.

The continuation of the rivalry between these two countries causes a note of regret here, but there is an inclination to believe that if it must go on France should learn a lesson from England's procedure and herself increase her navy.

Germany Is Hurrying.

Berlin, July 25.—Such progress has been made with the strengthening of the German navy, voted almost unanimously during this year's session of the Reichstag, that it is now officially announced that the new third squadron of eight battleships will be commissioned by the autumn of 1914, far earlier than had been thought possible. This will bring the active battle fleet up to 25 battleships in full commission.

Crews for the four battleships of the reserve squadron, which, according to the same law, are to be kept in full readiness for sea at all times, will not be available probably for two or three years after that, so it is pointed out here that the alarmists in the British press and Parliament are premature in assuming the presence at sea of 29 fully manned German battleships in the autumn of 1913.

Landmark In History.

London, July 25.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—Earl Selborne, speaking in the House of Lords, regarding Asquith's and Churchill's naval speeches, said: "I've no hesitation in saying their utterances concerning the dominions form a landmark in the history of the world. I don't for one moment grudge that it has fallen to the lot of political opponents to be in office when the time came to say those words, because they are the sentiments we share to the full. There's nothing we'd more rejoice in than that the whole question of Imperial unity should be removed from party politics, as we hope the question of the navy may be."

CHARGED WITH MANSLAUGHTER

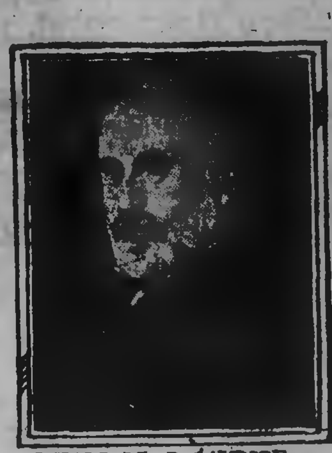
Corning, N.Y., July 25.—In a verdict returned yesterday morning, the coroner's jury hold Engineer William Schroeder and Flagman Edward Lane responsible for the wreck on the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western Railroad near here, July 4. Warrants charging them with manslaughter in the second degree were issued by Coroner Herbert B. Smith.

Engineer Schroeder, on learning that a warrant for his arrest had been issued, came here accompanied by his counsel and surrendered himself to the authorities yesterday afternoon. He was immediately arraigned and waiving examination was held in $2,000 bail for the grand jury.

Indian Thief Given Five Years.

St. Catharines, July 25.—A sentence of five years in Kingston Penitentiary was imposed on an Indian, Daniel Dockstader, by Judge Carmen yesterday. The Indian was guilty of entering cottages at Grimsby Beach last December and stealing a large quantity of household articles.

The judge severely arraigned the prisoner, but allowed Mary Greene, accused on same charge, her liberty.



WILLIAM J. GAYNOR.

Mayor of New York, who is shaking up the police department in that city.

THE WEST WILL NEED 70,000 MEN

Calgary, July 25.—Every prospect of harvesting being general about Aug. 15, Western Canada will this year require at least 70,000 men to handle the harvest, according to experts who have been keeping close tab on the grain situation.

The Governments of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta have taken action in the matter, and together with the railroads are attempting to supply the demand, but even this early in the game it is predicted that the labor shortage will be acute.

The Deputy Minister of Agriculture for Saskatchewan, states that 26,000 men will be needed in that province alone. Altogether, it is estimated 100,000 men can find work in Canada this summer, the bulk of them in the west, while the possible supply is placed at about 75,000.

CANOEIST LOST AT SAULT STE. MARIE

Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., July 25.—In an attempt to shoot the Sault Rapids in a canoe last night, Alex. Scott, son of Skipper Scott of the steamer Collingwood, was drowned, and Alex. Webber of the Collingwood was saved.

The first intimation of the accident was when the canoe with Scott's coat was picked up below the rapids by a party coming from the Michigan Soo. Webber later made his way to the police station and gave the details of the trip down. The body was not recovered, but Capt. Scott will remain in the Soo to-day and attempt to recover it.

Both men were wheelsmen on the Collingwood, now tied up at the ore dock of the Lake Superior Corporation.

TELEGRAPHIC PARAGRAPHS

Little two-year-old Arletta Bierce, of Tilbury, died from drinking water out of a fly-pad saucer.

Robert Lemarsh, ex-reeve and councillor of Essex County, died in Leamington at the age of 85.

F. E. Shepard, former harbormaster and reeve of Port Stanley, died of pneumonia at St. Thomas.

Wm. McCartney, a retired contractor, born in Kingston, is dead aged 70. He was a prominent builder many years.

Edward Davies, recently arrived from Wales, hanged himself in a chicken coop at London in a fit of despondency.

The first international eugenics congress opened in London, Eng., yesterday with 400 delegates, representing twelve countries, in attendance.

Democrats of the U. S. House in caucus last night voted, 70 to 62, not to recede from their "no battleship" program in the naval naval appropriation bill.

Two miners were killed and three others injured, one probably fatally, by an explosion of gas yesterday at Plymouth, Pa., in the Hillman slope of No. 1 colliery.

Sir Donald Mann is personally superintending the operations in connection with the boring of the tunnel under the mountain for the entrance of the C.N.R. into Montreal.

News that Mayor Geary and City Treasurer Coady were unsuccessful in their mission to London to dispose of the city's four per cent. debenture bonds reached Toronto yesterday.

The Duke and Duchess of Connaught, with Princess Patricia and party, left Quebec yesterday on board the Government steamer Earl Grey en route for the Maritime Provinces.

John Mulhall, who escaped from the Central Prison two years ago, when he had yet one year and 28 days to serve, and who was located in Toronto by the police, returns to prison with nine months added to his sentence.

Joseph Milton, 35 years old, a New York bartender, received what will very likely work out to a 35 years' sentence for engaging in white slavery. He was sentenced to a term of from ten to twenty years in Sing Sing and a fine of $5,000 which, at the usual rate, means about thirteen years.

The Daily Review

THURSDAY, JULY 25, 1912.

THE HYDRO-ELECTRIC

If the Mackenzie and Mann interests and their allies are really, as some assert, planning a contest with the Hydro-Electric Commission in Western Ontario, they are most certainly flirting with financial disaster. It stands to reason that no private corporation can compete with a public ownership concern which is furnishing light and power at cost, thus saving large bills to its municipal patrons. Either the plant of the former is not up to the standard or its service is in some way inferior if a dividend is to be realized in such a fight for control of the field. Toronto has proved to its own satisfaction that the Hydro-Electric is the one upon which reliance is to be placed.

No merchant in Peterborough or elsewhere could long survive against a firm that was not only selling at cost but kept on hand a superior grade of stock and whose patrons found everything just as represented. What is true in private business holds good in the case of public utilities.

The Hydro-Electric system is being steadily extended, and the confidence of the public in it is increasing daily. The prospects are that before the end of the year the entire 30,000 horse power contracted for will be are beginning to see the advantages that it offers them, and experiments are being made to demonstrate the uses to which the system can be put in the agricultural districts.

The greater the extension the better for the customers. The more patrons of the Hydro-Electric the cheaper the light and power furnished.

NEW IDEA ON COUNTRY SCHOOLS

The Canadian Courier that has always displayed a healthy interest in the educational affairs of the province proposes now that the curriculum of the rural schools be made different from that in the cities so that the country pupils may receive special instructions in the more advanced methods of modern agriculture.

Why should the young people in the rural communities be so trained in their school days that they would practically be limited to one choice in the matter of a profession? Why not afford all an equal chance in preparing for the future so that the boy either in city or country can enter the profession or business for which his talents best fit him? If the plan suggested by the Courier were put into effect it would be found that a majority of the country parents would be opposed to the scheme and that many who could afford the outlay and who were ambitious for the educational advancement of their children would send the latter to the schools of the city.

Why stop at the country with the proposed reform? There is no more reason for a change of curriculum in the rural schools than in those of the city and if the idea was expanded there would be educational institutions in the cities exclusively for the children of carpenters, blacksmiths and those of parents engaged in other trades or professions.

Purge from rural and city public school curriculums alike all but the practical branches. There is no time for frills or fancy work in this busy age and at best the school life of the child is short. Give the pupils a thorough grind in the elements of a good English education. Then if any desire to make further advancement there are not lacking higher educational institutions where technical training is available.

If the farmer's son is willing to take up the occupation of his father the Agricultural College doors stand open for him. If he has an inclination for business or professional life he is not handicapped at the start by reason of attendance at a public school where a one-sided education was all that was afforded him.

MIXED MARRIAGES

The most important point at issue in the marriage case, was the status of the parties to a mixed marriage, and when the Canadian Supreme Court decided that such marriages were legal, all Protestant regarded it as a victory and concluded that the question was finally disposed of, never doubting for a moment that the decision of the highest tribunal in Canada would be upheld by the Privy Council.

That body, however, in the recent hearing at London, surprised the attorneys on both sides by announcing that they were not prepared to hear any arguments on that point of the controversy. The cable dispatches give no official reason for this stand but it is probable that the Privy Council declined to pass upon a question, which is still before the courts in the province of Quebec. Chief Justice Fitzgerald refused to vote on that question for the same reason.

There is no cause for uneasiness on the part of those who take a liberal view of the legality of marriages heretofore disputed by a certain section of the population. The action of the Privy Council does not necessarily mean that the supreme judges of Canada were wrong. Indeed they intimated that the lawyers might be notified to appear later and argue the question, probably after the Quebec Courts have given their decision.

It was in the Hebert case that the contention of the Roman Catholic church that mixed marriages are void was overthrown by Judge Charbonneau, and the matter was carried to a higher tribunal, where it is still in abeyance. Not only in this instance but in other cases involving the same issue, the trend of legal opinion has been that all marriages performed by a duly authorised official are binding without regard to the religion of the contracting parties or the person who officiates.

It is unfortunate however, that this delay has arisen in the final disposition of a case of so much moment to the people of Canada.

NOTE AND COMMENT

Lindsay may not be a city, but its tax rate of 30 mills and then a fraction warrants it in putting on metropolitan airs.

If Canadian horses continue to win $5,000 purses on American tracks some jingo will propose that all such competitors be denied entry to the Republic.

A Toronto man paid his taxes, and just as he reached the street fell in a faint and had to be taken to the hospital. The financial jolt he received was evidently too much for his physical powers to endure.

This chilly weather favors the belief that the country has taken a slide in the direction of the North Pole at some time when Henri Bourassa, who assumes to control the national destiny, was not watching the bases.

The directors of the local baseball team are certainly game. The Peterborough contingent at the league meeting at Hamilton announced that they proposed to stay in the race to the end and had no complaints to make on the score of finance. A winning team in this city would prove a bonanza to the shareholders, seeing that one with a confirmed habit of losing is fairly well supported.

Married in Haste

London, July 25.—Lord Hamilton of Dalzell and Mrs. William Lawson were quietly married in London yesterday. Mrs. Lawson is the divorced wife of Lieut.-Col. Wm. A. W. Lawson, D.S.O., and the decree of divorce which was granted on Jan. 15, was made absolute Tuesday after the lapse of the legal six months.

Thought Dead for Twenty-Four Hours.

Erie, Kas., July 25.—Pronounced dead by a physician and made really for burial, Charles Singer, living in Urbama, this county, revived after 24 hours. Singer had been struck by lightning. It is feared he will be blind as a result of paralysis of the optic nerve.

At Peytona, W. Va., striking miners shot and killed a deputy sheriff.

DYSPEPSIA MADE HIM MISERABLE

Suffered Agony Until "Fruit-a-tives" Cured Him

Hundreds of people gladly testify to the wonderful curative powers of the famous fruit medicine, "Fruit-a-tives". To those now suffering with Indigestion, Dyspepsia or other Stomach Troubles, this letter of Mr. Stirling, the well known real estate operator of Western Ontario, shows the way to a speedy and certain cure.

GLENCOE, ONT., AUG. 15th. 1911

"Fruit-a-tives were so beneficial to me when I suffered with distressing Dyspepsia, that I wish to inform you of their satisfactory results.

Although I have, in past, suffered agony with Dyspepsia, I am now in perfect health. "Fruit-a-tives" accomplished the desired result"

N. C. STIRLING

"Fruit-a-tives" will cure every trace of Indigestion, Dyspepsia, Sour Stomach Bloating, Pain After Eating, Biliousness and Constipation.

"Fruit-a-tives" is the only remedy in the world made of fruit juices and valuable tonics.

50c a box, 6 for $2.50, trial size, 25c. At all dealers or sent on receipt of price by Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

Montreal Grain and Produce.

MONTREAL, July 24.—Business in Manitoba spring wheat over the cable continues very quiet, but there is a fair demand from foreign buyers for oats and sales of several loads were made at a further advance of 3d. The local demand for Manitoba feed wheat is fair, with sales of 25,000 bushels for shipment from Fort William at 63c, c.i.f. A fair trade continues to be done in oats for shipment from the west at 43½c, c.i.f., for No. 2 Canadian western, and extra No. 1 feed. There is a better enquiry for spring wheat flour from European sources, but, owing to the low prices bid, little business resulted. The local trade is fair. Demand for bran and shorts is heavy and in order to meet the local requirements millers have had to cancel some export orders. Butter is firm under a fair demand. Cheese fairly active and steady. Demand for eggs good.

$100 REWARD $100

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

The destruction of the house fly is a public duty. Almost every American State Board of Health is carrying on a crusade against him.

His filthy origin and habits, and the fact that his body is generally laden with disease-producing germs, makes him one of the greatest enemies of the human race.

If the housekeepers of Canada will use

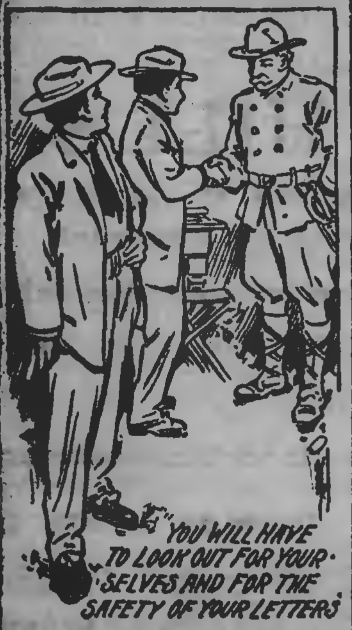
CHAPTER XXVIII.

There was little chance for the fugitives, even had their lead been twice as long, for the inexperienced rider has small show against the man who has lived from childhood in the saddle. It was only a few minutes before the grim pursuers overhauled them, swept alongside, and checked their horses by strong hands upon the bridle. Solano drew his revolver, and then, quickly realizing the helplessness of his situation, calmly returned it to its resting place. Brockett drove his right fist, viciously, into the face of the nearest rider, but was wrapped round with powerful arms before he could strike a second blow. Then the cavalcade, escorting the prisoners, turned, rode out of the little cross road, and trotted slowly up the hill. Descending the farther slope, they rode on in the same dead silence for perhaps an hour. Coming to a thicket beside the road, they wheeled into its dark stretches, threaded their way along a narrow track in single file and emerged upon a clearing, in which a camp-fire blazed brightly, while some fifty men were lounging round the flames. A sentry's challenge was given and answered; the horsemen dismounted, picketed their horses, and assisted the prisoners to the ground.



"YOU WILL HAVE TO LOOK OUT FOR YOURSELVES AND FOR THE SAFETY OF YOUR LETTERS"

A big, superbly-molded fellow, standing some ten feet from the flames, seemed to be in full authority, and the boys were led towards him when he waved his hand. Richly dressed, heavily armed, the firelight playing over his dark, fierce countenance, he looked the part of the operatic villain or the musical brigand. Receiving the boys with a smile that showed his strong white teeth in thorough Roosevelt fashion, he motioned them to seats upon two huge Mexican saddles near by, he himself remaining standing.

"I spik but ver' poor Englees," he apologized. "You—one of you—spik Spanish, si?"

Solano promptly took up the conversation, interpreting sentence by sentence to Brockett, who sat calmly by, occasionally interposing pointed comments which the Cuban rapidly translated to their captor.

"I am glad to meet you two young caballeros," ran the suave speech of the big brigand, smiles rippling through his words. "There are reasons for my pleasure in making your acquaintance. The fact is, caballeros, that two gentlemen—not one, but two, such is my uncommon good fortune—have made me great offers for your capture—or, rather, for certain documents, letters or messages which you bear concealed upon you. These messages, if I understand rightly, are addressed to Gomez Esteral, who makes his headquarters at the Rancho Nogal, and it appears to be of great interest to these two gentlemen that the documents should never reach him. Do I state the case correctly?"

"Ask him," Brockett cut in, "if he has any objections to telling us who the gentlemen of such liberality may be?"

"Not in the least," the brigand answered, amicably. "In fact, as you will doubtless meet them both tomorrow, you might as well receive your information in advance. One of them is a German. His name is quite difficult for a Mexican to speak, but he 's a very big man, with, apparently, a violent temper. The other is a Japanese, and, I regret to say, his name also among the impossibilities."

"Are these two in alliance, then?" Brockett demanded. The big man smiled sweetly, and shook his head emphatically.

"No, caballeros, no. That is the best part of the whole thing. A drama, a play, is it not? I learn, from these two gentlemen, that while they are very good friends, and have worked in common at times to run you down, that each now desires the sole, exclusive possession of the papers addressed to Gomez Esteral. Each wishes me to secure these papers, turn them over to him, and fend off the other with some wild tale of failure. Carramba, but these diplomats must be deep-dyed prevaricators! Of course, I taxed each of them for expenses, in advance, and there now reposes in my sash, caballeros, 5,000 good American dollars from each one of them."

"How do you propose to deal with them—and with us?" asked Solano.

"I fear," smiled the brigand, engagingly, "that the problem of dealing with you two is very simple. I cannot permit you to resume your journey, for Gomez Esteral has a long arm and a violent disposition. He would inquire most searchingly into the stoppage and robbery of any messengers bearing documents addressed to him. It seems to me that I cannot let you turn back to the Rio Grande, either, lest your colonel make complaint to the Rurales, who would soon swoop down upon me. No, no. It grieves me extremely, young men, but I fear that you must die. As to the papers—I may auction them to the highest bidder. However, do not let these things distress you before tomorrow. You shall be well treated while with me, on the word of Juan Torrejon!"

Solano sprang up from his saddle-chair. "You are Juan Torrejon?" he demanded.

"Wholly at your service, caballero. Juan Torrejon, humble captain of a little band that is for the revolution today, for the government tomorrow—and always, at all times, for Juan Torrejon. You have heard my name?"

"Harry, give me the card that Mexican handed you!" And Solano quickly transferred the card written by Torrejon's grateful brother to the clutches of the robber chief. Juan Torrejon read the words thereon written, and seemed to meditate for a few minutes. Then he burst into a ringing laugh, and slapped a heavy hand upon the shoulders of each prisoner.

"Fortunate, doubly fortunate were you, caballeros, that you rendered this kindness to the brother of Juan Torrejon! I, myself, knew not of my brother's poverty, for he was ever proud, even in misfortune. A small world, after all, is it not, caballeros? Fear not, now, for your safety. Juan Torrejon would not see you injured or abused. As to the documents, however—I fear that I must relieve you of them. My word is passed to the gentlemen with the unpronounceable names, and I cannot forego the fortune I expect to gain. Still, we will talk further on the morrow. Will you young men give me your word of honor that you will not destroy the Esteral missives during the night? If so, you shall have a hut to yourselves and every comfort possible. Have I your word as to the papers?"

"I suppose we might as well give it," said Brockett. "Tell him, Ramon, that we will not tear them up, eat them, or otherwise annihilate them, and let it go at that. Tomorrow we can argue more deeply on the subject. We are tired now, disgusted with life in general, and in need of sleep."

"So let it be," assented Torrejon. "I accept your word. Who knows, my friends, but that you, as well as I, can induce these foreign gentlemen to bid more vigorously against each other tomorrow? As, yes—just as incidental, friends—I have heard much of your great prowess in the Gringos' game of baseball. It is the sport of my camp. We play it at all leisure hours—but, I fear, we play it very badly. The gentlemen of unpronounceable names do not come till afternoon. Will you not, during the morning, give us valuable instruction in the game of baseball? It will, I assure you, be a glorious favor."

THEY DROVE THEIR HORSES TO A GALLOP.

Despite the misery of their situation and the apparent overthrow of all their plans, the boys could not restrain their laughter. This brigand, this land-pirate, this desperado, who, on the morrow, might wreck the future of great nations, asked for instruction in the diamond game! They could not keep from laughter—and even as they laughed Brockett's very soul thrilled with the flash of sudden inspiration.

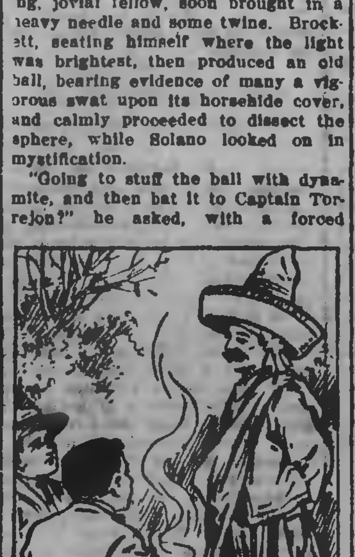
"Yes, yes," he panted. "Tell him, Ramon, that we will be right with him in the morning, and that we will do our best to teach him what little of the game we know."

CHAPTER XXIX.

"Ask the sentinel at the door," said Brockett, after the prisoners had been shown into a rude but comfortable hut, lighted with whole rows of candles, "if he can get a needle and some strong thread. Tell him I want to do some repairing on my clothes—they need it badly."

The puzzled Cuban executed the commission, and the sentry, an obliging, jovial fellow, soon brought in a heavy needle and some twine. Brockett, seating himself where the light was brightest, then produced an old ball, bearing evidence of many a vigorous swat upon its horsehide cover, and calmly proceeded to dissect the sphere, while Solano looked on in mystification.

"Going to stuff the ball with dynamite, and then bat it to Captain Torrejon?" he asked, with a forced chuckle. Brockett smiled frankly and evidently with self-confidence and full renewal of courage.



"IT GRIEVES ME EXTREMELY, YOUNG MEN, BUT I FEAR YOU MUST DIE"

The Week End Party.

As the time approaches for what are called "week end" parties at country homes all sorts of questions about just the right thing to do in many ways when such an invitation is received and accepted are asked:

Whether "tips" are to be tendered for services rendered; whether a note to a hostess is necessary afterward; whether one's stay is to be exactly defined, and so on.

As far as tips are concerned, it tends greatly to making the stay of the temporary guest far pleasanter to be prepared to tip on all occasions, even if it be but small amounts. The maid who makes up the room, the man who attends the door, the chauffeur, the coachman, if there be such an important individual left in these days of motorcars and electrics; the waiters and the caddies where golf is offered—indeed, all those who serve in any capacity expect a tip nowadays.

The up to date hostess is demanding of her servants that they refuse to accept tips; that she will pay them enough to allow her guests to feel free to accept services without paying for them. Happy, indeed, should be the guest who is informed by the hostess that "tips" are forbidden!

After a visit, either short or long, a note of thanks is surely due a hostess. It should be written just as soon as possible after one reaches home, and in some cases, especially where a hostess has had to extend such courtesies as paying car fare and the like, a small but appropriate gift may well be sent, something pretty for the dressing table or for the library or a fine artist proof sketch to the picture lover. These are small things to do where one has been delightfully entertained.

Such visits are usually strictly defined as to duration. From Friday to Monday forenoon is called the "week end" visit—that is, Friday evening, giving the two days of Saturday and Sunday for pleasure.

An important thing to be remembered is that a guest should try to be agreeable to other guests. There should be no faultfinding. If the weather is bad, all the more reason why guests should be careful to make the house gay with improvised pleasures.

So the guest who will make the fourth at a game, even if the other three be elderly and somewhat difficult; the other guest who will plan an evening of story telling or improvise charades or tableaux; another who will ask the artists of the party to give them of their plenty in the way of songs, dances and all such amusements—these will always find themselves eagerly sought for. They will be favored with invitations when others are not, and their coming will be welcomed and their going regretted. As one young woman said who had contributed largely to the pleasure of an evening party, "I have had such a beautiful time, Mrs. A.," to her hostess. The reply was interesting: "How could you help having a 'beautiful time' when you are so charming yourself and so entertaining?"

Announcing an Engagement.

With regard to the method of announcing an engagement, here, as in so many other social matters, the simplest is the best. We do not advise inserting a notice in the newspapers. The case of a marriage is altogether different, since the parties enter into a civil and religious contract, which is made a matter of record by the laws of most states of the Union.

The best way is to name a day in the near future when the engagement will be announced to the world at large. In the meantime the young people tell their relatives and intimate friends the wonderful tidings, asking them to keep it secret until the date selected. It is usually necessary to write some notes, especially to those living at a distance. If the young couple have a large circle of relatives and others to notify the mothers usually write some of the letters, which are of an informal character.

Some young women invite their intimate friends to a luncheon, where they announce the engagement. Various ingenious devices may be used for this purpose, but care must always be taken not to give the matter a frivolous aspect. To have the engagement ring make its first appearance at the lunch table would be to take a serious matter altogether too lightly. In these days, when we so often hear the sad news of a divorce, it behooves our young people to enter into the new bond in the right spirit. This should be a spirit of joy and happiness surely, yet touched with the seriousness demanded by the prospect of a union to last "until death do us part."

If the prospective bride feels that she cannot make the pleasant announcement herself, her mother or sister may do so for her in a few simple words while the guests are still at the lunch table.

The Dinner Invitation.

The invitation to dinner or luncheon should be answered without delay, and in the reply it is well to repeat the date and the hour to prevent any mistake.

Never accept an invitation with the proviso "if nothing happens." Remember that your hostess may want to fill your place with another guest if you cannot accept.

A free thinker is a man who isn't married.

Your Best Shopping Guide

SUPPOSE there were no advertisements—what a worrying task shopping would be! Think how you would miss the helpful information that now guides you to select the best goods, and to know the shops where they can be best obtained.

How difficult to make up your shopping list without first knowing something about the goods you need, or the store that sells them! Your shopping would be all experiment. You would pay out a lot of money during the slow process of learning by experience how to avoid disappointment and dissatisfaction.

Thanks to the high standard of present-day Advertising, no person needs to shop at random. The advertising columns of a newspaper give you just the information you require to make your best selection of goods or store. Leisurely, in the comfort of your own home, you can plan and decide upon the purchases in view.

From soap to gas ranges—from shoes to automobiles—one gets from newspaper Advertising the information that is essential to safe and advantageous buying.

Newspaper advertisements are the finger-posts on the road to right buying. They are quick and safe guides to the places and goods most worthy of your patronage.

Advice regarding your advertising problems is available through any recognized Canadian advertising agency, or through the Secretary of the Canadian Press Association, Room 503 Lumsden Bldg., Toronto. Enquiry involves no obligation on your part—so write, if interested.

REV. C. CUNNINGHAM ARGUES THERE IS LITERAL HELL FIRE

Pastor of the Free Methodist Church Replies to the Recent Manifesto of the Bible Students Association.

The International Bible Students' Association, at their general 1912 Canadian convention, held in Toronto, unanimously adopted a resolution, declaring "That it is the sense of the International Bible Students' delegates here assembled that we do not find the Bible to teach the doctrine of a literal 'Hell Fire,' or place of fire and brimstone for the punishment of the wicked." They appealed to every minister in Canada to publish his belief."

"I have received a copy of this resolution, and believe it to be my duty to speak out," said Rev. C. Cunningham, pastor of the Free Methodist church, to-day.

"Let the Bible speak for itself. We appeal first to the words of Jesus Christ, the Son of God. Math. 18,8: 'Wherefore if thy hand or thy foot offend thee, cut them off, and cast them from thee; it is better for thee to enter into life halt or maimed, rather than having two hands or two feet, to be cast into everlasting fire.' Math 25, 41: 'Then shall he say unto them on the left hand, depart from me, ye cursed, into everlasting fire, prepared for the devil and his angels.' Rev Luther Lee says: 'Both texts declare that the wicked will be punished with everlasting fire.'. Math. 9, 43, 44: 'It is better for thee to enter into life maimed, than having two hands to go into hell."

"The instrument of punishment is here called 'fire,' and 'fire that never shall be quenched' must be endless.

Mark 3, 29: But he that shall blaspheme against the Holy Ghost hath never forgiveness, but is in danger of eternal damnation.' His guilt is endless and so is his punishment.

Math. 25, 46: "And these shall go away into everlasting punishment, but the righteous into life eternal." A venerable minister once preached a sermon on the last judgment. On the next day some thoughtless men agreed that one of their number should go to him, and, if possible, draw him into a discussion. He went accordingly, and began the conversation saying: 'I believe there is a small dispute between you and me and I thought I would call this morning and settle it.'

"'Oh!' said the good man, 'what is it?'"

"Why," he replied, 'you say that the woe of the finally impenitent will be eternal, and I do not believe it."

"If that be all," he answered, "there is no dispute between you and me. If you turn to Matthew 25, 46, you will find that the dispute is between you and the Lord Jesus Christ, and I would advise you to go immediately and settle it with him"

Mark, 9, 48: "Where their worm dieth not, and the fire is not quenched." On this text Mr. Wesley says in part. "Consider this: Does not our Lord speak as if this were real fire? No one can doubt of this. Is it possible, then, to suppose, that the God of all truth would speak in this manner if it were not so? Does He design to frighten His poor creatures? What, with scarecrows? with vain shadows of things that have no being? Let not any one think so. Impute not such folly to the Most High.

"Jude says, And the angels which kept not their first estate, but left their own habitation, he hath reserved in everlasting chains, under darkness, unto the judgment of the great day. Even as Sodom and Gomorrha......are set forth for an example, suffering the vengeance of eternal fire." Rev. 20; 13, 14. And the sea gave up the dead which were in it; and death and the grave, (marginal reading), delivered up the dead which were in them; and they were judged every man according to their works. And death and hell were cast into the lake of fire. This is the second death.'

Rev. 21; 8.—But the fearful, and unbelieving......shall have their part in the lake which burneth with fire and brimstone; this is the second death.

These International Bible Students delegates say they do not find the Bible to teach the doctrine of a "literal hell fire" or place of fire and brimstone, for the punishment of the wicked. Strange indeed that such plain texts as those quoted, and many others just as clear, should escape their notice, which certainly do teach this if they teach anything.

"But these wise! men tell us where they have been scratching in the following language; they say, Secular history of the formation of the creeds of the middle ages, reveals the fact that for various reasons, either wisely or unwisely, the doctrine of torment in Hell Fire was added to the gospel, as taught by Jesus and the twelve Apostles, necessitating many ridiculous interpretations of the Lord's parables." So then it is from "Secular history" these Bible! Students' receive their information, and not the inspired Word of God. Is it any wonder that they teach such errors, when they draw their material from such a source and know so little about their Bibles!

They further say, "We believe the vast majority of ministers of all Protestant denominations have privately repudiated the Hell Fire theory, but have for supposedly good reasons hesitated fully to inform their congregations."

"If this is actually true, then such Protestants are far removed from original Protestantism, and good loyal Protestants should protest strongly against this dangerous teaching. Surely the "perilous times" Paul warns us of as coming in the "last days" are upon us. He declares there will be men of corrupt minds, reprobate concerning the faith having turned away their ears from the truth and are turned unto fables."

"The claim these delegates make that because these Protestant! ministers have witheld the fact of their having repudiated this Hell Fire theory, thousands and perhaps tens of thousands are being driven into infidelity is in our opinion entirely wrong. It is not their failing to declare these things to the people, that is making infidels, but it is the real state of mind of these heterodox teachers, that is producing such baneful results.

What a man is, carries greater weight, than what he says; and when a minister of the Gospel disbelieves the Bible, even though he may not boldly declare his infidelity, the very atmosphere he produces will be oppressive with infidel malaria, and all who breathe in this poisoned air, or feed on the hash he serves them, will be infected with the terrible malady Jude says concerning these "Woe unto them, for they have gone in the way of Cain, and ran greedily after the error of Balaam for reward, and perished in the gainsaying of Core. There are spots in your feasts of charity, when they feast with you, feeding themselves without fear, clouds they are without water, carried about of winds, trees whose fruit withereth, without fruit, twice dead, plucked up by the roots, raging waves of the sea, foaming out their own shame, wandering stars, to whom is reserved the blackness of darkness forever." Jesus says, Rev. 22; 19, "If any man shall take away from the words of the book of this prophecy, God shall take away his part, out of the book of life, and out of the holy city, and from the things that are written in this book."

Sir Francis Newport was trained in early life to understand the great truths of the gospel. But he became an avowed infidel, and soon became hopelessly ill. When he felt that he must die, he cried; "whence this war in my heart? What argument is there now to assist me against matters of fact? Do I assert that there is no hell, while I feel one in my bosom? Am I certain there is no after retribution, when I feel present judgment? Wretch that I am, what will become of me? That there is a God, I know, because I continually feel the effects of his wrath; that there is a hell I am equally certain, having received an earnest of my inheritance there, already in my breast. O, that I was to lie upon the fire that never is quenched a thousand years, to purchase the favor of God! But it is a fruitless wish. Millions of millions of years will bring me no nearer to the end of my torments, than one poor hour. O, eternity, eternity, forever and ever."

Soon after, his voice failing, and uttering a groan, he cried out; "Oh, the insufferable pangs of hell." and died.

It is sad and sorrowful that Bible associations, professors in church universities, and ministers of Protestant denominations, are laboring so hard to destroy the very book for which Protestants at one time so earnestly contended, to which we owe our present liberties, and on which so much depends. Ps. II; 3; 'If the foundations be destroyed, what can the righteous do? It certainly is high time that we should earnestly contend for the faith which was once delivered unto the Saints." Jude 3.

Settlers Well Pleased

A campaign has been inaugurated by the Grand Trunk Railway to secure 18,000 farmers for Western Canada and agents are working in the agricultural districts all through the province with considerable success since, up to the present time no fewer than 8,500 farmers and home-seekers have left Toronto in special excursion trains via the G. T. R. A peculiar feature of this campaign is the fact that neither the Grand Trunk nor Grand Trunk Pacific owns any farm lands in the west. Such real estate holdings as they possess are townsite properties that have already been sub-divided and a well known passenger official is authority for the statement that in no case have farmers been influenced to settle in any particular section of the country. This was proved by their tickets which were made out to destinations throughout the three prairie provinces although a slight preference in favor of the Peace River District was evident. "The excursionists," observed the official, "are of an exceptionally good class. Our men have picked the very best and we are decidedly proud of their work. In every case they are well to do agriculturists, and I do not know of one of these passengers who has carried with him less than $500 in cash when he boarded the train, while the majority have a great deal more than this. They are in fact the cream of the farming population of Ontario." Although it is admitted by the railway that all the excursionists will not settle permanently in the west, it is estimated that fully two-thirds of them will take up land. Of those that have already left none returned so far and reports from the various western offices of the G. T. P. show that practically all have secured farms.

DUSKY DIAMONDS MAY REACH HIGH PRICE THIS WINTER

Coal May Sell at $8.25 and $8.50 per Ton — Curtailment of Output is 14,000,000 Tons — There Are no Blockade Reports.

The ability on the part of local householders to procure coal this coming winter at customary prices, may resolve itself into a rather serious problem. From information gathered and from knowledge quite generally known, there will undoubtedly be a considerable scarcity of the dusky diamonds. It would not be surprising therefore if the price of coal should climb to $8.25 or $8.50 per ton before the snow falls.

The recent suspension of operations in the anthracite coal mines is responsible for the existing scarcity. The curtailment of output is placed by one authority to be 14,000,000 tons behind last year's production.

The trouble in the anthracite mines of Pennsylvania was not a regular strike, as the employees were not called out by the union. It was merely a suspension of operations and consequently the employees did not receive the $5 a week strike pay, to which they would have been entitled, had an official strike been in progress. As a result, many of the laborers could not afford to remain idle, without any remuneration, and therefore moved away.

When the owners acceded to the demands of the men for somewhat higher pay, the number of men who returned to work, was much smaller than the number who had been employed before the suspension. Instead of having additional men to make up for the loss, while the plants were shut down, mines are still crippled by an insufficient supply of miners and are operating only 3-4 to 2-3 capacity. The principal coal merchants of the city, agree that a scarcity of hard coal will be felt all winter, and that prices may reach record figures.

The local companies are not worrying over the reported coal blockade at Buffalo, due to the failure of the Canadian railroads to handle the cars carried to that point by the Erie, D. L. and W., and N. Y. Central.

Few of the companies have any complaint to make as yet, and the opinion generally prevails that it is too early to talk of freight blockades.

BUFFALO FIRM STARTS WORK OF COLONIZING THE NORTH

Peterboro Workmen Have Already Started for the New Field of Labor — Manager Mackay Confident of Success

A couple of men called into the office of the Review recently, seeking information about the town of Cochrane in Northern Ontario, and the possibilities of making a living in that section of the country. The men were evidently lumber jacks, and were looking for some occupation at out-door work. There was no mistaking their earnestness, and they were plainly ready to set to work at any time. Such information as possible was given them.

Mr. Jackson, the Buffalo lumberman, who recently purchased two townships from the Ontario Government, has started work and his manager is F. D. Mackay, who has had years of experience in the work of colonization. The new company will give employment to a small army of men.

Excellent progress is being made with the development of the land. It is no light matter to cut a hole in the bush, raise camps and divert machinery thereto, but in two weeks the Buffalo firm have had a switch laid so that they could get in a portable saw mill (now on the ground.) they have built temporary camps of galvanized iron, and they have cut half a mile of road towards the site of the 50,000-foot mill to be erected on the river.

Within three months, a hundred men will be employed and by Christmas it is hoped that the big mill will be working. The sash and door factory will follow. Simultaneously with the erection of the mill land will commence to be cleared for farms. Concession and town lines will be opened up, and then it will be left to the option of the settlers themselves whether they will chop the logs themselves or take it over from the company improved. In six months' time there will be at least 250 men to offer a market for the settler, and this will gradually increase as the work progresses.

A townsite has been laid out on both sides of the Mattagami River, which is here 500 feet wide and offers a most pleasant location for the habitations of men. The purchasers of the Mattagami townships have set to work with the knowledge of exactly what they want to do and with the evident intention of carrying out their bargain with the Ontario Government in the spirit in which it was entered into.

The north country has suddenly awakened to the wealth in its midst. For twelve miles along the Transcontinetal west of Cochrane all the available and arable land has been taken up. Behind the settlers are toiling Mr. Whitson and his roadmakers, and between Cochrane and the Frederickhouse there suddenly flashes on the sight a group of white tents and then the broad lane through the standing timber.

Manager Mackay says that the clearing of the land will affect the climate and that the result will be milder winters.

Everywhere along the line of the new railway settlers are taking up land and the success of the local government's new colonization policy is already assured.

LABOR'S HOLIDAY WILL BE AGAIN CELEBRATED AT HOME

Trades and Labor Council Have Appointed Committees to Arrange the Details = Fine Program of Sports Will be Furnished at Riverside Park.

No one need leave the city on Labor's holiday, September 2nd, in quest of entertainment for an excellent program of sports and amusement will be provided at Riverside Park.

Under the auspices of the Trades and Labor Council arrangements are being made for a fitting celebration of Labor Day in this city. Many will recall the big day spent at Riverside Park under these auspices last year, when a great list of sports was witnessed by a big crowd of people, and not only gave pleasure to many citizens, but was a great financial success to the Trades and Labor Council.

The project of holding another day of sports has been under consideration by the members of the Trades and Labor Council for some weeks past, and at the last regular meeting of the Council a committee was appointed to make all arrangements.

The first meeting of this committee was held last evening in Labor Hall, and sub-committees were appointed to deal with the various stages of preparation in the coming event. The various local unions will be asked to contribute to a guarantee fund which will be returned if the day is the success financially, which it doubtless will be. Riverside Park has already been engaged, and the committee appointed last evening to handle the list of sports is sure to make a big success of the program.

President Moore of the Trades and Labor Council will be chairman of the general committee and J. M. Galbraith, secretary. The chairman and secretary and J. P. Dillon will be a committee on printing and publicity; and Hugh Robertson, C. F. Browne, T. Dark, T. Williams, A. J. Sharpe, C. R. Jenkins, Albert Sheward, G. Skelding, Geo. Ahern and G. Brousseau, were appointed a prize and program committee.

A band will be engaged for the day, and tenders will be called for the refreshment privileges on the grounds. Another meeting of the general committee will be held next week.

WHITE SLAVER GETS NO MERCY

Sentenced to Thirty Years And Fined $5,000.

New York, July 25—The limit of the law, in fine and imprisonment, was given to a convict in a "white slave" case in the Court of General Sessions by Judge O'Sullivan, who scored the prisoner before an approving crowd. Joseph Milton, thirty-five years old, a bartender, stood up to receive what will very likely work out to a thirty-year sentence in Sing Sing.

He was sentenced to a term of from ten to twenty years in Sing Sing and a fine of $5,000, which at the usual rate means about thirteen years Milton was convicted of selling into slavery 20-year-old Annie Liener, an immigrant whom he found in an employment agency. The evidence was secured against him by Immigration Inspector Michael O'Brien, who is working up other cases.

DRY-DOCK FOR CITY

Engineer From Public Works Dept. Here To-day

Some time ago the member for West Peterborough wrote the Department as to the necessity of establishing a dry dock in Peterborough, as there was no place where boats could be repaired near here.

To-day the engineer from the Public Works Department is at work with the superintendent in laying out a place on the ground of the proposed dry dock.

VOTERS SHOULD LOOK AT NEW LIST

The voters' list for the township of Smith is now out, and any one wishing to be positive that his name appears on it is advised to secure a copy and look it up at once. Copies may be secured from the township clerk and three weeks will be allowed for the making of corrections and supplying any omissions.

EXCURSION HERE FROM MIDLAND

A joint excursion from Midland by the Oddfellows and Firemen of that place came to the city to-day. About 400 took in the trip. The Oddfellows' Band also accompanied them. A good many of them went to the ball game. They return at seven o'clock this evening.

FEAR FAMINE IN BINDER TWINE

Farmers of West Face Serious Situation.

Winnipeg, July 25.—Careful enquiry shows that the Canadian Prairie West, on the eve of harvest, is confronted by what may develop into a serious binder twine famine. Local agents of the two great concerns which practically control the binder twine industry in the United States and Canada admit the shortage, which they put down to the altogether unprecedented demand of the Southern States, which had not been anticipated and the wonderful expansion of production in the Canadian West. The situation is such that all the available supply is engaged and the demand is far from being filled —indeed many districts in Western Canada have practically no supply in sight.

South-west Alberta suffered somewhat from a slight famine last year, and is now well stocked up, but this is an exception. It is suggested that the Dominion Government be asked to either relax the inspection at the border or send inspectors to the mills of the independents

SPRIGS OF SPORT

Bright Liners on Athletic Topics

When the baseball season is over and the players have drifted away, when the mask and the ball are discarded for a better, luckier day, we shall bid adieu to the strangers, the boys who have played the game, who have had a streak of losing, but who stuck to it just the same; for the man who essays baseball will find that its not all fun, that the life is not all its painted, that it's hard to get that run. He must swallow the jeers of fandom when he fumbles an easy ball, he must listen to ugly hisses and never give heed at all. And when the pinch hit is needed at the critical crucial time, it's up to little Willie to place it over the line. If he does it, he gets the plaudits, if he fails he gets the howls, for a baseball crowd is fickle and never are loath with growls. So what if our boys are losing, don't grumble and start to knock, keep hoping and then keep hoping for the dawn of that better day, when Manager Rowan's White Caps finally win their way.

PRETTY WORK OF BALLINGER

Spectacular Playing in Berlin-White Caps Game This Afternoon.

Berlin and the White Caps got away at 2.15 in the second game.

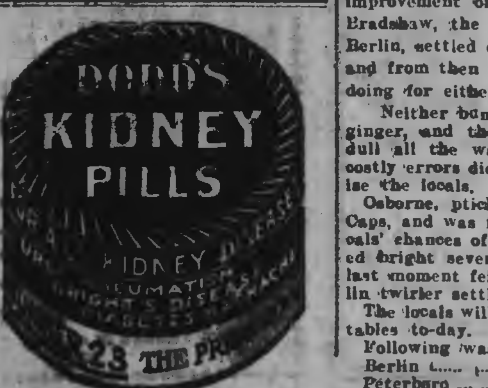
Rain prevented play for about fifteen minutes. Tracey took the mound for the Petes with Trout in his usual place.

Bramble went into the box for the Busy Bees, with Matteson doing the receiving. A double play in the second for Berlin was a feature.

In the fifth and sixth innings Berlin was retired through splendid catches by Ballinger who replaced Swartz in left field.

A spectacular catch of a long fly was pulled off by White also in the sixth.

The score —Peterborough 4; Berlin 6.



GUELPH TEAM HAS NEW MANAGER

Fred Applegate, formerly with the Toronto and Wilkesbarre teams, has been appointed manager of the Guelph Canadian League team. Needham, the former manager, goes to right field.

BERLIN WON FIRST GAME

Poor Exhibition, and Game Lacked Ginger — Bradshaw For Visitors Looks Good

The "Petes" allowed Berlin to wallop them badly yesterday in the first of two games with the visitors. The latter part of the game was a big improvement on the earlier stages. Bradshaw, the youthful twirler of Berlin, settled down after the fourth and from then on, there was nothing doing for either outfit.

Neither bunch showed their usual ginger, and the game was rather dull all the way through. Several costly errors did not tend to popularise the locals.

Osborne, ptiched for the White Caps, and was freely struck. The locals' chances of pulling in runs looked bright several times, but at the last moment fell flat, when the Berlin twirler settled down.

The locals will endeavor to turn the tables to-day.

Following was the box score—

Berlin	130100000	—5	9	2
Peterboro	001000000	—1	6	5

MANKIND AWAKE.

What Some Men Are Doing For Universal Suffrage.

The Pennsylvania Federation of Labor at its eleventh annual convention, held in Pittsburgh, went on record as indorsing woman suffrage and for the first time in its history instructed its officers to work for an amendment to the constitution allowing women the right to vote.

Kansas is said to be seething with women suffrage sentiment, as evidenced by the organization of clubs all over the state. The Men's League of Lawrence is headed by Chancellor Strong of the state university, and many professors and students are among its members.

In Rhode Island the committee on special legislation has under consideration a woman suffrage bill to amend the constitution by eliminating the word "male."

The Building Trades' Council of Indiana, representing 300 men, indorsed woman suffrage at its last meeting in Indianapolis.

Edinburgh, Scotland, July 24.—Armgaad Karl Graves, a German, was found guilty yesterday by the Scottish High Court of Justiciary, on a charge of spying. He was sentenced to eight months' imprisonment.

Notes regarding guns under construction in the British Government arsenals and other incriminating documents were found in his possession.

ALE
Sterling Ale

THE ALE OF MERIT

FOUR special features in the brewing of sparkling STERLING ALE have contributed in so short a time to make it the Public's first choice.

1.—Its purity—Selected malt, choicest hops and pure sterilized water alone are used in the brewing.

2.—Its Flavor—Just that appetizing tang that quenches the thirst and pleases the palate.

3.—Its appearance—Full of life, free from sediment and clear as crystal.

4.—Its cleanliness—Every bottle sterilized in four-compartment soaker, making Sterling Ale absolutely germ proof.

Just call for a bottle of STERLING ALE any time you are thirsty, or drink it with your meals. It is a real aid to digestion.

You can keep it on ice in your refrigerator—the cold won't harm Sterling Ale, it is absolutely chill-proof.

Brewed and bottled in the most up-to-date and sanitary brewery in Canada.

BUCKHORN

Special Correspondence.

Buckhorn, July 25.—The season at "Windsor House," Buckhorn, opened with the usual number of guests. This is one of the most picturesque spots on the Kawartha Lakes, and is being well patronized by hosts of its former friends, who are all enjoying their outing to the fullest extent in the way of complete rest, good fishing and all that tends to make a summer holiday what it ought to be.

The genial Mr. A. Pearson, proprietor of this hostelry, deserves the patronage he is receiving in his efforts to please the public in the matter of rooms, table and reasonable rates.

On the register we notice the names of Mr. L. A. Leppart, Pittsburg; Mr. L. P. Quirk, Mr. Jerome and Dr. Low, Buffalo; Messrs. Geo., John J., James R. and Frederick T. North, Toronto; Dr. and Miss Baker, Gowganda; Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Robertson, Toronto; Mr. F. LaPlante, Toronto; Dr. and Mrs. Frederick, Peterborough; Messrs. H. O. Boyd and J. M. Smith, Bobcaygeon; Mr. George H. Lorett, New Westminster, B.C.; Mr. Samuel Wood, Truro, N.S.; Mr. John J. The noted swimmer Wolfe had to give up his attempt to swim the English channel.

Asparagus Tips Salad.

Twelve tender asparagus tips (canned may be used), one firm tomato, one pimento, one head of lettuce.

Tie asparagus in bundles of three and cook in boiling salted water until tender. Remove the string and arrange on crisp lettuce on individual plates. Cut the tomato into four rings and slip a bundle of the cooked asparagus through each ring, place on lettuce and sprinkle bits of finely chopped pimento over the whole. Serve with French dressing.

Custard.

One pint milk, large; two eggs, one cup of sugar, small; one teaspoonful vanilla, one-half cup of butter, two tablespoonfuls cornstarch. Dissolve the cornstarch in a little of the milk; heat the rest of the milk; when boiling add the sugar, cornstarch and beaten eggs, stirring briskly; add the butter, stir till dissolved, flavor and spread on the cakes while hot. This can be used as a pudding by pouring over each piece a spoonful of the custard that is left.

Platinum.

Platinum, one of the most useful of the metals in many ways, was named by the Spaniards on account of its silvery color, plata signifying silver. It was found in the auriferous sands of the river Pinto, in South America, and was unknown in Europe prior to 1741, when Don Antonio Ulloa announced its existence in his narrative of a voyage to Peru. It was not until 1830 that platinum was rendered malleable and ductile by a Dr. William Hyde of Wallaston. Platinum is largely employed in the manufacture of chemical utensils, owing to its immunity to the effects of heat, acid, etc.

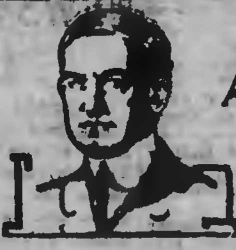
CRAVATH WINS



A SERIES OF TEN STORIES BY JOHN T McINTYRE

COPYRIGHT 1912 BY THE NORTH AMERICAN CO.

SYNOPSIS OF PRECEDING STORIES

CRAVATH is an athletic young fellow in search of $1000. His quest for the coin leads him to a gilded cafe, where he can most readily get rid of his sole remaining cash. [illegible], however, and he meets his Boswell, the narrator of [illegible] adventures, in the person of a good-natured promoter of athletic sports named Scanlon. It so happens that the [illegible] is in the dumps. His "white hope," a mammoth specimen [illegible] that he had matched to fight the "Gravedigger" at the Pelican Athletic Club, has decided not to risk [illegible] his beauty spoiled in the ring. The purse is $1000, and as that is just the amount Cravath needs, he agrees to be a [illegible]. It seems that the thousand is the price of a certain [illegible] pistol belonging to a Miss Betterton, then in Europe, with whom Cravath is in love. When he recovers it, he gets the girl. She wants the pistol because it is her sole and only claim to [illegible]. One of her ancestors used it when he [illegible] a gentleman in a duel, so it is proof positive that the ancestor was a gentleman.

When Cravath enters the ring, he goes after the thousand as rapidly as possible—in the first place, because he needs the money, and in the second, because he is not in trim to stand a long fight. The "Gravedigger" goes down, and the "white hope's" substitute walks away with the coin.

Next day the papers are full of the sensation—an aristocratic amateur has entered the professional ranks and pounded the other fellow for what there is in it. Most scandalized of all are "Old Blaylow" and his son, who are intent upon taking Miss Betterton and her money into their family. Blaylow calls upon Cravath at his suburban home, to induce him to give up his claims to the young woman, but without avail. In the afternoon, however, Cravath is obliged to call up Scanlon and impart the information that the thousand has been stolen. Suspicion, of course, attaches to Blaylow. In the night the two repair to Blaylow's house, where the money is supposed to be hidden in a Swedish cabinet. Unfortunately, another has taken up the [illegible] before them, and he gets away with the money. Not to be [illegible], they pursue the thief and rob him, regaining the [illegible] money.

Still determined, "Old Blaylow" induces a racing man, who is the worse for wear, to borrow Cravath's thousand to bet on one of his superannuated thoroughbreds. But Scanlon gets on to the game in time, and substitutes a live horse, so that the money is not lost.

[illegible] the two buy the pistol. But Cravath is visited at his home by a beautiful woman, a sister of young Blaylow, who palms a bogus weapon off on him. The men suspect, however, that the dealer has "done" both parties, so they visit him and bluff him into disgorging the genuine firearm.

Taking another tack, the Blaylows endeavor to have the real pistol stolen by a Swedish butler, whom they "plant" in Cravath's home, but the plot is discovered, barely in time.

A [illegible] plot is next hatched. Cravath is requested to show the curious old pistol to an antiquarian friend who has been hurt in an automobile accident and cannot leave his house. When Cravath lays it on a table, there is a mysterious upset, the antiquarian is bowled over and the pistol is gone. Again Cravath and Scanlon suspect that a butler has been subsidized. They force him to admit it, and get the pistol from young Blaylow, who has taken it and hidden it in a recess behind a Venetian panel.

[illegible] luck next besets the friends. Cravath's mother [illegible] a visit to a country estate, and they start to call on her, taking the pistol with them. They get into an empty house, are taken for burglars, lose the pistol, and are only released when Cravath's mother comes along in an automobile. The pistol is then restored to them.

Hearing that Miss Betterton is about to arrive from Europe, Cravath and Scanlon hire a launch called the Stormy Chicken, to go down the bay to meet the steamer on which she is a passenger. Cravath tells Scanlon that he has the pistol with him, and Blaylow's spies are of the same belief. So the Blaylows hire a tug, which sinks the launch. When the excitement is over, Cravath tells them the pistol is reposing in a safety deposit vault.

Determined to the last, the Blaylows organize a plot by which one of their employes is enabled to steal the pistol as Cravath is taking it out of the trust vault to give it to Miss Betterton. By an error, however, one of their men reveals the theft, and the pistol is restored.

X—The Last Adventure

OF COURSE I was not to win a lady fair. Nevertheless, I felt particularly good on that last night. Than Cravath I had never met a better fellow—ready, courageous, simple—and his good fortune affected me, perhaps, more strongly than any of my own would have done.

"A game boy," I told myself, as I sat in my room at the hotel; "a game boy with the makings. He'll get on."

To be sure, I could have done so; indeed, there was every excuse for it, but the fact remains that I did not let my thoughts go back to what I was at his age. In my case the fight had been, and was to be, infinitely harder, and the reward infinitely less. No, I didn't allow my mind to rake up the embers of old, burned-out struggles. There was no good feeling there, and I wanted particularly to go on feeling good that night.

"It's a triumph for the boy," I said; "a real triumph. He has conquered his enemies. He has won his bride much as the knights of old won theirs. Tonight is the night upon which he comes to his own, and I don't want to go harking back to any old things which are stark and cold. Life and light and love for tonight, and, maybe, tomorrow night I'll give a few moments to my own private despairs."

However, I had no large confidence in my strength, and of that, I think, was born the resolve to go to Allen's.

"At Allen's," said I, "there are lights; there is food and drink; there are women and men. I will go to Allen's, forget the past and remember the present only."

Then I rose up and attired myself in my dress clothes. With my hair brushed and my face closely shaven, I fancied that the contrast of black and white became me well.

"Smooth old wine and smooth old music are what are needed in my case," I said, finishing my examination; "and if only there was a friendly soul to confide in between the glasses, it would be all the better."

Allen's was much different from the place in which I had met Cravath first. The "hip-hip-hurrah" element were kept away by the simple process of lifting the ante beyond their reach, and it was particularly not the place which a disappointed man would select while he matched his capacity against the establishment's stock. But it had "class," and class was what I was in search of. For this was the sort of celebration that must be carried through with care.

"Of course," I thought, as a respectful Celt slipped a chair under me at a secluded table, "it has nothing of the cozy privacy of the little dining room where Miss Betterton and Cravath are seated at this moment. But, then, that's not to be expected. A public place, no matter how hard they try, is never like a home."

A home! I took up the card in a sudden exasperation. A home! What the devil did I know about homes? Cravath's was the only one I had been in for years, and here I was balancing their qualities against those of a public restaurant with all the gravity of a man who had become possessed of seven drinks of rye whisky. And it was while I was in this humor that the table next to me was taken by a most brilliant young lady.

"This is an unfrequented corner, miss," a waiter told her. "There is seldom any one comes here unless there is a large crush."

The young lady examined me with a pair of the most lustrous eyes I had ever looked upon. Apparently, I did not count for a great deal, for she settled down at the table with a little sigh.

"I am expecting a friend," she said after a moment, during which the lustrous eyes searched the dining room. There was a little pause, and then she asked: "Has there been a Mr. Blaylow asking for any one?"

"I will inquire," said the waiter.

She bent forward and said something which I did not catch. The waiter bowed.

"Very well, miss," he answered.

"You may put the bag down here," she directed, nodding toward a chair beside her. "And later you may come for the order."

The man laid a rather large handbag upon the chair indicated. He was somewhat awkward in so doing, and I recall that it struck rather heavily against the chair edge, and gave forth a hard sound, as of a rather hard substance within.

However, this was a thing which I must have grasped subconsciously; my outward mind was full of the execrated name of Blaylow.

"She expects Mr. Blaylow then, does she?" I thought, my eyes studying her over the edge of the card. "She will dine with that old—or young—pirate, will she? Well, I can't say that she picks her friends with the care that I would have expected of her."

"Will you order, sir?" asked my waiter, patiently.

I did so; and the eccentric list which I, in my absence of mind, gave him probably made him stare. But I am not sure, as my attention was fixed upon my beautiful neighbor.

The music throbbed dreamily; the decorous parties about the tables chatted and laughed in a properly low pitch; the lights shone on the napery and silver; the waiters, soft-footed, attentive and deft, moved here and there. The young lady again and again swept the room; twice within five minutes she summoned a waiter and inquired the time; she seemed to be accumulating a vast impatience.

And not only that! Along with the impatience, I noted a something else—an indefinite something else, which fell short of fear, but which went some distance beyond anxiety. As the impatience increased, so did this other thing, and very naturally I fell to associating the two and speculating as to their relationship with one another.

"The expected person—Blaylow—does not come," I thought, fingering my card; "therefore, the impatience. But just why the little starts, the quick glances, the reaching of the hand to make sure that the bag is still there? It would seem that she were here by appointment, not so much to dine as to—yes, that's it—to turn over to him something which the bag contains."

From the moment that this possibility occurred to me I had a curious interest in the handbag. It was made of some soft, rich material, with long, wide strings to hold it by, and it lay upon the chair with its closed mouth toward me. As the moments passed, and as my ideas concentrated upon this female vanity, the fact that the mouth was closed grew singularly exasperating. I took to studying the shape of its contents as vaguely outlined upon the silky side. If I had been asked why I did this, I could not have told offhand. I would have required some moments for consideration. Then there would have been an instant's surprise, followed by the rather sheepish admission:

"Everything having to do with Blaylow falls naturally into one shape—the Betterton pistol. Let me but hear his name, and I grow suspicious; let me but hear of things in which he is concerned, and my eyes begin to narrow, searching for a plot. This girl expects to meet Blaylow, the contents of her handbag—grotesquely shaped contents, if I'm not deceived by the bag—causes her some anxiety, and my state of mind immediately suggests the Betterton flintlock.

"Oh, yes! I know!" I would more than likely have proceeded, "the pistol is at this moment in the hands of Miss Betterton herself, or, perhaps, it is lying beside the table, where both she and Cravath can see it, and he is telling of his adventures, of the mishaps he has met with since he recrossed the ocean to get possession of it. That the pistol should be in the bag there upon the chair is absurd."

Nevertheless, I allowed my soup to grow cold while studying the bag. Once, as I lifted my eyes from it, I found the lustrous ones of its owner fixed upon me. And the expression of the eyes was unquestionably suspicious.

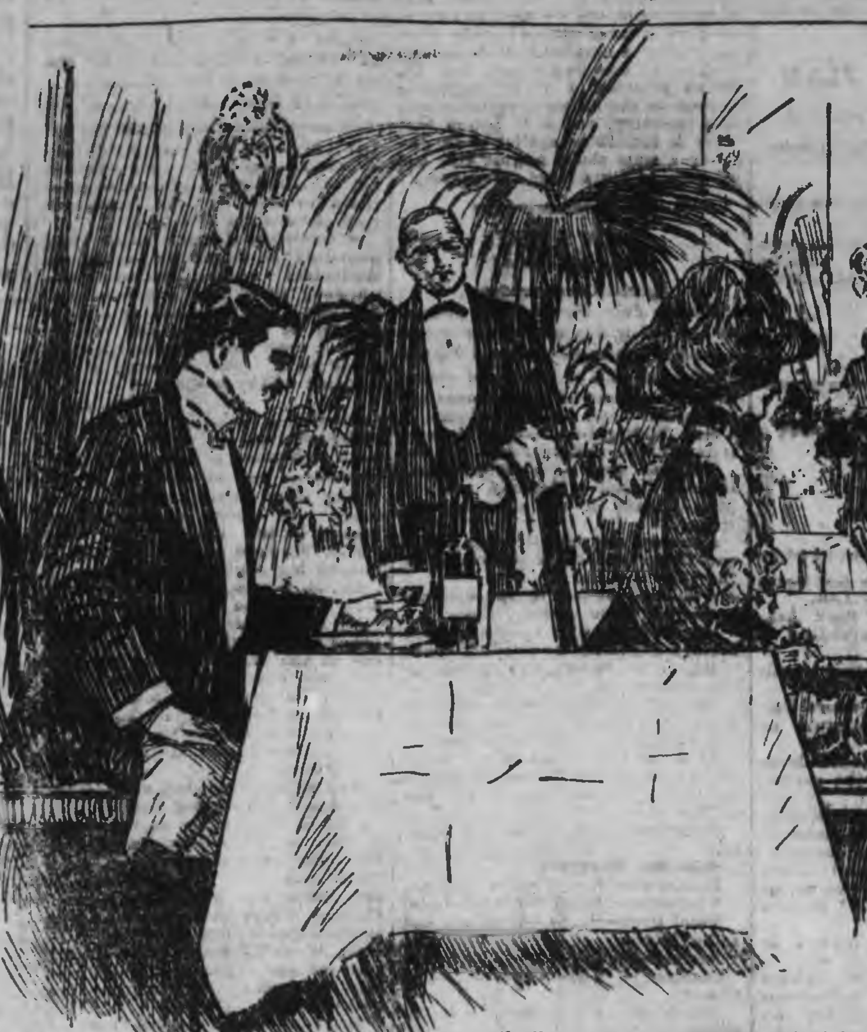
Before this incident she had paid, as far as I could see, not the slightest attention to me. From that on, however, she manifested a quick interest in every move I made.

"The thought that Blaylow will not come," I thought, "resulted in a vague fear of the bag's contents. And now that lateral fear has crystallised upon me. That I may have designs upon it, plainly gives her concern."

The bit of fish placed before me was delicious, and I tried to enjoy it. But interest in other things makes even the most delicate cookery tasteless.

"Here is a dainty young lady in a fashionable restaurant," I told myself; "everything about her speaks of taste, training and wealth. Yet she carries a bag that sounds like a plumber's kit. Handbags of such delicate texture were never meant for more weighty service than the small requirements of a female temporarily away from home. Of course there may be times when a sterner call may be made upon them; but I cannot reconcile the portage of so much hardware with the true customs of life. This thing is unusual and queer, and I'd like to go deeper into it."

More than ever the shape within the bag became grotesque in my eyes. It could not be any small article of female necessity; curling irons would not be so heavy, a powder puff not so long; a hand mirror would have another shape.

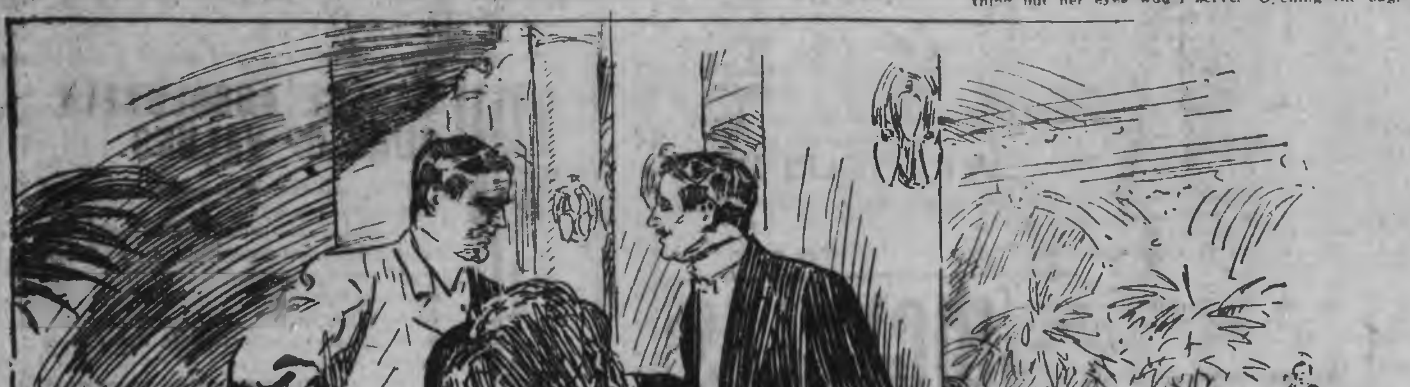


"I allowed my soup to grow cold while studying the bag"

"But a flintlock dueling pistol," said I, "would be just about so when enveloped in a bag like that."

Now, the thought dawned strongly upon me that I must see this thing which so excited both my suspicions and my imagination; but how was I to do so? This was being turned over carefully in my mind, when a turn of fortune favored me. My ill-concealed interest in the bag, and, possibly, my very proximity, lifted the tide of conjecture to such a height in the young lady's mind that she suddenly became uncertain as to whether or not the calamity which she feared had not already befallen.

I could see this idea shape itself. The sudden fear in her eyes, the tightening lines about her mouth, her startled grasping for the bag were all as plain as spoken words could have been. The feel of the thing must have told her that all was as it should be; but she had evidently got beyond the point where the evidence of anything but her eyes would serve. Opening the bag, she glanced within. One glance was enough; she knew that all was well. And one glance—a brief one, and from an awkward angle—was also enough for me. Within the bag was the Betterton flintlock.



"With a quick snatch, I had the bag; and found myself gazing into the smiling face of Cravath"

With renewed confidence, the young lady closed the bag and sat back in her chair. I, too, sat back, but with every grain of confidence scattered to the winds. Gone was everything that I had counted upon; gone was the picture of the happy Cravath, and at the pretty dinner table, lighted by candles under rose-colored shades. Instead of being at his journey's end, he was still out upon the dark road, his troubles, like snowflakes, thick upon him. There was no more visioning of a happy girl, delighted at the address and readiness of her lover; there was no more sentimental loneliness upon my part, and there was no need of further celebration.

"There is nothing to celebrate," I said to myself, "unless it be Cravath's defeat. And to that I refuse to drink."

I poured out a glass of purple wine, which I drank. There followed another and still another in rapid succession. Then, considering myself fit to take up the outlines of any mental performance, I filled the glass once more and placed it before me much as an ancient priest of the booze god might have done.

"Now," said I, "let me think of a piece of clever deviltry, for here before me is still another beautiful bunko artist. Who knows, indeed, but that it is a second sister of Blaylow's? And if she is as deft of hand and quick of mind as the first, she's some chicken."

And, as far as I could see, she lacked nothing of the other's skill. For the fact that she had outwitted Cravath—and to know that she had outwitted him one had only to look at the bag upon the chair—was proof of it. And it was more than proof, for the Cravath of these last few days was a far more wily Cravath than he of those before. He was more careful, more crafty, his eyes were quicker to pierce intentions and cut through the rind of guile. He knew more of the under side of humanity. And he believed less.

"She's clever," I said to myself, my eyes upon the purple mysteries in the glass before me. "Oh, yes, she must be clever. But is she going to turn out clever enough to get that weapon into the hands of Blaylow, when fortune has halted me in such timely style? Is she going to get by with this effort, when here I sit, blocking the way? Well, I think not."

Plans crowded upon me—plans full of swift action and quaint surprise—gorgeous plans, rich in intricate steps and tremendous in their climaxes. The purple wine was an undoubted success; it inspired me; my thoughts raced along at top speed. I emptied the glass, refilled and emptied again. And as I set it down, the purple stains hung heavy upon its rim. I sighed gently that my lot had not been cast two flights higher. It should be a nation, and not an obsolete firearm, that I was called upon to save.

Her maiden alarm dispelled, and convinced that she had not lost her prize, the suspicions of my fair neighbor did not diminish. On the contrary, they seemed to increase. Furtively, she watched my performance with the bottle and glass. Once I felt sure that she was going to change her table. Indeed, she had already arisen, but she sat down again, with the manner of one who would rather chance those things which she had some knowledge of. Apparently, she did not care to venture into a part of the restaurant where she'd be readily seen.

"Very beautiful," I thought, studying her at my ease, "very beautiful and of exquisite taste. However, she has not the steadiness of a heroine or of a female crook of the experienced sort. She lacks the poise of manner necessary to those who do or get things. But," after a moment, "she fooled Cravath, so she must have a punch which she doesn't keep on display. Yes, yes, she's clever enough for that. She's got the best of him somehow, and all this pretty timidity might be paraded for its effect upon me."

I laughed at this. It seemed the very pinnacle of humor; never had there been a situation in the world a comedy more deliciously preposterous. I meant the laugh to be one of a private nature, but in issuing it, it got the better of me, and probably roared some. I know that a few of the guests and all of the waiters looked in my direction. My neighbor was visibly agitated.

"How," I wondered, "did she slip it across on Cravath? I'll bet when I hear it I'll laugh my head off. I can see him now, with a long face and a devil-take-it air, and when I hand him the pistol he'll begin to shine and smile like all possessed. Maybe he'll try and hide the facts from me; maybe he'll be backward in explaining just how she got around him." I was hugely amused at this idea; indeed, I was about to break into another laugh, but recalling the looks of guests and waiters, I held it safe. "It will be funny to watch him as he gets off the story," I chuckled; "it'll be awfully funny. And then, when I hand him the pistol—"

At this point I stopped laughing and sat up straight. In order to hand him the pistol I must first get it. There it was in the bag, almost within reach; but how should I gain possession of it?

The bottle stood with a light at its back and a small, sparkling quiver ran through its purple soul. I smiled at this in remembrance.

"Oh, yes," I said, "there is the plan, still imprisoned in the bottle. Well, here's luck. Let us hope I run it out in this drink."

I drank the wine, touched my lips with the napkin, and waited for the stirring of the thought. And as I waited I watched the girl.

"There are some natures," I reflected, "that would be gross enough to pull this entire fabric of delight into a commonplace police court case. If I were one of those, I would grab the bag, call the waiters and accuse yonder off-colored angel of robbery. There would be a scene; she would scream, the guests would be scandalized, I would be looked at askance, the proprietor would be in despair."

I abhorred the whole idea; to a man who had consumed a bottle of a beautiful drink the thing was clumsy and raw.

"Tact and aplomb should be called into play," I agreed. "Some skill has been required in days past in dealing with delicate matters; the old diplomats were charmingly cautious in even their most deadly moments; the iron hand was ever hidden by the velvet glove. I think," thickening my brows, "some such methods are necessary here."

I brushed some stray crumbs from my coat, smoothed my hair and sat very erect. I cannot figure just what my expression was; what I tried for, however, was one of careless ease, the contented look of a man well fed and at peace with his fellows. And while assuming this pose I narrowly watched for an opportunity.

This same narrow look was what did the business. It was evidently so extremely narrow that it frightened the suspicious beauty over the last line of [illegible]. About to get up, she overturned a glass of water. And so, napkin in hand, I moved to the rescue, righted the glass, said a number of disconnectedly polite things, moved her chair so that she might avoid the flood, and called her waiter.

The first shock over, she grew remarkably calm. I had encountered that sort of thing before. Once or twice I caught a flash of what might have been a smile, and was therefore in a mood of much self-approval.

"To move gently upon the enemy is the proper scientific method," I thought. "The other way gets you nothing."

After the excitement died and the waiter had departed, she said:

"Thank you."

Ordinarily, that would have been my cue to go back to my own preserves, but just then I ignored the suggestion. This was the place where the diplomacy began; there might never come another such opportunity.

So I bowed politely.

"Only too glad to have been of service," said I. Then I called up a smile. "As Mr. Blaylow is not here, you see, I will, to some extent, take his place."

I saw her eyes widen, but, however, there was no trace of the former agitation. She seemed to have put that aside for good.

"Mr. Blaylow?" she said, inquiringly.

"I heard you speak of him when you came in," I explained.

"Oh, yes." She looked at me quietly. "So you know him?"

"Very well."

There was a pause, during which I sat down. She did not resent this; indeed, I am not at all sure that she noticed it.

"It is a privilege to know so capable a gentleman as Mr. Blaylow," she said after a time.

"Why, I don't know but what it is," I answered. "His show of nerve is very consistent. However, speed is nothing to brag of, and he has pulled up lame more than once. When you look at his record from a particular angle you see no victories marked up to his credit."

"From one particular angle," she said, in a musing sort of way. "I think I understand."

I smiled knowingly, but did not reply.

"Is it, do you think," she asked, "because he lacks interest in the matter in which he has failed?"

"Believe me," I assured her, "his interest there is very close to his heart. As far as I know, he would much prefer to succeed in this and place his losses elsewhere."

She nodded gravely and tapped the table with the edge of her fingers. In a moment she looked up with a smile.

"It was not always Mr. Blaylow himself who failed," she said. "Sometimes he had assistants. And they, it seems, did no better than he."

"In a number of cases," I answered, "he did employ others, and as you say, the results were failures."

"All that," she said, "seems to indicate that the [illegible] strength of no small consequence. Failure after failure must mean that the force of [illegible], and [illegible] as well, was of a lower order than that of the persons attacked."

I shook my head.

"As to that," said I, "I have not been able to make up my mind. Chance sometimes operates tenaciously in favor of a given person."

The smile she now gave me was something of an enigma.

"Suppose," she suggested, "that the things were to go over again—suppose that tonight there was to be another attempt—" She paused there; but the purple wine had fortified me against a like caution, and I said, humorously:

"Another attempt upon the Betterton pistol?"

And now her smile became a laugh.

"Why, yes," she said, "seeing that you are so candid about it. Let us suppose that another such attempt were to be made tonight. And suppose it were to be made," I recall that she looked me squarely in the eye as she said this, "by still another employe of Mr. Blaylow's. What chance would there be of success?"

I leaned my head upon my hands as though to get a better view of this problem. But really it was to hide a laugh. Little wretch, she was mocking me! With all the assurance in the world, she inquired as to the possibility of a thing she had already accomplished. [illegible] girl! I lifted my head and looked longingly toward my own table, where there was still some remaining inspiration. I longed to drink just one long glass to her ability, but failing that, I said:

"Why, as to the chances tonight for success in such a thing, I would mark them as being good."

"Ah," she said; and I noted that she looked down at the bag beside her. "And why better tonight than previously?"

"When a man fails repeatedly," said I, "it must tell him, if he be a man of brains and experience, that he should increase his efforts; he should add to the strength of his aggression. Mr. Blaylow I know to be such a man. I am quite confident," and I waved a hand with subtle significance, "that if he made another try tonight, he would select an aid of surpassing cleverness."

She laughed once more. Previously her laughs were subdued, even if quite frank; now, however, there was a tiny ring to it, that showed great elation.

"She is flattered," said I to myself; "she is flattered as well as amused."

She put her handkerchief to her eyes and then looked at me joyfully.

"Please forgive me," she said; "I did not mean to be rude; indeed, I am very glad to have met you, in fact, I wouldn't have missed the opportunity for anything. And so you think," the corners of her mouth curling deliciously upward, "a last attempt would necessitate the employment of some one of surpassing cleverness?"

I nodded emphatically.

"And not only that," I told her. "This eleventh-hour person would need to be possessed of superb confidence, of iron self-command; and covering it all there would be an air of appearing to be something which she was not."

A cloud passed over her face; it were as though this picture did not please her. However, she said, banteringly:

"She?"

"Or he, as the case may be," I hastened to add.

"And do you think there would be no chance of failure for this operator?" She was smiling again.

"The chances would be in favor of failure," I corrected her. "They would be greatly in its favor. But skill does much. The operator, if such a thing is attempted, will gain possession of the pistol."

She looked at the bag; and then, as if detecting something wrong with the arrangement of the strings, she took it up and began trifling with them.

"You feel sure of this?" she asked.

"I am confident of it."

Again the shadow which I had noticed before passed over her face. But at almost the same moment there came a step behind me; glancing up, the cloud vanished; she was radiant as the sun.

"Blaylow!" I told myself. "I've dallied too long with the velvet glove idea; now I'll have to take a scorned police court way but, after all—"

"There is such a thing as excess of confidence," she told me.

"The pistol," said I, steadily, "will pass into the hands of the operator. But," and I arose, "it will not remain there."

She smiled sweetly; then she laid the bag upon the table and lifted her hands to do something with her hat.

"Oh," she said, "you think that, do you?"

With a quick snatch, I had the bag, and then I whirled, a hand uplifted to strike, and found myself gazing into the smiling face of Cravath.

"Well," said he, "what's all this?"

"Oh!" said I. Then: "It's you, is it?"

He looked at the girl.

"I'm delighted," he said. "But how in the world you came to know Scanlon, I don't understand."

At this, her amazement equaled my own.

"Jimmy," she protested, "this is not Mr. Scanlon."

"Well, it was when I saw him this afternoon at the Merchants' Trust," answered he.

She gazed at me for a moment in wonder; then she began to laugh. And seeing my helpless look, Cravath understood that something was wrong. He said:

"Is it possible that you do not know that this is Miss Betterton?"

I sat down helplessly.

"I came here to celebrate your victory," said I, weakly. "I saw her with that bag, [illegible] and felt sure that it had been stolen from you once more."

Cravath also sat down. He and Miss Betterton were all but helpless.

"I saw," he managed to say after a few moments, "that the longer I kept the pistol the longer [illegible] would be. So, instead of [illegible] I took it to Miss Betterton this afternoon and told her the whole story."

Miss Betterton held out her hand.

"The whole story means the part that you played, too." Her smile was charming. "And all the time tonight I was laughing [illegible]"

"Why, of course," I said. "Whom did you think I meant?"

"Yourself," she answered. "Upon seeing you looking me, and noticing your glances at the bag, I [illegible] was about to meet with one of those adventures that Jimmy has been telling me of. And when you mentioned the name of Blaylow, and finally the pistol, I was sure of it."

I mentally plodded through the scene; as she talked with Cravath my eyes were fixed upon her. I had taken her for a crook; but how I ever came to do it I couldn't imagine.

"The house had been closed so long that I was afraid it would be dreadfully stuffy," she was saying, "so [illegible] with that, I would have had to tell Mrs. Fulton or Aunt [illegible]"

"It might be," I suggested to her, "that I would not have heard you speak of Blaylow."

"Anne told Mr. Blaylow that I was dining here tonight," she said to Cravath. "[illegible] the effrontery to follow me. [illegible]"

"But I would [illegible] it happen any other way [illegible]"

[illegible] upon the [illegible] over her hands, she folded her hands upon the [illegible] order." And [illegible] was giving it she leaned confidentially toward me. "Did I play my part well?" she asked.

"You heard what I said about the talents required by the person who would play Blaylow's last hand," I said. "When I mistook you for that person, [illegible]"

And at that she laughed, and laughed, and laughed until, at length, I didn't care whether I got any dinner or not.

YOU CAN BE ABSOLUTELY SURE OF VALUES

If you carefully read the store advertisements and follow them in your buying.

Merchants advertise certain lines because they know these lines will advertise their stores. Because there is something about certain goods, they are put in conspicuous places and the people are told about them. It may be the exclusiveness or newness of design, it may be an unusual quality, it may be an attractive price.

But there is at least one definite, sure reason why a merchant advertises an article and is willing to stake the reputation of his store upon it.

Therefore, when you see an article advertised in THE REVIEW, depend upon it, that article is good value, as good value as can be obtained in that particular store.

BRITISH GOVERNMENT WAS ALMOST DRIVEN FROM POWER

A Snap Division in the House of Commons Resulted in a Majority of Only Three for the Ministry—One of the Closest Calls on Record.

Special To The Review.

London, July 26.—The British Government was nearly turned out of office this afternoon by a snap division in the Commons, being saved by the small margin of only three votes. The vote was on the motion of Lloyd George that Monday be devoted to the discussion of the supplementary appropriations.

London, July 26.—"I say deliberately that we have no cause, so far as I know, no occasion, for quarreling with any country in any part of the world."

This statement was made by Premier Asquith when speaking in the House of Commons yesterday on the estimates for a committee on Imperial defence.

Continuing, the Prime Minister said that he viewed, without the least suspicion or dissatisfaction and with more than equanimity, the special conversation, interchanges of views, such, for instance, as between Russia and Germany.

Our relations with the great German empire were relations of amity and good-will. Mr. Haldane, the Lord Chancellor, had paid a visit to Berlin earlier in the year and had entered into conversation and interchanges of views. These had been continued since in a spirit of frankness and friendship on both sides, and we have now in London a distinguished diplomatist whom the German emperor had sent to our court.

Reviewing the composition and the work of the committee since the vote was last discussed in the House of Commons, he said that the committee had had, upon at least two occasions, the opportunity for showing the elasticity of its composition. Last year they had the pleasure of summoning the Premiers of all the self-governing dominions to their meeting, and he did not think there ever was a more significant or more momentous occasion. The second occasion was when the Rt. Hon. Mr. Borden and his colleagues attended the meeting last week. He was glad to say that they would attend again next week and he hoped that they would arrive at some satisfactory agreement.

He declared that international relations were being conducted now, as in the past decade, on perfectly settled and definite lines. They had not shifted to the right or to the left during the whole of that time. What were they? We cultivated with great and growing cordiality both sides our special international friendships. They had stood the test of time, the test of bad as well as of good weather. He did not hesitate to say that many questions which, had they arisen ten or fifteen years ago, might have been the cause of friction, possibly of ill-feeling and even of worse things, had smoothly yielded to mutual accommodation and perfect good-will without trouble from one side or the other.

Our friendships were not in any sense exclusive. For more than one reason the greatest of British interests remained that of the peace of the world.

If, unhappily as was the case, there was in this country as elsewhere, a growing and lamentable expenditure upon armaments, both naval and military, there was no power in the world which did not know perfectly well that so far as we were concerned we had no aggressive purpose. We coveted no heritage, we had no inclination or temptation to extend in any way the range of our responsibilities.

"But," said Mr. Asquith, in conclusion, "these responsibilties are world-wide, and if we are compelled to divert from other purposes more productive, more advantageous to mankind, the sum which we are now spending for the maintenance of our supremacy at sea, I am speaking what everyone in this House knows to be absolutely and literally a fact, a necessary insurance, of which the Government of this country ought to be the faithful and vigilant trustee."

Bonar Law, who followed Mr. Asquith's speech in the House of Commons on Imperial defence, expressed special pleasure at the participation of the self-governing dominions in the conference and paid a tribute to Hon. Mr. Borden, who, he said, had shown real anxiety to assist.

It was most important to have Canada's co-operation in peace, and if there was war within the Empire the problem of her participation in the foreign and naval palicy could and must be solved because the solution would stand for the continued existence of the British Empire and for the peace of the world.

Hon. Mr. Borden occupied a seat in the distinguished strangers' gallery.

The Secretary of Foreign Affairs, Sir Edward Grey, expressed the belief that there were forces at work which would influence the expenditure on armaments and diminish the prospect of war and that an increase in the financial burden would make itself felt, and, as armaments increased, it would more and more be borne on the people that to use for war the enormous machinery which had been created was bound to produce financial catastrophe.

The Foreign Secretary reminded the House that nothing caused more suspicion in the public mind in Germany than the idea that proposals were being made to the German Government for a limitation of armaments.

HARRY K. THAW MUST STAY IN THE MATTEWAN ASYLUM

Justice Keogle Denies His Application for Freedom and Holds That He is Still Dangerously Insane.

Special to the Review.

Whiteplains, N.Y., July 26.—Supreme Court Justice Keogh this morning handed down judgment denying Harry Kendall Thaw's application to be released from Mattewan Asylum, where he has been confined, as criminally insane, for the murder of Stanford White. The Court finds that he is still insane in the eyes of the law and declares his release would be dangerous to public safety.

Maryland Selects Progressives.

Baltimore, July 26.—The Maryland Progressive Republicans assembled here in mass convention yesterday and selected sixteen delegates with half a vote each and a like number of alternates to the national Progressive convention at Chicago August 5. Resolutions were adopted empowering a committee of seven to select eight Presidential electors independent of those named on the regular Taft ticket and declaring that no elector now on the Taft ticket shall be placed on the Progressive ticket unless he first resigns.

The significance of this latter clause lies in the fact that six of the existing electors are Roosevelt men.

Alberta Wins Irrigation Suit.

London, July 26.—The appeal of the Province of Alberta against the Alberta Railway & Irrigation Co. was allowed by the Privy Council yesterday. This was a dispute as to the cost and maintenance of bridges over the irrigation canals of Alberta.

Brantford's Industrial Expansion.

Brantford, July 26.—A survey was made here yesterday of 120 acres of land in Holmedale district, belonging to the waterworks department. The land will be distributed for industrial purposes, several ideas for new factories being now pending.

DUNDAS FIREMAN MEETS DEATH WHILE ON DUTY

Dundas, Ont., July 26.—Fireman James Smith of Dundas was killed, and damage amounting to more than $30,000 was caused in a fire at Jones Bros.' factory here shortly after midnight.

Smith was one of the oldest firemen in Dundas. He had been laid up with a bad cold for several days, and was advised by his doctor not to leave his home, but when the fire broke out he joined the brigade and was soon on the scene. He was working on the roof of the factory when he was overcome by the heavy smoke, and fell into the ruins, dying almost immediately.

Dr. Rykert was summoned after Smith's comrades had removed his body from the ruins, but life was extinct.

The fire started in the factory where the showcases are made, and spread rapidly. The damage is estimated at more than $30,000, and is covered by insurance.

The head office of the Jones Bros.' factory is in Toronto.

Bryan's Job to Worry Teddy.

New York, July 26.—A despatch from Sea Girt, N.J., says:

The question as to what is to become of William Jennings Bryan in the Democratic national campaign was seemingly answered here yesterday when close political advisers of Governor Wilson let it be known that Mr. Bryan's assignment would be to worry and harass the "bull moose" candidate and to follow him into every debatable state.

The assignment of Bryan to take care of Col. Roosevelt is regarded here as one in which the Nebraskan will take great joy. It is known that Bryan has regarded Roosevelt as a trespasser upon Democratic preserves, and the Wilson forces expect him to make a brave showing as a defender of his party's rights to carry out in office the things which Bryan advocated long before Col. Roosevelt decided that he, too, would take them up.

HON. MR. PELLETIER WANTS PENNY POSTAGE WITH FRANCE

Will Try to Make Arrangements For a Reduction of Cable Rates and Cheaper Postage.

Paris, July 26.—The Canadian Postmaster-General, Hon. Mr. Pellotier, arrived here last evening. He was met by a representative of Premier Poincare, the Canadian commissioner to France and the secretary of the Franco-American committee, Gabriel Louis Jaray.

The principal object of Mr. Pelletier's visit is to arrange, if possible, with M. Chaumet, Under Secretary of Posts and Telegraphs, for a reduction in cable rates and for the introduction of a two-cent postage between Canada and France. The Postmaster-General will be joined Saturday by the Canadian Premier, Hon. R. L. Borden; the Canadian Minister of Justice, Hon. C. J. Doherty; the Mniister of Marine and Fisheries, Hon. J. D. Hazen, and Hon. A. E. Kemp, Minister without portfolio.

Mr. Hazen will confer with M. Delcasse, the French Minister of Marine, on the subject of reciprocal shipping regulations, notably with respect to an increase in the number of lifeboats on steamships plying between France and Canada, and on the possibilities of improving trade between the two countries.

Great importance is attached to the visit to Paris of the Canadian Ministers on account of the close race ties between France and Canada, and an imposing program of entertainments has been arranged in their honor. This includes a visit to Versailles and banquets by the British Chamber of Commerce and the Franco-American committee, the latter to be jointly presided over by Premier Poincare and Gabriel Hanotauz, the president of the committee.

MOONLIGHT EXCURSION

By kind permission of the Commanding Officer the 57th Regiment Bugle Band will run their Annual Moonlight Excursion Friday Evening, August 2nd, 1912 Opera House Orchestra in attendance. Tickets 25c. MRS. ETHEL SMITH WAS DISCHARGED

Special to the Review.

Oxford, Eng., July 26.—Dr. Ethel Smyth, suffragette leader, charged with attempting to burn the residence of Lewis Harcourt, Secretary of State for the Colonies, was discharged by the magistrate this morning owing to the failure of witnesses to identify her.

Lady Medico Saves Man's Life.

Brantford, July 26.—A lady doctor from Minneapolis, whose name could not be secured, probably saved the life of Joseph Onesciana by first aid work here yesterday.

The Italian sectionman was struck by a westbound train, receiving a crushed foot and other serious injuries, which were thought at first to have been fatal. When taken to the hospital improvement was shown which local doctors attribute to the skill shown in first aid by the lady medico.

THE RIGHT HON. D. LLOYD GEORGE

Whose motion in the House of Commons to-day resulted in a snap division in which the Government was all but defeated.

Another Naval Conference.

London, July 26.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—Premier Borden resumed his conferences with Winston Churchill yesterday. It is understood a few more conferences after the French visit will close the negotiations. The Ministers, both British and Canadian, are understood to applaud the suggestion that the naval question is outside of party politics.

ANOTHER GUNMAN IS ARRESTED

New York, July 26.—Frank Murato, described in a police circular recently issued as "Dago Frank," "wanted for murder," in connection with the killing of Herman Rosenthal, the gambler, was brought to police headquarters late last night by department detectives.

He is one of the men declared by the police to have been in the "murder car" on the night of the shooting.

Wm. Shapiro, the chauffeur, and Louis Libby, part owner of the Rosenthal "murder car," were accepted as witnesses for the state late yesterday and furnished important new information to the authorities. Other valuable facts were furnished by John J. Hickey, an eye-witness of the shooting.

Immediately after they had made their statements, fifty subpoenaes were issued for witnesses who are to be summoned to appear at the grand jury investigation next week.

Hickey, the new witness, told the district attorney that he had stood within three feet of Rosenthal when the fatal shots were fired. According to Hickey, as District Attorney Whitman meagerly outlined his story, four shots from as many different revolvers were fired at the gambler.

Hickey also said that Rosenthal when he walked out of the Metropole Cafe, was accompanied by several friends. He had been summoned, according to Hickey, and the party stopped at the newspaper counter, where Rosenthal bought seven or eight papers. These he distributed among the party. All were glancing over the news, just outside, when the shots were fired.

Hickey said he might be able to identify two of the men who had revolvers.

"I have absolutely punctured the alibis of 'Bridgey' Weber and Harry Vallon, and from statements made to me and which will be repeated in the coroner's court to-day, I will have punctured the alibis of the other men now under arrest."

CROP OUTLOOK IN THE WEST

Harvesting In Saskatchewan May Be Delayed by the Excessive Rains, But Fears of Black Rust Are Subsiding—The Yield Per Acre Is Expected to Be the Greatest In the History of the West.

Winnipeg, July 26.—Thus far there is nothing untoward against a good crop production this year. Fears of black rust have not yet materialized, but the weather still causes anxiety in parts.

In Saskatchewan, rain is very general over the province, and if such weather continues they will seriously delay the ripening of the crops. Cupar, Normanton, Redville and Holgate report scattered hailstorms, but the damage is small.

There seems to be a very general opinion among farmers from all sections of the provinces, crop experts, elevator companies and farmers' organizations, that this year's crop will be the largest ever grown in western Canada, in which the Provincial Department of Agriculture of Manitoba coincides.

Not only will the total yield be the largest, but, judging by present conditions, the yield per acre will outstrip all previous performances. One of the best known agriculturists of western Canada states that harvest of the various crops will take place during the following periods: Barley, commence Aug. 1, completed Aug. 20; fall wheat, Aug. 10 to 25; spring wheat, Aug. 18 to Sept. 10; flax, Aug. 25 to Sept. 10; oats, Aug. 25 to Sept. 15.

This will put all grains in stock by the middle of September, fully three weeks ahead of the ordinary season.

HAMILTON WOMAN MAKES LONG WALK

Chatham, July 26.—With her feet so badly blistered that she could hardly walk and only twelve cents in her pocketbook, Mrs. Elizabeth Turner of Hamilton arrived in Chatham yesterday morning after having completed the fifty miles between Windsor and this city on foot.

Mrs. Turner, who is fifty years of age, started from Windsor upon receipt of a telegram that her daughter in Hamilton was seriously ill. She was given assistance by the police, but she is now in a very serious condition as a result of her walk. She was given lodging in farm houses on the route between the Border City and Chatham.

The coalition Cabinet of Chili, composed of Liberals, Liberal Democrats and Conservatives, which was organized last May, resigned yesterday.

At a meeting of the Dominion Cabinet Council last night a contract for $50,000 tons of steel rails was given the Dominion Steel Co. of Nova Scotia.

The Duke of Connaught has accepted an invitation to lay the cornerstone for St. Alban's Cathedral at Toronto during the first week of the exhibition.

George Dick, aged 52, a resident of Kingston all his life and a mariner, was found dead by workmen in the shipyards of the Montreal Transportation Co. yesterday.

Struck down while at play by a runaway horse, Gordon Pink, of London, Ont., two years old, received injuries yesterday from which he died at Victoria Hospital but one hour afterwards.

More definite information regarding the caving in of a ditch at the Kenogami paper mills near Jongmere, Que., Wednesday, indicates that four men are dead and two others fatally injured.

H. A. Suggitt, a farmer near Chin, eighteen miles east of Lethbridge, turned his binders into a 600-acre field of winter wheat Wednesday. By the end of the month the winter wheat harvest will be general.

Lord Devonport Guarded.

New York, July 26.—A cable from London says: Twenty-four policemen yesterday mounted guard over Lord Devonport's residence and the park which surrounds it. Another detail patrolled the approaches to the park.

Lord Devonport is the employer for whose death thousands of striking dock workers prayed publicly on Tower Hill Wednesday. The precautions were taken for fear of an attempt to assassinate him.

Public sentiment was in a measure turning strongly in the strikers' favor yesterday, because the evidence of their own and their families' frightful sufferings could not but create the utmost horror and compassion.

In support of the dock workers, other unions also were beginning to talk of sympathetic strikes, which it was feared might ultimately become general.

Dock Strike at Fort William.

Fort William, July 26—Alleging that several of their number had not been given credit for work performed, the Canadian Pacific coal dock employes, numbering 300, quit work yesterday morning. Operations have been discontinued, but the tie-up is not viewed with much concern by the company officials, in view of the fact that the coal rush is not due for several weeks.

A meeting was held yesterday afternoon, during which an effort was made to adjust the dispute.

INSPECTOR HERBERT WAS MURDERED BY AN ALIEN

Well-Known Canadian Civil Servant Is Shot by William Ferguson, a Cripple, While Crossing the River to Detroit—Slayer Is Arrested, But It Is Not Known on Which Side of the River the Crime Occurred.

Windsor, July 26.—H. G. Herbert, of Ottawa, traveling immigration inspector for the Dominion Government, was shot and instantly killed yesterday afternoon by a cripplied alien, to whom he had refused admittance to Canada.

William Ferguson, a Scotchman, was the murderer. He shot Herbert when the latter was crossing the river to Detroit, firing four bullets. Every shot lodged in the inspector's head, causing immediate death.

The shooting occurred on the ferry boat Excelsior, shortly after the boat had pulled away from the Canalian shore.

The murderer was arrested in Detroit and held by the police. He will be extradited if it is shown the crime was committed while the ferry boat was in Canadian waters. If the killing was done in American waters Ferguson will face a penalty of life imprisonment, according to the laws of the State of Michigan, as against a death sentence if he is tried in Canada.

Ferguson was not in the custody of Herbert, but the latter had been present in the Windsor immigration office when Ferguson was questioned and told that he would have to return to the United States because of physical trouble. He has but one leg. Herbert happened to take the same boat back to Detroit with Ferguson, and when the latter recognized him he instantly drew his revolver and shot him dead.

Had An Active Career.

Ottawa, July 26.—News of the murder of Henry G. Herert, Dominion immigration inspector, on a ferry crossing from Windsor to Detroit yesterday afternoon, came as a shock to his many friends and acquaintances here.

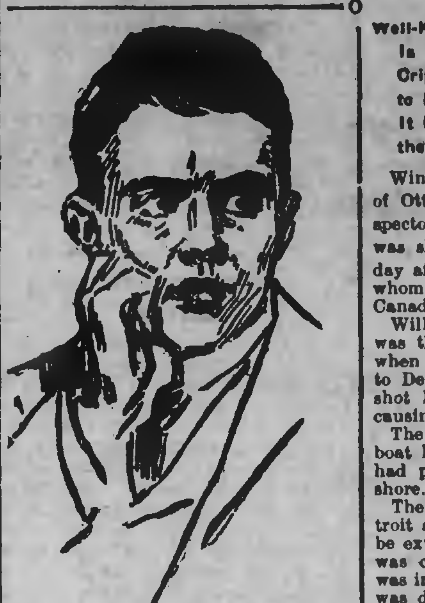
Herbert, who was born in London, Eng., in 1873, was a man who had seen much of the world. For a time he was in the employ of the New Zealand Government, where he first emigrated. Coming to Canada in 1898, he went west at the time of the Klondyke rush, and having had considerable mining experience, received the appointment of mining recorder of the Yukon. A few years ago his wife died there, and, becoming weary of the life away from civilisation, he came to Ottawa and received his appointment as traveling inspector for the immigration branch of the Department of the Interior. He was a close friend of W. W. Cory, Deputy Minister of the Interior, and of F. T. Congdon, ex-M.P. for the Yukon. Although he had many friends here, it is a peculiar thing that none of them know anything about [illegible] relatives.

HUMBLE SURVIVOR TO BE REWARDED

Berlin, July 26.—Abram Rownstein, a Russian Jew, who has been in this city for several months, and who, according to his own story, escaped from the ill-fated steamer Titanic, says that he has received a letter from New York, stating that he was to be made the recipient of $10,000 for his assistance in saving ten lives during the sinking of the steamer. He says that the money is from the United States investigating committee, and forms a part of a half million dollar fund raised for the survivors. The money, he stated, is being transferred to Montreal, where he will go to receive it.

Winnipeg's Poor Water Supply.

Winnipeg, July 26.—Dr. Simpson, chairman of the Provincial Health Board, yesterday bitterly condemned Winnipeg's present water supply, both in quality and quantity. He advised against an extension of the present artesian well supply and for a visible supply.



HARRY K. THAW.

His application for release from the asylum has been denied, Justice Keogh holding that he is still dangerously insane.

ENGINEERS CLOSE THEIR CONVENTION

Belleville, July 26.—After being in session here three days, the 23rd annual convention of the Canadian Association of Stationary Engineers was brought to a close here yesterday afternoon.

The closing session was devoted to installing the newly-elected officers as follows: Past president, W. Norris, Chatham; president, J. A. Robertson, Stratford; vice-president, S. Cosford, London; conductor, F. Chesher, Belleville; doorkeeper, H. L. Bishop, Hamilton; secretary, A. Kostello, Stratford; treasurer, W. E. Archer, Toronto.

A past president's jewel was presented to the retiring secretary, W. A. Crockett of Hamilton.

The Exhibitors' Association held their annual meeting yesterday and elected officers for the year. J. E. Fiddes of the James Morrison Brass Works, Toronto, was chosen president.

The convention next year will be held at Owen Sound.

Niggardly Recognition.

St. Catharines, July 26.—At Queenston Heights yesterday in addressing the union picnic of the veterans of Toronto, St. Catharines and the Niagara district, Rev. Canon Ker, chaplain of the 19th Regiment, criticized the Government recognition to the veterans.

In the course of his address he said: "I am positively ashamed to mention it in the hearing of the trees which witnessed the events of 1812. A paltry sum of $100 doled out with a niggardly hand is the value our rulers have set upon the defence of Canadian hearts and homes by the veterans of 1866."

AUSTRALIA JOINS IN THE PROTEST

Melbourne, July 26.—The Senate of the Commonwealth of Australia yesterday unanimously passed the resolution adopted by the House of Representatives on July 18, in reference to the Panama Canal. Its terms are as follows:

"In the opinion of this House any system providing for a bonus or a rebate of canal dues to American shipping using the Panama Canal would be detrimental to the interests of Australia."

TWO THOUSAND RAILWAY WORKERS STRIKE IN WEST

Workmen on G. T. P. In Rocky Mountains Walk Out.

Vancouver, July 26.—Two thousand members of the Industrial Workers of the World have gone on strike on the Grand Trunk Pacific between Hazelton and Burns' Lake, a distance of 180 miles. Burns' Lake is a short distance northwest of Fort George. The men quit work Wednesday night.

For weeks there has been talk of a strike on the north, but, as was the case with the Canadian Northern strike, no demands have been made on construction contractors for higher wages or changed conditions.

The I. W. W. plan is apparently to tie things up for this fall and delay things so seriously that work cannot be resumed before spring. The contractors have wired the Provincial Government for soldiers and special police to be sent north immediately.

Even if this is done it will take ten days for the men to reach the outlying portions of the grade where work has been carried on.

Reports say that station men who have small contracts on grading are the only ones now working. The I. W. W. claim that by the end of the week the entire grade through to Yellowhead Pass will be tied up and that another thousand men will quit work.

Sir Henry Honorary Colonel.

Ottawa, July 26.—Lieut.-Col. V. A. G. Williams of the Royal Canadian Dragoons, has had his tenure as Dominion inspector of cavalry extended till August, 1913.

Col. Sir Henry Pellatt becomes honorary colonel of the Queen's Own. The appointment of Capt. J. W. Bell as major of the 91st Highlanders, vice Major McLaren, promoted lieutenant-colonel, is gazetted.

Major W. T. McMullen is promoted to command the 22nd Oxford Rifles, vice Lieut.-Col. J. White.

PREFERRED DEATH TO POLICE COURT

STRATFORD'S OPPORTUNITY

The opportunity of a life time is knocking at the door of Stratford, but the Classic City lurks behind the portal and pays no heed to the summons. The mayor of the city stated at Toronto the other day that his municipality was slowly dying by reason of governmental restrictions, but peradventure it is only slumbering.

Stratford is ambitious to have a street railway and Mackenzie and Mann offer not only to build it, but to give the city connection by radial westward to Berlin. The hitch in the negotiations is that Mackenzie and Mann naturally wish to use their own power, and to this condition the majority of the citizens are disposed to agree. But Stratford, already a patron of the Hydro-Electric, has an agreement with the Commission that in the event of a street railway being built the power required in the operation is to be derived from the same source. The city has asked the Provincial Government to release it from this part of the contract, but the request has been denied and the projected improvement is now tied up.

Why does not Stratford solve the difficulty by following the example of Berlin and Guelph and building and operating its own road? It would thus be saved the necessity of granting a long term franchise to a corporation which would hold the property at a fancy figure in case the city should ever wish to take over the company's rights. Mackenzie and Mann would not object, it is claimed, and a radial to Berlin would still be assured. All the big railway interests want is an entry into Stratford for their radial system, and so long as this is acquired they are indifferent as to the ownership of the road within the municipality. By the further use of the Hydro-Electric Stratford would not only reap profit herself but would help to reduce the rates for every patron of the system.

Municipal ownership of street railways is what the country is coming to sooner or later, and Stratford's opportunity presents itself. Its two neighboring cities have made a success of a similar venture, and there is no earthly reason why Stratford cannot do the same.

With its finger on the pulse of the people the Herald is beginning to favor the idea of the city ownings its own means of transportation, but a move of such importance is always sure to encounter sturdy opposition.

RECKLESS AUTO DRIVING

The city authorities permit the owners of auto cars to tear through the streets at the rate of 15 English miles an hour, a speed which should satisfy any reasonable person possessed of due regard for the safety of his fellows who make their way on foot. In other cities the legalized rate is considerably below that figure and in Toronto further restrictions are placed upon the autoists by compelling them to come to a standstill opposite every street car that stops to take on passengers or allow them to alight. Some village and town councils, with an eye for easy revenue have set the speed limit as low as six miles, as many visiting chauffeur has found to his financial cost.

There have been a good many complaints received at this office of late with regard to the alleged reckless driving of autos on our most crowded thoroughfares and any observant person must admit that these complaints are not without foundation. Several prominent citizens only yesterday had a narrow escape from mutilation or death under the wheels of a car that all interested are ready to make oath was bounding along at a 20-mile rate at least.

There is a disposition on the part of those who have a grievance to hold Chief Thompson responsible for these violations of the city bylaw, but the chief cannot be in all parts of the city at once nor can he redistribute his patrolmen as to have every quarter under police surveillance at the same time. The chief can do all that is humanly possible and no more. The freedom of the city from crime and suspicious characters is the best evidence that Chief Thompson and his men are duly vigilant and attentive to their duties.

The remedy for this reckless speeding is in the hands of the citizens themselves. All they have to do is to take the number of an offending car, make formal complaint and then the police and Magistrate Dumble can be relied upon to do the rest. And by bringing an offender to justice any citizen will perform a worthy act of public service.

THE PRIVY COUNCIL'S LATEST

It seems incredible that the Mackenzie and Mann interests can invade any municipality and erect their poles without asking permission from mayor or council, but that they possess that power has been made apparent by the recent decision of the Privy Council. North Toronto resented the invasion of its territory by the company, and the case was carried by the usual stages to the Court of Appeals, which decided against the interests, which decision has just been reversed by the Privy Council.

The Toronto Electric Light Company operates under a Dominion charter granted by Sir Wilfrid Laurier while he was premier in the face of unanimous protest from the then Opposition. It was at the time regarded as a clear invasion of Provincial rights and a theft of the prerogatives of municipalities, and so it has turned out to be.

Helpless as the Ontario municipalities appear to be under this decision, the people are not without hope. The present Dominion Government may be depended upon to right the wrongs and straighten out the injustice by repealing all such charters and restoring to the provinces the control of such corporations as the Toronto Electric Light Company.

Then there is the Hydro-Electric upon which to fall back. Even with the right to erect poles at will the private interest cannot hope to compete with the public concern, and an insistence upon the rights referred to will only tend to drive away patronage to their service.

NOTE AND COMMENT

And suppose anyone did succeed in reaching the summit of Mt. McKinley, whence the benefit to society?

Probably, if Premier Asquith lived in New York, he could secure immunity from his arch enemies, by an agreement with the police and the paying of so much per.

The scare of a binder twine famine may have been inspired by the manufacturers to prepare the farmers for a substantial increase in the cost of that article.

The great question that confronts the New York police when they arrest a man, is not what crime he has committed, but whether he has any money with which to buy his release.

Now that a Winnipeg man owns the fastest pacer in the world, the Manitoba capital will probably stop boasting of the climate and take to praising the racehorse as a diversion.

No doubt they have fast horses in the United States, but the best of them at Detroit, the other day, were not swift enough to force the Winnipeg pacer to his top speed.

It has been generally understood for some time that the Mackenzie and Mann interests owned a big block of the earth, but it remained for the Privy Council to establish their right to disfigure their possession by the erection of poles.

Bennett, the Indian homicide, "Big Frank" the Humber muderer, and Lawyer Olgivie, the Hamilton man, who embezzled the funds of widows and orphans, are still at large. Those "hot trails" that the police are always finding never seem to lead anywhere.

The first auto that ever appeared in the vicinity of Elk Lake, so frightened an inoffensive bear that beheld it in motion, that the animal precipitately broke for its den in the thicket. If the auto was whizzing along as fast as some of the local cars tear through the streets, there was no place for personal safety like the timbers.

The Democratic members of Congress evidently have no war scare to haunt their dreams, seeing that in caucus assembled they decided by a vote of 70 to 82 to oppose the construction of any more battleships, and the minority asked for only one ship at that. All offers of a compromise with the more belligerent Republican members of House and Senate were rejected.

Latest Quotations in Grain Dairy Products, Live Stock Etc.

Liverpool Wheat Futures Close Higher, Chicago Lower—Live Stock —Latest Quotations.

CHICAGO, July 25.—Promise that if the weather during the next two weeks remained normal, the Northwest would reap the largest spring crop ever known to-day turned the wheat market down hill. Closing prices were easy and 1-4c to 3-8c to 7-8c under last night. Latest trading left corn 1-2c lower to 1c up, oats 5-8c off to 1-2c advance, and provisions varying from unchanged figures to a rise of 17 1-2c.

The Liverpool market closed to-day unchanged to ¼d higher on wheat and ½d higher on corn.

Died at Husband's Funeral.

Kingston, July 26.—Very sudden and under very sad circumstances was the death of Mr. McCartney, wife of William McCartney, yesterday afternoon. Her husband died on Wednesday morning, and just before the funeral service for her husband was to commence, she dropped dead in the arms of a relative. Heart failure, brought on by the shock of her husband's death, was the cause.

She was 74 years of age and her husband 70. They had been married fifty years. A family of six children survive. Mr. McCartney was for many years a prominent contractor.

$100 REWARD $100

The readers of this paper will be pleased to earn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucuous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

Coal Results

¶ We sell the very best quality of hard coal, as good as we know how to buy.

¶ Are you getting results from the coal you are now using? Are you sure it is good? Are you burning it the right way?

¶ There is a deal of difference in how you handle the range or furnace. Our long experience tells us that fact, and we are ready to advise any in doubt as to the best way to make use of coal as fuel.

"Not exactly, Ramon," he replied. "I'm going to stuff it with something valuable, though. Watch and see."

Deftly the boy extracted some folded letters from the inner pockets of his clothing. As deftly he crumpled them, wound them round the rubber center of the ball and pressed them into spheroid shape. Some of the yarn from the ball was then wound round the bundle, and then came the work of resewing the cover. This was a long and tedious task, but was completed in perhaps forty minutes, when the ball, to all outward appearances, was again nothing but a worn and battered veteran of big league battles.

"That ball," said Brockett, surveying his handiwork with justifiable pride, "contains the entire packet of letters to Gomez Esteral, and the envelopes now contain sundry wholly harmless letter-sheets I happened to have in my pockets. I think that the inside of a league ball is about the last place they would think to look for important papers."

"Pretty old ball," commented Solano. "Had a rubber center instead of a cork core. But what good is the ball going to do us? If we never get through to Gomez Esteral what difference does it make whether the dispatches are in a ball or in an aeroplane?"

Brockett smiled serenely. "Quit worrying, Ramon, quit worrying. Now, then, come closer—still closer—where there won't be any chance of sharp Mexican ears getting wise. Now, then, listen to me!"

* * *

Captain Juan Torrejon's bandits certainly loved baseball, and evidently played it to the best of their ability and as often as time and place allowed. The clearing in which the camp was pitched had a rude diamond laid out at its northern edge, while the southern borders showed much evidence of the tramping feet of the outfielders. Sentinels guarded the boundaries of the camp with hawklike gaze; some twenty of the bandits frolicked back and forth upon the sward, waiting for the practice to begin, and the rest of the operatic-looking brigands, with their leader, lounged around the catcher's position.

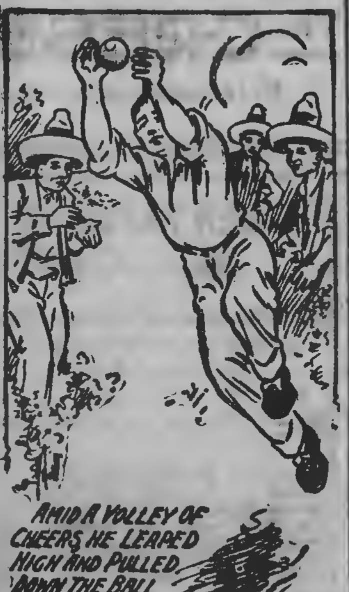
Juan Torrejon greeted his prisoners with great courtesy, and asked if they had slept and breakfasted well. Answered in the affirmative as to both queries, a look of genuine pleasure seemed to cross his swarthy countenance, and he expressed his satisfaction at their words.

"If it pleases you, caballeros," he went on, "will you inspect the bats and balls? Our equipment is doubtless crude and poor, but in these troublous times it is not easy to obtain first-class material. What branch of the profession will you deign to instruct us in as a beginning?"

"If agreeable to you, Captain Torrejon," said Solano, "my friend will bat up some flies, to see how your fielders handle them."

"Bueno, muy bueno," Torrejon approved. "I fear you will find them but feeble in pursuit of the ball!"

Feeble they were. They tried hard, these bandit Mexicans, but only the easiest kind of fly balls rested securely in their grip. After about a dozen balls had been dropped, Solano, with a gesture of impatience, set off at a jog-trot, crossed the field and took up a position among the farthest Mexicans, not far from the edge of the clearing.



AMID A VOLLEY OF CHEERS HE LEAPED HIGH AND PULLED DOWN THE BALL.

"Bueno, bueno!" laughed Captain Torrejon. "Your friend will show how the fly ball should be caught, si? Let us watch him."

Solano took two fly balls, each fairly well out, and backing beyond the ring of Mexicans to get them. Loud applause greeted his graceful handling of the chances. Then Brockett laid the wood against the ball with tremendous power. The startled sphere soared high, and Solano, starting at the crack of the bat, raced under the ball far down to the bushes' edge. Amid a volley of cheers, he leaped high, pulled down the ball—and then kept right on running. Before the astounded Mexicans could realize the trick, he vanished into the chaparral, sprinting like a madman, and with him went the ball that contained the messages to Gomez Esteral!

* * *

Juan Torrejon was a man to act with promptitude, no matter what the exigency. Horsemen could not ride through the dense undergrowth into which Solano had vanished, but twenty bandits were on his track a moment later. The chief himself sprang at Brockett with a snarl of fury, and made a lightning search of the prisoner. The search brought forth the envelopes in which the original missives had reposed, and Torrejon, his fierce face lighting up a trifle, carefully stowed them in his own apparel.

He called a young Mexican to his side and ordered him to act as his interpreter.

"Tell the young man," said the chief, slowly and with an apparent return of good humor, "that I was quite sure his friend had not carried off the papers, but that I wanted to make sure—he will therefore pardon the roughness of the searching process. Five minutes before the other young man went out to catch fly balls, deft hands had been over his clothing and found nothing. He, therefore, simply ran away, and left his companion to face the music. So be it. If he can be caught, all right, all well and good. If not, let him go his way—I give him credit for a clever escape. You and I, Senor Brockett, will meet the gentlemen with the unpronounceable names in a few hours—and we will bargain with them. Will it please you to go on with the baseball teachings?"

Noon came, and the bandits who had pursued Solano began to straggle in. They brought no prisoner, and declared that the young Gringo must have been carried out and befriended by the devil. Torrejon, courteous as ever, made Brockett eat with him, and asked him many questions concerning the great game of the Americans, its rules, its famous players. Towards one o'clock a sentry at the western edge of the clearing challenged loudly, and a moment later two bandits escorted a huge German gentleman to the presence of their commander. Baron Zollern bowed pompously to Torrejon, and then smiled mockingly at Brockett.

"I see, mein frient," quoth the baron, "dot you vos, ad lead, in safe hands. Vere iss your bartner?"

The baron was much worried at the news that Solano had escaped, but expressed marked relief at the information that the Cuban had not succeeded in getting away with the letters addressed to Gomez Esteral.

"Dot iss vell," he sighed, happily. "It iss, berhaps, better yet dot he haf gone—he can haf nodings to say, und dere iss but de von left to disbose off. Shall ve get down to bitzness? Vere iss de liddle ledders, gaptain?"

A sentinel at the northern edge of the clearing gave challenge, and two more of the bandits came across the glade. With them walked a little brown man, suave and gentle—the little man whom Brockett thought long since dead in the waters of North river—the tireless agent of Japan—none less than Mr. Yazimoto!

Baron Zollern greeted the Nipponese with evident surprise, but with forced courtesy.

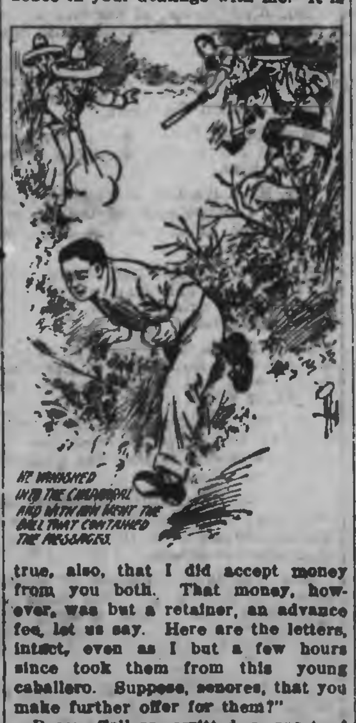
"I subbosed," said he, "dot my abbointmend vos exclusive mit de captain. Sdill, Herr Yazimoto, you are welcome. You unterstand, of gourse, dot I haf de virst und only glaim to dese Esteral documents? De key off de cipher code. Herr Yazimoto, I will share mit you, und gladly. Iss dot agreeable?"

Mr. Yazimoto purred his dissent. The entire dossier of Esteral letters, as well as the cipher code, he explained, were his. After he had perused them, he would gladly let his old friend, the Baron Zollern, glance through them, but for the present time, though it desolated him to be so selfish, he must insist upon the first inspection of the papers, already purchased from the honorable captain.

Baron Zollern glowered and growled his statement that he had paid for the letters, and that he, he alone, should have first reading of the missives. Both men appealed to Juan Torrejon. That operatic brigand promptly found refuge in his ignorance of the English tongue. Loud language was heard: the big German purpled in the face, and the suave smile left the countenance of Mr. Yazimoto. Brockett, fascinated by the faces of these two men, whom he had thought removed from his path forever, almost forgot that he was a prisoner, and completely forgot the dangers of his situation as he listened to the quarrel.

Juan Torrejon stood by and smiled humorously at the babel of tongues, but finally seemed to tire of the uproar. He beckoned the young Mexican who had previously translated his words to Brockett, and calmly laid down the law to the contending spies.

"I must confess, senores," said Torrejon, pleasantly, "that I forgot which one of you should have precedence in your dealings with me. It is true, also, that I did accept money from you both. That money, however, was but a retainer, an advance fee, let us say. Here are the letters, intact, even as I but a few hours since took them from this young caballero. Suppose, senores, that you make further offer for them?"



HE VANISHED INTO THE CHAPARRAL AND WITH HIM WENT THE BALL THAT CONTAINED THE MESSAGES.

Baron Zollern emitted a snort of indignation. "A hold-up, iss id?" he fairly bellowed. "Vell, I should haf oxbected id. Here"—and he dragged a capacious wallet from his inner pocket—"iss ten tousand dollars more. Vill dot suffice your rabacity?"

Juan Torrejon bowed with all the grace of a true Spanish cavalier. "It will be ample, senor—unless this other gentleman desires to offer still more."

Mr. Yazimoto turned white beneath his saffron skin.

"I had imagined," he protested, "that the bargain concluded with the honorable captain was a business transaction. Unfortunate to declare, I brought no money with me. Still, if the honorable captain will agree, I will bring twelve thousand dollars before the sunrise of another morning."

Torrejon shook his head.

FOLLIES OF FASHION.

Why Women Wear Ribbons In Their Hair.

Observe the young lady with the ribbon about her hair. Do you know why she wears it? No? Neither does she.

The reason is that in the year 1680 the Duchess de Fontanges' hat blew off.

The duchess, then the favorite of Louis XIV., was out hunting on the royal preserves. Unfortunately her hat blew off. What was she to do? The duchess was equal to the occasion. Taking off her crimson garter ribbon, she bound it about her disheveled coiffure with the rosette to the front.

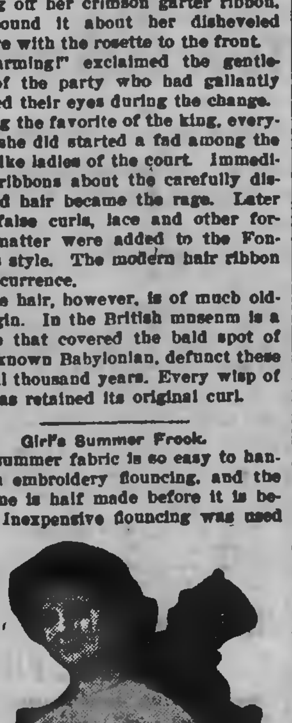
"Charming!" exclaimed the gentlemen of the party who had gallantly lowered their eyes during the change.

Being the favorite of the king, everything she did started a fad among the sheeplike ladies of the court. Immediately ribbons about the carefully disordered hair became the rage. Later rats, false curls, lace and other foreign matter were added to the Fontanges style. The modern hair ribbon is a recurrence.

False hair, however, is of much older origin. In the British museum is a toupee that covered the bald spot of an unknown Babylonian, defunct these several thousand years. Every wisp of hair has retained its original curl.

Girl's Summer Frock.

No summer fabric is so easy to handle as embroidery flouncing, and the costume is half made before it is begun. Inexpensive flouncing was used most effectively for this little girl's frock, bands of torchon insertion being introduced here and there as entre deux.



EFFECTIVE USE FOR FLOUNCING.

Divided on Suffrage.

English society women are divided on the suffrage question. It is the fashion to have strong views for or against and very old fashioned to be indifferent on the subject.

Meetings on one side or the other must be fitted into the day's round of social duties. Sometimes they are sandwiched in between luncheons and teas and in other cases between dinners and dances.

A free thinker is a man who isn't married.

Rain In Spring.

Gee whiz!
Suppose the crops do need it
In their biz!
In these merry days
Are the crops the only things
To raise?
We feel a sight
Like raising something quite Different when we get Wet
When in our best
Sunday vest.
A little rain
Is safe and sane.
If have it we must
Give us enough to lay
The dust.
Let's have a few
Light showers or a dew
Occasionally.
But a steady downpour
Makes us sore.
Do the crops
Need big drops
All the day and quite
The best part of the night?
They ought to grow
On a shower or so
Once in awhile.
They should smile
With wetness once a week,
But when they seek
A constant flood
It riles our blood.
Say,
Crops are a nuisance
Anyway.
Why doesn't some inventor arise
And advise Us how to give Them the shake and yet live?
But where would be the gain?
The rain
Would come anyway
And spoil our May.

The Artist.

My paintbox opens with a slide,
And shows the colored paints inside
With which I paint the land and sea,
The house, the mountain and the tree.
But if I do not paint them well,
I may do better—who can tell?
I do my best; if not correct,
What more can any one expect
From one so young, about to start,
And one who never studied art?
My landscapes seem as true as those
I've often seen at artists' shows,
Where I could never understand
Which was the sea and which the land.
These pictures by a boy of eight
Are not expected to be great,
I may be when I larger grow
A second Michelangelo.

YOU CAN BE ABSOLUTELY SURE OF VALUES

If you carefully read the store advertisements and follow them in your buying.

Merchants advertise certain lines because they know these lines will advertise their stores. Because there is something about certain goods, they are put in conspicuous places and the people are told about them. It may be the exclusiveness or newness of design, it may be an unusual quality, it may be an attractive price.

But there is at least one definite, sure reason why a merchant advertises an article and is willing to stake the reputation of his store upon it.

Therefore, when you see an article advertised in THE REVIEW, depend upon it, that article is good value, as good value as can be obtained in that particular store.

ONE OF THE CITY'S OLDEST RESIDENTS PASSES AWAY

Mr. Charles Stapleton sr. Died This Morning at the Home of His Son on Gilmour Street — Well Known in Masonic and Business Circles—Funeral Sunday Afternoon at 2 30.

Mr. Charles Stapleton, Sr., died this morning at the residence of his son, Mr. C. S. Stapleton, 484 Gilmour St., aged 86 years. He was one of the oldest men in the city and one of those whose length of residence was the longest. His death was due to his advanced age. He had been ailing for some days a short time ago, but had recovered and seemed to be gaining in strength, so that the end this morning was in a measure a surprise. And so passes away a citizen who was well known and highly respected not only in the city but throughout the county.

Charles Stapleton, Sr., was born in Hillier, Prince Edward County, on September 1st, 1825. He came to Peterborough in 1842 when it was a mere village, eight years before its incorporation as a town, and has been actively associated with, and, in many important respects, has promoted, the civic development. He came to Peterborough, in 1842 in company with his uncle, the late Sheriff Conger, afterwards member of parliament, and later Mr. Stapleton became deputy sheriff, and for about thirty years he was bailiff of the first Division Court of the County. He also followed the occupation of an auctioneer, and continued in that capacity till within a year or two of his death. He was also a land valuator, and incidentally was connected with the real estate business. In his younger years he was for several years a member of the Volunteer Fire Brigade and assistant engineer, at the time the late Col. Poole was chief of the brigade. He was actively associated with the organization of the Peterborough Waterworks, was one of the directors of the company, and for a time, acting superintendent. An ardent and capable horseman, he naturally became a member of C. Squadron of the 3rd Prince of Wales Dragoons, having been captain and quartermaster, and retiring with the rank of major. He was the recipient of a long-service medal presented at the same time as that given Col. H. C. Rogers. He was also for twenty-five years and up till his death a director of the Little Lake Cemetery Company. During a part of his life, Mr. Stapleton was extensively engaged in the live stock shipping business, sending his stock to the English and chief United States markets. In religion he was an Anglican, and member of St. John's congregation, nearly all his adult life. He was a member of the Masonic Order, the oldest member of Corinthian Lodge, A.F. and A.M., No. 101. He was made a member in May 6th, 1857, and in February, 1900, had the honor of being made a life member. He was, therefore, at the time of his death perhaps the oldest member of the order in Peterborough. In politics, he was a staunch Conservative, and in his active years was prominently associated with the promotion of its interests. Mr Stapleton had not only a long record as a public-spirited citizen in his civic relations, but in his private life he showed the possession of a large heart. Wherever, especially when the city was younger, there was sickness or trouble, amongst his neighbors, his services were always promptly and generously given.

He was married in early life to Miss Sarah Norton, Cobourg, who died several years ago. He leaves behind three children—Mr. H. C. Stapleton, Toronto; Mr. C. S. Stapleton, 484 Gilmour street, and Mrs. Frank Smith (Miss Mamie Stapleton) of London, England. Three brothers and two sisters, residing in Hillier township, Prince Edward County, also survive him.

The funeral will be held Sunday afternoon at 2.30 and will be under Masonic auspices.

NEW PEST IN POTATOE FIELDS

Reports from the Belleville district indicate that there is a small green fly at work on the potato plants, which is working great havoc. The fly locates itself under the leaves and on the blossoms, which it destroys, thus depriving the tubers of nourishment. It is said that the ravages of this insect are as bad as those of the Colorado beetle and that it cannot be got rid of as easily as the Colorado pest.

It is stated on good authority that the issue of bonds for the construction of the Pacific Great Eastern, which will connect the G. T. P. with Vancouver is to be made through Parr's Bank. These have been guaranteed by the Provincial Government, but until the prospectus as prepared in London, has been approved by it, no details of the debenture rate or term can be made public.

Mr P. Welch, vice-president of the company, states that before next Autumn, they will have a force of 4000 men engaged in grading and that the whole line will be completed in two year's time.

Aeroplane Wings.

It is difficult to determine the cause of most aeroplane accidents, but during the investigation which followed the fatal accident to Lieutenant Sevelle recently in France an important discovery is said to have been made by eyewitnesses. This was that the wing of his Bleriot broke downward instead of upward, indicating that there was an extreme downward pressure as the operator started to volplane. Experiments lately made in France are said to have confirmed this, and it is now believed to be necessary to guy the wings as substantially above as below.

When the Ostrich Hurries.

Two feet is the usual stride of an ostrich when it walks, but when the bird is alarmed and commences to run it exchanges its mincing stride for fourteen foot steps, which easily carries it over the ground at a rate of twenty-five miles an hour. Ordinarily an ostrich makes no effort to profit by its length of legs, and many birds with legs less than a quarter as long habitually use a three and four foot stride, for it seems to be one of the rules of nature that birds like ostriches, flamingoes and cranes extend their stride only when alarmed. The ostrich when it runs takes both feet off the ground at every stride, its progress being made by means of a series of jumps so rapidly performed as to leave the observer under the impression that one foot remains on the ground until the other is placed.

GARDEN PARTY AT MR. C. KITNEY'S

Attendance Small Owing to Rain—Social Evening To-night at St. James' Church

Owing to the inclement weather the attendance at the garden party, which was held at the residence of Mr. Charles Kitney, in Otonabee, last night, was not as large as was expected. The affair had to be held in the house instead of on the lawn, but those who were present thoroughly enjoyed themselves. The Adult Bible Class of St. James' church, under whose auspices the garden party was held, will hold a social evening in the basement of the church this evening, when an enjoyable time is promised everyone. An excellent programme of vocal and instrumental music is being arranged for.

NEW SCHEME OF SWINDLING

Niagara Falls, Ont., July 25 — A clever scheme to collect from $5 to $10 from each of a hundred women from this city and Niagara Falls, N.Y., and vicinity was to-day nipped in the bud by Provincial Police Chief W. H. Mains. The scheme was exposed by a Buffalo woman whose name is for the present withheld by Chief Mains.

Several days ago a man registered at the Hotel Clifton, this city, under the name of Harold Boyd. He caused an advertisement for a travelling companion for a daughter to be inserted in the local and American papers, directing that the answers be sent to general delivery. He called at the post office and received some replies.

Yesterday the Buffalo woman appeared on the scene and talked with Postmaster Phemister, who summoned Chief Mains.

After a talk with the woman Chief Mains stationed a man at the post office and Boyd was taken into custody when he called for his mail. There were some 100 letters, which were retained by the police. When closely questioned Boyd admitted that he has no daughter. His game was to obtain from those answering the advertisement $5 or $10 as a deposit of good faith and then skip out

He admitted that he was living under an alias and said that his name was J. O. Blair, and that his home is in Los Angeles. The police say that he has operated in Buffalo and that the woman who exposed him has been a victim.

Chief Mains ordered the man out of the city and confiscated the mail.

WRIT TO BE ISSUED AGAINST COUNTY OF PETERBOROUGH

Tangle Over the Buckhorn Bridge and the Dominion Government Will Press a Claim for $3,000 and the Cost of Maintenance.

Instructions have been received here to collect by process of law, the $3,000 due to the Dominion Government from the County of Peterboro in connection with the bridge at Buckhorn, and also to collect the cost of maintenance.

It will be remembered that the bridge was taken over from the county by Mr. J. R. Stratton, ex-M.P. on June 22, 1911, but it seems that he had no authority for doing so and all attempts to get the late Minister of Railways and Canals to state that it was the intention of the late Government to complete this transaction if it had been returned to power have failed.

The present government has time and again expressed its willingness to carry out any such agreement, if somebody in authority in the late Government will vouch for the fact that the agreement was ever made, and since no one will do so, the Hon. Frank Cochrane can find, of course, no excuse for not collecting debts that are due.

This matter has aroused a great deal of interest and it will be a severe blow to the prestige of the Reeve of Harvey, who took an especial interest in the matter, and was supposed to have, through his friend, Mr. Stratton, worked wonders for the benefit of the townships of Harvey and Smith. No attempt has been made to show why the late government should have made any such agreement, and it may be taken for granted that the Hon. George P. Graham would not have turned the whole thing down if there had been any reason in it.

It is to be hoped that a similar mix-up will not be arrived at in reference to the proposed new bridge at Gannon's Narrows. Many complaints have been made that the township of Harvey has received the short end of the stick in connection with their claim for damages. This will be investigated later by the request of the member for West Peterborough, although the township agreed in the face of this statement to make a final close out for a balance of $950. This balance is undoubtedly too small according to public opinion in Harvey. There can be no doubt that some of these matters have been very badly handled and it must strike the Harvey tax payer as peculiar, that private parties can clear $200,000 out of the Burleigh Falls and Buckhorn power right at their own doors, without expending a dollar on development and for a total return to the government for $50 in cash, while such a bungle is made over the bridge at Buckhorn. It might very reasonably have been taken off the shoulders of the county tax payers, if the matter had been handled in a business-like way.

FORMER TEACHER VISITS CITY

Mr. M. W. Matchett, of Hamilton, is in the city for a few days, renewing acquaintences. Mr. Matchett was formerly principal of the Ashburnham school, and was the predecessor of Mr. J. W. Kelly. Mr. Matchett now lives in Hamilton although his work is in Winona.

THE LITTLE BOY SCOUT

Some time ago there appeared in the daily newspapers, the statement of a little boy, giving his name and address, who met with a serious injury and was hurried to the hospital. Although he was only five years of age, he refused to cry under the surgeon's treatment which excited wonder in those in attendance. The surgeon said to him, "Why don't you cry." The little chap said proudly, "I'm a Scout." A local Peterboro gentleman forwarded this clipping to Sir Baden-Powell and received the following from his Private-Secretary, "I have opened your letter addressed to Sir Robert Baden-Powell, who is at present on the sea between Australia and South America. I know he will be pleased to read the clipping which you enclose and I will be sure to hand it to him on his return to England in the first or second week in September."

NEW FIELD WILL BE OPENED UP

The Peterborough Engineering and Construction Company will be open on and after Monday, July 29th, to handle any order for expert repairing in the mechanical or electrical lines. Special attention will be given to repairs and reconstruction of steam and gasoline engines, automobiles, motor cycles, pumps, air compressors, laundry machinery and agricultural implements. The manager, Mr. P. H. F. Spies, has had special facilities provided for the manufacture and repair of small machines and instruments, including printing presses, typewriters, sewing machines, electrical apparatus and instruments, kinematographs, etc., etc. Patrons entrusting work to this firm may rest assured that it will be done under the personal supervision of an expert mechanic and at a reasonable price. The manager is Mr. P. H. F. Spies, who is experienced in all lines of work, no matter how intricate, and every satisfaction is guaranteed.

TORONTO HELD NEW YORK GIANTS TO A TIE IN TEN INNINGS GAME

Rudolph Pitched Grand Game for Leafs—Giants Split Their Twirlers—Only One Error for Leafs—Score 2-2.

Toronto, July 26.—The New York Giants, champions of the National League, and leaders in this year's race, arrived in the city yesterday, shortly before noon, after a long ride from Cincinnati, and were whirled away from the Union Station in motor cars to the City Hall, where twenty stalwart members of the New York Giants, champions of the National Baseball League, occupied the desks of the city fathers. "Muggsy" McGraw, their famous leader, occupied one of the controllers' seats, and Vice-President O'Brien, of the New York Club, and President McCaffrey, Vice-President Berger, and Manager Joe Kelley of the local club, were well to the fore. A large crowd of curious people filled the galleries, anxious to see the $11,000 beauty, Rube Marquard, and the rest of the stars.

Acting Mayor Church welcomed the visitors, and extended to them the freedom of the. Controller McCarthy assured them that they could have anything they wanted in town, for "Tommy" Church would get it for them, and Controller Foster would pay for it. "Except," he added, "the game this afternoon." Ald. Maguire, chairman of the Reception Committee, and Controllers Hocken and Foster spoke briefly, referring to the popularity of baseball here, and expressing hopes for the success of the Toronto and New York teams, in their respective leagues. Managers McGraw and Kelley and Messrs. McCaffrey and O'Brien replied briefly. Vice-President Berger raised a laugh in referring to the loyal support of the Toronto team by the press: "The newspaper men never knock," he said. "Mr. McCaffrey has them too well trained."

The speechifying was followed by a short motor drive around the city, and the visitors were entertained at lunch by the city fathers.

The Toronto Leafs nobly vindicated the confidence placed in them yesterday by holding down the world-famous "Giants" to a tie of 2—2 in a grand ten innings exhibition. The Giants used three flingers against Rudolph, the pride of Toronto, who stuck throughout the whole battle.

"Peerless" Rube Marquard, king of all portside flingers, was the most noticed man in a New York uniform yesterday, and twirled the first three innings. Jeff Tesreau, the former Leaf, did duty for the next three innings, and Wiltse, one of the mainstays of McGraw's hurling corps, and, by the way, another left-hander, pitched the last four innings.

RUDOLPH IN FORM.

Rudolph held the heavy hitters of the National League to two hits for six innings, and never did they have a chance to score in this time, as the Leafs were backing up Rudy's grand heaving in big league style.

WHEN THEY SCORED.

New York's first run came in the next, after Wiltse and Devore rolled out to Jordan. Doyle rapped for two bases to right and came home on Becker's single to the same field. Graham stopped Becker at second with a perfect throw on an attempted steal.

Merkle's double and Herzog's single tied it up in the ninth. The teams played an extra innings, and then it was called to allow New York, to catch a train for home.

The Leafs made the finish sensational. In the tenth McCormick was sent in to bat for Wiltse, but McConnell gathered in his fly by backing far into right field. Devore cleanly singled through the box and stole the middle cushion. Doyle lifted to Dalton and a relay throw, Holly to Jordan, nipped Devore at third and the game was ended. Toronto had only one error against the Giants' two.

WHITE CAPS LOST AGAIN

Fast Work of Visitors in the Ninth Won the Game—Tracey Pitched for "Petes"

Yes, the bitter truth must be told. The White Caps lost again. Berlin again took them into camp yesterday before a small crowd to the tune of 6—4. The going, however, was fairly interesting in spots, particularly in the ninth, when the "Petes'" chances all went to smash on some careless work. Up to that period the outlook was rosy for a win. A two-bagger by Burns scored two men on bases, but Trout was not awake to Brant's throw in, and the visitors made another tally, putting them in the lead. The score was 6—4. A fast double play by Berlin in the second, and a running snatch by Nicholls woke the crowd. Ballinger replaced Swartz in left field, the latter sustaining a hurt arm by a pitched ball. Two good catches went to his credit. White also played a fine game.

The "Petes'" batteries were Tracey and Trout, and for the visitors Bramble and Matteson.

The score by innings was:

		R.H.E.
Berlin	020000103	—6 10 2
Peterborough	001000030	—4 11 5

Batteries—Bramble and Matteson; Tracey and Trout.

BREEZES FROM THE DIAMOND

Manager McGraw, of the New York Giants, paid the Toronto team the highest possible compliment when he put against them in the game yesterday, Marquard, his best pitcher.

Pitcher Ward, of the London Canadian League team, has been released by the local management. Ward went to London a couple of weeks ago and has since been tried out in two games and found wanting.

The Ottawa Club is said to have practically accepted an offer for Pitcher McManus, the local star, from the St. Louis Americans.

SORCERY IN FRANCE.

Revival of the "Black Arts" of Long Ago, When Witches Flourished.

An extraordinary story comes from Calais. While a sergeant was on guard before the postern gate of the old citadel two black-veiled women glided slowly into view, and one of the visitors stretched herself out on the damp grass with arms extended in the form of a cross. The other with a small spade began hastily to dig a hole in the ground. In it she placed a packet wrapped in white linen, covered it as quickly as possible, and with her companion disappeared as silently as they had come. Under the idea that he had witnessed the closing scenes of an infanticide, the sergeant notified the authorities, and the package was disinterred and taken to the police headquarters. At the same time a doctor was summoned who at once began to unwrap the parcel.

What was the astonishment of the investigators finally to discover, not the remains of a child, but merely a pig's heart. And, in what a condition! It was pierced through and through in every direction with no fewer than 113 pins, and was also traversed by a dagger.

In fact the authorities were faced with a case of "envoutement," one of the favorite forms of sorcery in the Middle Ages, which borrowed it from antiquity. It was then practiced very generally, together with the "black mass," the "reptile sacrament," human sacrifice and other superstitious relics of barbarism.

The method was adopted as follows: Some hairs or articles of clothing of the person to be bewitched were procured, and an animal was chosen to represent this person, and was named after him. The creature was first placed in contact with the victim's belongings, and then slain with a magic dagger.

Its heart was taken out and wrapped, if possible, in the person's clothes, and during three days pins and nails were driven through it to an accompaniment of curses and maledictions. It was believed that all the tortures inflicted on the dead animal's heart would be endured by the living individual.

A much more common way, however, was to mould a wax image of the person to be bewitched, and to dress it in the clothes he or she usually wore. The waxen doll was then cursed and tortured in the hope that the person would suffer the same.

BINDER TWINE FAMINE WILL NOT HAVE ANY LOCAL EFFECT

Conditions Here Will Not Suffer Says C. E. Canfield of International Harvester Company.

The reported binder twine famine in the western provinces will not affect local conditions, said Superintendent Canfield to-day in reply to a query.

"As far as I am aware, local people are well taken care of," he added. "I believe, however, that there will be a shortage in the West.

"We are filling carload orders right along and our output is very large. Orders are being filled for the West constantly.

"It will certainly not have any local affect, however," was his final assurance.

RATIONAL SUNDAY LEAGUE TO BE REVIVED IN TORONTO

The Rational Sunday League is to be revived.

For some time—infact, a year or more—it has been dormant.

'Dormant, but not dead," remarks Chevalier J. Enoch Thompson, K.L.C. Spanish Consul in Toronto, and one of the prime movers in the organization of the league a few years ago.

"I intend to revive it if I can get the proper people to take hold of it and carry it on," he said.

Mr. Thompson states that the Sunday slide fight is not forgotten and that it will figure largely in the balloting on next New Year's Day if Controller Hocken aspires to be Mayor of Toronto.

The Chevalier retired from the Rational Sunday League some time ago because of pressure of his business interests, but so aggressive has the Lord's Day Alliance become that he thinks it time to give the league organization new life and being.

"The league operates as a fraternal organisation under a Dominion charter granted in 1907," he stated, "and its dormant condition of late does not mean that it loses its charter."

A curious feature of the league's history, is that it never had a president. It has had sixteen vice-presidents. Its activities were directed by a managing committee of which D. G. Lorsch was chairman, Mr. Thompson was secretary.

The League is the natural opponent of the Lord's Day Alliance, whose headquarters is also in Toronto. The former organization believes in greater freedom in the observance of the first day of the week, contending that forms of recreations and Sunday excursions and other pastimes now prohibited, through the influence of the Alliance, should be permitted. The League has in the past been considered an important factor in the Toronto municipal elections.

FARMERS OF SEYMOUR HAD SESSION IN THE DRAINAGE

A drainage demonstration was held on the farm of Mr. W. H. Locke, lot 13, con. 5, Seymour, near Campbellford, recently. About thirty were present, several of whom were ladies.

These field meetings are under the auspices of the Department of Physics, Ontario Agricultural College, Guelph.

Mr. Hare, of the drainage staff, O. A. C., Guelph, gave an interesting talk on the advantages of drainage. Among other things he stated that the ground can be worked so much earlier in the spring, and it has been proven that a day in the spring means an increase of from one to two bushels per acre in the yield of grain. Bacteria, which is so essential to plant growth, thrive much better in drained soil. He showed clearly that fresh air is as essential to the roots of plants as it is to animals. A system of tile drain affords air ventilation. He also showed that too much water is worse for a plant than not enough. Strange to say, a well drained soil will retain more moisture for the growth of the plants than an undrained soil. Under-draining makes the soil more porous, prevents baking, and does away with the open ditches and troublesome cross furrows.

He then gave a practical demonstration of how a drainage survey is made with a home-made level; how to dig a ditch true to grade, how to make proper joints, etc. He impressed upon them the importance of system in putting in the drains and of having the work thoroughly done. Many questions were asked by interested farmers during the proceedings.

The Ontario Government makes provision for surveys for such a system. Anyone wishing to have a survey made, can communicate with the local branch of the Department of Agriculture or the Department of Physics and a man will be sent to take levels over the farm and a plan will be made out and sent to the farmers, on which is marked the system of drains, size of tile, number of tile, and grade of each ditch. This is done free of charge except traveling expenses and board while doing the work.

Mr. J. A. Carroll, assistant to R. S. Duncan, District representative for Northumberland and Durham, then addressed the meeting, giving a brief outline of the wrok of the local branch. Mr. Carroll impressed those present, with the great benefits of the farmers getting in closer touch with the Department of Agriculture through their district representative. Various conditions obtain throughout different sections of the province and our local representative studies the needs of his own district, hence the importance of the farmers taking every advantage of the local branch. The speaker then outlined the work of the branch, the organization of farmers' clubs, short courses and the teaching of agriculture in the high schools and experimental work of various kinds, including demonstation orchards.

He also spoke on the identification of weeds, insect and fungus pests and the best methods of combating these foes as an important part of the work.

This promoted lively discussion.

A similar demonstration will be held in Peterboro county at an early date.

GEORGIA GIRL BEATEN BY THE FATHER OF HER LOVER

Macon, Ga., July 26.—Fearful that the brutal whipping of Miss Essie Carter by a party of men, headed by her sweetheart's father, may result in bloodshed, at Dawson, near here, the authorities to-day took special steps to prevent a clash of two angry factions in the little town. W. N. Dozier, a prominent citizen, clerk of the superior court, and the man Miss Carter says wielded the whip, is under close surveillance, as are also four other men, said to have been members of the whipping party.

Meanwhile, Miss Carter lies in a hospital here to-day, her body literally cut with cuts and bruises. Physicians say she may die. According to the girl's story, Dozier objected to the attention of his his son, Vogt, paid to Miss Carter. Because he would not give up the girl, Miss Carter says that Dozier, sr., and a party of three or four men drove up to her residence in an automobile Sunday night, roused her out of bed, dragged her from the house, in her night-clothes, and took her to a grove nearby.

There, Miss Carter says, her nightdress was stripped from her, and while four men held her fast, a fifth lashed her with a heavy buggy whip, in the light of a lantern held by the negro chauffeur.

She declares that her screams were stopped by a gag, and that when she fainted the men suddenly became apprehensive and hurriedly bundled her back home.

Miss Carter specifically alleged that W. N. Dozier whipped her.

She asserted to-day that her fiance, Vogt Dozier, was "kidnaped" and forcibly held prisoner while the whipping was done. Her brother James, the girl declared, witnessed the assault, but pleaded with the men not to whip her.

Dawson to-day was in a fever of excitement over the outrage. Dozier, jr., has broken with his father after threatening to shoot him for the part he played in the whipping.

NORWOOD MAN WAS IN CYCLONE

Mr. Ross Lobb, now of Regina, but formerly of Peterborough county, has written to a friend in Norwood, giving him a graphic account of the recent cyclone in the western city. In the section in which Mr Lobb lives very little damage was done, and he escaped any injury. He, however, states that he aided in the work of rescue in the devastated section, and tells of helping to dig out several people from the ruins, one person being dead, when found.

Continental experts claim that wireless telegraphy will be so improved within four months that it will be possible to send 200 words a minute.

LINDSAY HAS VARIOUS WOES

Lindsay has other grievances besides a heavy tax rate. An agent for a Toronto magazine worked the town recently, collected over $300 in subscriptions and then failed to deliver the goods. This episode has started an agitation for the licensing of all agents who make a house to house canvass.

An alleged crazy man is annoying the residents by peering into their back windows at all hours of the night. He is over 60 years of age and is regarded as a degenerate. Ten years ago he was punished for this same peculiarity but lately has taken up his old tricks again. A Lindsay paper recommends the lash and calls for additional police protection for the town.

CATHOLIC COLONY IN SASKATCHEWAN

So great has been the migration of United State farmers to western Canada during the past few years that the Roman Catholic Church in the United States, finding that the movement included many of its members and communicants, has formed an association for the purpose of aiding and directing the settlers to a section where they could be in touch with communities in their own faith.

Negotiations were entered into with a land company, and the association acquired a large acreage, which is now known as St. Peter's colony, in the Quill Plains district of Saskatchewan. A monastry was established and there is now a considerable Catholic population.

The association, which has headquarters in Waterloo, Iowa, and covers ten States, embracing 6,000 Roman Catholic parishes, has made arrangements to run a weekly train from St. Paul, Minn., through to the colony, and parties from the several States are assembled at St. Paul, under the direction of the association and accompanied to the colony by its agents. Four carloads of settlers are leaving Illinois this week.

A very gratifying tribute to the Grand Trunk Railway was paid by the British Manufacturers before their departure, when in conversation with a prominent official of the Company it was given as their common opinion that the trip over the G. T. R. had been made with greater comfort than that over any other road. This, they attributed to the good roadbed, the smooth track, and the superior sleeping car accommodation.

Blind Postman.

In this game the first thing to be done is to appoint a postmaster general and a postman. The table must then be pushed to one side, so that when the company have arranged themselves round the room there may be plenty of room to move about. The postmaster general, with paper and pencil in hand, then goes round the room and writes down each person's name, linking with it the name of the town that the owner of the name chooses to represent. As soon as the towns are chosen and all are in readiness the postman is blindfolded and placed in the middle of the room. The postmaster then announces that a letter has been sent from one town to another, perhaps from the city of London to Edinburgh. If so, the representatives of these two cities must stand up and as silently as possible change seats. While the transition is being made the postman is at liberty to secure one of the seats for himself. If he can do so, then the former occupant of the chair must submit to be blindfolded and take upon himself the office of postman.

At Tokio it is believed that 400 have perished in floods on the northern coast of Japan.

Is Your Swastika Correct?

One of the lucky charms most generally worn recently has been the swastika. Superstitious wearers would do well to examine their reproductions of it and make sure that they are correct in form and material, for Sir George Birdwood, an authority on Indian matters, has been giving some interesting and alarming facts concerning this ancient and mystic symbol.

The right handed swastika—that is, the one whose transom or arm points to the right—is the symbol of the sun and of light, of health and happiness and other good qualities, and it alone is lucky. It should be fashioned only of gold and colored (if enameled on any other metal) only red, the color of the east, or yellow, the color of the south.

The left handed swastika is the symbol of the moon and of moonlight, of all darkness and supernatural terrors, of all mortal diseases and disgraces and other forms of ill omen.

The Prince of Wales was given the Grand Cross of the Legion of Honor on leaving France.

POLICE COURT PROCEEDINGS PROVED BIG DRAWING CARD

Record Crowd of the Curious—Assault Case Dismissed—Breach of Store Closing By-law — Austrian Committed for Trial.

Society may see its finish any day. That is if police court continues to be such a drawing card. This morning's session saw the biggest crowd of unwashed, untidy looking individuals of many months. A few wore starched collars, but there were more who had none. Everybody was there to see as much as possible.

The docket was extraordinarily large. The initial case was the disposal of an information laid by Detective Pinchin against two local young men, charging them with theft of C.P.R. property. Adjournment was made of the case till Monday next.

An information against Roy Boyd was withdrawn.

COMMITTED FOR TRIAL

Flynn Brosevick either couldn't or wouldn't understand English. He is the man who gave Detective Pinchin the exciting struggle on Wednesday night, while affecting his arrest, at the C.P.R. tracks, and pulled a revolver.

This morning he was also charged with being a vagrant, of having no visible means of support.

When asked to plead, he either feigned ignorance or couldn't understand what it meant.

Detective Pinchin's evidence was taken, and the confiscated revolver and a number of bullets were produced in support.

The prisoner was committed for trial before Judge Huycke.

ASSAULT CASE DISMISESDD

John Quinlan charged Stephen Corkery with assaulting him last Tuesday morning on the river bank in East City. A dispute arose over over the spilling of a load of wood, of which Quinlan was in charge and which he had been engaged to draw by Corkery.

It was claimed by the complainant that Corkery relieved him of a tooth, and knocked him down, inflicting a cut on his forehead.

His Worship discharged the case, stating that he couldn't find sufficient evidence to warrant a conviction.

G. N. Gordon, it is understood intends to appeal against the Magistrate's ruling.

G. W. Hatton appeared for the defendant.

The young man charged with theft whose name is withheld for humanitarian reasons, was again remanded until Wednesday, July 31st. He has had one remand already, the time being spent in the county jail.

The Crown's request for a second remand did not please prisoner's counsel, G. N. Gordon, who wished the Crown to disclose his reasons. It appears that Mr. Wood wants to subpoena another witness.

Mr. Abrahamson, proprietor of the Jewish clothing establishment at the corner of George and Hunter streets charged Norman Sukloff with a breach of the store closing by-law, alleged to have been committed on July 12th.

D. O'Connell appeared for Mr. Sukloff.

A lady clerk in Mr. Swarts "Elite" clothing store was the first witness. In her evidence she said that she dropped into Mr. Sukloff's store about 7.25 on the evening of the 12th of July. Mr. Sukloff was in the store and two salesmen whom she knew by sight. They appeared to be there for business purposes, as one of the clerks sold a lady a hat while she was looking on.

Judgment in the case was reserved for a week.

William Heffernan, accused of being disorderly in a public place was discharged.

Several parties were fined for trespassing on the C.P.R. bridge.

MASKINONGE CAUGHT WITH HOOK AND LINE

It is not every day that a seventeen and a half pound maskinonge is landed with an ordinary hook and line. The feat however was accomplished yesterday by Mr. Eugene Rex of A. J. Johnston's drug store, while fishing at the London street dam. Two boys helped him land the finny monster which was certainly a beautiful catch.

MISSIONARY TO UTAH MORMONS

Mr. S. M. Duijzers, of 232 Sherbrooke, will leave for the state of Utah, August 27th, to preach the gospel to the Mormons. In the interval he will officiate in any church where his services may be required and he preaches in either English or Dutch.

WEDDING BELLS

BOWLES—WOOD

At the residence of Mr. and Mrs. G. Herbert Wood, Rosedale, their sister, Miss Muriel Wood, was to-day at noon united in marriage to Rev. Newton Ernest Bowles, of Chengtu, West China. The ceremony was conducted by the brother of the groom, Professor R. P. Bowles, of Victoria University, assisted by Rev. J. H. Hazlewood, of Central Methodist church.

The house was decorated for the occasion with palms, ferns, Killarney roses and carnations. The wedding march was played by Miss Unett Bowles, sister of the groom, and Miss Vera Bowles, a niece, rendered "Because" very sweetly as a solo. The bride, who was unattended, wore a dress of embroidered marquisette over duchess satin, with veil and wreath of orange blossoms. Little Miss Margaret Husband, niece of the bride, acted as ring-bearer, daintily attired in a white lingerie dress with wreath, and carrying a basket of pink roses. On account of a recent bereavement in the family of the groom, only the immediate relatives were present.

After the ceremony Rev. and Mrs. Bowles left to spend a fortnight at the Kawartha Lakes, after which they will return to Toronto for a month or two before leaving for West China to re-engage in missionary work.—Toronto Star.

The groom is a nephew of Rev. E. A. Pearson, a former pastor of George street Methodist church.

GOWN OF TURQUOISE BROCADE.

So far the pannier is found on costumes that are made for women who have many gowns a season. The evening frock pictured comes under this head. The material is turquoise blue brocade, with silver lace on the bodice and a pannier hip drapery confined under straps weighted with silver tassels.

LOOSE SHOES.

Many Painful Foot Troubles Result From Them.

In an article on sensible shoes in the May Woman's Home Companion the author says:

"Seven persons out of ten suffer excruciating pain at one time or another with their feet. A single corn no larger than a grain of sand can take all the 'snap' and vitality right out of you.

"Two-thirds of modern foot troubles are due to the fact that almost every one—man, woman and child—wears shoes too loose. The shoe itself may be correct as to size and shape, but it is not fastened tight at the only point of control—namely, the instep.

"When you set your foot upon the floor or pavement in the act of walking the shoe adheres, and if it be loosely fastened over the instep the foot pushes down into the toe of the shoe. At certain spots on the foot this slipping causes friction. These spots are the soles of the foot, the tops, ends and inner sides of the toes, the great and little toe joints and occasionally even the back of the heel.

"When the friction thus caused is continued hour after hour and day after day one or more of these spots are almost sure to become inflamed and sore. A slight thickening, called a 'callous,' is formed. As the friction and pressure go on the resulting callous may thicken up unevenly; then it is called a 'corn.'"

BRIDGIE WEBBER POINTED OUT AS THE MURDERER

Louis Crese, a Waiter, Who Had Just Arrived in New York, Gives Sensational Evidence at Inquest Into Rosenthal's Death — Says Webber and Sullivan Were at Hotel Metropole at Time of the Crime.

New York, July 27.—Testimony that "Bridgey" Webber, in whose gambling house the murder gang, which killed Herman Rosenthal is said to have congregated for the assassination and Jack Sullivan, alleged go-between for certain of the police and gamblers, were in front of the Hotel Metropole at the time Rosenthal was slain, was given in coroner's court yesterday afternoon. Following these statements Sullivan, who has been held as a material witness, was rearrested on a charge of homicide, and Webber was held, without bail, for the coroner's inquest on Aug. 15.

Louis Crese, a waiter, testified at the coroner's hearing that he saw the assassination. Two men sat in the "murder car," while four others who stood nearby, shot Rosenthal. Crese identified Webber as one he had recognized on the scene and pointed out Sullivan as having been there immediately after the shooting.

John Reisler, known in the tenderloin as "John the Barber," testified that he had seen Webber near the Metropole after the shooting, and that "Bridgey" was running.

Mayor Gaynor took a decided stand yesterday in the turmoil. He wrote to Police Commissioner Waldo, directing that Police Lieut. Becker, charged by Rosenthal with being in league with the gamblers, shall not be suspended or put on trial without evidence to justify his conviction and dismissal. "On the other charge" that Becker instigated the murder of Rosenthal, the mayor said: "This is possible, but so far there is no evidence to support the charge."

Lieut. Costigan, in the presence of Commissioner Waldo, publicly denied that he had made statements to the grand jury that gamblers could not remain open without police protection.

Patrolman Wm. E. File, who was in the Metropole at the time of the murder, was served with charges preferred against him by Chief Inspector Schmittberger. The complaint says that File failed to take proper action at the time in causing the apprehension of the murderers, and also failed to report to his superiors any information of value.

At the coroner's hearing yesterday, Louis Crese gave the first testimony relative to the actual slaying of the gambler. He arrived in New York the day before the shooting to look for a job and happened along by the Metropole just before the assassination. There was a large gray automobile standing there, and in the car were a chauffeur and one other man. Four men stood near the "murder car."

"They said to me," declared the witness, "What do you want here?" I did not answer them and they said, 'Go away and mind your own business. A man came from the Metropole and put his hand to his hat. As he did this the men scattered to the street. A man came from the hotel behind the man who gave the signal, and then the four men in the street started shooting."

"Did you see anyone there whom you now see in the courtroom?" asked District Attorney Whitman.

It was a dramatic moment. Scarcely a sound was audible as Crese rose from his chair and surveyed the faces before him. Then he raised his hand and his index finger was pointing to "Bridgie" Webber.

The witness said he had been afraid to tell all this before. He admitted that he had run toward "Shanley's" after the murder, meeting a policeman going toward the scene of the assassination. Webber, he said, was running on the opposite side of the street.

"I started running after the shooting," said Crese. "The shots did not come one, two, three, but nearly together. Webber, as he was running, spoke to some man as he passed. It was nearly as light as day and I saw him plainly."

Crese was asked to go through the court room and see if he recognized any more men who were at the scene of the murder. The witness, in company with a detective, scrutinized all the faces, but shook his head until he came to "Jack Sullivan." After a careful inspection of Sullivan, known as the "King of the Newsboys," he declared that the newsdealer had been at the scene immediately after the shooting. Sullivan's arrest followed shortly, on a charge of homicide.

Crese left police headquarters late yesterday, accompanied by two detectives, who were instructed not to leave him until to-day, when he will be taken to headquarters.

Fear Dreadnoughts Least.

New York, July 27.—A special cable from London printed here yesterday afternoon says:

"German dreadnoughts are less to be feared than British 'bread-naughts,' shouted Leader Ben Tillett to a throng of striking dock workers on Tower Hill yesterday. In his speech he excoriated the Government for spending money on battleships while English workingmen and their families were starving."

Two Indians Drowned.

Cornwall, July 27.—The bodies of Mitchell Siwatis and Charles Left, two Indians, have been recovered from the Snye. The two attempted to ford the river in a buggy to reach Yellow Island, as the ferry boat was not running, and were drowned

BIG NATIONAL STRIKE FAILS

London, July 27.—The attempt of Joseph Havelock Wilson, president of the International Seamen's Union, to organize a national strike of transport workers in support of the striking London dockmen, has failed. The reception of Mr. Wilson at the ports he visited in an effort to propagate the strike movement was so lukewarm that further efforts to prevail upon the men to go out will be abandoned.

It is expected that the failure of Mr. Wilson will lead to an early resumption of work on the London docks.

Cornwall Centenarian Dead.

Cornwall, July 27.—Gordon D. Empey, one of the oldest residents of Eastern Ontario, died at his home here Thursday night at the great age of 100 years and 9 months. Up to within a few months ago he was able to go out and the last few days of his long life he was around the house.

The deceased was born near Aultsville, being a son of the late Col Empey, who served in the war of 1812 under Col. G. McDonald, and who was an officer with the force that crossed the ice at Prescott and captured the city of Ogdensburg.

ALDERMEN ARRESTED

Detroit City Fathers Charged With Grafting.

Detroit, Mich., July 27.—Eight aldermen and the secretary of the common council committees were placed under arrest yesterday afternoon on charges of accepting bribes and conspiracy to accept a bribe for their votes and influence in the passing of a measure affecting city property recently transferred to the Wabash Railroad. At least six other arrests of aldermen are expected at any moment and it is alleged that $3,700 passed hands, in sums of from $100 to $1,000. The bribery was consummated and the arrests accomplished under the personal supervision of Detective W. J. Burns.

The officials already arrested are: Thomas Glinnan, president of the council, who is alleged to have received $1,000; E. R. Schreiter, jr., secretary of the council committees, and also secretary of the American League of Municipalities, who is charged with conspiracy to bribe and agreeing to accept $500; Ald. J. L. Theison, said to have accepted $500; Ald. Martin J. Ostrowski, alleged to have received $200; Ald Patrick O'Brien, conspiracy; Ald. Louis Toss, said to have received $200; Ald. F. J. Mason, Ald. Lois Bozo and Ald. Deimel, the last three being charged with accepting $100 each.

Ald. Glinnan has long been known in city politics as "Honest Tom." When arrested yesterday it is said he turned over $1,000 and made a complete confession. Schreiter, who, it is claimed by the authorities, engineered the affair, was arrested in his office. He had not received any money, but the officers claim that he went to the office with the detectives who were acting under the guise of Wabash Railroad officials, to get his money and discovered the officers who had just arrested Glinnan. It is said he also made a statement to the officers.

The detectives claim that they have caught their men not only with marked money, but by telephonic testimony and phonographic records.

The invitation which culminated in the arrests yesterday has been going on since February, when rumors of graft in the councilmanic body began to assume serious proportions.

CHILD SLAYER STILL UNCAUGHT

Carmel, Me., July 27.—The murderer of Naomi Mitchell, the 14-year-old girl whose body was found with the throat cut in a cornfield near her home Thursday morning, was still at large this morning despite an all-day search yesterday of the roads and woods in the vicinity. The pursuit is still concentrated on a degenerate famrhand, who has been missing since he was seen on the North Carmel, following the Mitchell girl Wednesday night.

Lost Bank Roll While Unconscious.

Windsor, July 27.—John Delisle, aged 60, a resident of Luckerville, in Anderdon township, fell in a fit near the British-American Hotel here yesterday afternoon and was picked up and rushed to the Hotel Dieu. After he recovered consciousness Delisle found that his bank roll, containing $100 in bills, several hundred dollars in promissory notes, and a bank book was missing. The police are mystified and have made no arrests.

Won't Insure Summer Resorts.

Brockville, July 27.—Owing to the recent disastrous fire at Thousand Island Park, several of the insurance companies have shown their dissatisfaction with the means of fire protection by cancelling policies.

The fire is said to have made it difficult to secure insurance at all the resorts along the river.

Baby Perished In Flames.

Quebec, July 27.—A two-year-old child, son of Edmond Gosselin, perished in the flames during a fire which destroyed the latter's house at noon yesterday.

PREMIER BORDEN DENIES A DREADNOUGHT STORY

Visiting Canadian Ministers Are Entertained by the Lord Mayor of London at the Mansion House—Task of Canadians In Developing Their Country Is Hardly Recognized, Says Premier.

London, July 27.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—It has been stated in usually well-informed quarters in the past day or two that Hon. R. L. Borden and colleagues were convinced that the international situation demanded instant action on the part of the Dominion, and are prepared to recommend the contribution of six million pounds for the construction of three dreadnoughts.

Interviewed, the Premier said: "You have my authority for stating the reports are absolutely incorrect."

The Lord Mayor yesterday lunched Mr. Borden and colleagues at the Mansion House.

Hon. Mr. Borden, replying to a toast, said that when the Duke and Duchess of Connaught returned to these shores from Canada, they would bring with them, love, affection and esteem of the Canadian people. The duke had made himself acquainted in every way with the great Dominion, and had given evidence of his close association with ideals and aspirations of the people.

Canadians were sometimes reproached a little for their intense belief in their country. They had such a belief and they intended to justify it as far as in them lay, and desired that Canada should work its own destiny as one of the great nations of the Empire.

Those in England could scarcely appreciate the vast task which had been committed to the Canadian people in the development of their territory. They had in their possession not only a great territory, but enormous resources of the most varied description. British and French-Canadians were working harmoniously together in the task of developing the country. The French were among the most loyal subjects of the King, and as one who knew something of the Canadian people, he could say the French and English there were not afraid of their responsibility, and not unwilling to accept the part which was their duty in carrying on the traditions of the Empire in that part of the world.

Power for Brockville.

Brockville, July 27.—At a special meeting held yesterday afternoon the town council authorized the mayor and clerk to sign a contract with the Ontario Hydro-Electric Commission for the transmission of cheap power to Brockville.

George W. Irish Dead.

Winnipeg, July 27.—Geo. W. Irish, contractor and Winnipeg pioneer, died here yesterday after a brief illness. He was born at Yorker, Ont., in 1834, and for many years carried on a contracting business at Toronto.

Not Going to Rome.

London, July 27.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—Hon. Mr. Pelletier is not going to Rome. He is anxious to return to see his sick father, and is sailing on the Empress of Britain on August 9.

TOOK A SNAP VOTE.

Unionists Almost Defeated Liberals In British Commons.

London, July 27.—The British Government was nearly turned out of office by a snap division in the House of Commons yesterday afternoon, the small margin of only three votes saving it from defeat.

In the presence of the usual thin Friday attendance of members David Lloyd-George, Chancellor of the Exchequer, moved that Monday be devoted to the discussion of supplementary appropriations. The Opposition protested and forced a division. By dint of a hurried search in the lobbies of the House the Government whips just managed to save the situation.

The announcement that the Government had been successful by only 136 against 133 votes was greeted by the Opposition with loud cries of "Resign."

The Liberal members have been recently somewhat slack in their attendance at the House, and the Government majority on several occasions has for this reason been below 50. Only the keenness of the Irish Nationalists and the members of the Labor party has enabled the Government to hold the fort.

The House of Commons last night by a vote of 33 to 39 rejected an extreme Radical motion condemning the foreign policy of the Government as being responsible for the increase of armaments of all the powers.

A PARLOUS BUSINESS

London Health Board Condemns Swat the Fly Competitions.

London, Ont., July 27.—Members of the Board of Health are much opposed to the proposed "swat-the-fly" campaign for this city, and the question will be discussed at the next meeting of the board.

One member called at the health inspector's office yesterday to learn where the idea originated, and why it had been taken up without consulting the board.

"The idea is absurd," he said. "Even if a million flies are killed that will only be the issue of three flies in a year and to do this children will haunt swill barrels, manure piles, and refuse heaps where they will be in more danger from germs than the whole city would be from flies.

"We recognize the menace to the public health that the fly is, but instead of sending children into all kinds of danger in trying to kill them for a remuneration we should issue bulletins telling the people of the danger arising from eating food that has been touched from flies and that would do more good than a dozen contests."

Dr. Burden, also a member of the Board of Health, could not say that he approved of the contest. "It will surely attract children to places where all kinds of dangers from disease lurk, and I cannot see where much benefit can be derived from it," he said.

MUST BUILD NAVY FOR U. S.

Oyster Bay, N.Y., July 27.—An attack on the Democratic majority in the House of Representatives, for refusing to adopt the two battleships program, was made yesterday by Col. Roosevelt. He declared that the upbuilding of the navy must go on if the United States is to maintain its position among the nations of the world.

"Any talk as to what we intend to do about the Monroe doctrines, the Panama Canal, the protection of Hawaii, or any other matter, is not merely offensive but contemptible," he said. "If we abandon building up the navy and show that we really have neither the power nor the will, if the need should ever come, to make our words good deeds."

No Liberty for Thaw.

White Plains, N.Y., July 27.—Harry K. Thaw in the eyes of the law is still insane and must remain in the asylum where he was placed on Feb. 1, 1908, after he had killed Stanford White.

Justice Keogh of the Supreme Court yesterday denied Thaw's application for freedom. The court took the ground that Thaw's release would be detrimental to public safety.

This is the third attempt made by Harry K. Thaw to gain his liberty from Matteawan Asylum for the criminal insane on a writ of habeas corpus. The sole question tried before Justice Keogh, without a jury, was whether Thaw is now sane.

Yankee Poacher Captured.

Ottawa, July 27.—The Department of Marine and Fisheries has received a telegram that the revenue cruiser Newington has captured an American fishing vessel named the Thelma, which was caught poaching.

Particulars as to the place of capture are not given. This makes the Newington's second capture in a week, and the fourth vessel taken into custory flying the Stars and Stripes by Canadian cruisers in two weeks.

G. T. P. Strike Not Serious.

Winnipef, July 27.—Local officials are not alarmed at the strike of 2,000 industrial workers of the world laborers in construction camps of the G. T. P.

Mortimer Donaldson, vice-president and general manager, declared yesterday that the strike affected only the extreme west end of the line, and had not stopped the contractors, and arrangements were being made to fill the places of the strikers.

Child Drowned at St. Mary's.

St. Mary's, Ont., July 27.—Tommy Hughes, aged 6, was drowned yesterday afternoon when he fell off the dam at the cement works into the Thames River. The body was recovered.

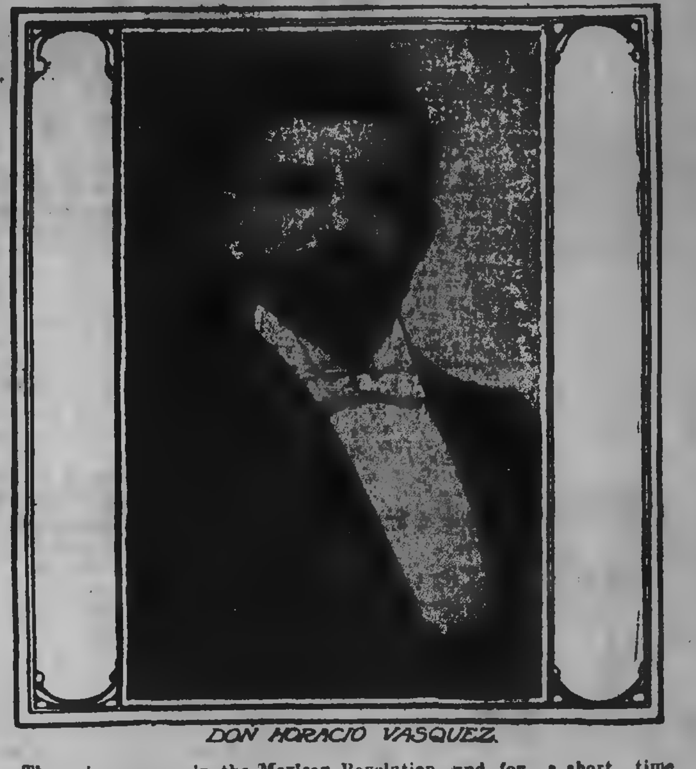
Kingston, July 27.—Mrs. Jabez Stonness, Perth road, aged 63, the oldest resident in her district, dropped dead of heart failure.

Haddock Marks.

Why do haddocks carry those peculiar black "finger marks" near the head? Some tell us that they are a memento of the pressure of St. Peter's fingers when he went fishing for the tribute money. On the Yorkshire coast of England they say the devil once determined to build a bridge at Filey. His Satanic majesty did not start the bridge for the convenience of the people, but for the destruction of ships and sailors and the annoyance of fishermen in general. In the progress of his work Old Nick dropped his hammer into the sea. Snatching at it hastily, he caught a haddock, and all haddocks carry the imprint of his black fingers to this day.

New York police believe they have "Big Frank" under arrest there.

Labor officials allege that hundreds of women are working in foundries in Cleveland, O.



DON HORACIO VASQUEZ.

The prime mover in the Mexican Revolution, and for a short time President of that country. He has been arrested in Texas on a charge of attempting to stir up another rebellion with a friendly state as Mexico is so regarded by Uncle Sam. Vasquez is now out on $10,000 bail.

U.S. SENATE AGAIN KILLS THE RECIPROCITY PACT

This Suffragette Acquitted.

Oxford, Eng., July 27.—Dr. Ethel Smyth, the suffragette leader who was arrested on July 23 on a charge of complicity in the attempt to burn down the historic residence of Lewis Harcourt, Secretary of State to the Colonies, at Nuneham Park on July 13, was discharged by the police magistrate yesterday owing to the failure of witnesses to identify her.

Napoleon as a Bogy Man.

Thackeray once saw Napoleon on the island of St. Helena. The novelist—he was born in Calcutta in 1811—was on his way to England as a child. "Our ship touched at an island where my black servant took me for a long walk over rocks and hills until we saw a man walking in a garden. 'That is he,' said the black man; 'that is Bonaparte. He eats three sheep every day and all the little children he can lay hands on'." That black serving man was not the only person of the time to believe the story which he told Jovial on the Scaffold.

Sir Thomas More, who was beheaded in 1535, was famous for his wit. "He died," says the chronicler, "with an unconcern that in others would have appeared to be levity, but in him was nature." He jested on the scaffold, and he had been just as humorous during his imprisonment. With a pathetic touch which is never absent from the true humorist he closed all his windows when they took his books from him. "It is time to shut up shop," he said, "when the wares are all gone."

Charles Stapleton, sr., a prominent citizen of Peterboro, died at the age of 87.

A deputation waited on Premier Borden yesterday in connection with the all-red route.

Finlay McGibbon, brother of the mayor of Sarnia, dropped dead when about to go for a walk yesterday.

Harry Gilmore, awaiting trial for assault on his four weeks' bride, committed suicide in the Hamilton police court yesterday.

Thomas Kerr was sentenced to three years in prison for the theft of a team of horses, harness and wagon from John Kelly, Alice street, Guelph.

The Duc de Lorge, a French nobleman, fell down the elevator shaft in a home he was visiting yesterday and died from his injuries a few hours later.

"There is too much babble gush over action of Canadian Ministers to be helpful to them or agreeable to Canadian people," says The London Pall Mall Gazette.

Wm. Ferguson, the one-legged Scotsman who shot and killed Immigration Inspector Herbert, will probably be tried in Detroit, the shooting having occurred on that side of the river.

Frank Taylor was sentenced to serve two years, less on day, in the Central Prison, for robbing a store in Brampton. John Brown, aged 18, an accomplice, was given a year in the Central.

A peculiar case came up in the Brampton yesterday when a motor cyclist was charged with speeding, carrying concealed weapons and discharging the same on the road as he went along. He received a heavy fine.

By a Vote of 37 to 18, the American Measure Ratifying the Taft-Laurier Agreement Is Stricken Off the Statutes of the United States—Tariff on Wood Pulp Almost Cut in Half.

Washington, July 27.—The Senate last night, by a vote of 37 to 18, passed the House excise tax bill, which would extend the corporation tax law to individuals, and co-partnerships on incomes in excess of $5,000.

The bill as passed included a provision for the repeal of the Canadian Reciprocity Act, and a substitution of a $2-per-ton rate on print paper. Senator Borah's income tax bill was defeated.

The excise measure would levy upon all persons, firms or co-partnerships an annual tax equal to one per cent. of net income in excess of $5,000.

Senator Cummins' permanent tariff board amendment, which was carried once Thursday in the wool fight and then lost in the final upheaval when the LaFollette bill passed, was attached to the excise bill by a vote of 38 to 29.

The chief fight, aside from that centering about Senator Borah's income tax measure, came upon the Canadian reciprocity amendment offered by Senator Gronna of North Dakota. The amendment adopted by the Senate, 37 to 26, provides for the complete repeal of the reciprocity law and for the establishment of a rate of $2 per ton on print paper imported from Canada, in place of the present duty of $3.75. The text of the provision fixing a new tariff on paper is as follows:

"That from and after the passage of this act the duty on chemical wood pulp shall be one-twelfth of one cent per pound, dry weight if unbleached, and one-eighth of one cent per pound if bleached, and the duty on printing paper as described, in paragraph 409 of the act approved August 5, 1909 (the Payne-Aldrich tariff law), shall be one-tenth of one cent per pound, if valued at not above three cents per pound; two-tenths of one cent per pound; two-tenths of one cent per pound if valued above three cents and not above five cents per pound, and 7 1-2 per cent. ad valorem if valued above five cents per pound."

The portion of the reciprocity law now in effect which admits paper free from Canadian provinces which do not discriminate against the United States was defended by Senators Williams, Bacon, Smith of Georgia and other Democrats. They declared the free paper provision of the reciprocity law should be allowed to remain in effect and said under such an arrangement they would be glad to support a repeal of the balance of the law.

Senator Bacon finally offered an amendment to repeal all of the reciprocity law except the free paper section. It was defeated, 37 to 27, Bristow, Clapp, Poindexter and Works being the only Progressives who voted for it. The Gronna amendment was then adopted.

Board Members Get Contracts.

Kingston, July 27.—J. A. Macdonald resigned from the separate school board because he claimed the business of the board was being carried on in an unbusinesslike way. He stated that the board has allowed some members to receive contracts against the regulations.

Inspector Herbert's Funeral.

Ottawa, July 27.—The immigration department is taking charge of the funeral arrangements of the late Inspector Herbert, murdered on Thursday at Windsor. The remains will be forwarded to Edmonton, where the wife and child of the deceased are buried.

"FEEBLE STOMACH"

Causes Digestive Weakness and Poisons the Entire System.

"No one can have suffered more than I did with stomach trouble," writes Phil. E. Pascalar, well known at St. Andrews Corners. "My doctor told me my indigestion and sleeplessness were due to poisons in the blood. Certainly my condition was desperate, and it seemed from the despondent feelings that swept over me that I would lose my reason. I happened to read about Dr. Hamilton's Pills and bought five boxes from the druggist. Such body-cleansing pills I never used; they were mild and yet quite strong enough to drive all the humors out of the blood. My stomach gained strength rapidly with Dr. Hamilton's Pills and I improved so much that in eight weeks I could eat and digest all ordinary food. Depression and weariness passed away and I am, thanks to Dr. Hamilton's Pills, enjoying robust good health."

No remedy for biliousness, indigestion, headache, sick stomach, or constipation that compares with Dr. Hamilton's Pills. Refuse substitutes. Sold in 25c. boxes. All dealers, or The Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Ont.

ROOSEVELT'S RESOLUTION

The Republican party since its organization in the fifties has found itself in many a dark corner, but by hook or by crook has generally managed to emerge triumphant. It survived the stormy period of the Civil War and the still stormier period of Reconstruction that followed that struggle and it conducted the contest with Spain to a speedy and successful issue without the loss of a supporter. On only two occasions since the days of Lincoln has it met with national defeat, in 1884 and 1892, when the late Grover Cleveland succeeded in leading the Democrats out of the wilderness.

In all of these national elections the Republicans were somewhat weakened by internal dissensions which caused a break in their ranks and the formation of barnacles in the shape of independent parties. The Greenbackers had their day, made their fight to no purpose and faded from view. Then the Prohibitionists drew away and formed a party of their own and are still in the ring. Whatever support the "drys" may have received at the different elections meant deflections from the Republican ranks for that is the party that has always taken the lead in the temperance movement.

Ever since the election of 1896 the Republicans have carried practically every northern state with a majority so overwhelming that they could divide the vote with a so-called independent party or two and still have something to spare. This fact has apparently escaped the recollection of Col. Roosevelt and his progressives. Either the colonel has failed to read aright the political history of his country or in reading it has arrived at the conclusion that he is greater in generalship than the Greeleys, the Butlers and the Buckners who in the past deserted the old ship and engaged an independent cruise of their own.

The Palmer Gold Democrats of '96 who bolted the Silverites led by Bryan cut no ice to speak of when it came to the counting of the votes. No bolting faction has ever made more than a sorry figure in a Presidential fight. But then Roosevelt in the fullness of his egoism could never be persuaded to listen to reason. If he chooses to run his barque upon the rocks he does so with his eyes open and the lights of political history blazing all around him.

A NEW TOWER OF BABEL

The people who advocate sweeping spelling reform are, figuratively speaking, planning the erection of another tower of Babel and should remember the fate of the ancients who designed that ambitious structure. Confusion of speech was the result so that one man failed to understand the discourse of another.

Sir Isaac Pitman, the inventor of the first system of phonetic shorthand, was during the latter years of his long life hopeful that his method of writing would become general to the exclusion entirely of longhand and that words would then be spelled according to their sound. But when the great inventor died that hope had not been realized and since his death very little progress has been made in the cause of spelling reform although the agitation in its favor is revived at intervals.

In different sections of the English speaking world the pronunciation of words differ so widely that if they were spelled according to sound in a short time the people of one district would be unable to read the written language of another. Natives of certain counties in England would not be able to read anything in the shape of a letter that came from the residents of a county not far removed. Scottish and Irish dialect would soon become as so much Greek to the world at large when committed to paper and the entire literature of the present day would so be virtually that of a dead language, sealed books to all, who lacked a special training to read them, as difficult of translation as are the Works of Chaucer and other Old English writers to the average reader of the present day.

There seems no choice but to abide by present conditions and taking things as we find them make the best of a difficult situation by accepting the English language as it is now spelled. The difficulty encountered by the rising generations in mastering the art of spelling will remain a stumbling block on the road which shows no favors even to royalty. The English speaking world will continue to stumble through the intricate mazes of orthography and some to grief by knocking its head against the arbitrary rules with which it is beset on all sides. But so long as the Standard Dictionary is left us as a court of last resort we are at least assured of uniformity in our written language and the perpetuity of our literature. No matter how many dialects may flourish we meet on common ground when it comes to a question of intercourse through the medium of written words.

CANADA LEADS IN SPORT

Canada continues to wrest from her American cousins, fresh laurels in the field of athletics and sports. The United States picked out their best sculler, a naturalized Englishman, it may be but a national representative just the same, and sent him to Toronto to wrest the rowing championship of America from the Canadian, who holds the title now, but the visitor took the back wash of the Canadian's boat from one end of the course to the other.

A Winnipeg pacer at Detroit, pitted against some of the best racing stock in America, won in a jog, establishing a new race record, and with so much power in reserve as to warrant the belief, that if forced to the limit of his speed, he could have reeled off a mile, without a break or a skip, in less than two minutes, a feat never yet accomplished in an actual race.

Then comes the most wonderful achievement of all. The Toronto baseball team, in an exhibition game with the New York Giants, champions of the National League and near champions of the world, played the visitors to a tie, in a contest which ran into ten innings, with one pitcher doing all the work for the Maple Leafs, while three men went into the box against them, the Leafs holding their own bravely in every point against the high priced aggregation of Muggsy McGraw. It was a great event in the sporting annals of Toronto, and the Maple Leafs brought to the city as much glory and gratification as if they had captured the flag in their own league.

NOTE AND COMMENT

After a man had, for 135 years, endured the climate and the revolutions of Mexico, he would naturally regard death as a happy release.

For the third time Harry K. Thaw has been denied his application for release from the asylum. Three times and out does not hold good in his case.

The Toronto papers have so exposed the unclean bakeries that the average citizen now takes his daily portion of the staff of life while trying to forget the place in which it was manufactured.

While the Mackenzie and Mann interests may erect their poles in municipalities without permission from the authorities, they are fortunately devoid of the power to compel the citizens to patronize their service.

A Lindsay young man held up a grocery waggon, appropriated the contents that appealed to his fancy and escaped with a fine of $8 in the police court. Let us all go to Lindsay when we would practice the profession of the gallant Dick Turpin.

The Liberal press is featuring the address of a misguided divine who, at a pic-nic of veterans at Queenstown Heights, took advantage of the occasion to assail the Borden administration for alleged niggardly policy in granting the veterans only $100 each. Press and preacher alike seem to have forgotten that all requests for help, made by the veterans to the Laurier Government were invariably turned down.

Accuse Kid McCoy of Robbery.

London, July 27.—"Kid" McCoy, the American boxer, was arrested yesterday on a provisional extraditional warrant and brought up at Bow street police court on a charge of larceny alleged to have been committed at Ostend.

According to the Scotland Yard authorities, McCoy is suspected of being implicated in a jewel robbery at the Grand Palace Hotel, Ostend. They admit, however, that the only evidence they have against him thus far is that McCoy was seen in the company of suspects. McCoy's friends declare that he left Ostend before the robbery was committed.

"I fear," said he, "that present opportunities must be accepted rather than future chances. Senor Zollern, permit me to present you with the documents in question."

Grunting with heartfelt pleasure, the German seized the envelopes and thrust them, unopened, into his pocket.

Mr. Yazimoto, clenching his small brown hands in rage and disappointment, eyed him like a wildcat hesitating before a spring.

"Dere vas great need," said Baron Zollern, "dot I should haf dese ledders. Herr Yazimoto, I rebeat to you—you vas endirely velcome to de cipher code. Vill you agcept id from me tomorrow? Also, I bromise you, you shall haf de obbortunidy to examine all bortions off dese babers dot may goncern you or your gofernmend. Vot say you? Vill you agcept a segond reading?"

"It seems to me," came a soft, well-modulated voice, "that a third reading will be better for Mr. Yazimoto. At least, that is my opinion."

Juan Torrejon, petrified where he stood, was staring open-eyed and open-mouthed at a small, almost insignificant individual, standing not ten feet from the bandit's side. The members of Torrejon's gang, suddenly converted into most peaceful citizens, had dropped their arms and were ranged in meek and gentle groups along the glade. Across the clearing was streaming a long column of superbly armed and mounted riders, and additional horsemen were already holding every exit from the camp-ground.

"I believe," the little man resumed, "that every man is entitled to a first perusal of his own correspondence. Will you kindly hand those envelopes to me, Herr Zollern? I am Gomes Esteral."

CHAPTER XXX.

Baron Zollern buttoned his coat, clenched his fists, and snarled defiance. "No! Nefer!" he roared, stepping forward and glaring at the little leader. "Dake dem ofer my dead body—if you can!"

Gomes Esteral smiled compassionately.

"I do not wish to be too strenuous," said he. "Still I think we can obtain the letters without having to commit any massacres."

The close-ranked horsemen opened up a lane and Ramon Solano, leaning on the shoulder of a small, stocky, redheaded boy, limped up to the little chieftain. Brockett, with a whoop of delight, fell upon the Cuban, who hugged him delightedly for a brief instant, and then turned smiling to Gomes Esteral.

"Why not let Baron Zollern keep his papers?" spoke Solano. "The real letters, Senor Esteral, are here."

Gomes Esteral took the battered old ball gingerly, as if suspecting a bomb-plot or a practical joke. Brockett, sensing the comedy of the scene, laughed unrestrainedly for a moment and then, taking the ball from the puzzled leader, ripped open the seams. The yarn was torn away, the papers came in view, and Brockett, still laughing, handed the crumpled missives to Gomes Esteral.

"Madre de Dios!" cried Juan Torrejon, "but that was cunning work! The craft of a fox! The generalship of a Napoleon! But what, young friend, would you have done if you had not possessed this ball?"

Both boys joined in a peal of merriment. "That, Senor Captain," Brockett answered, "would have been the least of our troubles. We would have borrowed a new ball from you!"

Torrejon smote his thigh with open palm. "Carramba," he shouted, "and I would have given it, beyond a doubt! Then I would have been ten times more the monkey and what you Gringos call the goat! Gomez Esteral, I am your prisoner. Do with me what you will—I do not care. After beholding a good joke such as this, I can meet any fate, well-satisfied!"

Gomes Esteral spoke gravely, thoughtfully. "There is much here to perplex and bewilder me. I will retire and reason out the full meaning of these letters. Rest you here, senores, all of you. I will return in perhaps an hour." And the little man, attended by two or three of his horsemen, disappeared amid the chaparral.

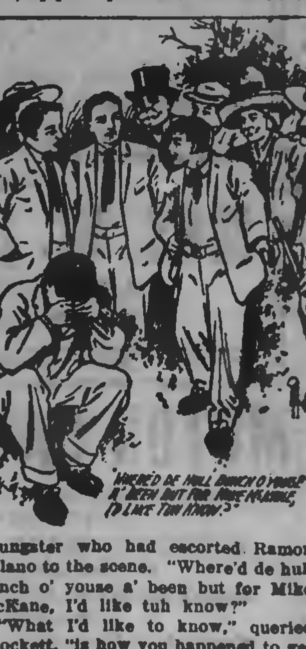
Baron Zollern drew the worthless envelopes from his pocket, tore them open, and stared at the blank sheets they had contained. Then, with a gesture of utter disgust and sardonic contempt, he offered them to Mr. Yazimoto. The Japanese struck them from the German's hand, sank down upon the sod, and sobbed like a little child. Baron Zollern drew himself up proudly, gallantly.

"For me," he spoke, "id iss all ofer. I may not go back to Berlin now. Young chentlemen, I gongrachulade you. You haf outvitted me from start to finich, und you haf dricked me at de lasd. Vill you shake hands mit me?"

Brockett and Solano stood with bared heads as they clasped the baron's hand. A great soul had broken before them, and a patriot had come to the bitter ending of his dreams. They clasped the German's hands—and all was silence save the sobbing of the little Japanese, unnerved and overwhelmed.

"Id vos not a fair contest," the baron said, patting the boys on the shoulder. "Dere vas you two—und against you twenty spies und skilled hunters of men. Somedimes, Herr Yazimoto und I vorked togeder. Somedimes ve vorked abart. Mit all de resources at our gommand, ve kebt ubon de drail—two men can hardly vool twenty. Ve did all ve could—und yet you beat us, beat us at efery blace, und in efery city. At lasd, here in Mexico, I beliefed ve had you—und you gafe us de checkmate at de lasd turn off de road! Boys, again I gongradulate you. You vill be great some day—I, Baron Zollern, crushed und beaten, say it now!"

"He didn't count de numbers right, dere," piped up the small red-headed youngster who had escorted Ramon Solano to the scene. "Where'd de hull bunch o' youse a' been but for Mike McKane, I'd like tuh know?"



"WHERE'D DE HULL BUNCH O' YOUSE A' BEEN BUT FOR MIKE McKANE, I'D LIKE TUH KNOW?"

"What I'd like to know," queried Brockett, "is how you happened to get down here, anyhow? Who turned you loose?"

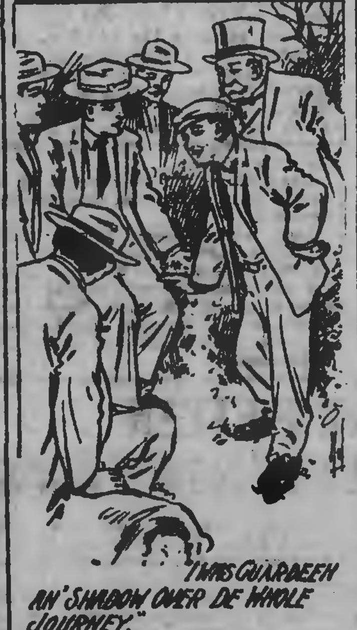
"Turned loose nottin'," answered Mike McKane. "Didn't I tell youse guys I was goin' on dis trip? Well, I made good. Lissen tuh me, bo: youse two left a track so wide yuh coulda driven an ortermobile over it. When youse left Washin'ton I was right in de neighborhood. If youse wanter know, you'd a hadda heap o' trouble gettin' clear from dat street fight wit' de bulls but for me. I pointed 'em up an alley, an' dey went up it like a lotta boobs. After dat, it was plumb easy for me to keep in touch wit' youse. One or two times, youse did a doublin' act, like a guy tryin' to t'row de shadows off when his wife has hired de Pinks ter watch 'im, but I kinda figgered out just where you'd likely light—an' I didn't miss out once. Did dem letters have youse a-guessin'?"

"Well, rather!" cried Brockett. "What's the explanation?"

"Explanation's dead soft," grinned the messenger boy. "Yuh see, ol' Chief Wilkins an' General Cole has always thought I had de goods in me fer a Sherlock Holmes. So when youse was all framed up fer de trip dey calls me in an' tells me to hang 'round in de vicinity, see? And tuh keep a close eye on youse, do all I could to help youse, an', if youse got stalled at de finish, to shoot home de news. In oder words, I was guardeen an' shadow over de whole journey—an' de letters was jest part of it all. It was a pipe fer me to learn your cipher—any baseball bug can easy do it—an' as fer de letters, I can say dis: I may talk on de fritz, but at school I always got any spellin' prizes dat was to be had."

"You must have kept in touch with the chief, too, didn't you?" asked Solano.

"I surely did. I was de live wire, de line of communication, an' I just carried along some letters dat de chief an' de general managed tuh get tuh me. I was Johnny on de spot right up to de finish—an' I'm thinkin' dere'd have been a different finish today but fer me."



"I WAS GUARDEEN AN' SHADOW OVER DE WHOLE JOURNEY."

"That's right," cut in Solano. "You noticed I was limping a little, didn't you? I was making the best speed I could to get away from our friend Torrejon's people, when, maybe two miles out of camp, I wrenched my ankle. They were almost on top of me when this imp of Satan jumped out from a patch of cactus by the road. Somehow or other he dragged me into the bush, and there we crouched while the hunt went by. They are good trackers and it wasn't long before they were back, all 'round the spot where I had disappeared. Mike proposed to give them a fight as soon as they found us, and I think he'd have cleaned up their whole company—only he didn't have to. They couldn't have been ten feet from us when Gomez Esteral rode up with 300 men and that changed the story."

"Youse never thought to ask how dis Gomes party happened along in the neighborhood, didja?" questioned Mike McKane. "Naw, I thought not. Charge dat to me, too. When youse guys rode outa de cavalry camp, I was five miles in de lead. I ain't no rider, so I was paddin' de hoof ahead. When youse was held up I was maybe tree hundred feet away. I knew where youse was headed for, an' so I beat it to dis Nogal joint, where de Gomes feller holds out. Den I tells him all I know; he agrees to turn right out, quick as he can get some men togeder, an' I tries to hurry back to see if dere was anyting I could do. On de way, I falls in wit' Solano—an youse knows all de rest."

Gomes Esteral was holding judgment in the center of the clearing. The face of the man who had dreamed of empire was lined and drawn. twenty years seemed to have been added to his age in one hour's time. Somberly he gazed at the little group before him, and his voice choked as he spoke.

STOCKINGS BELIEFS.

Superstitions Have Clung to Them From Time Immemorial.

Stockings figure in some curious superstitions touching old customs, especially those connected with marriage. Everyone knows that there are actions both lucky and unlucky. Among the former it is commonly held that to put on any article of clothing wrong side out is decidedly a sign of good luck; but it must be done accidentally, and when the mistake is found out no change must be made, else the luck will immediately vanish. This idea is very firmly held about stockings, probably because it is more easy to make such a mistake in putting on a stocking than in donning other garments. It would be hard indeed for a woman to put on her dress or a man his coat or vest inside out without noticing what he was doing.

Sometimes folks are to be found who have improved upon the common notion, or who have even reversed it.

Another superstition touching the use of hose is connected with dreaming. This is a Scotch notion. If a person be about to sleep in a bed that he or she has never slept in before, the certainty of dreaming can be assured by placing the stocking taken off the right foot under the head. Not only will the sleeper be sure to dream, but the dream will certainly come to pass.

Of the superstitions attached to marriage ceremonies, most people have heard of "throwing the stocking." This rite would hardly be regarded now as consistent with modern notions of decorum, but it was highly popular in former days. The ceremony was performed at the conclusion of the wedding day's festivities, by young men and women seated at the bed-foot—the former having the bride's and the latter the groom's stockings—whose object in throwing the hose backward over their heads was to hit, if possible, the head, and especially the nose, of one or other of the newly-married couple. A successful shot meant marriage at an early date for the thrower.

A pleasant association connected with stockings is familiar to all households at Christmas time. Children will still hang up their stocking on Christmas Eve in the simple faith that Santa Claus will fill them during that night of wonder; or, if the little people are too sophisticated to believe in the stories of St. Nick's peregrinations, they still retain a firm faith in the goodness of his domestic representatives and duly hang up their stockings as their predecessors have done for generations. And not children alone hung up their hose of old. Grown-ups, as well as the small folk, used to observe this custom most conscientiously. But in the old days the hanging up of the stocking took place, not on Christmas Eve, but more appropriately on the eve of St. Nicholas's Day, which falls on the 6th of December.

Another old custom which the superstitious sometimes remember when they get married is to wear one old stocking and one new one, following the thought, perhaps, that every bride should wear "something old, something new." To this day many brides adhere to this old habit, or superstition, but they do not confine the apparel to stockings.

Practical.

"Oh, dear! It is raining cats and dogs!"

"Now, if we only had a sausage machine!"

Fooled Them.

The boy stood on the burning deck,
And all the honest skippers
Were much surprised; they didn't know
He wore asbestos slippers.

DOCTORS GAVE HER UP

Mrs. Stuart Finally Saved By Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound—Her Story Interesting.

Elmo, Mo.—"I think your Vegetable Compound is wonderful for it has helped me. I had four doctors and they said I had female troubles and a tumor and nothing but an operation would help me. I could not sit still long enough to eat, and could sleep hardly any I was in so much misery with pains in my side and back.

"A year ago last spring my doctor gave me up, and he was surprised to see me this spring and to see my condition. I give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound the praise wherever I go for I know I would not be here today or have our fine baby boy if I had not taken it."—Mrs. Sarah J. Stuart, R.F.D. No. 2, Box 16, Elmo, Mo.

The success of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, is unparalleled. It may be used with perfect confidence by women who suffer from displacements, inflammation, ulceration, tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, bearing-down feeling, flatulency, indigestion, dizziness, or nervous prostration. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is the standard remedy for female ills.

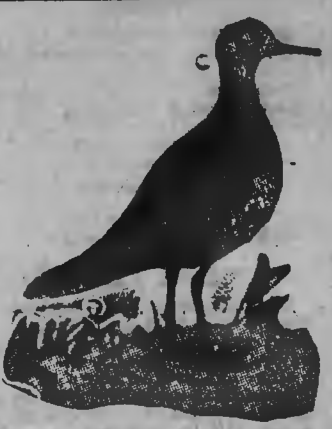
If you want special advice write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence.

HOT WEATHER AILMENTS

A medicine that will keep children well is a great boon to every mother. This is just what Baby's Own Tablets do. An occasional dose keeps the little stomach and bowels right and prevents sickness. During the hot summer months, stomach troubles speedily turn to fatal diarrhoea or cholera infantum and if Baby's Own Tablets are not at hand the child may die in a few hours. Wise mothers always keep the Tablets in the house and give their children an occasional dose to clear out the stomach and bowels and keep them well. Don't wait till baby is ill—the delay may cost a precious life. Get the Tablets now and you may feel reasonably safe. Every mother who uses the Tablets praise them and that is the best evidence that there is no other medicine for children so good. The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

For the Children

Upland Plover, a Useful Bird, Being Hunted to Extinction.



The upland plover, a beautiful and useful bird, is a close relative of the sandpiper. While sandpipers love the vicinity of water, the upland plover frequents dry hills and prairies and is most abundant in the interior. This so called plover breeds from Oregon, Oklahoma and Virginia north to Alaska, Mackenzie and Maine and migrates over the more southern parts of the continent, passing to the pampas of Argentina to spend the winter.

Almost half its food is made up of grasshoppers, crickets and weevils, all of which exact heavy toll from cultivated crops. These weevils injure, often seriously, such crops as wheat, corn, rye and barley, as well as forage plants of many kinds. The upland plover further makes itself useful to the farmer by devouring leaf beetles, including army worms and cutworms. They also befriend cattle by eating horse flies and cattle ticks.

Notwithstanding that the upland plover injures no crops and consumes a host of the worst enemies of agriculture, it has been hunted to the verge of extinction. It seems a great pity that one of the best friends of the farmer should be exterminated by hunters, who care only for the momentary pleasure of dropping these swift flying birds.

NO MORE DANDRUFF, FALLING HAIR, SCALP ITCH

Men and women—do you want a splendid head of luxuriant hair free from scalp itch and dandruff?

Do you want hair so bewitchingly radiant that it compels the admiration of all who see it?

Do you want a scalp as immaculately clean and bright as a newly-minted coin?

Do you want to use a hair dressing that will surely prevent baldness, that always refreshes and invigorates and makes your entire head feel fine?

Then spend 50 cents this very day and get a bottle of PARISIAN Sage at any drug store or toilet goods counter. Use it as directed and you will never care to use ordinary tonics again.

No poisonous sugar of lead, no sulphur, no injurious ingredients in PARISIAN Sage. Ask for PARISIAN Sage.

Wm. Madill, guarantees it.

YOU CAN BE ABSOLUTELY SURE OF VALUES

If you carefully read the store advertisements and follow them in your buying.

Merchants advertise certain lines because they know these lines will advertise their stores. Because there is something about certain goods, they are put in conspicuous places and the people are told about them. It may be the exclusiveness or newness of design, it may be an unusual quality, it may be an attractive price.

But there is at least one definite, sure reason why a merchant advertises an article and is willing to stake the reputation of his store upon it.

Therefore, when you see an article advertised in THE REVIEW, depend upon it, that article is good value, as good value as can be obtained in that particular store.

BUY THAT BOY A WATCH

You owe him one. Ask him if you don't.

A watch of his very own will help to make him manly.

It might Stimulate him to study harder too. And he can't be late for supper, and say he didn't know what time it was. Thus it will teach him to be prompt.

And promptness is something that's good for everyone

Sure, get him a watch. Let it be a boy s watch, such as we have to show you.

MR. STRATTON DESERVES NO CREDIT FOR EMBARGO ON LOGS

He is Quoted as Saying That No One But a Blamed Fool Would Advocate Such a Measure—History of the Act by J. B. Mc Williams.

Mr. J. B. McWilliams, with reference to the recent local agitation on the question of prohibiting to exportation of pulpwood and pine logs, writes the Review as follows:

In the Examiner of the 22nd inst., I read an editorial in reply to an article in the Review. I did not see the editorial in the Review, but when I read the Examiner, came to the decision that there was not another man in Canada, under the circumstances, except Mr. Stratton, had the gall to take credit for placing the embargo on the exportation of logs, for he was bitterly opposed to the Act being passed. For some years I had been quietly working to have an act of that kind passed, for it made me very angry when on the North Shore to see boom after boom containing thousands of logs, towed across to the States to furnish work for Americans, while the Canadians had either to remain idle or go over and work in the American mills.

Being a Government official, I could not take an active part publicly. The first prominent gentleman I got interested was the late Mr. John Bertram, and afterwards we went to Deseronto and had a long interview with the late Mr. E. W. Rathbun. Mr. Rathbun took some time to consider the question but shortly afterwards became a strong advocate.

Mr. Bertram and Mr Rathburn were both able and determined men and went into the fight to succeed. There were some warm interviews between them and members of the Government and so determined were they that both would have been out in opposition to the Government in the election if an Act had not been passed.

The last interview between Mr. Bertram and the late Hon. A. S. Hardy was exceedingly warm. Mr Hardy claimed it would never do to pass such an Act and said Mr. White the Assistant Commissioner, had submitted a strong report against it.

Mr. Bertram claimed that Mr White was not in a position to know public opinion and so could not give an intelligent report and that Mr. Hardy should consult some person who had experience and knew the feeling in the Province and suggested that he send for me.

Acting on Mr. Bertram's suggestion Mr. Hardy sent for me and we spent an afternoon together discussing the question from all points and as a result of that interview Mr. Hardy changed his views and the Act was passed.

The following spring, Mr. Hardy sent for me again, and the first salute he gave me was, Mac, I have found out that you were the originator of all the trouble to prevent the export of logs, and if there is any fighting to be done to prevent the Americans taking away logs, you will have to do it.

My reply was, all right, you appoint me a Justice of the Peace for the districts of Algoma, Parry Sound and Nipissing, that in case of trouble, I can call upon assistants without men being prosecuted, if it should be necessary to resort to strong measures

This was done and I spent the Spring and Summer on the Georgian Bay and Lake Huron, and will venture to say, so thoroughly was the act enforced that it was never even suggested that the American lumbermen got a log away.

Now as to Mr. Stratton's actions in this matter. I was quietly looking for all the support possible and being friendly with Mr. Stratton, was anxious to obtain his support, and even proposed to let him have the credit, but knowing the man, I had to be careful for he could not keep anything to himself.

In the train going to Toronto one morning, I thought I would feel him so told him that some people were advocating passing an act to prevent the export of timber and have the logs all sawn in the province, and asked what he though about it.

His reply was, "Nobody but a blamed fool would suggest such a thing, and the banks have so much money invested in the lumbering business, they would not stand for such an act.

I saw there was no support to be had in that quarter so dropped the question.

Many a time since I have been greatly amused to see him on the public platform with his chest swelled out, taking credit for what was done in passing this act. He has repeated it so often now, that I expect he really believes that it originated in his brain."

TWO BABIES HAVE FIFTEEN GRANDPARENTS NOW LIVING

The birth of William Everett Dullmage, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Dullmage, in Stirling, Prince Edward County, on June 14, has brought out a remarkable instance of the longevity of families of which the month-old child is a member. When the little fellow was born he had seven grandmothers. He represented the fifth generation on his mother's as well as his father's side of the house. His great-great grand mother on his mother's side is Mrs. Ostrander, familiarly known to many in South Marysburgh as "Aunt Beckie." She celebrated her ninety-second birth-day on July 3, and is still in fairly good health.

Kingston has had a little visitor for several weeks, who has quite a distinction, in that she has eight grand parents. She is Enid Gwendolyn Moore, whose parents reside at 2122 Hutchison street, Outremont, Montreal.

Some time ago, a report was published in the newspapers that a little chap, in Alberta, had seven grandparents living. It now appears that this record is broken by little Enid Moore. She is seventeen months old, and she has eight grand-parents, namely, Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Moore, Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Davis, the great-grandparents being Thos. Moore and Mr. Davis, sr., Mrs. Edward Webster and Mrs. Barlow. The father of this little girl, who breaks the record is M. L. Moore.

Mrs. M. L. Moore, and little Enid, accompanied by Miss Fannie Davidson, returned to Montreal to-day, after spending a few weeks in the city the guests of Mr. and Mrs. George Davis, 428 Johnson street.

NO DANGER OF AN ELECTRIC TIE UP IN PETERBOROUGH

The late storms in this locality brought to mind, while they lasted, that there was possibility of our electric light and power services being crippled. This would have been the case ten years ago, but now things have changed. The drawing together of the power possibilities of the district, make such a thing almost impossible.

A striking instance of the effectiveness of the system occurred a few days ago when the Quaker Oats power house was crippled by lightning for 66 hours. No inconvenience was felt throughout the city owing to the fact that upwards of one thousand horse power was immediately fed in over the transmission line. As a result factories and residences were unaware of trouble which a few months ago would have caused almost a complete tie up.

The transmission line from the south makes large blocks of power available for steady supply or emergencies here.

This city is now a station on the trunk line of a modern electric transmission system recently completed by the Electric Power Co., Limited. Over it the combined output of large hydro-electric power stations on the lower Trent River, is placed at the disposal of industries here for continuous use, or as a standby, in case of trouble in local power houses

YOU CAN DEFY HEADACHE!

Yes you can, with a box of ZUTOO Tablets in your pocket or home.

Taken when you feel a headache coming on, one little tablet will ward it off—nip it in the bud. Taken later it will cure the headache in twenty minutes.

Why then continue to suffer when a box of ZUTOO will make you headache proof. You would be suprised to know how many people, who never before used a headache remedy, are now using ZUTOO Tablets. Why not you?

KNOWS NO FEAR AND TRIES STUNTS

That William B. Hemstrought, who is to fly in the Agricultural Exhibition grounds on Civic Holiday, Aug. 12th, is a wonder as an aviator, is the opinion of Lincol Beachey, one of the most famous birdmen in the world. He awarded this praise in Emira, where both he and Hemstrought have just completed an exhibition. On Friday both will fly in Stow Park.

"What do I think of Hemstrought as an aviator?" Beachey was asked by the Elmira Star-Gazette.

"Really, he is going to be a wonder. Although young in the business he has already performed feats of daring which would make many airmen with more experience think twice and some to turn back.

"Just watch him fly and I am sure you will agree with me. He knows no fear and is willing to try any 'stunt' suggested to him without fear. He handles a machine with professional skill and has absolute confidence in himself, which is one of the principal assets of the successful aviators. To be able to think quickly and act with precision is essential oftentimes when a man's life is at stake. A moment's hesitation or indecision might cause a fatal accident and the end of a most promising career."

"Hemstrought, like Beachey, is modest and dislikes to talk about his past accomplishments. "I am going to fly, and Beachey will have to go some to show me his heels," he said. "I understand the aviation field here is ideal, and there should be no reason why the great Beachey should not pull off some wonderful exhibitions while in your city."

STONEY LAKE NEWS

Mr. Herbert Stock, of Peterborough distinguished himself one day last week by rescuing a lady named Mrs. Hunt, from drowning off Juniper Island. Mrs Hunt lost hold of a plank she was using for a float. The promptness of Mr. Stock in rushing from the store and jumping in to her rescue, saved her from a watery grave.

The Stony Lake summer season is in full swing with the greater number of the cottages occupied by merry crowds. Nearly all the regular visitors of the summer resorts are on hand, and there are large numbers of new comers to all parts of the Lakes.

Upper Stony Lake people are very fortunate this year in the matter of supply boats. Last year there was no boat which called regularly at the islands, but there are three this year which deliver butter, milk, vegetables and meat every day.

The annual Stony Lake Regatta will be held on Wednesday, Aug. 7th, at Crowe's Landing. The prizes will be unusually attractive and it is expected that the regatta will be an even bigger success than last year.

Culture will do much for a woman, but it will not permit her to sneeze gracefully.

THE PUBLIC LIBRARY IS THE PEOPLE'S UNIVERSITY

All Sorts of Information to be Had There and Every Opportunity is Given the Patrons, Both by the Librarians and His Assistants, to Enjoy the Advantages.

One of the most useful adjuncts of a library is undoubtedly a reference department, for, without good reference works a library loses quite 50 per cent. of its value. In the Peterborough Library there are many valuable works of reference, but sad it is to relate that they are not consulted to anything like the extent they might be if people were fully aware of their existence.

As a matter of fact there is a haziness in the minds of many people as to what constitutes a work of reference. Broadly speaking, of course, every book is a book of reference, but the term applies directly to encyclopedias, dictionaries, atlases, compendiums of the various branches of industry and directories of all descriptions. In our library there are at least nine different encyclopaedias, headed by the Encyclopaedia Britannica (latest edition.) This work is absolutely invaluable and is the standard work of its class on the English speaking world.

Chambers' Encyclopaedia is also of very great service, for although its articles are far shorter, they are crisply written and nothing is omitted that may prove of value to the reader. For those desirous of obtaining the salient points of a subject in short order there is no better source of information than the work referred to. These two, in conjunction with our other Encyclopaedias, form in themselves a library of useful and absolutely trustworthy information, but besides these there are Classical and English dictionaries, many books of quotations, valuable biographical dictionaries and works on Heraldry and on English Literature.

Chambers' Book of Days (2 vols.) in the same department is one of the most entertaining books in the library. The volumes are profusely illustrated and the tit-bits of reading for every day in the year cannot be surpassed for interest and general information. Chambers' Information for the People (2 vols) uniform in style with the foregoing, deals with all sorts of scientific and domestic questions.

Books on the latest methods in architectural design are also to be found in the reference library, as well as those more particularly devoted to the instruction of the young. Among these latter may be mentioned such works as "Three hundred things a bright boy should know"; "Boys' Guide to Sports," and "How it is Made."

It is little use having such books, however, if people do not know how to extract knowledge from their pages. In such cases visitors to the library have a court of resort in the librarian and his assistants, from whom they are entitled, to claim a fair share of attention in their search for information. This remark is rendered necessary from the fact that so many are possessed of the idea that librarians are unable to give their time to such work. It is enough to say that it is the positive duty of a librarian to give any seeker after information all the help that it is in his or her power to bestow.

It is a pleasure to state, however, that notwithstanding the widespread ignorance as to the existence of a reference library and the diffidence of individuals, an ever-increasing use is being made of its resources, both by the general public and the scholars of our schools.

The latest addition to this department is the Harmsworth Atlas, which in itself, is a complete encyclopaedia of geographical knowledge. It contains large scale reference maps, physical maps, maps and diagrams of the world's commerce, a gazetter containing no less than 105,000 names of places, and, last, but not least, a series of industrial and commercial maps, which should prove indispensable to business men as well as to those engaged in teaching. The natural resources and manufactures of every country are shown, together with the means of transport to the nearest ports and the steamer routes connecting these ports with other countries. The distance along each of the sea routes is also given, together with information as to consular representation, the existence of docks, coaling stations and lighthouses.

There are other sources of reference in our library which are not found in other libraries, and to which passing allusion may be made. A system of scrap books was started at the beginning of the year, and in these books will be found not only items of general interest, but also clippings on sociological, historical and political subjects. Every item as soon as placed in the scrap book is catalogued, so that no difficulty may be encountered in finding it.

Copies of Hansard and the Canada Gazette are regularly received and may always be obtained for perusal on request at the receiving desk. The resources of the Peterborough Library do not end even here, for no matter what information is required, if it cannot be supplied locally, the Library makes a point of endeavoring to obtain it from outside cources. Thus it will be seen than in its attempt to fulfil its mission as the university of the people, it acts the part of a bureau of general information as well.

STRATFORD CANNOT JUMP HYDRO-ELECTRIC SYSTEM

Premier Whitney Formally Refuses That City's Request—Figures Submitted Showing Commissions Charges for power Furnished a Street Railway System.

A deputation from Stratford recently waited upon the Provincial Government to ask permission to have the proposed street railway in that city operated by Mackenzie & Mann power as the C. N R. interests was to take over the franchise and build the road on this one condition. Stratford now uses the Hydro-Electric and when the latter installed the plant agreed to make further use of the service in the event of a street railway being built. At the time of the visit Premier Whitney and Secretary Hanna held out to the deputation very little hope that this part of the agreement would be abrogated and now comes the formal answer denying the request.

Mayor Brown has received from Premier Whitney his answer to the Stratford deputation which interviewed him. Premier Whitney said in the body of his letter:

> "With reference to the matters urged upon the Government by the deputation from Stratford a few days ago, I have been instructed to say that for the reasons given, and with which you are familiar, the Cabinet does not see its way clear to assume responsibility for the legislation required."

THE POWER QUOTATION.

It is understood that the Stratford Railway Co. has in response to request been furnished by the Hydro-Electric Power Commission with a quotation for electric power for its proposed street railway.

The offer is in two forms, the first being similar to that in vogue in that city. The company may either pay $12 per h.p and 7c per kilowatt hour, which shall be changed to respectively $11 and 6c. if the reserved h.p becomes 1,000 h.p.; or it can pay a flat rate of $34 per h.p per year which will be reduced to $32 in case the reserved h.p becomes 1,000 h.p

The fixed charge is to be based on 75 per cent. of the reserved h p. which is applied for, or of any increase reserved h.p

On the peak question the company has also two alternatives. The monthly bill may be based either on the highest ten-minute peak in a month, or on the average highest daily one-minute peak in a month, as the company may choose.

This offer it is understood was made to President Andrew Waddell of the Stratford Railway Co., and the particulars have been passed on to Engineer Rothery, of the C. N R. staff.

Some suspect that the C. N R. interests, which collided in Toronto and elsewhere with the municipal scheme, desired to rupture the municipal alliance and chose Stratford as the spot where the first attack should be made; should they succeed here, similar attempts would have followed elsewhere, imperilling the whole enterprise. Hon Adam Beck evidently entertained some such suspicion.

Stratford still hopes that the trouble can be settled by the C. N R. arranging with the Commission for power in the operating of their street railway within the city limits while continuing to use their own power on their radial lines.

Park-st. Ladies' Aid are holding an excursion to Gore's Landing on Thursday afternoon, August 1st, per str. Geneva. Boat will leave Wolfe street wharf at 1.30 and street railway wharf at 1.45. Tickets, adults 50c. Children 25c.

OBITUARY

Susan J. Strickland

The sad death occurred in Toronto on Sunday, July 14, of Miss Susan Josephine Strickland, second daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs J. P. Strickland of "D'-Eyncourt Park." Miss Strickland had been staying with Mrs. F. J. Tate for the past six months and though she had been in poor health for some time nothing serious was anticipated. Ten days previous to her death she went to visit her brother, Mr. W. D'E. Strickland, in Toronto, and it was found she was suffering from acute Bright's disease, which ran its course very rapidly until the end came. Miss Strickland was a universal favorite in Lakefield, where most of her life was spent, and will be deeply regretted by a large circle of friends here. She has always taken an active part in Church work, being a member both of the Women's Auxiliary and of the Chancel Guild.

LOCAL NEWS ITEMS

The Cleveland Crane and Machinery Company, of Cleveland, Ohio. are looking for a site for a Canadian branch factory, and if they can find a suitable location, they will erect a plant large enough to afford employment to several thousand men. Representatives of the company were in Kingston the other day, but they passed that city up on account of the scarcity of labor and the lack of houses suitable for workmen. The Cleveland men are now looking over the stiuation in Hamilton. Peterboro's city officials will, in all probability make a bid for the new factory.

KEEP COOL

Do not allow another day to pass without investigating the merits of our OIL COOKING STOVES. In simplicity of design, maximum strength, and minimum cost of operation, they have won the confidence and unqualified endorsement of scores of capable housekeepers, who by their daily use during the hot and trying summer months, testify to the excellent results obtained.

These Stoves are ready at a minute's notice. They are absolutely safe, simple and economical. The blue flame is always under perfect control, and although the heat is intense, it is concentrated, so that it will not heat up the kitchen.

GUELPH TOOK THE FIRST GAME

Score Was 8-7, Barthold and Osborne Pitched for the White Caps

Guelph won the first game of the series with Peterborough here yesterday afternoon by a score of 8—7. Both teams used two pitchers and both hit the ball hard throughout the game. Barthold started out to pitch for the Petes but was batted out of the box in the seventh and was replaced by Osborne off whom no runs were made. Campbell was relieved by Boardman in the fourth and was lucky to pull off a victory. The Leafs won the game in the 7th innings, when Shea in left field dropped an easy fly by Wright, allowing two runs to score. After this Boardman tightened up and the Petes failed to score.

LINCOLN'S MOTHER.

The Family Pedigree of the Hankses and Their Early Deeds.

A friend requests me to give for publication, if I can do so, a sketch of the family of Nancy Hanks, the mother of Abraham Lincoln. She tells me she has read every history of Abraham Lincoln and considers it very strange that nothing has ever been written by the historians of the president's mother, except that her name was Nancy Hanks.

The historians never made any effort to trace the pedigree of the family. Raymond, in his "Life and State Papers of Abraham Lincoln," declares nothing is known concerning her ancestry or early life. He merely mentions that she was a Virginian by birth. The name Hanks is rare in America, yet we have a straighter line on the pedigree of the Hankses than we have of the Lincolns. Beyond the grandfather of Abe Lincoln, we know absolutely nothing of the family pedigree.

The earliest account we have of the Hankses is their first appearance in Gloucester county, Va., in 1673. In deed book No. 6, land grants, page 473, 1673, is recorded the grant of 284 acres to Thomas Hanks. And on page 476, same year, 1673, is recorded a patent to Thomas Hanks for 500 acres. In the early colonial history of Virginia a person who paid for the passage of a person who came to settle in Virginia was entitled to a land grant of several hundred acres. This was why he was given a grant of land. The patent of 500 acres which is recorded was land paid for in cash or tobacco, which was the circulating medium in Virginia. In course of time the family increased and emigrated westward. We next hear of them in Orange county, 140 miles west of Gloucester. Among the marriages recorded in Orange courthouse on March 26, 1808, is Rodney Hanks, son of Reuben and Elizabeth Hanks, to Alice Chandler. But they didn't stop at Orange courthouse. We find a family of them in Rockingham county, Va., in 1790, and another in Shenandoah county. In 1780 Abraham Lincoln, grandfather of President Lincoln, removed to Kentucky from Rockingham county, Va., and we are certain that the Hanks family was with the Lincolns during that journey. The next account we have of the Hankses is in 1806. In that year, in Kentucky, Thomas Lincoln, father of the president, married Nancy Hanks.

The next account of the Hankses was at the battle of Tippecanoe, in Indiana, Nov. 7, 1811. We find the names of Peter and James Hanks. Peter was killed. He was a member of Captain Berry's company of militia from Kentucky. James belonged to a company of mounted riflemen and was from Kentucky. They may have been brothers, and if so I am certain they were the brothers of Nancy Hanks. In six years after the battle of Tippecanoe Thomas Lincoln removed from Kentucky to Indiana.—Des Moines Register.

HER GREAT FEAR

By GERALD DAVIS

Colonel Rogers of Virginia was a man of the world, a bachelor and an excellent fellow at heart, though he was only understood by his intimate friends. No one ever thought of Rogers as a husband or a father. As to living with man, woman or child or having his affairs mixed with those of any one else than himself, the idea was preposterous. He was very fond of women's society and was popular with them, but always in a general, never in a particular, way. He had reached the age of fifty without any entanglements, but was not disposed to consider himself "out of the woods" so long as he lived. His one aim was to so conduct himself that no woman could get an advantage of him, for, though he admired the sex, he held the theory that no man could stand against any one of them either in duplicity or to prevent the accomplishment of any purpose on which she might have set her mind.

Rogers was very fond of play—that is, among gentlemen. He never played at a gambling house. Indeed, he once spent a week at Monte Carlo without investing a franc. "I never play to make money," he said. "I play only a gentleman's game for the purpose of passing the time."

Rogers went to Paris and was introduced at an aristocratic club there. One night at a social game he won from a young man named Rutan some ten or twelve thousand francs. The amount expressed in the French coinage sounds large, but it was a little over $2,000. Rutan was understood to be well off and did not seem to take his loss to heart, and, as for Rogers, there was nothing unusual in his winning or losing such an amount at any time. The settlement was made by Rutan's paying Rogers his winnings in new crisp bills of 1,000 francs denomination.

The next morning Rogers was sitting in the reading room of his hotel scanning a newspaper when a waiter announced to him that a lady desired to see him in a reception parlor.

"A lady to see me!" exclaimed the colonel. "Are you sure you have come to the right man?"

"She wishes to see Colonel Rogers of Virginia."

Being the only and original Rogers of Virginia, the colonel raised himself from his comfortable leather covered chair and followed the servant to the lady. He found a very attractive looking person about thirty years old, but with a worried expression on her face.

"Colonel Rogers, I believe," she began in tolerable English.

"At your service, madame."

"You won last night from my husband 12,000 francs?"

"I believe I did, madame, win some money from a Mr. Rutan."

"Would you mind taking from me in place of the notes he gave you other notes to a similar amount?"

"I would gladly do anything to oblige you, madame, but I would like to be enlightened as to the reason for the change."

"And I would not think of permitting you to do me a favor without giving you some inkling as to the cause. I have always heard that the chivalry of Americans toward our sex comes largely from you southerners. Every one knows what may be expected from Colonel Rogers of Virginia."

The colonel bowed.

"I will trust you with the secret on that account. I know it will remain with you. My husband's father is wealthy, and my husband has nothing. I have, fortunately, some money of my own. My husband is an inveterate gambler. He has lost all the money his father has given him and broken every promise to reform. Yesterday, on his promise not to gamble, Mr. Rutan, Sr., gave him 12,000 francs, marked some of the bills and set a detective to watch his son. I discovered through an accident that the bills were marked, and my husband told me that he had lost them to you. I desire to save him from a break with his father, which, if it occurs, will never be healed. By replacing these notes he has given you with others I can avert this calamity."

There was nothing for the colonel to do but make the exchange. Indeed, he was glad enough to do so, for he was terror stricken lest he be connected with a family scandal. Taking the notes from his pocketbook, he counted 12,000 francs and handed them to the lady, receiving in return those she took from her own portemonnaie. Then, with a profusion of thanks, she left him.

The next day a gendarme called at the hotel, and the colonel was charged with passing counterfeit money. Every note the lady had given him was spurious.

To Colonel Rogers his loss was nothing, nor was the position in which he was placed especially appalling, for he was above suspicion. It was the fact that after all his fears and all his caution he had been made the dupe of a woman. From that time forward he gave strict orders that no woman should ever be admitted to his presence, and he parried all efforts on the part of those who endeavored to have him come to them. He never quite recovered from the shock.

He played a number of times after that with M. Rutan, whom he discovered was a bachelor. Who informed the woman of the colonel's winnings was never discovered. It was doubtless one of the club servants.

Still Use the Old Calendar.

One portion of the British Isles is not likely to take much interest in the bill for reforming the calendar which is to be introduced into Parliament. The act enforcing the Gregorian calendar was passed 161 years ago, but it is still ignored in Shetland. Almost all through the group of islands the old style of reckoning time is still followed. What we call Jan. 13 is New Year's day among the Shetlanders and celebrated by them with all manner of observances, including the solemn drinking of the national toast, "Health to man and death to the gray fish."

O'Keefe's Special Extra Mild Ale

Brewed especially for those who can't drink ordinary Ale. It's extra mild and extra fine. Has the rich, creamy delicious flavor of the finest old English Ales.

And the seal stoppers enable you to open the bottles easily and without getting cork or tinfoil in the Ale.

"The Beer that is always O.K."

It is brewed of choicest hops and malt, in Canada's model brewery. It is the ideal beverage for those who prefer ale to lager.

As a summer tonic—to build up the system—this "O'K" Ale has no superiors.

The BUSINESS WOMAN AND MOTHERHOOD

Striking Instances of Business and Artistic Women Who Have Found in Large and Growing Families of Children Their Highest and Best Inspiration

FREQUENTLY it has been declared that one of the greatest hindrances a business woman could find in her way toward success is the presence of dear little fuzzy headed babies in the home.

Also, no end of cries has been sent up deprecating women's activities in the professional and commercial worlds, condemning them as a home wrecker and one of the stanchest possible allies of race suicide. More than once it has been declared that the combination of duties demanded by the home and the office could not be successfully carried on and that it was ridiculous to suppose that it could—that with such an arrangement home or business was bound to go on the rocks.

Still, in face of all the depressing things that are said against the combination, there are many women who may be termed "standpatters" for the scheme.

To-day there is hardly a profession or business in which women have embarked in which there may not be found many with families of grown or growing children.

When one thinks of professional women of home interests, Mme. Schumann-Heink with her large family comes to mind. In her one sees a woman who has been capable of caring for her children and still not for an instant neglecting one of the most trying of professions. The children of this remarkable woman do not look neglected; in fact, one would probably have to travel a great way before healthier could be found.

And then there is Mme. Louise Homer, America's own prima donna! A morning spent in Mme. Homer's nursery is one not soon to be forgotten. Everything is run as smoothly as clock work and there is a strain of happiness underlying all that one does not always find. The children receive as much, if not more, of their mother's time as many little ones belonging to women who stay at home, or have no other interests save the seeking of their own pleasure. The four little Homers, twins and all, are examples of children who have received good, intelligent care; the fact that their mother is a celebrated singer and has much to interest her in other directions in no way seems to have militated against their health and comfort.

An interesting and up to date combination of bringing up a family and conducting a business at the same time is that of Mrs. Travis H. Whitney, better known as Rosalie Loew, one of New York's most successful women lawyers, and who, without the slightest hesitation votes, with a conviction gained through experience, for the family and business combination.

In her comfortable home in Brooklyn Mrs. Whitney said some things on the subject. At the same time there were three of the prettiest, healthiest, happiest little boys romping about and making things interesting for a big bulldog.

For several years previous to her marriage Mrs. Whitney led an exceedingly active life in legal circles, and at the time of her marriage she did not abandon her career, but, on the contrary, combined in partnership with her husband, also a lawyer, and the firm of Loew & Whitney was formed.

"Don't you think that is a pretty good answer to the question concerning business life and the family?" smiled Mrs. Whitney, indicating the happy children with a wave of her hand. "Doesn't that look as though I rather approved of the family?

"I do not believe that there is anything in the world that proves more of an inspiration to a woman than her children. At least that has been my experience. I was ambitious before marriage to make good in my profession, but after marriage I had a double pride in keeping my practice in good standing, for my husband and I had joined in a partnership. But when the first baby was born then the frame of mind changed and the ambition was to work for my boy to build up something for him, to surround him with the best possible things and to apply what training I had received in the business world to the sane and intelligent conduct of the home.

"When a woman works and builds up a fortune for herself she finds a great loneliness in realizing that she has no one to whom to leave the things produced by her efforts when her career ends. But when she is building for young, developing children she experiences a genuine happiness and there is some satisfaction in her progress.

"In no way does business militate against a woman's fitness for motherhood or home making. I believe that it prepares her for such a condition better than anything else. In her office she learns the value of system. She lets her mental workings save her from a great deal of confusion and mix up. In the office she has been trained to think concisely, and if she makes an effort to do that in the mere matter of making money, how much better will she use the knowledge when it comes to bringing up her children! Decidedly I do not think that business interferes with one's duties as a mother, or that children interrupt a woman's career."

Mrs. Ella Condie Lamb, who stands high in the profession of art, holds rather interesting ideas concerning the family, the woman and her children. Mrs. Lamb has a family of generous number—five in all, four boys and one girl. This mother believes also in permitting each child, as far as possible, to develop freely and to think unhampered by rules conventionally made for them.

"To begin with," said Mrs. Lamb, "I believe that every healthy woman should have a fad. To a woman who has no interests in life outside of her home affairs, those things become very nagging and wearing. If a woman is really interested in business before marriage and makes it her study, that becomes her fad and many times a life saver. After she is married there is not the slightest reason why she should not continue to be interested in her work. After her children are born they become her fad for a time, but there is bound to come a day when the routine of home affairs is going to get on her nerves and she is either going to degenerate into a neurotic creature or a habitual nag. It is at this time that she will turn again to her business as a vocation, and will consider her children a most delightful form of recreation."

Among other women artists who indorse the presence of children in the home and declare that they are a great help and inspiration to the mother is Mrs. Kenyon Cox. Mrs. Cox's portraits of children are well known.

Of all women one would expect to be the least able to give much attention to her children is the woman physician. Yet there is one in New York who scoffs at the idea of the necessity of neglecting the child for the work, or vice versa. This is Dr. Molly Amelia Fendler, who has been practising medicine for the last twenty years and whose daughter is now nineteen years old.

The daughter does not look neglected, nor does the mother look as if she has suffered from fatigue in giving attention to both her patients and her little girl.

"For a long time," said Dr. Fendler, sitting in her beautifully white office, "there has been an important question for professional women to decide, and that is, to have or not to have a child.

"I believe that circumstances alter cases and that it would be utterly absurd and impossible to attempt to fix a rule that will govern all conditions. There have been many cases in which the child has not only proved an incentive but the material reason for a woman's irruption into some special field of activity.

"We have distinguished examples of up-to-date women like Dr. Mary Putnam Jacobi, whose brilliant medical success followed the advent of children into her life; Mme. Curie, who has distinguished herself as a star of the first magnitude in affairs of science requiring the closest attention to detail work, and the ability to concentrate in matters of chemical analysis. She has been and is an ideal mother, and without doubt her work has been far more successful because she has constantly had with her these small hostages of fortune as actors in her splendid career. These are salient examples, and they have gained world wide reputation.

"Innumerable are the examples of women, professional women, working quietly, unobtrusively and inconspicuously. Many of them stand alone, consecrated in their life work. There are also many who pursue their work under difficulties, not only battling with a child or children tugging at their heels, but even attaining success and prominence, if not affluence, with the added hindrance of an undesirable husband, often an invalid, or drunkard, frequently the veriest drone in the hive."

For the last twenty-five years Mrs. William G. Mulligan has occupied a prominent place in the real estate field.

Mrs. Mulligan is a graduate of the Law School of the New York University, but in preference to making the law her profession she concentrated her interests in real estate.

Mrs. Mulligan has six healthy children, away from whom she has never spent an entire day during her career in business. Neither has the business been neglected on account of the children.

"I think that the trouble with most women," said Mrs. Mulligan, "is that they make an utter drudgery of whatever work they undertake. They do not seem to be capable of preserving an optimistic cheerfulness, and in their homes they also go at their work tooth and nail without giving themselves time for any relaxation, and as a result are always cross and querulous.

The Stars and Their Influence

FOLLOWING are the delineations according to planetary law of persons born during the present week.

May 12.—Persons born to-day are likely in some way to feel the transit of the planet Saturn at this time, either through lessened vitality or some disappointment in the home or in business. It will be well to remain quiet and take things calmly, to curb the temper, not to be careless in health or in any affair or transaction in business. Special care should be taken to guard against colds and moderation should be uppermost in all things.

May 13.—A good birthday for a commercial career, but care should be exercised at present and for some months to come because of inharmonious planetary vibrations. In danger of doing something hastily and unwittingly which will afterward be regretted. A good constitution generally, quick at making decisions and capable as an executive; knows how to handle men and can read human nature at a glance. Will not do well in employ, owing to a natural aversion to anybody who is a superior. Domestic relations, at times, will also suffer because of this.

May 14.—Many annoyances are likely at this time, this being due to inharmonious conditions. Patience is necessary. Conditions next year for health and business are excellent, and the reward for any little act of kindness or any good work will then be realized. A chivalrous, generous nature—conscientious and faithful in all things. A capacity for a great deal of work, but care should be taken not to overdo or expend too much nervous energy.

May 15.—With care this year and next will be good for business affairs generally, but the health is likely to suffer because of over-confidence and a tendency to try to do more than the system can stand. Quick to judge and criticise, and indifferent to any criticism on the part of others. Will go ahead and do as the conscience directs, and not care whom it hurts. Very matter-of-fact, caring little for poetry or literature, even though fully capable of appreciating any work of genius. A good speaker, simple and direct, and not using any superfluous words.

May 16.—Quiet, affable, dignified. Good disposition; optimistic, ever hopeful no matter what happens. Charitable in judging the weaknesses and failings of others and ever ready to help in any case where assistance is needed. Of a religious turn of mind, but caring nothing for creeds or dogma. Philosophical and somewhat of a thinker in matters above the ordinary things of existence.

May 17.—Neat in appearance; fond of luxurious surroundings, sumptuous entertainments and dinners. A lover of society; excellent conversationalist; quick to observe and perceive and to make mental notes of incidents. Though not a deep thinker, still will have a good general knowledge on all subjects and be able to talk entertainingly. Lover of art and music and some talent in both, which, if developed, would be marked. Somewhat indolent, however, except when spurred on, and in such circumstances is well able to do as good work as others.

May 18.—Better success promised in the employ of others than in your own business. A scientific mind, quick at figures and make excellent accountants or in any capacity in which mathematics play a part. Can accumulate money if economy is practised, but not disposed to deprive themselves of any luxury in order to save money. Lovers of home and will be happiest in their own family circle.

Care of the Ears.

IT is nearly always with an idea of preventing or soothing dental pains that many people, even though they have no earache, are accustomed to close the auditory canal with wads of cotton-wool.

They would be better advised to have the ailing tooth or teeth treated by a dentist, but this is a resolution which many never think of making. They imagine they have done all that is needed when the wad is placed in the ear. Others adopt the same practice because they are deaf. And the less they hear the more they close the auditory canal.

This is one of the commonest and the most deeply rooted of the prejudices with which the ear specialist has to contend. These wads of wool have not merely never cured either dental caries or facial neuralgia, but are very injurious to the ear from various points of view.

First of all, they are a source of eczema, boils and skin eruptions in the auditory canal owing to the fact that they maintain the air in it warm and moist. Further, they are a cause of deafness, not only because they constitute an obstacle to the transmission of the waves of sound, but also because the ear has need of exercise to preserve its acuity. If an excess of noise exhausts the auditory nerve, prolonged silence is also not beneficial for it. The proof is given by the fact that the deaf who have been completely cured by acoustic exercises must continue to give their ears constant practice to maintain the results thus obtained. The auditory powers of patients are weaker in the morning after the silence of the night.

Accordingly, without some valid reason, the ears should never be stopped. This precaution should be taken only in two well defined cases—namely, individuals whose tympanum is perforated and those whose calling exposes them to too violent or too prolonged noises.

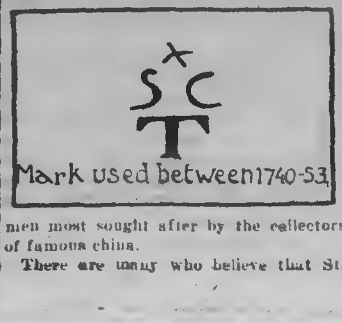
Markings That Will Help You Detect the Gems of Your Cupboard.

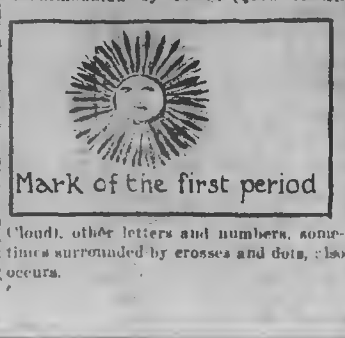
HAVE you examined the markings on the bottom of your chinaware that has been safely stored away among your treasured relics of the last generation? You may be fortunate enough to find the mark of the St. Cloud factory on one of them, and if so you have a specimen most sought after by the collectors of famous china.



Mark used between 1740-53

There are many who believe that St. Cloud was the first place where the manufacture of soft paste porcelain on a commercial scale was successfully carried on before the discovery of kaolin in Europe in 1695. Soft porcelain, or pate tendre was made there by one Pierre Chicaneau, or Chicaneau, and a special privilege for the manufacture of a true porcelain more beautiful and nearer perfection than that of the Indies or China was granted in 1696 to the widow of Pierre Chicaneau. She married Henry Trou, who became head of the manufactory under the patronage of Philip of Orleans, Regent of France.

In 1698 the St. Cloud kilns were producing a ware as white and translucent and as brilliant in decoration as that brought from China. The porcelains were of a fine regular grain, but both paste and glaze of a yellowish tint, inclining to amber on the enamelled pieces. The rouge d'or was successfully applied in 1720-30, its earliest appearance on European wares. During the early period, up to the death of Louis XIV, the "Sun in Splendor" is the prevailing mark. Later, the letter T surmounted by S. C. (Trou of St. Cloud), other letters and numbers, sometimes surrounded by crosses and dots, also occurs.



Mark of the first period

Make the Porch Comfortable.

BECAUSE the porch of the summer cottage is the real lounging place for the family, it shoud be made as comfortable as possible with all manner of inexpensive conveniences. If the master of the house has the ingenuity to rig up a swing couch by means of a set of single bed springs, four stout ropes and a can of paint, be sure to have one of those contrivances. Otherwise have a couch of rattan with an adjustable headpiece, but, lacking the money to afford that, a canvas army cot may be substituted, as when its wooden legs are painted it will look very well indeed.

Next come the lounging chairs, which if low and roomy need not be expensive, provided they be prettily painted in white, with pale green or pink or yellow and have cushioned backs. What makes so many cheap porch chairs uncomfortable is their hard backs, which should be covered with adjustable cushions filled with pine needles—a filling which is cheap and can be periodically replaced. But if cushioned chairs are considered unsanitary or are disliked for any other reason, the porch furnisher should get a collection of canvas steamer chairs.

The porch table should be a substantial affair which cannot be blown over by a high wind and large enough to serve a meal upon. Better than rattan or splint is the attractively painted kitchen table, whose legs have been amputated a third of their length, so that its surface shall not be above the easy reach of a person sitting in a low chair.

A tall screen of the four leaf order is always a convenience on a porch, as with it any specially disordered corner may be instantly concealed at the approach of unexpected visitors. Have the frame of this screen of hardwood so that it shall not easily blow over, paint it in the color scheme of the porch furnishings and cover it with whatever fabric is to be the material for the dozens of oblong, square and round pillows which are to be everywhere in evidence.

SUFFERED AGONY FROM DYSPEPSIA

"Fruit-a-tives" Makes Wonderful Cure

N. C. STIRLING, Esq.

GLENCOE, ONT., Aug. 15th. 1911.

"So much has been said and written about "Fruit-a-tives" that it might seem unnecessary for me to add my experience.

But "Fruit-a-tives" were so beneficial to me when I suffered with distressing Dyspepsia, that I feel called upon to inform you of the remarkable and satisfactory results I have had from using them.

Dyspepsia and Indigestion as everyone knows, can give you more uncomfortable hours and days than most common complaints.

"I am glad to be able to say to you that although in the past I suffered excruciating agony with Dyspepsia, I am now in perfect health.

"Fruit-a-tives" accomplished the desired result and I have to thank them for my very favorable and satisfactory state of health" N. C. STIRLING.

Why don't you try "Fruit-a-tives"? 50c a box, 6 for $2.50, trial size, 25c. At all dealers or sent on receipt of price by Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

OUR NEED.

God give us men, a time like this demands
Great hearts, true faith, strong minds and ready hands;
Men whom the lust of office cannot kill,
Men whom the spoils of office cannot buy,
Men who possess opinions and a will,
Men who have honor, men who will not lie,
Men who can stand before a demagogue
And curse his treacherous flattery without blinking.
Tall men, sun-crowned, who live above the fog
In public duty and in private thinking;
For while the rabble with their thumb-worn creeds,
Their large profession and their little deeds,
Mingle in selfish strife, lo, Freedom weeps,
Wrong rules the land and waiting Justice sleeps.
GOD GIVE US MEN!

A CREATOR OF DISEASE.

Our Michigan correspondent calls special attention to a recent deliverance made by Dr. T. Alexander MacNicholl, of New York, surgeon of the New York Red Cross Hospital, who declares that we have reached the point where the Government would be fully justified in actually participating in efforts to suppress the drinking of intoxicating liquor. Dr. MacNicholl asserted that within the past few years more than one million babies under two years of age have died as the result of the drinking habits of their parents. Through comparative statistics Dr. MacNicholl showed that 90 per cent. of the children of abstaining parents were untouched by disease or permanent physical weakness. For every child that died of abstaining parents five died of parents addicted to one form or another of narcotics. Medical men present at the conference where Dr. MacNicholl's statements were made confirmed his views and enlarged upon them during the discussion that followed. The remedy proposed by Dr. MacNicholl would be to treat alcoholism the same as we treat other forms of epidemic diseases. This view of the matter makes it vividly true that the saloon cannot otherwise be regarded than as a creator of disease and degeneracy, and as a general community pest and source of affliction.

GERMAN EMPEROR'S SPEECH.

The next war and the next naval battle will demand sound nerves on your part. They will be decided by nerves. But these are undermined and endangered from youth upwards by indulgence in alcohol.

Later you will have an opportunity of seeing the target ships and the effect of modern projectiles upon them, and you will be able to picture to yourselves the conditions of battle. You will see many different visions of appalling devastation. There the cry will be for firm nerves and a cool head. The nation which takes the smallest quantity of alcohol will win. And that must be you, gentlemen. And by you an example should be given to the crew. That has the most effect on the men. Consequently, I expect from you that here in the Naval School or on board ship, while keeping up comradeship and friendliness you will remember this among yourselves, and that care will be taken that the drinking of alcohol is not regarded as belonging to your privileges.

In my Navy are either in course of formation or already formed the Good Templar lodges and Blue Cross associations. I hope that you will do all you can to persuade the men to join these. And I only need to point to the model example of the British Navy, where 20,000 officers and men have already joined, to the great advantage of the fleet. It is one of the questions of the future for our Navy and for our nation. If you educate the people to do without alcohol I shall get healthy and sensible subjects. It is a great question of the future for by the time-expired men the idea will be carried into the country. If you promote these principles my people will be morally elevated. That is a work in which I should like to ask you to take a share.

DIABETES

Sanol's Antidiabetes, the great discovery of a German Specialist, is the only practical and thoroughly tested Remedy for Diabetes-mellitus. It has a specific action against the poisons of the disease, and by its use the secretion of sugar almost immediately abates and disappears altogether after a short time. So long as the disease has not reached its last stages, a cure can be effected with "Sanol's Antidiabetes."

Open wounds heal after a little time, the disagreeable thirst disappears, after a few days the general health of the patient becomes speedily improved.

Sanol's Antidiabetes is used with an alternate diet regimen based on long experience in the study of this disease.

All sufferers from this terrible and hitherto considered incurable disease, should not hesitate to give "Sanol's Antidiabetes" a trial, as we feel absolutely certain that it will justify all the claims we make for it.

This remedy is perfectly harmless to the organic system, being composed only of herbs and extracts, and containing no poisonous or injurious matter whatever.

BEAUTIFUL EYES

are made beautiful by long, silky lashes and well defined, lustrous brows. Eyes, like diamonds, depend on their setting. The beauties of the face are lost is the eye brows are thin and scanty, and the lashes are thing and scanty. Parisian Lash Lustre grows beautiful, soft, silky lashes. It has done so for society women throughout Europe, and it comes here well recommended to do the same for you. Parisian Lash Lustre is not a dye or colorater, but a scientific preparation for beautifying the eye lashes and brows. Our guarantee goes with every box of Parisian Lash Lustre. How the Name of a Mining Town Was Changed

By F. TRACY EDMONDS

Deadshot deserved its name. It was one of those mining camps that existed half a century ago in which was gathered the toughest population on the face of North American soil. One visiting it now would see an attractive town with paved streets and sidewalks, rows of neat dwellings and spires piercing the branches of shade trees.

But fifty years ago—then there was a different picture. There was but one street, and that was a dirt road lined with log cabins and board shanties. The most pretentious of these were drinking and gambling dens. There was no law nor semblance of law. A few respectable women had gone to the place, but at the time this story opens they were preparing to leave.

The citizens of Deadshot had encouraged the coming of the women, hoping that their presence would have a salutary effect on the rougher element, for the most brutal affairs were perpetrated by a few individuals, and now since within a week after their arrival the ladies were about to turn their backs on Sodom a meeting was called with a view to the adoption of measures that might change their resolution.

The meeting took place in the Empire saloon.

Pete Henshaw arose and said that he had heard one of the women say that if the citizens of Deadshot wanted to become civilized the first thing they must do was to build a church. He therefore proposed that a collection be taken up for that purpose.

No objection being made to the proposition, the hat was passed, and when the offering was summed up the value of all the donations of various kinds, including a dirty pack of cards, was found to be a dollar and fifty-six cents The movement was a failure.

Cy Allen then made a proposition that met with much more favor. He suggested that the first man who shot another should be fined a thousand dollars to build the church and that a committee of three of the quickest and surest shots be appointed to see when the transgression occurred that the transgressor put up the amount at once or suffer the consequences.

It did not occur to any one to ask what the intended consequences were. All understood at once that the delinquent was to be riddled. The motion was put and carried, the committee whose duty it was to see that when the fine needed for the church was due it should be paid was appointed, and the chairman named another to go to the ladies and ask them to defer their departure until it could be determined whether the action taken would be effective. The latter consented to give time for a trial, and Deadshot waited for the man who was to build the church.

Pools were made as to who would be the offender. Arkansas Jack, Pete Skinner and Andy Grimshaw were the favorites. Andy Grimshaw was the winner, shooting his man down in cold blood within two days after the passage of the resolution. The committee appointed for the collection of the funds called on him and asked him to fork over. He laughed them to scorn. There was a fusillade, and he fell pierced with three bullets. One of the committee was wounded, but not seriously.

The next man to lay himself liable to the fine was Arkansas Jack. But, taking warning by the fate of his predecessor, he "lit out" before the committee had time to pay him a visit. Results thus far were favorable. One of the worst men in the town had been eliminated by the bullet; another had gone of his own accord. The only unfortunate circumstance was that no fine had been collected for the building of the church.

Pete Skinner, one of the pool favorites, still remained in the town and above ground. He had disappointed his backers in not turning out a winner and was therefore disappointed himself. The reason he was inactive and unharmed was that he had not succeeded in picking a quarrel with any one before his colleagues had sinned and suffered. He was disgusted with the working of the "city ordinance," for he had no mind to give up his favorite amusement and had no money with which to pay for indulging in it.

The ladies were only partially satisfied with the results of the effort to reform the town, and so long as Skinner remained there above ground they had no confidence in a reformation. Two left, and the others began packing up. The citizens were hoping that Skinner would kill some one and give them an excuse to eliminate him. But Skinner got wind of their desires and kept the peace.

There were three young men in Deadshot who had been attracted to three young women who were getting ready to move. These men owned property in Deadshot and not only wished to keep the girls, but to reconstruct the town so that they could induce capital to come in and develop what they believed would give them a fortune. Pete Skinner stood not only between them and the girls, but between them and pecuniary success. They met one evening to discuss the situation.

Dave Perkins suggested that they draw lots as to which one of their number should shoot Skinner, the other two to chip in $500 apiece to pay the slayer's fine. But Pete was dreadfully quick on the trigger and extremely watchful. He might kill the man to whom the lot fell. If so, what next? Would one of the others take up the fight? And, if the second fell, would the other go the same way? This ending of the conspiracy would be barren of results.

It looked as if the only reliable way of getting rid of Skinner was to lay in wait for him and shoot him in the back. But the parties concerned not only shrank from an unfair proceeding even with an incubus on the town like Skinner, but knew that to perpetrate such a scheme would bring upon them the contempt of their fellow citizens.

One of the trio, Gus Harbeson, volunteered to pit himself against Skinner. He was to give Skinner cause to kill him. This looked very unselfish, very noble, on the part of Harbeson, but he said that he was intending to try to get an advantage over his enemy that would put him under ground instead of himself. He didn't say how he proposed to accomplish this desirable result, for it was not necessary that he should do so, and his plans might leak out.

Harbeson had been considered the black sheep of his family. He had run away from home when a boy and entered the service of a telegraph company. From there he had gone to sea After two years before the mast he drifted west in a prairie schooner and now at twenty-two found himself a miner. Young and strong, he feared nothing. Besides, he was in love and had suddenly become sensible of the fact that he should do something to counteract his record, that his sweetheart might be the more inclined to listen to his suit.

Dave Perkins told the girls that a movement was on foot to eliminate Skinner, begging them to wait awhile, and they consented. A week passed, and Skinner was still alive. The young ladies resumed their packing. The citizens who had hoped for much when they had adopted the plan for building the church were discouraged Skinner seemed to be gathering courage, for he was heard to say that if he did lay himself liable to the fine he didn't believe the committee would dare in his case to attempt its collection. This indicated that he had prepared for a desperate fight and that some of the committee must be sacrificed in order to get rid of him.

The despondency was at bottom level when one morning Skinner emerged from the Empire saloon and, turning eastward, sauntered down the street. He literally bristled with weapons, for he understood that his fellow townsmen wished to get rid of him, and he was resolved that if they did some of them must first bite the dust. There were a number of persons out. But this morning instead of looking at the walking fortress they were staring in the opposite direction at Gus Harbeson, who a few moments after Skinner's appearance had emerged from his own cabin with a very remarkable hat on his head.

"By gum," exclaimed a citizen, "ef Harbe hain't got one o' them machines the hatters in big cities put on a man's head to take his measure!"

Harbeson walked down the street, receiving the jeers of the citizens Skinner looked at him with the rest and the desperado's face broke into a grin. As he and Harbeson drew near together Skinner called out:

"What y' makin' a guy o' y'self that a-way for?"

"Who says I'm makin' a guy o' myself?" retorted Harbeson.

"Y' know y're doin' it y'self," replied Skinner bristling.

"You say that again!" cried Harbeson angrily.

The bystanders began to get out of the way. There was not a sign of a weapon about Harbeson, but they knew that if he kept up that kind of talk with Skinner a bullet would go through him and might hurt some one else.

"What y' mean sassin' me that way?" snarled Skinner, putting his hand to his hip.

The band of Harbeson's hat was pierced with little round holes. From one of these holes came a puff of smoke. Skinner staggered, put his hand to his hip and got a revolver mid way between his waist and his chin when Harbeson inclined his head about five degrees, several simultaneous puffs and reports followed, and Skinner's arm was shattered. Harbeson then turned his head in a horizontal circle There were more explosions through his miniature portholes, and Skinner fell dead.

By this time every man, woman and child in Deadshot was out of doors to learn what was going on. When those nearest the scene of action saw what had happened they raised a joyful shout, which was taken up by those who were next and borne on down the thoroughfare till it reached the limits of the town. Then all crowded around Harbeson to examine the hat fort he wore on his head. He showed them a battery in the small of his back connected by wires with little guns in his headpiece, while other wires ran down his arms, ending in circuit keys in his hands.

Skinner was buried the same day, and the citizens, after celebrating their relief from gun rule, held a meeting at which they levied a tax on themselves for funds to build the church. The three lovers and their girls were married at a triple wedding, and the name of the town was changed from Deadshot to Harbeson.

EMPRESS OF BRITAIN HITS COLLIER IN A HEAVY FOG

While Proceeding Cautiously in a Fog the Empress of Britain Runs Into the Coal Steamer Helvetia, Cutting the Latter In Two and Sinking Her—All Passengers Are Transferred to the Empress of Britain.

Quebec, July 29.—During a dense fog, the Canadian Pacific Railway steamer Empress of Britain, which left Quebec at 7.15 on Friday evening, collided with the steamer Helvetia, a collier bound to Quebec and Montreal at 4.45 Saturday afternoon. The scene of the disaster was between Cape Magdalen and Father Point. The first news of the accident came to Quebec about 6 o'clock Saturday evening via wireless, and this was followed by another despatch stating that the Empress of Britain was returning to Quebec with her bows badly stove in and her forecompartments filled with water.

The latest despatches from the liner state that after transferring mails and a number of second and third-class passengers to the Pretorian, she started back from Father Point at 7.40 o'clock. The steamer is proceeding slowly under her own steam, and the Lord Strathcona and the C.P.R. tug Cruiser are accompanying her. She cannot arrive until late this afternoon.

As far as can be gathered, the Empress of Britain struck the Helvetia amidships, cutting her in two, the injured vessel sinking shortly afterwards. Those on board the Helvetia were all rescued and taken on board the Empress of Britain.

Captain Murray immediately gave orders to have his ship brought back to Quebec, and assistance was despatched to her, the wrecking steamer Lord Strathcona being despatched at once, while the C.P.R. tug Cruiser, which was in Montreal, was also hastened to the scene, passing through Quebec yesterday morning on its way to help the Empress of Britain.

The latest news of the disaster shows that Captain Murray was proceeding through the dense fog cautiously, when suddenly, and without warning, the Helvetia was seen, but too late to avert a collision, the Empress of Britain plunging into the Helvetia, and, it is said, cutting her in two. Successful efforts were at once made to rescue the captain and officers of the sinking vessel, a few moments after which she sank.

The occurrence naturally created consternation on the Empress of Britain, but this was soon quieted, and Captain Murray had an investigation as to the damage suffered by the Empress. He then wired details of the disaster to the C.P.R. authorities, and ordered his vessel to return to Quebec.

The Empress of Britain had 730 passengers, the greater part of whom were on deck when the collision occurred. The progress of the disabled steamer to port is very slow, its passage being impeded by the wreckage which hangs over its bows. At 1.15 yesterday afternoon the ship reached Father Point, where she was still at 5 o'clock. The Allan steamer Pretorian was standing by, to which some of the passengers and the mails were being transferred.

The Empress of Britain expected to again get under way shortly before seven o'clock. She is traveling under her own steam, and, as she is making but eight miles an hour, she is not expected to reach Quebec before tonight.

The steamer Helvetia, which sank after the collision, was bringing a cargo of 6,000 tons of coal from Sydney. The skipper of the Helvetia was Capt. Connell.

The steamer was built at Sunderland about a year ago. The captain's wife and niece were on board. Capt. Connell and First Officer Wilson are well known here. It is understood that the ship and cargo were insured. All on board, except the officers and the two women, were Chinamen.

County Constable Swaysee Resigns.

Grimsby, July 29.—The people of Grimsby and district greatly regret D. E. Swaysee's resigning as county constable and bailiff, which dual position he has held for several years. No reasons have been given for his resigning, and when interviewed stated that he had nothing to say except that he would continue as chief of police of the village.

Mr. Swaysee was one of the most efficient officers Lincoln County has ever had.

Rioting In Belfast.

Belfast, July 29.—Owing to continuous disputes between Orangemen and Catholics over the home rule agitation, which have resulted in many Catholics being prevented from working, the shipbuilding firm of Hartland & Wolff has already closed down some of its departments.

Some Catholic workmen were on Saturday assailed with bolts and nuts as they went to work, by a crowd of youths. A number of them were injured.

BERLIN BREWER PAYS HEAVY FINE

Berlin Company Must Not Advertise In Galt.

Galt, July 29.—In the police court Saturday Magistrate Blake gave his decision in the case in which the Lion Brewery of Berlin were charged with soliciting orders in Galt, where local option rules, by the insertion of advertisements in the local papers and registered a conviction against the defendants.

The case is one of particular interest, since it is the first of its kind to be tried under the liquor license law in the province. It was on June 20 that R. H. Knowles, license inspector for South Waterloo, laid the charge through his counsel, J. B. Dalzell. James Haverson, K.C., of Toronto, represented the defendant company. After hearing argument on both sides the magistrate decided to reserve judgment.

In handing out his decision Saturday his worship attached a fine of $200 with costs amounting to $4.50. It is likely that an appeal will be made, and to do this the defence has eight days, according to the statute.

PORT DALHOUSIE WANTS HYDRO

St. Catharines, July 29.—Port Dalhousie has decided to benefit by Hon. Adam Beck's work in supplying Hydro-electric power, and will make application to the Hydro Commission to have Hydro power supplied for lighting the streets of the village.

Until recently the plant of the Maple Leaf Rubber Factory supplied power for lighting, but the village recently voted to purchase the plant and equipment from the factory and hand it over to the Ontario Power or Cataract Co. It has now definitely decided to have Hydro lights instead.

Old Boys In Kingston.

Kingston, July 29.—Toronto, Ottawa and Montreal old boys are in possession of the city. Mayor Hoag gave them the freedom of the city when they arrived Saturday, and with ideal weather they are having a grand time. The Ottawa and Montreal contingents were first to arrive, 200 strong, and the excursion from Toronto Saturday night brought 800. There were two trains, and the visitors were given a warm welcome at the depot by the mayor, city fathers and several thousand citizens.

CAPT. FRANK BEAUMONT LAID DOWN HIS LIFE FOR A CHILD

Master of the Steamer Alporto at Bracebridge Jumps Overboard to Rescue His Ten-Year-Old Nephew and Gets Him But In Swimming to the Boat Beaumont Sinks—Boy Also Drowns.

Bracebridge, July 29.—A double drowning accident occurred Saturday afternoon about five o'clock near Beaumaris, when Capt. Frank Beaumont of the steamer Alporto and his little nephew, Jock, 10 years of age, eldest son of George Beaumont of Toronto, were both drowned.

The little fellow fell overboard at the gangway and the captain, when the alarm was given, jumped overboard after him. The boat was running at full speed and he had to swim some distance before reaching the boy. He was, however, successful in this, got the little fellow and started back, but after swimming a short distance with the boy, he sank, leaving the little fellow on the surface.

The boy struggled along for a few seconds, but also sank before assistance could reach him.

Capt. Beaumont was the fourth son of J. J. Beaumont of Alport Farm, Muskoka River, and was well and favorably known on all points of the Muskoka Lakes, having sailed the lakes for many years.

A search party under command of Engineer William Simmons went to Beaumaris early yesterday morning and were successful in recovering both bodies which were lying in 25 feet of water.

Drowned at Owen Sound.

Owen Sound, July 29.—The first drowning accident of the season here happened yesterday afternoon when Mack Clendennan, aged twenty-five years, was drowned in the harbor below Balmy Beach. The body has not yet been recovered.

In company with three brothers named Franks, Bert Ross, John Urquhart, Russell Wright and Ed. Clendennan, his father, the young man went out in the bay in Ed. Franks' two-masted sail boat. While tacking across the harbor toward Sherman's Shoals, hardly a mile from the shore, a squall completely capsized the boat, and five of the men clung to her as she went over.

Clendennan and his son were thrown some distance, and the former at once swam to his father's assistance, as did one of the Franks brothers. The elder Clendennan was brought safely to the overturned boat, while the younger man was overcome by the choppy sea and sank just as a motor boat reached the scene.

Montreal Garment Strike Settled.

Toronto, July 29.—Messages received last night by local labor officials said that the garment workers' strike in Montreal had been settled satisfactorily to both sides, after mutual concessions had been agreed upon.

Two thousand workers have been out for eight weeks.

Jubilation was general among the members of the affiliated Toronto unions when the news was received.

THINKS HE MAY COME IN YET

Mr. Rowell Has Not Given Up Hope of Sir James.

Port Dover, Ont., July 29.—The leader of the Opposition has not yet despaired of Sir James Whitney joining in abolishing the bar from Ontario. "I hope he will yet join with me in this great fight to banish the bar. I may not hopeless. I think he may do it," Mr. N. W. Rowell, K.C., declared here Saturday evening in the course of his address to a crowd of picnickers in Orchard Beach Park. The gathering was composed largely of Liberals from Mr. Rowell's own riding of North Oxford, who, under the auspices of the Woodstock Young Liberals' Club, had come down on a special train in the afternoon to lunch with their member and leader on the pleasant shore of Lake Erie. In his address, Mr. Rowell dealt with the various issues which have arisen since he succeeded to the leadership of the party. His pronouncement of the Liberal policy with regard to the temperance question, however, seemed to arouse the greatest interest, and his statement that he believed there was yet a chance of the Premier acceding to his request for co-operation was warmly applauded.

Mr. Rowell said he believed the tour of the Liberals through New Ontario this week would both directly and indirectly affect the future development of the north to a telling extent. The delegations, which is to be a large one, would represent all sections of older Ontario, and the itinerary arranged would be most complete.

Mr. John McBeth of Woodstock acted as chairman. Besides Mr. Rowell, Mr. E. W. Nesbitt, M.P. for North Oxford, also addressed the meeting, dealing briefly with a number of the prominent issues before the people.

MAY MISS CHANCE SAYS BONAR LAW

London, July 29.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—"Among the important reforms to which the Unionist party is committed," said Bonar Law at the mass meeting in Blenheim is one providing a preference in overseas markets. Canada and Australia are both urging its adoption upon us. Both want reciprocal treatment within the Empire in peace as well as war.

"If," he continued, "the reciprocity election had gone the other way, our share of the Canadian trade would only have amounted to a share of the American trade."

"From that danger, however, we have been saved in spite of our Government by the true instinct of the Canadian people the danger is gone for a moment, but it will recur if we persist in refusing a boon which is held out to us, and it is a boon. Canada has much to offer, and she has many suitors. If we refuse them the gift will be eagerly accepted by other nations which are not so blind."

Small Cyclone at Morden.

Morden, Sask., July 29.—The most destructive wind and hailstorm ever witnessed in this district took place here Saturday evening between 6.30 and 7 o'clock. As part of the result of the work of the wind at that time the Morden curling rink is minus its roof and the Arlington Hotel is short its back verandah and kitchen steps. J. S. Black's residence, the Canadian Pacific Railway freight sheds, the Ogilvie elevator and a number of other buildings have had numerous parts torn off them and box cars were shifted from the tracks.

Reports from the country indicate that many stables and small frame buildings have either been destroyed or moved by the storm. No loss of life is as yet reported.

Honored Cartier's Memory.

Montreal, July 29.—The historic old French village of St. Antoine on the river Richelieu was the scene of a patriotic demonstration in honor of Sir George Cartier, St. Antoine being the birthplace of the great statesman, and yesterday six thousand persons gathered to honor his memory. It was decided to erect a memorial stone to be unveiled at the time of the celebration in Montreal in September, 1914.

One of the features of the day was an address by H. Rainville, M.P., who criticized Mr. Bourassa, who wrote an article the other day belittling Cartier.

Will Enlarge Grain Elevator.

Montreal, July 29.—The Canadian Government, having proved the usefulness of the Port Colborne elevator and having made it clear that the cost of transporting grain from the Lake Superior ports to Montreal via Port Colborne, has been reduced by half a cent a bushel, the present elevator capacity of 800,000 will be increased to 2,000,000 bushels.

J. A. Jamieson of Montreal, who designed the original elevator, will build the enlarged structure during the coming winter.

Chapman Pays Theft Penalty.

Winnipeg, July 29.—J. W. Chapman, former timekeeper of the C.P.R. at Fort William, who is supposed to have gotten away with $40,000, has arrived in this city to undergo the three-year sentence in Stony Mountain Penitentiary he was given by Judge Leary of Fort William.

Chapman had been padding payrolls over a number of years and was quite well known in Fort William, where his disappearance caused a sensation. Detectives ran him to earth in San Francisco, Cal., where he waived extradition and elected speedy trial on being brought back.

THE NEW EMPEROR OF JAPAN

CROWN PRINCE OF JAPAN

JAPAN'S BELOVED EMPEROR HAS PASSED FROM EARTH

The Difference in the Time of America and the Far East Makes it Appear That the Mikado Died To-morrow Morning.

Special To The Review.

Tokio, July 29—The Emperor died at 12.45 a.m., July 30th.

Tokio, July 29.—The condition of the Emperor of Japan is such as to cause abandonment of all hope of his recovery. From dawn he has been unconscious. An examination by the court physicians at 6 o'clock in the morning disclosed a high temperature, weak and rapid pulse and shallow respiration, which was greatly accelerated from the previous night.

The critical condition of the emperor was announced in a bulletin last evening and all the imperial princes are summoned to the palace. The physicians employed artificial meas- of stimulants seemed to be of little ures to prolong life, but the injection avail. The temperature increased from 100 to 102.3, which, with the increased heart action and shallow breathing, indicated that the Emperor could not for long withstand the calls upon his strength.

Prince Katsura Returning.

St. Petersburg, July 29.—Prince Katsura started on his return trip to Japan last night. Prince Katsura has been in St. Petersburg for the past week. It had been his intention to make an extensive tour of other capitals, but he is returning home on account of the critical illness of the emperor.

TOLD STORY OF WRECK TOO OFTEN

Abraham Crownstein, "Titanic Hero," Is Now In Jail.

Toronto, July 29.—Abraham Crownstein, the Russian Jew who claims a miraculous escape from the ill-fated Titanic, attracted much attention by his story, which he related at a hotel on York street about a week after the wreck, is now in the hands of the Toronto police on a charge of obtaining money by fraud. He had been wanted since May, when he disappeared from the city, and was now located by the story he spread in Berlin, Ont., a few days ago, to the effect that he was to receive the sum of $10,000 from the fund collected for the White Star Line survivors.

When Crownstein arrived in Toronto he told a story of marvelous escape that rivalled that of the greatest fiction writers of shipwreck experiences.

This story did not obtain the verification of the officers of the rescue ship Carpathia, but was believed by some of his own nationality in Toronto, and he obtained $84 in money and goods from M. G. Greenberg, proprietor of a gents furnishings store at 169 Yonge street.

A week or so after this Crownstein disappeared and Greenberg laid information with the Toronto police charging the Russian Jew with fraud. The whereabouts of Crownstein, however, baffled the police at the time and they were unable to locate him.

The next heard of Crownstein was an interview with him in the Berlin, Ont., papers which was telegraphed to and republished in the Toronto newspapers. This appeared a few days ago and by it he stated that he had been notified by the committee in charge of the fund collected for the Titanic survivors that he was to be presented with the sume of $10,000. This was to be a reward for the rescue of his seven fellow-countrymen whom he stated escaped from the sinking ship with him. He announced that he would at once leave Berlin for Montreal, where he would be given the $10,000.

The Toronto detective department hearing of this, which was their first clue to the man's whereabouts since his disappearance from Toronto, immediately forwarded a warrant to the Berlin police to arrest Crownstein before he could leave there for Montreal. Following the request of the Toronto police, Crownstein was placed under arrest and Detective Twigg of the Toronto police department sent up to Berlin to bring him back to Toronto.

Detective Twigg arrived back with his prisoner yesterday.

TELEGRAPHIC PARAGRAPHS

The Christian Travelers' Association met at Atlanta, Ga., and selected Toronto for the next convention.

Mrs. Hallett, wife of J. C. Hallett, collector of customs, Guelph, dropped dead on the street from heart failure, while on her way to church.

A Republican sugar tariff reduction bill, the first purely Republican revision measure of the present Congress, was adopted in the U. S. Senate on Saturday.

Taking the risk of jumping from a moving street car on Saturday, George Demont, a young Greek, who resided at 144 Argyle street, Toronto, was fatally injured.

John S. Lyle, 94 years old, and chil-
John S. Lyle, 94 years old, and childless is dead in his home, Springwood, a fortune of $20,000,000 to $40,000,000. He was born in Nova Scotia.

The wreck reported on the C.P.R. near Jackfish Friday was not a serious one. One car left the tracks west of Jackfish and carried away a telegraph pole. No one was hurt.

U.S. TO BUY CHEMICAL TRACT

Washington, July 29.—The Mexican ambassador and the State Department on Saturday reached an agreement to settle the long-standing dispute regarding the ownership of the Chemical tract of about 50 acres forming part of the city of El Paso, Texas, on the basis of the purchase of the land from Mexico by the United States. The tract is believed to be worth approximately $1,000,000.

PRIVY COUNCIL DECIDES IN QUEBEC'S FAVOR IN THE MARRIAGE LAW APPEAL CASE

General Decision Announced in a Brief Dispatch in Which No Details Are Given — Lancaster Marriage Bill Apparently Held Impossible of Enactment—Mixed Marriage Question Not Passed Upon.

Special to the Review

London, July 29—The judicial committee of the Privy Council to-day decided the Quebec Ne Temere marriage question in favor of the Province of Quebec and against the recent proposed legislation of the Dominion Parliament which undertook to provide that no law or canonical decree or custom of any Province should have force or effect to invalidate any marriage performed by any person competent to perform the marriage ceremony.

This apparently means that Quebec provincial customs, and canonical decrees included in them, override any federal or general law. It will mean that the whole question is to be thrown into the boiling pot again, so far as Quebec is concerned. So far the Church of Rome has undoubtedly won, much more so than when before the Supreme Court.

But the decision refers to Quebec only. There are no local provincial rights in the other provinces, where federal laws will, when made, reign supreme on this question.

THE QUESTION SUBMITTED

The questions submitted to the Privy Council were as follows:—

Question 1—(a) Has the Parliament of Canada authority to enact in whole or in part, bill No. 3 of the first session of the twelfth Parliament of Canada, intitled "An act to amend the marriage act"? (b) If the provisions of the said bill are not all within the authority of the Parliament of Canada to enact, which, if any, of the provisions are within such authority?

When this question was decided before the Supreme Court, four Justices answered "No" and Justice Idington gave a qualified dissent.

Question 2—Does the law of the Province of Quebec render null and void, unless contracted before a Roman Catholic priest, a marriage which would otherwise be legally binding, which takes place in such Province (a) between persons who are both Roman Catholic, of (b) between persons one of whom only is a Roman Catholic?

On this question three Justices voted "No," Justice Anglin "Yes," and Chief Justice Fitzpatrick declined to vote.

Question 3.—If either (a) or (b) of the last preceding question is answered in the affirmative, or if both of them are answered in the affirmative, has the Parliament of Canada authority to enact that all such marriages heretofore solemnized or hereafter to be solemnized shall be legal and binding?

All answered "No" to the question as to whether the "Quebec law would render null and void a marriage performed in that province between persons, one of whom only is a Roman Catholic if not performed before a Roman Catholic priest.

The court found that Parliament had authority to enact with the concurrence of the respective legislatures concerned, that all such marriages as those referred to in the preceding paragraph heretofore solemnized, shall be legal and binding. When a province fails to provide adequate means of solemnization of marriage parliament can also enact that all such marriages hereafter solemnized shall be legal and binding.

The second of the above questions was not passed upon by the Privy Council, that body declining to hear argument upon it at present, probably for the reason that the issue involved is now before the courts in the Province of Quebec.

Fined for Selling Liquor.

Belleville, July 29.—Recently License Inspector Joseph Arnott raided Joseph Gage's boarding house at Point Ann and seized a large quantity of liquor. Saturday Gage was fined $100 and costs for selling liquor without a license.

Point Ann is under local option.

Tomatoes and Cheese.

Delicious are rounds of croutons—bread fried to a golden brown in butter, spread thickly with anchovy paste sprinkled with finely chopped pimentos. Another spread is a very thick stew of tomatoes, almost the consistency of a paste, sprinkled with grated cheese of the ordinary American variety. The tomatoes should be highly seasoned and quite rich with butter.

PREMIER BORDEN AND HIS MINISTERS ARE IN FRANCE

Judge Monet Replies.

Montreal, July 29.—Judge Monet, who came into prominence at St. Johns, Que., through his speech attacking Archbishop Bruchesi and Bishop Bernard for their interdiction of the Monnoir College there because the priests who conduct it refused to return to Marieville and re-establish their college in that town, has issued a reply "to his calumniators and detractors."

He ridicules the "reparatory triduum," announced to take place in St. Johns last Sunday, to "shield our heads from visitations from on High," on account of alleged blasphemous utterances in his address.

NO INJURY FROM FROST

Winnipeg, July 29.—"As far as we are able to make out these samples were apparently uninjured by frost," wrote Deputy Minister of Agriculture Bedford and Prof. Lea of Manitoba Agricultural College in their report of samples taken at nearly all points where frost was reported. The wheat was in bloom and these samples were examined most thoroughly, with the result that no injury to the pollen and producing organs could be discovered.

There appears no foundation for the black rust scare in Manitoba.

The Seymour Co. has experts looking over the ground in order to present new figures.

First Day In Gay Parse Is Spent In Seeing the Sights—A Big Banquet Will Be Tendered the Canadian Ministers at the Elysee To-morrow Night at Which M. Poincare Will Speak—Press Is Cordial.

Paris, July 29.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—President Fallieres specially returns to Paris to-day from Nancy, where he is spending a vacation, to receive Hon. R. L. Borden and Ministers at the Elysee.

Notwithstanding the sudden death of W. Ramondou, secretary of the President, a banquet will be tendered to-morrow night by the committee of France-Amerique. It will be notable on account of the presence of Premier Poincare and the regent of the Bank of France. Addresses will be delivered by Poincare, Borden and the Canadian Ministers.

The Canadians are accorded a warm welcome by the press. Le Siecle says, "England cannot but have the sympathy of French-Canadians in this undertaking (referring to the Imperial defence). The greater love French-Canadians have for France the more freely will they contribute to the supremacy of the British navy when the day of battle comes, and British warships given by Canada are engaged in the sea. French-Canadians will be protecting not only their honor and the interests of England, but the glory and security of France."

Le Temps, the most important paper in Paris, says, in discussing the probable action of Canada in regard to naval contribution, "Canada, by this step, heightens the bands which have been established between Great Britain and France."

On arrival of the Borden party at Calais, was received by Mr. Paton, British consul, and a special car furnished for the railway journey to the French capital, where the party was received on arrival by a large deputation of English, Canadian and Frenchmen.

Headed by Commissioner Roy, yesterday was quietly spent by the Ministers at Versailles viewing works of art in the galleries and gardens, where they were lunched by Commissioner Roy and escorted by the British charge d'affaires, Hon. L. D. Carnegie, in the absence of the British ambassador.

"Marvelous Recovery"

Montreal Man So Ill With Dyspepsia Thought He Would Die.

No more convincing evidence was ever put on paper than the following letter from one of Montreal's well-known citizens, Mr. D. R. Larose, of 338 Joliette street.

"Permit me to write you a few words concerning Dr. Hamilton's Pills. I suffered from dyspepsia and indigestion for five years. I suffered so much that I could hardly attend to my work. I was weak and lost all courage. I enjoyed no rest until I decided to follow your treatment, after having read your advertisement in the paper. To my great surprise I immediately began to feel better. I am now using the second box and I feel so well that I want to tell you that I owe this great change to your famous pills. I recommend them to every person who is suffering from dyspepsia. Your grateful servant, D. R. Larose, 338 Joliette st., Montreal, P.Q.

Let all who have weak stomachs, and those who suffer with indigestion, headaches, biliousness, know they can be perfectly cured by Dr. Hamilton's Pills. Successfully used for many years, mild and safe, 25c per box, all dealers, or The Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Ont.

Dr. Hamilton's Pills Cure Dyspepsia

The Daily Review

IDLE SPECULATIONS

Speculation on any subject is idle. It is, besides, confusing to the mental faculties of the public and the newspapers that indulge in it, on political or other questions are not treating their readers fairly, but are too often inveigling them into wrong conclusions, and the adoption into their creed of false doctrine.

Even since Premier Borden set foot in England, the Liberal press has been hazarding guesses as to what arrangements he has made with the British Government with regard to Canada's contribution to the naval defence of the Empire. One paper placed him, for example, in a ridiculous and impossible position by gravely announcing that he had pledged his country to contribute $30,000,000, at once in hard cash, for the construction of three Dreadnoughts. This assertion, Mr. Borden, as was to be expected, most emphatically denied, when it was first brought to his notice.

The terms of the agreement made with England, have not been given to the public, and will not be, until announced in the Parliament of Canada. All we are warranted in surmising, is that they are satisfactory to the British. This much, we gather from the statements made by Mr. Churchill and Premier Asquith in the English House of Commons. Mr. Borden had no authority in his own right to pledge Canada to a cash or any other contribution, without the sanction of his Parliament, and he knows his place too well to step beyond the bounds of his duty.

"PASTOR" RUSSELL

A great many frauds have been perpetrated under the guise of religion, but perhaps none have ever surpassed in magnitude that which is being carried on to-day by Pastor Russell and his alleged association of Bible Students. The so-called pastor belongs on the other side of the national line but his recent splurge in the city of Toronto has invested his work with a tinge of local interest.

Mr Russell advertises himself as the pastor of the Brooklyn Tabernacle, where there is really no such edifice in existence. That church, of which Dr. Talmage was pastor, was burned down years ago and has never been rebuilt. Mr. Russell has cheated a portion of the public by leading them to believe that he is the successor of the eloquent divine who passed away some time ago, and so like a parasite he seeks to fatten his fame upon the creditable record and the memory of a dead man.

On his recent visit to Toronto Mr. Russell gave to the world a series of resolutions, passed, he said, by his bible students with regard to the subject of future punishment. The association consists principally of himself, and the views set fort in his resolutions which the press published, in good faith, represented the thought of no one but Mr. Russell.

Every week a sermon is published, some paid for as advertising matter, others bringing in a small revenue to the preacher. One week it is announced that he preached to a large crowd in Pittsburg, next week San Francisco has been electrified by his eloquence, while the cold fact is that Mr. Russell was not at the time specified within a thousand miles of either city.

Such procedure is a standing scandal and an insult to every orthodox church on the American continent. It is unfortunate that the press should lend, unwittingly it may be, any aid to such a movement, and if his sermons were denied publication by the daily papers, either as matter paid for or voluntary contributions, the self-styled pastor of the ghost of the Brooklyn tabernacle would soon be forced to seek fame and fortune in some other occupation.

DETECTIVE BURNS AGAIN

W. J. Burns' last spectacular detective stunt has been pulled off in Detroit and has resulted in the arrest of eight alderman on a charge of selling their votes for sums ranging from one hundred to a thousand dollars, the higher figure being paid to "Honest Tom" Glinnan, the president of the City Council, who is deputy mayor by virtue of his position and acts as chief magistrate in the absence from the city of that official. This is the third municipal scandal that Detroit has had in the past twenty years, aldermanic arrests having been made by wholesale on two former occasions but the city has yet to score its first conviction in any of these cases. The chances of sending any of the present city fathers to state prison would appear when the circumstances are understood to be about as slim as those of Harry K. Thaw to break away from the asylum.

The Wabash Railway Company bought a block of land not far from the centre of the city and proposed erecting thereon a mamoth freight shed. In order to do this it would be necessary to close a public street and the City Council was asked for permission to block the thoroughfare but a majority demurred and the scheme was held up for some time. The conclusion was jumped at that the objecting aldermen were holding out for bribery. Such a thing as a sense of public duty or a regard for the rights of the citizens most directly interested in the matter and whose residences would be ruined, practically, by the closing of the street was something the railway corporation could not associate with any alderman. Hence the Wabash people proceeded to lay a trap.

And now W. J. Burns and his detectives appeared on the scene. They represented themselves as officials of the railway company and beset the aldermen with temptation by offering them presents of money. The concealed stenographer and the deadly dictograph figured in the arrangements. Eight aldermen out of a total of 36 in the Council fell and were arrested, some of them with marked bribe money in their pockets. "Honest Tom" weakened at sight of the handcuffs and disgorged his $1,000 share of the boodle.

The law of the United States has always discountenanced the practice by police officers of tempting a man into the commission of a crime. The highest court in the country has ruled whenever such cases come before them on appeal from lower judicial bodies that such action was unconstitutional and that no man can be convicted on such testimony. It is, they hold, the duty of the police to prevent and not to encourage crime. And still, in the face of this ruling the Burns Detective Agency, pursues its policy of corrupting city officials by placing temptation in the way of those who otherwise would remain blameless, through lack of opportunity perhaps, but blameless nevertheless. Burns and his men have recently pulled off a similar exhibition of detective tactics in Atlantic City, and their services are in demand in other places.

If there is any graft or crookedness in a City Council the local police should be able to grapple with the problem. At all events something should be done to shut off the operations of a private detective agency which from its record seems unable to catch one criminal without first conspiring to inveigle a dozen into the commission of a breach of the law. That the men who yield to temptation are morally weak is no reason that they should be trapped or exposed to the wiles of a detective that the latter may win a little ephemeral fame.

How long would a doctor be permitted to promote an epidemic among the people for the glory of his profession and the triumph of science!

NOTE AND COMMENT

A French inventor has made an automobile tire out of paper, but is unable to furnish a satisfactory guarantee that it will not skid.

If the British North American Act is responsible for half the legal tangles laid to its charges, it is time something was done in the way of patching up that document.

There is a vast difference between the detective of fiction and the sleuth of real life. Sherlock Holmes ran down his man by the exercise of mental genius. Detective Burns manufactures his criminal and then nails him.

Montreal Grain and Produce.

MONTREAL, July 27.—There was a good enquiry from foreign buyers for oats at an advance of 3d to 6d per quarter and some business was worked for August-September shipment, but the demand for wheat is quiet and bids generally out of line. The local market for oats is firm, with a fair trade passing. Manitoba feed barley is somewhat scarce and firmer. A weaker feeling has developed in the market for Ontario flour and prices have declined 15c to 25c per barrel. Spring wheat grades are steady with a fair business doing. Demand for bran and shorts is active. The butter market is strong and prices have advanced ¼c. It is estimated that fully 40,000 packages of creamery is now stored here for western account. Cheese is stronger and ⅛c higher in sympathy with the higher prices ruling at all the country boards. Receipts for the week were 73,862 boxes, against 78,893 a year ago. Eggs fairly active and firm. Receipts for the week were 6635 cases, as against 4856 a year ago.

"I have had a rude awakening," said Gomez Esteral. "I have learned that friends are false, and that enemies may be truest friends. The shock has almost overwhelmed me—I can say but little. Baron Zollern, Mr. Yasimoto—go your ways. Whether my dreams are ever realized or my ambition wrecked, there shall be no profit for Japan or Germany. The world of Latin-America shall know of the tremendous treachery they planned, and that knowledge will end the hopes your nations may have held. Juan Torrejon, I pardon you and your men for any indiscretions you may have committed. Young gentlemen of the United States, you may return, under escort and protection, bearing with you my heartiest admiration and assurance that your noble nation, at least, need fret no more over the plots of Gomez Esteral!"

CHAPTER XXXI.

"Nice promotion waiting back in Washington for you, Mr. Brockett," said old Colonel Lewis, beaming with fatherly affection upon the messengers. "Too bad you are not in government service, Mr. Solano."

The Cuban smiled delightedly.

"I'm sorry, at times," he admitted, "that I am not an American citizen and working in the same department as Harry Brockett. Still, Cuba is quite a country—and I am told that a responsible post will be given me at Havana, just as the outcome of these adventures."

"Glad to hear it, my boy," replied the colonel. "By the way, there is quite a lot of news from Washington besides your promotion, Mr. Brockett. Chief Wilkins' stenographer, Miss Lawson, will not be there when you return. You can probably imagine why. No arrest, no trouble—nothing at all. 'For the good of the service,' you understand? This redheaded imp" (Mike McKane looked combative for an instant) "is to go into the secret service—the chief says he regards him as a most promising junior operative. How about dyeing that hair, young man? That sunset head would tip you off to every crook in North America."

"Aw, dat's nottin'," remarked the crimson-head. "Trouble an' wisdom does turn de hair white an' make a guy look dignified."

"A bit from Chicago, also, gentlemen," resumed the colonel. "Aguilar, the Filipino with whom you had some exciting experiences, has been identified as one of the last ladrones, or murderous robbers, that prowled the island of Luzon. Nice reward for his capture. I would suggest that it be divided up between yourselves and the policemen who made the capture. The big negro whom Aguilar stabbed will get well."

"Glad of it," interrupted Mike McKane. "He looked like a big, good-natured mutt to me when I slipped him a cipher letter in Detroit."

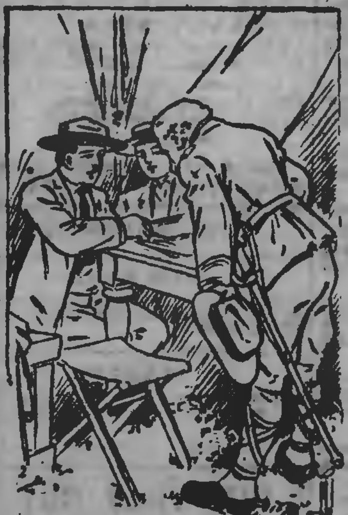
The colonel laughed good-naturedly, and continued: "Everything that you were asked to do has been done with honor, young gentlemen. And now, boys, there is one thing I wish you would explain to me—I have official permission from General Cole to receive enlightenment upon the subject. Will you kindly map out to me the details of this confounded cipher? It is easy enough to write and work out when you have the key—but what is the basic foundation of the key? I've tried every way I could imagine to work it out. I understand that the best cipher experts of Germany and Japan found the task hopeless and impossible. That was one reason for their anxiety to get the key away from you. Just to satisfy my own curiosity, I have submitted the code to three American gentlemen who were supposed to be marvels in deciphering puzzles of the kind—and they gave it up in anger and abasement. They said that there was no law, no logic, no foundation from which to unravel such a cipher. So much the better. That made it the safest and surest thing in secret service codes that anyone ever invented. It is a marvel—I'll take my hat off to it—but, just to ease the old age of a bewildered man, you will show me the idea and the backbone of the thing."

"It's as easy as A B C," said Brockett, "if you start it right and get acquainted with it. As you doubtless understand, the terms used are all borrowed from baseball. That's easy enough, isn't it?"

"It ought to be," assented the colonel, "but how about the order and sequence of the hieroglyphics?"

"Well, here you are," said the inventor. "I took a guide-book, a baseball book covering the season of 1910, as my model, and classified things in this fashion:

"A: Numbers. The numbers which scorers give to the players are remembered—and used the other way. The scorer usually calls the pitcher



"I TAKE MY HAT OFF TO YOUR CODE—IT IS A MARVEL!"

No. 1. In this cipher P—the abbreviation for pitcher—does duty for the figure 1. The numbers, then, are as follows:

1—P.
2—C.
3—1B.
4—2B.
5—SS.
6—3B.
7—RF.
8—CF.
9—LF.
10—Sub.
O—Umpire."

"Not bad," chortled the colonel, as this last announcement was read. "Go ahead—this is good."

"I decided," Brockett continued, "to let 100 stand for the word manager—used either way, of course—and 1,000 stand for magnate. Certain figures, to make the cipher a trifle harder of unraveling, were then added from the averages. If, for example, I had occasion to use the figures 385 in any connection, I used the word 'COBB.' 385, you see, was Cobb's batting average on the 1910 season."

"That word," laughed the colonel, "proved the death-blow to one of my experts who had been getting along swimmingly till he encountered it. Go on, son."

"The letters of the alphabet," Brockett resumed, "were taken from the details at the heads of columns in the scores, or from the details at the lower portions thereof. Let me show you the idea:

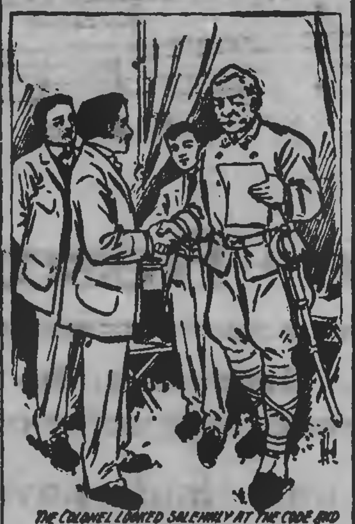
"A—Pos.
"B—AB.
"C—R.
"D—BH.
"E—SH.
"F—SB.
"G—2BH.
"H—3BH.
"I—HR.
"J—TB."

"Hold on," interrupted the colonel. "I can follow so far—but what does the TB represent in baseball?"

"Total bases, colonel," Brockett explained.

"K—BA (batting average).
"L—PO.
"M—A.
"N—E.
"O—TC (total chances).
"P—FA (fielding average).
"Q—IP (innings pitched).
"R—W.
"S—L.
"T—To (taken out).
"U—Fin. (finished.)
"V—T (tied).
"W—BB.
"X—HB (hit by pitcher).
"Y—WP (wild pitch).
"Z—SO.
"And—PB.
"The—ER (earned runs).
"Of—LB (left on bases).

"Some of the last-named abbreviations, colonel," Brockett went on, "are really just ornamental, but can help to puzzle anyone of an inquisitive nature. Then, too, you can use the order in which the teams finished in 1910 to designate the terms first, second, third, etc. See how it all runs?"



THE COLONEL LOOKED SOLEMNLY AT THE CODE AND SAID: "BOYS, I SURRENDER AT DISCRETION."

The colonel looked over key and code once more, and then solemnly shook hands with all three of the youngsters.

"Boys," said he, "I surrender at discretion."

* * *

"Shall we leave tomorrow?" asked Brockett, as the common citizens were arraying themselves for the decisive game against the cavalry. The Cuban nodded, emphatically.

"Not that it isn't pleasant enough 'round here," explained Ramon Solano, "and we could put in the whole month of your leave-of-absence among good friends. Still, I want to go back east. By the way, how about that ball—the ball that Delehanty gave you?"

Brockett sighed sympathetically.

"You have my condolences, Ramon. I really wanted you to have that ball—but it so happens that it was the very ball in which I put those messages that night near Rancho Nogal—and Gomez Esteral now holds it as a souvenir."

"I'll go over and coax it away from him," volunteered Mike McKane.

"Not a chance," negatived Brockett. "Not a chance. Esteral prizes that ball above all other trophies, and you'd be lucky to escape unhanged if you tried to get it. Sorry for you, Ramon—there's one of your dreams that won't come true."

"It looks that way," smiled the Cuban. "Still—there are other dreams. That's why I want to go back east tomorrow. I promised that I would pay a call upon your sister, Harry—and the call is overdue."

Solano's dark face flushed frankly; Brockett began to whistle, and Mike McKane revolved away toward the ball field by a series of handsprings. A bugle sounded; the athletes of the cavalry trooped out to take up their positions, and the bearers of the Diamond Cipher started happily towards the battleground.

(THE END.)

Satisfied With Life Work.

Dr. William Coleridge, for 32 years medical officer of health for the city of London, is to retire. For 21 years he was medical officer for the port of London and during all these years' service he has been fighting for pure and unadulterated food for the people of London. He is satisfied with his work, and says: "If I had my life to live over again I should lead it in the same way. I could not go slow and sacrifice enthusiasm for the sake of an extra ten years of life."

Work of the Sheep-Herder.

The sheep-herder of today is not the type of man who was led by the Star in the East to the manger of Bethlehem, but he is still doing the service for his day and generation that the shepherds of the gospel story were doing in their day. He is putting a large element of faithfulness and self-denial into every pound of wool that goes into the garments of the people and is content to be an essential cog in the great wheel of industrial activity.

ECONOMY IN PARASOLS.

Save Frames From Year to Year and Recover Them.

Save your parasol frames from year to year, for they can be recovered to match your new frock and at half the cost of new ones. Style in frames change but little from season to season, and it certainly does look smart to have your parasol exactly match even in the fabric the gown with which it is carried. It frequently happens that we buy a yard or two more than the actual amount needed, and it is scarcely worth while except in black and white to keep over any material to alter a dress, except, of course, small pieces with which to mend. Dresses fade, and the carefully saved material is utterly useless. For a comparatively small sum any umbrella maker will recover your last year's parasol frame from the pieces left from your new frock, and you will have a smart addition to your costume. A well gowned woman last year had a stunning suit of blue linen with large flowers of embroidery appliqued above the hem and as trimming on the corsage, while her parasol, covered with the same fabric, had one of the flowers on each panel. These can be sewed on after the parasol comes home from being covered.

Open the sun umbrella and carefully pin in the center of each panel whatever trimming you are going to apply, then sew it carefully down. It is in excellent taste to embroider one's initials on one of the panels, and ribbon work makes an effective ornamentation.

Household Hints.

Scorch marks, unless very bad, when, of course, there is no cure for them, may be removed from linen in the following way: Cut an onion in half and rub the scorched part with it. Then soak in cold water. You will find that the marks will soon disappear after this treatment.

When putting blouses away in the drawers specially reserved for them place a sheet of tissue paper between each. This means very little extra trouble, and the blouses keep fresh and uncrumpled much longer than if they are tossed in anyhow.

Never starch linen that is to be stored for a long time. It is apt to crack and if left for many years will rot. Rinse the articles quite free from starch, dry and fold away, if possible, in blue paper. The blue paper keeps them from turning yellow.

Laundering Soiled Towels.

Ofttimes the towels become gray and dingy looking. Treat them in this manner and they will become white again:

Place them in a kettle and cover with cold water. Add shavings of pure white soap and the juice of a lemon.

Place on the back of the stove and allow the water to gradually come to a boil.

If very much soiled the process may have to be repeated.

Rinse in tepid water, then in a slightly blue water and hang in the air to dry.

KEEP OUT!

"KEEP OUT!" used to hang as a sign on every factory door. The old idea of secrecy in business made it seem a crime to show outsiders processes, materials, and methods of manufacture.

Now the white light of publicity is being let in by those who depend on public favor for business profits and business growth. The "keep out" sign is disappearing from factory doors and the "welcome" sign is taking its place.

Candor and honesty form the backbone of modern Advertising. Men tell the truth, and it pays. Modern selling relies more and more on the confidence and good will of the buyer.

To-day, eyes are too sharp and intelligences too keen to make deceit possible. Absolute frankness in Advertising is the straight road to confidence. The public demands the light; it abominates and fears darkness.

To-day, many canning factories, packing houses, bakeshops, and public kitchens welcome visitors, concealing nothing.

To-day, many public service companies use the newspapers to tell the truth about themselves.

To-day, many big industrial enterprises are open without hindrance to the inspection of an interested public.

To-morrow, many more companies, depending for their success and prosperity on public confidence, will lift the curtains that veil their board and workrooms—they, too, will come to printing candid advertisements in the newspapers.

The public may overlook, but does not forgive, a lie or an abuse of its confidence. The public regards with suspicion those who attempt to serve it in secrecy and silence. The public is repelled by juggled facts or befogging words. The public rewards with its favor and money those who tell it the truth. It walks and shops where the light shines and where the paths are straight.

Throw on the light!

Advice regarding your advertising problems is available through any recognized Canadian advertising agency, or the Secretary of the Canadian Press Association, Room 503 Lumsden Bldg., Toronto. Enquiry involves no obligation on your part—so write, if interested.

When a young man tells a girl she is the only one he ever loved it's up to her to tell him to go and get a reputation.

A man spends a good portion of his time deceiving himself, and a woman spends a good portion of hers before a mirror. It's the same thing.

HEALTH ACT UNDER DISCUSSION; ARE THE RULES APPLICABLE?

Sanitary Inspector and Liverymen Have Experienced Trouble — One Proprietor Fined $4.35—Young Man Was Saucy to Inspector Spence.

That the Provincial Health Act clause relating to the care of stable refuse is not suitable nor applicable was brought out this morning in police court. Considerable trouble has arisen between the city livery proprietors and others, and the Sanitary Inspector, relating to the disposition of such matter. The Act demands that manure shall be kept in a covered receptacle at all times and several of the liverymen have been up before Magistrate Dumble, for not conforming to the demand. Time was allowed the parties in each case to comply with the regulations.

One proprietor was taxed $1 and costs or $4.35 in all. The case of another was left over for five days until an ordered covering arrives.

A deputation of hotel owners requested Mr. G. N. Gordon to ask the Magistrate, to personally view some of their places when accompanied by Sanitary Inspector Spence, in order that the Magistrate might better understand the situations with which the Health Act deals.

His Worship, however, felt that the matter was left entirely in the hands of the inspecting officer, and that it would be preferable for him to base his judgment entirely upon the evidence evolving from the informations laid by the Sanitary Inspector. Mr. Gordon's suggestion, therefore, was not considered by Magistrate Dumble.

Several of the hotel owners gathered around the judicial chair, and explained to His Worship, the condition's on their premises and how in some instances it appeared better for health's sake, not to have the manure covered. Quite an interesting little argument followed, during which the Provincial Health Act, came in for a little censure, owing to its apparent unsuitability. The Act however, cannot be changed by any municipal legislation and hence the Sanitary Inspector has no recourse, but to see that its instructions are complied with.

"I have kept horses, nearly all my life," said the Magistrate, "and am of the opinion that the ordinary dung hill is the best, and if the Provincial Act is not common sense I won't go by it."

A young man, in the employ of Mr. Pulkinghorn was charged with interfering with the Sanitary Inspector, in the performance of his duties, and ordering him off the premises.

The defendant told the court that he did not think Mr. Spence had any authority to tell him what he must do. When the officer came around to see if Mr. Pulkinghorn had fulfilled the health by-law conditions, he requested the employe to nail up a box. The young man said that he told Mr. Spence that he had no authority to tell him what he should do, as he was employed by Mr. Pulkinghorn.

The evidence of Mr. Spence was also taken. The Magistrate told the defendant that he could have been more civil, but allowed him to go.

MOULDERS' STRIKE IN THIS CITY HAS REACHED A CRISIS

The William Hamilton Company Brings Six Men From Outside to Take the Place of the Strikers and Board and Lodge Them in the Factory—Both Sides Make Statements.

The trouble between the William Hamilton Company and the Moulders' Union of this city has reached a crisis, and neither party shows any indication of giving in. Saturday night the firm brought down six men, who went to a local hotel, and were afterwards taken by the company and housed on the factory premises over Sunday. Below is given the contentions and story of the moulders in regard to the dispute:

Several of the striking moulders have grown gray in the employ of the company, and a number of them are stockholders. The directors of the company will hold a meeting to-day to discuss the situation. The men claim that some of the directors are in favor of a settlement, but that they represent a minority of the stock and are powerless to adjust the difference.

The moulders of the city early in May made a demand for a nine-hour day, the scale of wages to remain the same as for the ten hours they were then working. Of the firms affected the Lock Works was the only one to grant the demands at once, and in that factory there was no trouble. The other companies that employ moulders refused to reduce the hours of labor, and the men walked out. One after another the different employers agreed, G. Walter Green, Adam Hall & Son, and Ruth & Condon took their moulders back on the nine-hour schedule, but the William Hamilton Company, where the number of men employed range from twenty to thirty, held out against the union.

First, the company in its fight sought to replace the strikers by advertising for men in the Toronto and Montreal papers. Failing in this they sent a shipment of patterns to Hamilton, expecting to have their work done there, but the union moulders of the Ambitious City refused to handle them. Next the patterns were sent to Midland, then to Belleville, then to Three Rivers, Quebec, and later to Lindsay, but in all these places the moulders declined to work upon them, threatening to strike, rather than to have anything to do with the Peterborough firms' orders.

Then Peter Kerr, recently employed as a traveller by the firm, was equipped with the wherewithal and the required instructions, and sent to London to gather up men to replace those who were out on strike. Mr. Kerr's every move was watched by the union moulders in London and reported back to Peterborough. There were plenty of men in the Forest City looking for work, and who were not averse to accepting a cash consideration as an inducement to come in this direction. but when Mr. Kerr landed in Peterborough all he had to show by way of results was a party of three workmen. These men were captured by the local union and induced to go to work when the condition of affairs was explained to them. Every man of them declared that they came here in ignorance of the fact that there was any trouble in the labor situation. It had, they asserted, been represented to them that the strike was settled and all the old hands back at work.

Then one of the foremen in the factory was sent to Hamilton to gather up strikebreakers. The same train which carried him out of the city had on board the three men who had been brought from London, and who were financed for the trip home by the local union. The new scout returned to the city Saturday evening with six men under his protection.

The strikebreakers, spotted as soon as they landed by the local union, were taken to the Palace Hotel by the company, and there they passed the night, but members of the local union met them at the hotel. The strikers claim that they gathered from conversation with the imported men that the latter are foreigners, unskilled in the line of work for which they were engaged. They claim further that they were promised $3.25 a day to begin with, and an early increase if their work was satisfactory.

The minimum paid to the old hands before the strike was $2.75 a day, but they were satisfied with the figure. All they ever asked for was nine hours a day.

Early Sunday morning the company took the imported men to the factory and provided them with accommodation there to remove them from the influence of members of the local union. The strikebreakers were quartered in the office building. At noon an express waggon, freighted with dinner for six, pulled up at the office door, and the men were fed, one of the officials of the company carrying the dishes and viands from the waggon to the improvised dining room. On the opposite side of the street, in less than five minutes, about thirty moulders had gathered, and comments more or less personal were made upon the new move. A number of those in the crowd were on their way from church. There was no rowdyism or disturbance. Neither could the remarks made be construed as a blessing upon the food that was set before the strangers.

All afternoon and late into the night pickets patrolled the streets in the neighborhood of the factory. A crowd of over one hundred gathered in the evening to see the prisoners fed again and to watch for the appearance of any of them at the lighted windows in the upper storey of the building where they were confined.

The six strike breakers went to work this morning and the local men made no attempt to prevent them. There was a policeman on duty all day yesterday and this morning at the factory.

Mr. A. McFarlane, vice-President of the company, said this morning that when the moulders, two years ago, asked for an increase in the minimum rate of wages from $2.36 to $2.75 a day the increase was granted. When they demanded a nine-hour day eleven weeks ago, it was represented to them that this meant reducing the capacity of the shop by 10 per cent. and that it would place the company at a disadvantage with their competitors unless the reduction in hours was made general throughout the country. The men, however, still insisted upon their demand.

Then the company decided that they could buy their castings as cheaply as they could manufacture them at home and offered to turn their moulding department over to the men and to buy their work from them provided they sold it as cheaply as it could be produced elsewhere. This offer was also turned down.

Next the company began to send their patterns to outside points where there are open shops in operation. Representatives of the local union followed the work to every city to which it was sent and so influenced the union men in the shops that in order to avoid trouble with their own men the outside factories found it necessary to return the work. Only in one foundry, a small one in Hastings, did the Wm. Hamilton Company succeed in getting any of their castings made.

When the company advertised for men, moulders who came to Peterborough were met by the union before they reached the factory and sent back. Then it was decided to send a man out to bring a bunch of other moulders here and the result was the importation of the six men now at work in the moulding department.

Mr. McFarlane said that the men were removed from the hotel to the factory in order to keep them from the influence of the strikers who were trying to influence the visitors Saturday night. He is satisfied that the new men are competent workmen and says that so far their conduct has been exemplary. Never once did they from their quarters in the factory, make any reply to, or pay any attention whatever to the jeering crowd outside.

"We could have settled this matter long before this," said Mr. McFarlane, "if we had had to deal with none but our own men. It was outside parties who made all the trouble."

Mr. McFarlane denies the statement that the new men were promised $3.25 a day. He says they were offered from $2.75 to $3.50 a day, according to their skill, the same scale as prevailed in the shop before the strike.

The local restaurant refused to send meals to the strike breakers, and local delivery wagons to carry them, after the situation was explained by the strikers. Supper last night and breakfast this morning was obtained from a private house. The company say that the strikers intimidated the restaurant keepers, and the delivery waggon owners, threatening to overturn the vehicles of the latter, hence the slight hitch in providing for the men who are kept in the factory.

The six moulders now at work had their dinner to-day in the shop, a table for the purpose being spread in the department where the men are employed.

CHANGES MADE TO-DAY IN DELIVERY OF CITY MAIL

There Will Now be Two Deliveries Daily in Every Section of City—Citizens are Asked to Provide Mail Boxes at Their Residences.

A general change in the city mail delivery went into effect to-day. The city has been divided into 12 mail sections instead of 10, giving people a better service generally. If the people in the city would provide themselves with mail boxes, as the postal department has strictly forbidden all carriers to put mail under any doors, their mail would come on the first delivery instead of having to wait for the second.

The first delivery leaves the post office at 7.30 instead of 8 o'clock, and the noon delivery at 12.30 instead of one o'clock. By this change all residents of the city receive two deliveries instead of one as formerly in some distant sections.

IMPROVEMENTS AT MASONIC HALL

Advantage has been taken of the July-August recess in Masonic circles, to remodel the Masonic Hall quarters, which are in the second and third floors over the Dominion Bank. The property is a part of the Bradburn estate and the owners are sharing with the Order, the cost of the improvements. Mr. W. J. Johnston, contractor, has the work in hand.

The growth in numbers and importance of the Order, in the city, has been most marked, and the membership of Order Peterborough and Corinthian Lodges has increased. The hall, while affording sufficient room for the meetings and gatherings of ten years ago, has become too limited. As planned, there was the main room for the Blue Lodge, and a room of considerable size for the Chapter. It has been decided to throw both of these rooms into one and make a very large and commodious meeting place. The entrance and anti-rooms are also being re-arrange. The whole when finished and decorated will form one of the most convenient and spacious Masonic Lodge rooms, outside the larger cities.

RUNAWAY CAUGHT BY THOS. MILLER

Oriental Team Ran Away at C.P.R. Station.

Thomas Miller, driver for the T. Kinnear Company, stopped a runaway in clever fashion Saturday night The team attached to the Oriental transfer, took fright. while standing at the C.P.R. station. Fortunately there were occupants of the vehicle at the time. A lively time ensued while the runaway was in progress. One young fellow ran out on the road in the endeavor to stop the affrighted team, chasing the lumbering vehicle for nearly two blocks. The horses navigated the distance from the C.P.R. up to Le Brun's store before they were finally seized and halted by Mr. Miller who showed considerable daring in seizing one of the flying lines close to the bit, and bringing the team to a walk.

GRASS FIRE ON ROGERS STREET

Sunday Afternoon Blaze Gave Brigade a Run.

The fire brigade were called out on Sunday afternoon to extinguish a grass fire on Rogers street, near the C.P.R. tracks. No damage to speak of occurred and the outbreak was easily controlled.

FIFTY-THOUSAND MEN REQUIRED

Farm Laborer's Excursions—This Year's Wheat Crop Will be the Largest in the History of Canada

The wheat crop of 1912 will be the greatest ever harvested in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, thus requiring the farm laborers of the East to recruit and assist in harvesting the World's greatest bread basket.

The Government of the respective Provinces state that fifty thousand men will be required for this year's harvest. These will have to be principally recruited from Ontario, and the prosperity of Canada depends on securing labor promptly. The Canadian Pacific, on which Company will fall pracitcally the entire task of transporting the men to the West, is already making special arrangements for this year. Excursions from points in Ontario to Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, will be run and special trains operated, making the trip in about thirty-six hours and avoiding any change of cars or transfers. This will be a day shorter than any other route.

Dates, rates and conditions will be announced in a few days. Consult any C.P.R. Agent for full particulars.

WHITE CAPS LOST AGAIN IN SATURDAY'S GUELPH GAME

Pitcher Ballinger Went Into the Air and Made the Royal City Team a Present of the Game—Four Games at Riverside This Week.

Guelph, Ont., July 27.—After pitching a good article of ball all the way through, Pitcher Ballinger went completely up in the air in the ninth inning, and gave Guelph the game. The score was tied at four each, when Schaeffer was passed in the ninth, Dunn hit to the pitcher, who made the play at second, and Schaeffer beat the throw. Needham was passed, filling the bases, and Wright was next up. Ballinger was plainly up in a balloon and could not see the plate, and he gave Wright four balls, forcing in the winning run. Schaeffer pitched grand ball for Guelph and was strong in the pinches. Score:

Peterborough	020200000	4	8	1
Guelph	101010001	3	7	2

Batteries—Ballinger and Trout; Schaeffer and Dunn. Umpire—Halligan.

BREEZES FROM THE DIAMOND

Bill Schaefer, a former Peterboro pitcher in Templin's time, is also with the Guelph team, he won the game on Saturday against Peterboro, by a score of 5 to 4.

Peterborough and Guelph play at Riverside Park this afternoon.

Ladies' Day at Riverside Park this week is on Wednesday.

Peterborough plays four games with Guelph this week. Every game is called for 3.45.

Fred Applegate, formerly of Toronto, is new manager of the Guelph team, and has demonstrated his managing capabilities by winning the three games he has handled. He will probably pitch this afternoon.

Some new finishing touches have been added to the diamond. The sod from 1st base to 2nd and 3rd base, has been cut out in a crescent form, about 20 feet wide, at the widest point in the crescent.

King George on Horseback.

It seems curious to the visitor in London to learn that the stretch of roadway in Hyde Park, London, that is most closely associated with fashion bears the name Rotten row, supposed to be a corruption of "Route de Roi ("the King's way"). Here it is that King George takes his horseback exercise while in town, as do many of the members of the nobility and the smart set. Luxurious carriages roll along the roadway adjoining the bridle path, and along the footway stroll or lounge the tourists and country cousins, while the members of the "lower class" crowd against the palings and frankly stare at the passing show of the great world of "society."

Rotten row during the London "season," which is now at its height, is also the scene on fine Sunday mornings of the "church parade," in which many social notabilities may be seen on foot.

DREAM MASTERPIECES

SLEEP STATES HAVE PRODUCED GREAT WORK.

Some of the Best Prose and Finest Poetry Has Emanated From the Dreams of Literary Men and Women and Musical Compositions Has Frequently Had Their Origin in the Land of Nod.

The ranks of "sleep workers" have recently received two notable recruits—Signor Mascagni, the great Italian composer, who awoke the other morning with a dream-melody of singular and haunting sweetness so distinct in his ears that he was able to jot it down to its last note; and Mr. Charles Garvice, to whom, in the unconscious hours of the night, came one of his most successful stories.

Mr. Garvice had been engaged to write a series of short stories; but when three of them had been completed his brain "struck work." "I went to bed one night absolutely tired out," he says; "but while I slept my brain returned penitently to its work. It conceived an admirable story. The characters were all alive, and the style was beautiful.

"Alas! when I woke up I had entirely forgotten the story. That night I went to bed determined to dream it all over again and I did so. I got half-way through the tale in my dream, and then awoke. I remembered what I had dreamed, and better still, I found that the first half of the tale had recalled to my mind the second half as I had dreamed it the night before."

And so it has been ever since (and probably long before) Dante saw in a dream those marvellous visions which he exhibited to the world's wonder in his "Divine Comedy" — the unconscious brain of the man has performed tasks which have completely baffled it in its wakeful hours.

The late Anna Kingsford, the celebrated theosophist and mystic, always declared that her best work had its birth when she was asleep, and in the preface to her most successful book she wrote: "The chronicles which I am about to present to the reader were not the results of any conscious effort of imagination. They are records of dreams occurring at intervals during the last few years."

The famous mathematician, the Marquis de Condorcet, only once in his life attempted a problem which he was unable to solve. He wrestled with it for weeks to no purpose, until one evening he fell asleep over it, utterly exhausted and hopeless. When he awoke he found, to his delight, that the solution had come to him in his slumber and before he left his seat he had committed it to paper.

An exquisite song called "Dreamland" came similarly to the Rev. C. E. Hutchinson, who, in a vision of the night, saw a ghostly procession filing across the stage of a vast amphitheatre, and awoke with the melody in his ears.

Lord Tennyson used to say that many of his most beautiful passages had come to him in his dreams. "Some of them, however," he said, "can scarcely be said to have been inspired. On one occasion I dreamt what seemed to me the most beautiful poem ever composed, a marvel of grace and beauty and high-thinking. When I awoke, however, all I could recall was this quartette of doggerel:

> May a cock-sparrow
> Write to a barrow?
> I hope you'll excuse
> My infantile muse!"

Thomas Campbell had vainly racked his brain for days to find a companion line to "'Tis the sunset of life gives me mystical lore," when it came "like a flash" in a dream: "Coming events cast their shadows before."

Goethe frankly acknowledged that he owed much of his best work to dreams. "The objects," he wrote, "which had occupied my attention during the day often reappeared at night in connected dreams. On awaking, a new composition, or a portion of one I had already commenced, presented itself to my mind."

We know, too, that the first canto of the "Henriade" came to Voltaire in his sleep, and that Coleridge dreamed one night more than [illegible] lines of his "Kubla Khan" — "the images," he says, "rising before me without any sensation or consciousness of effort."

"And was it not in a dream that Robert Louis Stevenson saw the central scene around which he wove that wonderful story, "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde"? But, as Stevenson used to say, "The Brownies do half my work when I am asleep."

To Keep From Losing Breath.

Where respiration is rhythmical there is no loss of breath in walking fast, running up hill or going upstairs. The method of preventing breathlessness consists in maintaining the rhythm and the speed of respiration. When the breathing is rhythmic the breathing keeps pace with the step. The outbreathing must be twice the length of the inbreathing and not more than eighteen or twenty complete breath circuits must be made per minute.

Palindromes.

The polindrome, or sentence which reads alike forward or backward, has exercised the ingenuity of many minds since Adam said to Eve, "Madam, I'm Adam." One which an exchange attributes to Boito, the composer, is a characterization of two of Shakespeare's heroes in Italian: "Ebro e Otel, ma Amleto e orbe" (Drunken is Othello, but Hamlet is mad).

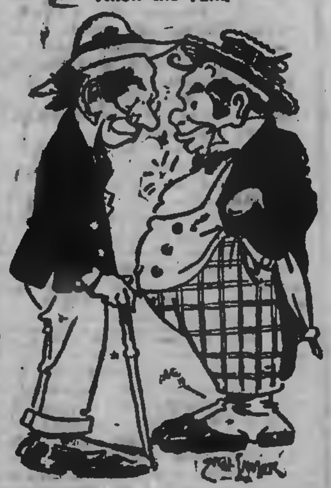
The Foot Rule.

Naybor—I say, Subbubs, have you a foot rule over there?

Subbubs—Yes, one my wife made. It is, "Use the doormat before entering."

Naybor—Oh, that won't do. That's a two foot rule.

Know the Talk.



"I am going to print your picture in the paper."

"I'll shoot you if you do."

"That's all right. How many extra copies will you want?"

In the United States of America the average daily consumption of cigars is 21,718,448, and of cigarettes 23,736,190.

By a vote of 331 to 39 the British House of Commons rejected a Radical motion condemning the former policy of the Government.

CANADIAN WOMEN AND THEIR WORK

By Marjory MacMurchy

(Copyright by Publishers Press Limited, Montreal.)

It used to be said, and is said still, that Nova Scotia and New Brunswick head the other Canadian provinces in the making of poets. One province does not seem to be favored more than another in the work of Canadian women writers. Miss L. M. Montgomery of Prince Edward Island, who as Mrs. Ewan Macdonald, the wife of a Presbyterian minister, is changing her home this autumn to Leaskdale in Ontario, is the best representative we have of a Canadian woman writer whose native province by itself furnishes her with ample material for her charming stories. Miss Marshall Saunders has travelled much both in the Old world and the New, but she is as individual a citizen of Halifax and as characteristically a Nova Scotian as any Canadian loyalist. "Marian Keith", Mrs. MacGregor of Orillia, is as unmistakably an Ontarian as Miss Montgomery is native to Prince Edward Island and Miss Saunders to Nova Scotia. Mrs. Elizabeth Roberts Macdonald, sister to Charles G. D. Roberts, is a true New Brunswicker and her verses reflect Fredericton and the province round about as faithfully as a looking-glass. Mrs. McClung was born in Ontario, but she was taken as a child to the West, and her stories are completely, triumphantly Western. Mrs. Murphy, author of "Janey Canuck in the West", also a native of Ontario, would never have written in exactly the same vein as she does if she had not lived in Edmonton, Alberta. Mrs. Isabella Ecclestone MacKay, who was born in Woodstock, Ontario, is now a resident of Vancouver. Miss Agnes Deans Cameron is a native of Victoria, British Columbia, where she taught school for many years and where the style of "The New North" must have been formed; its author is now writing and lecturing in England, with head-quarters in London. Such a list as this should convince anyone that Canadian women writers are not to be reckoned last among the forces which are building Canadian nationality.

MARJORY MACMURCHY

Mrs. EWAN MACDONALD

The two best known Canadian women novelists are Mrs. Everard Cotes and Miss Lily Dougall. Mrs. Cotes was born in Brantford, Ontario. She won her first recognition as a writer for The Toronto Globe, using the pen name, "Garth Grafton"; she went round the world when the journey was something of a novelty for a woman, and wrote a series of articles on her experiences for "The Queen." These articles appeared later in book form as "A Social Departure". The delicate clear style in which "A Social Departure" was written and its delightful humor have made it one of the most widely known and the best liked of all Mrs. Cotes' writings. Shortly after its publication, its author, Miss Sara Jeannette Duncan, married Mr. Everard Cotes of the Indian Civil Service. Since then she has spent most of her time in India, with long visits to London and journeys to Canada every few years. Mrs. Cotes visited Canada this year after finishing an English political novel which is to appear serially in "The Queen." The best known of Mrs. Cotes' novels are: "An American Girl in London", "Those Delightful Americans", "A Daughter of To-Day", "The Crow's Nest", "The Pool in the Desert", "The Path of a Star", "The Imperialist", "Set in Authority", which appeared serially in The London Times, and "The Burnt Offering", an able novel dealing with East Indian affairs. Mrs Cotes is a thorough workwoman. Her style is excellent. Her influence on the women writers of Canada who have begun to write since Mrs. Cotes made her name as a novelist is all in the direction of perfecting what the writer at first may be prone to consider her best.

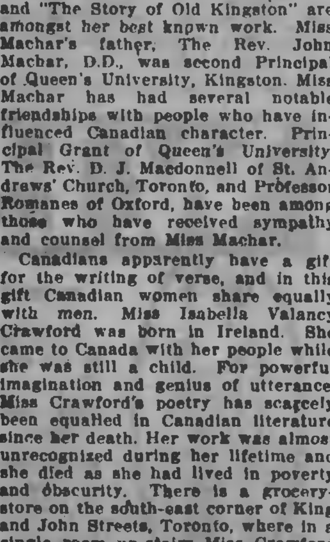
Miss Lily Dougall was born in Montreal and belongs to the well-known Dougall family who have made The Witness a household journal throughout the Dominion. Miss Dougall's first success as a novelist was "Beggars All". From 1891, the year in which "Beggars All" was published, Miss Dougall lived in England until 1896 when she returned to Canada. In 1903, she was compelled to return to England on account of her health. Miss Dougall spent the present summer with her relatives in Canada and will this autumn change her residence in England from Exmouth to Oxford. Her best known novels are: "What Necessity Knows", "The Madonna of a Day", "The Mormon Prophet", "The Earthly Purgatory", "The Spanish Dowry", and "The Paths of the Righteous". "The Paths of the Righteous", which deals with the position of the Non-Conformists in England, contains a striking and beautiful portrait of an elderly Canadian who as the possessor of great wealth goes to England to discover the character of the relative whom he means to make his heir.

This novel is Miss Dougall's finest work so far and indicates that we have still much to expect from its author.

Miss Agnes Maule Machar, a native of Kingston, Ontario, has influenced tion of the study of Canadian history. Miss Laut once said that Miss Machar had given her an early impulse towards the study of history. Miss Machar has written both in prose and verse. Her "Lays of the True North" and "The Story of Old Kingston" are amongst her best known work. Miss Machar's father, The Rev. John Machar, D.D., was second Principal of Queen's University, Kingston. Miss Machar has had several notable friendships with people who have influenced Canadian character. Principal Grant of Queen's University, The Rev. D. J. Macdonnell of St. Andrews' Church, Toronto, and Professor Romanes of Oxford, have been among those who have received sympathy and counsel from Miss Machar.

VALANCE PATRIARCHE

Canadians apparently have a gift for the writing of verse, and in this gift Canadian women share equally with men. Miss Isabella Valancy Crawford was born in Ireland. She came to Canada with her people while she was still a child. For powerful imagination and genius of utterance, Miss Crawford's poetry has scarcely been equalled in Canadian literature since her death. Her work was almost unrecognized during her lifetime and she died as she had lived in poverty and obscurity. There is a grocery-store on the south-east corner of King and John Streets, Toronto, where in a single room up-stairs Miss Crawford lived with her mother. Here she died. She had published a small volume of poetry in 1884. About twenty years after her death, her Collected Poems were edited and published by Mr. J. W. Garvin.



ISABEL ECCLESTONE MACKAY

Among Canadian women writers who have published several volumes of verse are Miss Wetherald, Miss Coleman, Mrs. Blewett, Mrs. Harrison, Miss Pauline Johnson, and Mrs. Elizabeth Roberts Macdonald. All but the last named of these verse writers belong to Ontario. Miss Wetherald lives near Fenwick, Ontario. Her father was a highly respected schoolmaster, principal of the Rockwood Academy. Miss Wetherald's books of verse include: "The House of Trees", "Tangled in Stars", "The Radiant Road" and "The Last Robin".

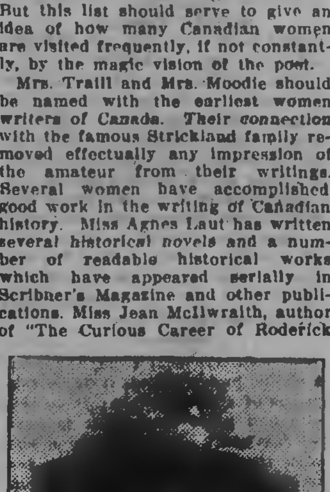
Miss Helena Coleman who lives in Toronto and whose brother is the Canadian geologist, Professor Arthur Coleman, has published one volume of poetry, "Songs and Sonnets", a publication which brought her immediate acknowledgement as a gifted writer. Mrs. Jean Blewett is a writer of verse which joins common sense and feeling in such a happy fashion as to have made her one of the most popular of Canadian poets. She also is a resident of Toronto and is a frequent contributor to such publications as The Toronto Globe. Her books of verse are "The Cornflower" and "Heart Songs". Mrs. Harrison published a good many years ago "Pine, Rose and Fleur de Lys", a volume of artistic verse in which The Habitant made what is possibly his first appearance in Canadian poetry. Mrs. Harrison is the author as well of a novel, "The Forest of Bourg Marie", a French Canadian romance. Mrs. Harrison is interested in music. Her husband is organist and choir master of St. Simon's Church, Toronto. Miss Pauline Johnson is an Indian poetess. Her "White Wampum" and "The Song My Paddle Sings" are likely to remain the most successful expression which the world possesses of the Indian's love of nature. Miss Johnson, who is a Mohawk and was born near Brantford, is now living in Vancouver. Canadians will regret to hear that this woman of genius is in extremely poor health. Reference has been made to Mrs. Elizabeth Roberts Macdonald's work. Her home is in Fredericton, New Brunswick. She shares the poetical gift of the Roberts family. Her earliest published work in poetry appeared along with verse written by two of her brothers. Since then she has published a book of her own work, "Dream Verses and Other Poems".

Mrs. McLUNG

Besides these writers, many Canadian women write charming verses which appear frequently in the best Canadian magazines and in the foremost magazines of the United States. Among these should be mentioned: Miss Marjorie Pickthall, who has a rare imaginative gift, Miss Warnock, whose work as book reviewer of The Mail-Empire, Toronto, is signed "Katherine Hale," Mrs. Sheard, one of whose poems was published in a recent issue of Scribner's Magazine, and Mrs. MacKay of Vancouver who writes successfully in prose as well as in verse. Other writers might be named. But this list should serve to give an idea of how many Canadian women are visited frequently, if not constantly, by the magic vision of the poet.

ELIZABETH ROBERTS MACDONALD

Mrs. Traill and Mrs. Moodie should be named with the earliest women writers of Canada. Their connection with the famous Strickland family removed effectually any impression of the amateur from their writings. Several women have accomplished good work in the writing of Canadian history. Miss Agnes Laut has written several historical novels and a number of readable historical works which have appeared serially in Scribner's Magazine and other publications. Miss Jean McIlwraith, author of "The Curious Career of Roderick Campbell" wrote the volume on Haldimand in The Makers of Canada series. Miss Laut who was born in Sterling Ontario, and Miss McIlwraith, who is a native of Hamilton, Ontario, are now living in the United States. Miss Emily P. Weaver, who has written a child's history of Canada and several stories for young people does a good deal of magazine work in history. Miss Agnes Deans Cameron's work has already been mentioned, "The New North" is a cheerful, buoyant, and interesting account of a woman's travels in the north of Canada.



VERA SHEARD

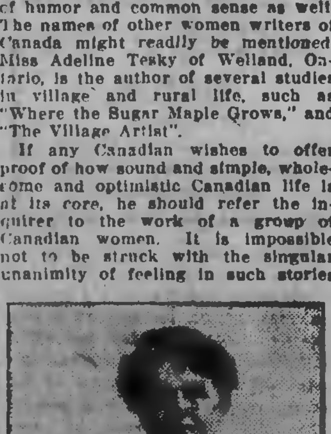
Mrs. JOHN LANE

Miss Alice Jones, daughter of a Lieutenant-Governor of Nova Scotia, in "The Night Hawk", wrote one of the most readable and exciting of Canadian novels. It is a tale of the blockade runners at the time of the American Civil War. Miss Jones is the author of a number of other novels, all well written and dramatic. Mrs. Guy Carleton Jones of Ottawa, has written a number of excellent short stories which have appeared in The Atlantic Monthly under the pen name of "Guy Carleton". Mrs. Jones' novel, "Out of Drowning Valley" was published by Holt and Company in the spring of this year. For purely artistic merit, "Tales of Old Toronto", by "Suzanne Marny" is in the opinion of the present writer far ahead of other work in prose by Canadian women, at least of recent years. Mrs. Patriarche of Winnipeg has written a promising little book of humor, and "The Opinions of Mary" by Mrs. Townley of Vancouver is full of humor and common sense as well. The names of other women writers of Canada might readily be mentioned. Miss Adeline Tesky of Welland, Ontario, is the author of several studies in village and rural life, such as "Where the Sugar Maple Grows," and "The Village Artist".

AGNES DEANS CAMERON

If any Canadian wishes to offer proof of how sound and simple, wholesome and optimistic Canadian life is at its core, he should refer the inquirer to the work of a group of Canadian women. It is impossible not to be struck with the singular unanimity of feeling in such stories as "Anne of Green Gables", "Lizbeth of the Dale", "The Second Chance", and Mrs. Murphy's conversational book of Western experiences, "Janey Canuck in the West." Miss Montgomery, Mrs. McGregor, Mrs. McClung and Mrs. Murphy, with Miss Marshall Saunders who began writing stories a good many years ago and who has written one story of apparently perennial popularity, are more gifted than the average Canadian woman, but their work reflects very faithfully the happy domestic life of Canada. They are all true patriots. They write of human nature with understanding, affection and gaiety. From the good use of such powers comes much wholesome enjoyment.

Marjory MacMurchy.



JEAN BLEWETT

THE GOLDEN RULE

Not Too Much Strict Letter of the Law, but Do to Others What Will Bring Most Happiness.

The Golden Rule should not be interpreted too literally, for at times to do to another what you would like him to do to you is to incur his undying enmity. The spirit of the law breeds happiness but the strict letter of it has the power to cause trouble of no trivial sort.

It is told of a man who for a whole winter took a girl every week to see a vaudeville show and prided himself on being a most generous and attentive cavalier. He was fond of vaudeville himself and presumed that she ought to be, for he turned a deaf ear to any suggestion that they go to see any good things in legitimate drama, of which he knew she was fond.

In the narrow confines of domestic life one sees it often, this too literal translation of the Golden Rule. One sees the wife work and toil over meals and the keeping of the house, all for her husband's good as she fondly believes, when what he really wants most is a smile and a song. Again the husband thinks he is doing all in his power to make his wife happy when he provides well for her and gives her presents of as great value as he can afford. He cannot comprehend that what she wants is to be teased and kissed, and when he is away from home a letter every day is of far more worth than if he brings home a Paris frock or a pearl necklace. Do unto others what will give them the most happiness even if it looks like foolishness.

Togo and the Suffragettes

Admiral Togo recently gave his views on the Suffragist question to a woman interviewer. "I am not a Suffragist,' he said. "I believe woman is harmed by any movement that takes her mind off her home and children. I believe in the higher education of women, but to me the highest education a woman can have is that which makes her believe that her greatest usefulness is at home and her greatest duty towards the States is the giving to the nation children — the future citizens. What does a woman [illegible] with the education usually given to men? In our country women have a lower grade of education than men — that is, where the outside, political, and practical things are considered — but she gets all the education she needs. The women of my country send their husbands, and brothers and sons out to the battlefield with a courage as great as that possessed by the soldiers themselves. That is where woman shows her strength and splendid citizenship and patriotism."

A Sudden Change!

"Florida in the late winter and early spring is a delightful place to visit," said John Jacob Astor, at tea beneath a palm at Palm Beach.

"But," said Mr. Astor, "some people think that in any Florida town for $1.50 a day they will get the luxury that we find here, or in St.Augustine, or in Miami.

"I know a man who, arriving at a kind of 'busted boom' resort in the hammock lands of Orange County, said to the hotel clerk with a sarcastic smile:

"'It's wonderful what havoc time makes.'

"'Yes?' said the clerk, politely.

"'Yes, I was thinking,' explained my friend, 'what a magnificent building this hotel was in the circular I saw before leaving New York yesterday—and, alas! look at it now.'"

Realism in Art

Actors frequently receive unexpected proof of the realism of their art. Not long ago, on the occasion of the performance of "Hamlet" by a distinguished English player, there were no more interested and absorbed spectators than two newsies in the gallery.

The boys had been watching the performance with breathless interest. The last act was drawing to a close. The duel almost dragged the lads from their seats.

Before their eyes the Queen was poisoned, Laertes killed, the King killed, Hamlet killed. On the final tragedy the curtain started down. The audience was spellbound.

In the gallery there was a clatter and a crash as one of the boys mentioned started for the door.

"Come on, Tommy," he shouted back to his companion. "Hustle! Dere'll be extras out on dis!"

The Pope and His Sisters

The Pope's sisters live in an unpretensious flat in Rome. They once told a visitor, who asked them how they addressed their brother, that when other people were present they used the formal term Your Holiness, but when they were alone with him they called him Giuseppe and sometimes Beppo or Beppino. The Pope's name, Giuseppe Sarto, is the Italian for Joseph Taylor, and the endearing names used by his sisters are the humble Joe and Joey. Sisters of a Pope are usually created countesses. Pius X thought it unsuitable to confer this rank on his sisters, and they themselves prefer to remain simple peasant women rather than assume a rank to which birth has not entitled them.

Too Much Self-Flattery

"We were going along at an awful speed!" said a motorist, who was relating a strange experience with a dog and its mistress. "I didn't see the dog, but I heard this 'Ki-yi,' so I ordered the chauffeur to stop. Going back we found an irate lady standing over her dead dog — one of the ugliest dogs you ever saw! She met us with a tirade of abuse, telling us in no uncertain manner what she thought of us and motorists in general, and finishing up by calling us the murderers of her dog. It was then that I thought I would pacify her, 'Madam,' I said, 'I will replace your dog.' 'Sir,' she said, in a freezing tone, 'you flatter yourself!'"

ABOUT BURGLARS

Amongst the More Novel Protections Against the Burglar is That Provided by Persons Who Take Fresh Air Cure.

Every renter has his own idea of what constitutes a desirable neighbourhood," said the renting agent. "A tenant hung back from signing a lease for six hours the other day because I could not tell him whether anybody in the block was taking the fresh-air cure. He was so insistent that I finally made inquiry and learned from the janitor at No. 225 that a man on the third floor of his building sleeps every night with his head stuck out of the window, and then the tenant signed the lease.

"His precaution was due to fear of burglars. He had learned, he says, that the best burglar alarm ever invented is the fresh-air cure. Not even the doctors who advise it know so well as the second-story men how many people sleep with their heads out of the window. They know because the habit interferes with their business. Whole blocks that used to be profitable hunting grounds for burglars are now so much waste space because two or three persons in the block go to bed with the upper half of the body protruding beyond the window sill. Outdoor sleepers may sleep comfortably, but they sleep lightly. The second-story man cannot make a noise half a block away without waking them and giving the alarm."

Get Busy, Keep Busy

Lord Strathcona, the famous Canadian, who left Scotland 73 years ago bearing the name of Donald Alexander Smith, holds peculiar views about the qualities necessary to promote success in life. During a recent speech he said: 'Do not despise what you are. Be satisfied for the time, not grumbling and finding fault. Do the work yourself; don't wait for friends to use their influence on your behalf; don't depend on the help of others. Apart from what we call genius, I believe one man is able to do as well as any other, provided the opportunity presents itself, and he is blessed with good health. Much of what I would advise young men to do is contained in the old counsel, 'Trust in God and keep your powder dry.'"

Had Lord Strathcona been inclined to fret or worry over disappointments he would certainly not have lived to the old age of 91 years which he has attained.

Worth Remembering

Kindness Pays

Kindness pays. This is not the best reason for practising it, but nothing is more certain than that it is true. The cow beaten with the milking-stool will lessen her supply of milk, perhaps without having any choice in the matter; the horse teased when young and ready to form habits will soon develop vices which will cut down his price; the team overworked at the binder and the plow will undoubtedly depreciate in value more than they gain by the overwork.

Some years ago an experiment was carried out to ascertain if Sunday labor paid in the case of the horse. Two horses as nearly alike in all respects as possible were broken in as colts, put to very similar work, and treated exactly alike for the rest of their lives, except that one rested on Sundays and the other didn't. The one that knew not Sunday was worn out many years before his more fortunate brother.

A Long Walk

A university professor, who had greatly endeared himself to his students on account of his kindheartedness, has one particular failing — that of absent-mindedness. He visited his married nephew a few days ago, and had listened to the young wife's praise of her first-born. The gentleman felt that he must say something to give the impression that he was interested. "Can the dear little fellow walk?" he inquired quietly. "Walk!" shouted the mother. "Why, he has been walking for five months!" "Dear me!" exclaimed the professor, lapsing again into abstraction, "What a long way he must have got!"

World's Wettest Spot

There is much interest for most people at the moment — though, perhaps, no particular comfort — in the announcement that the rainfall of a village among the hills of Assam, during the ten weeks from May 1 to July 9 this year, was 250 inches. The village is Cherrapunji, the rainiest spot in Asia, and presumably in the world. Its annual rainfall is something over 450 inches. Cherrapunji stands on a plateau, overlooking the plain of Sylhet, and it is 4455 feet above sea-level.

Y.M.C.A. SENIORS RETURN FROM THEIR CANOE TRIP

Breezy Account of Incidents of the Voyage.

Monday morning, July 22nd, we arose bright and early and packed for Bobcaygeon. "Sandy" and "Daddy Mac" found it necessary to stop over at Juniper to unload the mail bags, and after an hour's delay paddled to Burleigh, where "Mandy" Irvine and "Nick" Carter beat the other fellows to the Locks and were fortunate enough to be looked through with a lunch, and after feasting their eyes on their unfortunate brethren portaging, proceeded on their way.

We managed to get through Lovesick Lake without any detrimental effects, although "Sandy" and "Mac" were afraid to risk their hearts to the wiles of Cupid's arrow, and played hide and seek with the islands to dodge it. "Bummer" Bartlett, "Cook" Jackson, "Mandy" Irvine, "Gentleman" Carter and "Nicholas" "Detective" Carter failed to find that delicious refreshment known as ice cream, and finally gave up the task in disgust. "Nick's" excuse was that the rocks were too hard to leave a trail.

When the rear guard arrived with the provisions "Frills" Nicholls in his flurry got hasty with "Speedy" Bill Bastie, and dropped the grub into the lake, but after heroic efforts on the part of "Daddy Mac" the box was rescued, and the appetites of the boys were appeased by dining on wet bread and on a dry stomach.

After luncheon we proceeded on our way through Buckhorn Lake to Gannon's Narrows, where we entered our last lap through treacherous Pigeon Lake, which we found in a very tumultous condition. After battling against wind and wave we finally reached our destination, that beautiful town, Bobcaygeon. After supper we proceeded to paint the town, arriving home early in good condition, and after a night's repose under our canoes, were able to demolish the breakfast of beans and bacon provided.

We bade good-bye to "Daddy Mac" and "Sandy," and wished them a bon voyage to Couchiching. At the Locks "Bummer" Bartlett surprised us by exercising his relaxed muscles in assisting to carry the canoes over the portage.

Under the supervision of "Mandy" Irvine the squad had a workout at baseball on a gentleman's lawn. "Frills" Nicholls' wing was fair, in fact we looked so easy that the natives decided to challenge us to a game, and with the assistance of the Sporting Editor of the "Independent" the game was advertised to start at 3.30 o'clock, at the Plains.

Bobcaygeon lined up a likely looking team, composed chiefly of tourists, and after a lively five-innings contest, which we led to the third, they finished strong and nosed us out.

The evening was spent at a lawn social held under the auspices of the Presbyterian Church at which a very enjoyable time was spent, but we have to admit that a couple of the fellows were attracted by two of the fair maidens.

Next morning, Wednesday, "Bummer" Bartlett our star snake-charmer tryed to charm a snake about five feet long, but it resented his advances, and retaliated by biting his finger necessitating "Bummer's" retreat to the village where with peroxide and first aid treatment, he was restored to us once more.

About noon we packed up and proceeded to Boyd's Island where, after a diligent search, we succeeded in seeing a herd of buffalo.

After a nice paddle with fair weather, we discovered a berry-patch, where we indulged freely in the fruit, and after being bribed by "Cook" Jackson with a tempting promise of raspberry shortcake and pies, we picked a few quarts, much to the Cook's delight.

On continuing our voyage keen-sighted "Gentleman" Tom Carter discovered a 'lunge, and after breaking a paddle over it, managed to land it much to the satisfaction of "Mandy" Irvine. Cook Jackson estimated it would weigh eight pounds.

After camping over night at Buckhorn we reached Juniper at one o-clock, Thursday, and had a respectable dinner once more. This trip was easily the best of our two weeks' outing, everyone having a capital time.

Friday was spent in resting up after our trip, and we broke camp Saturday morning bringing our glorious holiday to a successful close.

TWO UNIQUE CHURCH SERVICES

Two unique services were held in Springville Presbyterian church during the absence of the pastor Rev. Dr. Marsh. In the morning, Albert Sanderson, an elder, and Bert Sanderson, and Bruce Elliot gave an account of their recent visit to the Convention of the Christian Endeavor Society, held at Kingston. Two solos were rendered by Miss Ingram, which were much appreciated. The evening service was held by the Christian Endeavor Society.

CANADIAN PACIFIC RAILWAY TRAIN TOUR A GREAT SUCCESS

On Saturday evening, June 29th, the Agricultural College special, run by the Canadian Pacific Railway, completed its very successful tour of Manitoba. The train was on the road for 32 days, and in that time, covered all the province tributary to the C. P. R.. Eighty-seven different points were visited, 1,305 addresses given to 22,805 people, which included 9,351 men, 7,426 women, and 5,623 of the senior classes of the schools. When the train arrived at each stopping place, the car containing the stock, which consisted of three pure bread Holstein cows, one pure bred Hereford fat steer, and four types of the best quality of work horses and brood mares, was placed at the unloading platform. The professors, who accompanied the train, were experts on the agricultural subjects dealt with. Professor Peters, and his assistant, Mr. Jones, dealt with the horses and the types best suited for breeding and other purposes. Touching upon the raising of cattle the Holstein cows were strongly recommended for dairying purposes. The production of butter was forcibly dealt with, which thoroughly interested the womenfolk. A short talk was given on hog production and the raising of sheep. After the stock judging, Professor Hales spoke to the men on agricultural education and advocated thorough training of teachers in agricultural subjects.

It fell to Professor Lee to deal with the many weeds found on the prairie and he pointed out the best means of eradication and identification.

The fodder crops were handled by Mr. Harrison, who went into every detail in the planting and raising of corn. Principal Black, closed the meeting for men by a practical talk on the general successful working of the Manitoba farm, and the necessity for every young man and woman to take a course in the Agricultural College.

The women's part of the program was first taken by Mrs. Salisbury, who gave an instructive talk on home nursing, sanitary conditions in the home, ventilation, etc., and this was followed by Professor Broderick, who dealt with horticulture and the beautifying of the farm home. Professor Herner, handled poultry raising and egg production, and showed the best way to raise poultry for the market, also the correct way for handling them to produce the greatest number and best quality of eggs. The poultry on the farm was shown to be one branch of farm work, which could be made the most profitable as a side line with the least outlay.

The senior classes of the schools at almost every point, came over to the train in a body, and were addressed by, either Principal Hales, Professor Lee, or J. J. Golden on the birds of Manitoba, and other subjects which interest young people and be profitable in farm life.

All the meetings were opened with a short address explaining to the farmers, why the Canadian Pacific Railway Company and the Agricultural College staff thought it necessary to run the train, the interest of the C. P. R. took in the farmers along their line and the desire for better farming. The tour was a great success and in many places the train was met by brass bands and at other places the farmers presented Principal Black with an address of welcome, emphasizing the good work done by the train last year. The announcement by the C. P. R. to start demonstration farms in Manitoba, was received with much appreciation many farmers expressing the hope that the C. P. R. would locate a farm of that description in their district.

To the Editor of the Review.

I was among those who stood on the sidewalk and watched a procession pass by on its way to Little Lake Cemetery yesterday and could not fail to be impressed by the fitting mark of respect shown to the memory of an old and well known citizen. But I have heard the question asked and it seems a pertinent one — Why do the members of the Cemetery Board permit when there is a rule that no Sunday funerals shall be held except in cases of death from contagious diseases?

I have known of the relatives of deceased citizens, who have sought the privileges of a Sunday funeral and who have had their request firmly denied.

Perhaps you, or some of the members of the cemetery board can explain the reason for this discrimination.

Stewed Rhubarb With Lemon

Choose tender stalks of rhubarb, trim and remove any tough portions of skin. Do not scrape away the delicate red, as it adds to the appearance of the finished dish. Cut the stalks into pieces an inch long, cover with water and stew until tender with a couple of slices of lemon. Add sugar to taste, heat to the boiling point and chill before serving. Some prefer to add a few seeded raisins with the slices of lemon, and for those who like this fruit the combination can be recommended. Rhubarb is really a spring medicine and is invaluable at this season of the year.

Scalloped Parsnips.

Scrape four large parsnips and boil until tender, then cut into cubes; make a sauce with a cup of milk, a level tablespoonful of butter and same of flour; season to taste with flour and salt and dash of cayenne or nutmeg; turn the parsnips into the sauce, then put a layer into a buttered baking dish on top of a layer of bread crumbs; add a sprinkling of minced onion and parsley, then more crumbs, parsnips, etc., until the dish is full, having the top covered with sauce and buttered crumbs; bake for half an hour and serve hot with boiled fish.

An Amusing Trick.

A simple parlor trick is done by asking one of your audience to take two chairs and place them back to back three feet apart. Now ask him or any one in the audience whether he can take off his shoes and jump over them. Most likely he will find it an impossible task. Then tell him that you can do it very easily. Take off your two shoes, place them on the floor and jump over the shoes. This was all the other party was to do, only he did not understand it in that way.

Beets and Cabbage.

Boil young beets tender and when done skin, slice and chop fine. Shred enough white or red cabbage to make quantity equal to that of beets when cabbage is also chopped fine. Stew it tender in just enough water to cover, adding a little butter, salt and pepper. Drain thoroughly and when mixed with the beets add a little boiled, hot salad dressing or pour over the vegetables a little soft butter mixed with lemon juice, salt and pepper. Serve hot.

Enthusiasm is frequently arrested for exceeding the speed limit.

TEXT OF PRIVY COUNCIL'S MARRIAGE CASE DECISION

It is Made Clear That Under the Terms of the British North American Act the Provinces Have Full Power to Deal With the Solemnization of Marriage.

London, July 30.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—The marriage case judgment yesterday in effect is to confirm the answers given by the four judges of the Supreme Court that the bill was ultra vires.

Their lordships expressed the opinion that the Provincial Legislature in legislation on the solemnization of marriage within the province could impose conditions affecting the validity of contract concerning question two. Their lordships considered it superfluous in view of the decision arrived at on the constitutional question.

Lord Chancellor Haldane opened by reciting in full the questions submitted by the Government of Canada to the Supreme Court. The Lord Chancellor said the answers were as follows:

Question 1—(a) Has the Parliament of Canada authority to enact, in whole or in part, bill No. 3 of the first session of the 12th Parliament of Canada, intitled "An Act to Amend the Marriage Act"? (2) If the provisions of the said bill are not all within the authority of the Parliament of Canada to enact, which, if any, of the provisions are within such authority?

Question 2—Does the law of the Province of Quebec render null and void, unless contracted before a Roman Catholic priest a marriage which would otherwise be legally binding, which takes place in such province, (a) between persons who are both Roman Catholics, or (b) between persons one of whom only is a Roman Catholic?

Question 3—If either (a) or (b) of the last preceding question is answered in the affirmative, or if both of them are answered in the affirmative, has the Parliament of Canada authority to enact that all such marriages heretofore solemnized or hereafter to be solemnised shall be legal and binding?

The Lord Chancelor continued: "The answer to these questions turns on the construction to be placed on sections 91 and 92 of the British North America Act of 1867. Section 91 of that act enacts that the Parliament of the Dominion may make laws for the peace, order and good government of Canada in relation to all matters not coming within classes of subjects which, by the act, are assigned exclusively to Legislatures of the provinces, and for greater certainty, but not so as to restrict the generality of the foregoing terms and section, declares that notwithstanding anything in the act, the exclusive legislative authority of the Parliament of the Dominion extends to all matters coming within the classes of subjects enumerated.

"One of these is marriage. The divorce section concludes with the declaration that any matter coming within any of the enumerated classes shall not be deemed to come within the class of matters of local or private nature comprised in the enumeration of classes of subjects by the act assigned exclusively to Legislatures of the provinces. Section 92 enacts that in each province the Legislature may exclusively make laws in relation to matters coming within the classes of subjects enumerated in this section. Among these is solemnization of marriage in the province. It is clear how questions must be answered, for it was agreed between counsel that the bill referred to in the first question was intended to enable a person with any authority to perform the ceremony and to perform it validly, whatever might be the religious faith of those married by him.

On the footing indicated, the bill would therefore be ultra vires of the Dominion Parliament. The third question would also be disposed of, for the Parliament of Canada would, under the events indicated in the question, have no authority. The second question consequently becomes not only unimportant, but superfluous. Notwithstanding the able argument addressed to them, their lordships have arrived at the conclusion that the jurisdiction of the Dominion Parliament does not, on the true construction of sections 91 and 92, cover the whole field of validity. They consider that the provision of section 92, conferring on Provincial Legislatures the executive power to make laws relating to the solemnization of marriage in a province operates by way of exception to powers conferred as regards marriage by section 91 and enables Provincial Legislatures to enact conditions as to solemnization which may affect the validity of contract.

There have doubtless been prior, as there have been and are countries, where the validity of marriage depends on bare contract of parties without reference to any solemnity, but there are at least as many instances where the contrary doctrine has prevailed. The common law of England and the law of Quebec before Confederation are conspicuous examples which would naturally have been in the minds of those who inserted words about solemnization into the statute. Prima facie these words appear to their lordships to impart what the whole of what solemnization ordinarily meant in the systems of law of the provinces of Canada at the time of Confederation is intended to come within them, including conditions which affect validity.

There is no greater difficulty in putting on the language of statute this construction than there is in putting on it the alternative construction, which has been contended for. Both reading of the provision in section 92 are in the nature of limitations of effect of the words in section 91, and there is, in their lordships' opinion, no reason why what they consider to be the natural construction of the words "solemnization of marriage," having regard to the law existing in Canada when the British North America Act was passed, should not prevail. This conclusion disposes of the questions raised, and their lordships will humbly advise His Majesty accordingly.

LUNATIC WANTED WATCH AND CHAIN

Winnipeg, July 30.—What looks like the work of a crazy person was the letter with the usual black hand signature received by Mayor Waugh yesterday morning.

"Send me a $1,000 bill to buy clothes with," it said. "I was in the Regina cyclone and am in great need of clothing, a watch and chain. My home is gone also, so I shall need another $1,000. I will receive it tomorrow at 10 o'clock at 111 Alexander avenue."

House and Barn Burned.

Welland, July 30.—The house and barn on the Henry farm, eight miles west of here, which was lately purchased by David Bald of Welland, were burned, together with contents, Sunday night. The cause is unknown, although incendiarism is suspected.

Vessel Collides With Iceberg.

St. John's, Nfld., July 30.—The British steamer Manchester Inventor put into port yesterday badly damaged as a result of colliding during a dense fog, July 24, with a submerged iceberg.

WERE NOT BOMBS SAY OFFICIALS

Montreal, July 30.—A sensational bomb story, appearing in an evening weekly Saturday, under huge headlines, is denied by officials of the Allan Line here, and the mistake is explained in a letter to the editor.

The story stated that a large number of bombs had been found, together with other weapons, among the unclaimed baggage at the Allan Line shed. The outfit was termed "an Anarchist's Kit," and was said to have been brought over by the Virginian on one of her trips to St. John, N.B., before navigation opened to Montreal, and from there sent to the head office here. Knives of German make were among the tools and an anarchistic plot was the theme of the story referred to.

Mr. Hannah, representing the Allan Line, writes as follows:

"That which you have described as bombs are floats for fishing tackle and were in a box containing a sporting outfit, and are still on the wharf, to be examined by yourself or anyone."

AN INVITATION HAS BEEN GIVEN

Ottawa, July 30.—Following up the British press suggestion that some of the British Cabinet Ministers should return the visit of Premier Borden and his colleagues, it was announced yesterday that Canada has extended an invitation to Rt. Hon. Winston Churchill and other Ministers to visit the Dominion next fall when the naval debate is on West Loses Cattle.

Winnipeg, July 30.—An important meeting was held at the C.P.R. depot yesterday morning, to discuss the alarming diminution in the cattle industry in the four western provinces, and, if possible, to devise means by which the farmers may be induced to take up this neglected branch. The press was excluded.

Strikers Stay Out.

London, July 30.—The refusal of the dock strikers in London to obey the manifesto issued by the strike leaders on Saturday declaring the strike at an end after it had lasted ten weeks, was given practical effect yesterday, when very few of the men returned to work.

CROWDS OF MOURNERS PAY TRIBUTE TO DEAD EMPEROR

Tokio, July 30.—Mutsuhito, for forty-four years Emperor of Japan, died at 12.43 o'clock this morning. Yoshihito Haru-No-Miya reigns under the formula provided by the constitution promulgated by Mutsuhito, "The king is dead; long live the king."

Mutsuhito, who was the 121st emperor of Japan, passed gently away. He had been unconscious for many hours prior to his death, and the empress, the crown prince and the most prominent officials of the household and government was at the bedside.

At the end upwards of 20,000 subjects silently paid their last homage outside the palace gates. It was a marvelous scene when messengers silently mingled with the crowds and scattered and posted announcements of the emperor's death. Deep emotion swept the multitude, but there was no evidence of excitement. The only sound was a long-drawn sigh of sorrow.

LATE EMPEROR OF JAPAN.

Within the palace the death was communicated to the imperial princes and notabilities, whereupon, without delay, the accession ceremonies were begun at the imperial sanctuary at one o'clock. The shrine was decorated according to the Shinto rites. Prince Iwakura, the chief ritualist, officiated, laying an offering on the sacred altar. The oath was read in the presence of Ministers, councillors of state and other dignitaries.

Condoles With Japan.

London, July 30.—The London morning papers offer deep sympathy, as a national ally, to the Japanese people in the death of the emperor.

The Daily Telegraph says that the death of the emperor is an event of world-wide significance, but will have no untoward influence on the Anglo-Japanese alliance.

Ottawa, July 30.—Edward Kidd, member of Parliament for Carleton County, is seriously ill at his home in North Gower, with an affection of the heart.

CANAL TREATY IS IGNORED

Washington, July 30.—The right of Great Britain to participate in an understanding for the control of the Panama Canal was denied in the Senate yesterday by two advocates of the measure to give American coastwise shipping the preference in canal tolls. Senators Bradley of Kentucky and Massy of Nevada contended not only that the United States had the right under the treaty to regulate its own affairs, but that the purchase of the canal zone removed the entire subject from international control. Senator McCumber of North Dakota took an opposite view in his speech opening the canal debate.

COLLEGE MAY BE MOVED TO SOREL

Montreal, July 30.—New developments in the Monnoir College difficulty have made themselves manifest by the presentation of a petition to Rome on behalf of the citizens of Sorel, asking that the college be established there.

The petitioners, who have formed themselves into a committee for the purpose of aiding in the establishment of a classical college in their town, point out that by allowing the disputed college to settle at Sorel, an easy way out of the existing impasse could be found. Sorel is in the diocese of Ste. Hyacinthe, and the petitioners think it should therefore be acceptable to Bishop Bernard, whose conduct removed it from Marieville, in his diocese of St. Johns, in the diocese of Montreal.

SUGAR TRUST SETTLES UP

Washington, July 30.—Alleged sugar frauds at Philadelphia, under investigation by Secretary of the Treasury McVeigh and Attorney-General Wickersham, for the last year, have been settled by the payment of nearly a quarter of a million dollars to the U. S. Government by the sugar refining companies involved. This announcement was made by the Treasury Department yesterday.

PREMIER BORDEN MAKES SPEECH AT PARIS LUNCHEON

Canada's Prime Minister and His Colleagues Receive an Enthusiastic Welcome From French Statesmen and Mr. Borden's Declaration of Quebec' Devotion to Mother Country Awakes Loud Applause.

Paris, July 30.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—Sir Francis Bertie, accompanied by Hon. Messrs. Borden, Hazen, Doherty, Pelletier and Kemp, went to the Elysee at five o'clock yesterday afternoon. There the British ambassador presented the Canadians. President Falliere's reception was most cordial. He referred to the existing friendship of France and England, and the traditional bonds uniting Canada and France, and hoped these would grow stronger in every way. He was sure his Ministers would gladly expedite trade and other negotiations, and consummate any arrangement of mutual advantage to the two countries.

Hon. Mr. Borden, speaking in French, thanked the President for his kind reception. French-Canadians came of a race which had a genius for the development of a country such as Canada. He hoped to see amicable relations with their Mother Country grow closer in every sense.

Fallieres then chatted with the Ministers, asking many questions about Western Canada.

The luncheon was attended by a hundred people. President Bodington of the Chamber of Commerce, Sir Francis Bertie on his right, and Hon. Mr. Borden on the left. There was but one voice, he declared from the overseas that joined the voice of Great Britain, and it was powerful enough to enforce the respect of those who menace the imperial heritage. (Loud applause.)

Hon. Mr. Borden said the relations of Canada, Great Britain and France were eminently satisfactory. He was happy in this knowledge. When he declared French and English in Canada were working for the country's development with earnestness, patriotism and mutual devotion, the audience broke out into loud cheers.

Hon. Mr. Doherty and Hon. Mr. Hazen also spoke, the latter winning loud applause by his reference to the evolution and prosperity of Acadians, composing 20 per cent. of the population of New Brunswick, than whom were no better people. He expected to succeed in satisfactorily adjusting the shipping regulations between France and Canada.

Suffragettes Must Pay.

London, July 30.—A local tradesman, the windows of whose store were smashed in one of the suffragette riots, was awarded $75 damages.

This was the first of a large number of suits which an insurance company has instituted against the defendants, and if the county court judge's decision be upheld by the higher court, the defendants will be mulcted in enormous damages.

POLICE AND DOCK LABORERS CLASH AT PORT ARTHUR

Fort William, July 30.—A riot which resulted in the serious wounding of six persons and minor injury to many occurred in Port Arthur last night. Chief of Police McLennan was laid out by a club in the hands of an enraged foreigner, P. C. Schiltiker received a bullet wound in the back, P. C. Peterson was badly clubbed, and three foreigners were wounded by bullets.

A parade of striking C.N.R. coal dock laborers was held in the late afternoon, and at 7 o'clock pickets were placed at the C.N.R. crossing near the coal docks. Three pickets interfered with two men attempting to go to work. A crowd of several hundred quickly gathered and Chief McLennan, Sergt. Burleigh, and two constables went to the rescue.

The attempt of the officers to arrest one of the pickets was the signal for the production of clubs. Blows fell fast and the first man taken by the officers was rescued by his comrades. When Chief McLennan was laid low by a club a desperate struggle ensued, the police fighting over their fallen chief.

Someone pulled a gun, and, as if by magic, they appeared on all sides. The constables returned the fire. The firing was sharp and down went the assailant of the police chief, with several bullets in his body. Another foreigner was stretched out, but was borne by his comrades to the woods which surround the houses of the foreigners.

The Port Arthur City Council was in session and adjourned on hearing of the trouble, and advised the mayor to call out the 96th Regiment if the situation warranted.

All is quiet now, though several hundred foreigners are hanging around the scene of the trouble, and it is expected that if any persons attempt to go to work rioting will break out afresh. The 96th Regiment has just been called out.

OFFICER BECKER ARRESTED ON A CHARGE OF MURDER

Lieutenant Pleads Not Guilty and Is Remanded to the Tombs—Was First Taken on a Charge of Extortion and In the Meantime the Grand Jury Brought In a True Bill of Murder—Sam Paul Set Free.

New York, July 30.—Sensational developments in the investigation in the murder of Herman Rosenthal, the gambler, who was shot down in front of the Hotel Metropole two weeks ago, came with a rush last night, when Police Lieut. Charles Becker, accused by Rosenthal, as his partner in a gambling house, was arrested, accused of participation in the killing, and forced to plead at once to a charge of murder in the first degree. Becker was arraigned before Judge Mulqueen, who had convened the court of general sessions at night for the purpose, and pleaded not guilty. He was remanded to the Tombs.

The arrest of Becker came as a sequel to the summoning together of the grand jury late yesterday, a conference between District Attorney Whitman and Harry Vallon (Herman Valensky), Bridgie Webber and Jack Rose (Jacob Rosenzwel), three of the men under arrest in connection with the case, and their attorneys, and the appearance of several other witnesses before the grand jury.

Becker was arrested at the Bathgate avenue police station in The Bronx, where he has been on duty, on a charge of extortion. At the time no inkling of the most serious charge to be placed against him was given. Meanwhile the grand jury, which was then in session, had voted the murder indictment. The police lieutenant, who had been suspended by Commissioner Waldo after his arrest, was hurried before Judge Mulqueen, and through his attorney entered the plea of not guilty.

Events leading to Becker's arrest began to shape themselves late yesterday afternoon, following the preliminary hearing of several of the men under arrest before the coroner.

Sam Paul, leader of an east side organization, at whose recent outing it is claimed Rosenthal's killing was first discussed, was discharged. The others were held for a continued hearing. With their attorneys, Vallon, Webber, and Rose were taken to the district attorney's office, ready to testify before the grand jury. Messengers were at once despatched for members of the grand jury, and the first night session of that body held within eighteen years was soon in progress. Rose, Webber and Vallon, it is stated, were the principal witnesses heard. Patrolman Brady and Patrolman William File, who were near the scene of the murder, also testified.

ROWELL STARTS ON TRIP NORTH

Toronto, July 30.—Amid scenes of cordial camaraderie and enthusiasm the special train bearing Mr. N. W. Rowell, Ontario's Liberal leader, and a large delegation of his colleagues and supporters, left the Union Station at nine o'clock last night on the Provincial Liberal party excursion to New Ontario.

There were scores of Liberals at the depot to bid the tourists bon voyage, and many expressions of loyalty and congratulation were extended to the leader, who was given hearty greeting on his arrival at the station.

Defrosting Meat.

A demonstration held at Plymouth of a new method of defrosting meat is described in a report from the New South Wales agent-general in London. By this process frozen meat is thawed in a chamber so constructed that the atmospheric pressure can be regulated and excess moisture extracted without bursting the tissues of the meat.

It is claimed that frozen beef and mutton can then be placed on the market in such a condition as to compare favorably in appearance with prime English meat. This demonstration was attended by representatives of the meat trade of Australia, Great Britain, the United States and South America.

The beef and mutton had been held in a temperature of about 1 degrees for about three weeks after removal from the ship. It was then placed in the patent chambers (beef for forty-eight hours and mutton for twenty-four hours), in a temperature of 65 degrees. Upon removal from the chambers the beef was compared with prime English beef and with a frozen quarter from Queensland treated under the old system. It compared favorably with the English meat and was far superior to the Queensland. It had a fine bloom, was free from mold, and there was an entire absence of "leakage."

Loan Sharks Arrested.

New York, July 30.—The crusade against alleged loan sharks was renewed yesterday, when a squad of detectives arrested four men and two young women, all charged with violating the banking laws. One of the men taken was Daniel H. Tolman, who, the police allege, has four loan offices in this city and 96 other offices throughout the country. The prisoners were taken to the district attorneys office.

Tolman made a scene when arrested and defied the officers. A warrant was issued for Tolman in Montreal some years ago, when a young woman who managed his office in that city was convicted of usury, but he was careful not to come within the jurisdiction of the Canadian courts.

Bread of Rolled Oats.

Two cupfuls boiling water, one-half cupful molasses, one-half tablespoonful salt, one tablespoonful butter, one-half yeast cake dissolved in one-half cupful lukewarm water, one cup rolled oats, four and one-half cups flour. Add boiling water to oats and let stand one hour; add molasses, salt, butter, dissolved yeast cake and flour. Let rise, beat thoroughly, turn into buttered bread pans, let rise again and bake. By using one-half cupful less flour the dough is better suited for biscuits, but, being soft, is difficult to handle. To make shaping of biscuits easy take up mixture by spoonfuls, drop into plate of flour and have palms of hands well covered with flour before attempting to shape.

WILL FERGUSON HANG?

The immigration inspectors at Windsor made a new ruling when they refused to admit to Canada a man named William Ferguson, on the ground that seeing he had lost a leg he would probably be unable to earn his own living and might consequently become a public charge. Men so crippled, but otherwise physically vigorous have been known to make their way in the world with tolerable success. Besides this Ferguson had on his person about three times the amount of money required by any one seeking entry to Canada from a foreign country, and when they turned him back the inspectors knew nothing against his character. He was a British subject, a native of Scotland and a former resident of Hamilton, where he had met with the accident which resulted in his mutilation, but had been for some years in California. He was on his way to Hamilton again when the immigration officers blocked his progress. On his way back to Detroit on the ferry boat he saw Immigration Inspector Herbert, who had been present at, but had taken no part in his examination. Ferguson, beside himself at what he considered his ill-treatment, drew a pistol and shot the official to death.

As the crime was committed on the American side of the Detroit river and on an American boat, Ferguson was arrested by the United States officers and charged with murder on the high seas, the only penalty for which is death. He will be tried in a Federal court, and as there is no doubt of his conviction, the presiding judge will have no alternative but to sentence him to be hanged.

Here will arise a question of national interest, which has never been settled in the United States, for lack of just such a test case. Michigan abolished capital punishment years ago. Will the Federal power seek to invade the rights of a state by enforcing a mode of punishment which the state law does not recognize? If Ferguson is hanged there is the state land in Michigan upon which the central government at Washington can conduct his execution. If he dies by the rope the scaffold must be erected and the gruesome penalty enforced on some Federal ground, such as the yard of a postoffice or the enclosure of a military fort. Will the government insist upon so putting a man to death in a state where the majority of the people are opposed to capital punishment and will Michigan submit to this invasion of its rights? It has been held that in the event of such a case arising the only politic course left the government is to commute the death sentence to imprisonment for life and confine the condemned man in a Federal prison.

Ferguson's case is by reason of these peculiar circumstances likely to become one of world-wide interest.

THE MARRIAGE CASE

The decision of the Privy Council in the marriage case appeal, is no surprise to the public, in so far as it declares that the Dominion Parliament has no authority to pass a general marriage law. That was the view taken by the Supreme Court justices, when the case was before them, four of the judges agreeing without condition and one of them Justice Idington, holding that while the Lancaster Bill was impossible the object in view might be obtained by one modified in form. No one interested even hoped that this decision would be overruled by the Privy Council.

The decision handed down yesterday, establishes beyond a doubt that under the terms of the British North American Act, the provinces have the power to say how the marriage rite is to be solemnised within its border, and that Quebec can incorporate the Ne Temere decree in its civil code. Justice Idington held that where a province neglected to make provision for the marriage of persons of different religion, the Dominion had power to step in and do so. That he was wrong in his ruling he now admits in view of the decision of the highest court in the Empire.

To those who favored the bill and who hoped that the judgement of the Canadian Court would be confirmed, there is a ray of hope left. That part of the appeal which deals with the validity of mixed marriages has not been passed upon. A majority of the Canadian judges, held that such marriages are legal, when performed by a duly authorized person of whatever faith, and that was regarded as a victory for the Protestants of Canada. The reason the Privy Council refused to hear arguments on that question was that the point in dispute is now before a Quebec Court, and when disposed of there, will be carried to England and there disposed of finally.

The Hebert case is the one referred to. His marriage with one of a different faith was held illegal by the Catholic Church, but was pronounced valid by Judge Charbonneau when argued before him. The case was carried by Hebert to a higher court, and has not yet been disposed of. If the decision of Judge Charbonneau is confirmed, and the latter finding confirmed by the Privy Council, the present status of the marriage question may not be so serious after all.

At best the situation is grave and the Privy Council's finding has but added to the perplexity. To clear the national atmosphere of all doubt and difference, only one remedy is in sight, and that is the amendment of the British North American Act and this can be done, only by the British Parliament at the request of the Parliament of Canada.

Had the Lancaster Bill been enacted into law at the last session of Parliament, marriage would have been contracted under its provisions only to be rendered of no effect when the new statute was held ultra vires after reaching the Privy Council by slow stages through the various courts. It is easy to see that confusion would have resulted. That is the course adopted by the courts of the United States, to pass a law without regard to its constitutional soundness and then throw it into the scrap heap with other discarded enactments after it has been in operation for years, sometimes, and then carried before the Supreme Court in the form of a test case. In bringing the mixed marriage question to a speedy solution, the present Government certainly took the wiser and better course.

THE LATE EMPEROR

The death of the Mikado, who died yesterday, closes one of the longest as well as one of the most remarkable and successful reigns in history. When he came to the throne of Japan in 1867 at the age of 15, his dominion was seldom heard of in the affairs of the world, his people rarely left their native land, and immigration was not encouraged. To-day that same Kingdom is recognised as one of the world powers and the people have made marked progress in the arts of peace, as in the science of warfare. The successful struggles with China and Russia, established Japan's prestige as a nation, a country to be reckoned with in shaping the destiny of the world.

The sovereign of the world, who possessed the most autocratic power, the Emperor was probably for all his seclusion, the closest to his people and the most democratic of any ruler of modern times. In the two wars, which marked new epochs in his reign, he endured the same hardships as fell to the lot of those who fought his battles so bravely and to such purpose. He was feared by his people for the almost unlimited powers he held over their lives and property, but the same people worshiped him for the interest he took in their welfare and the aid he rendered to every project for their advancement. The Crown Prince who succeeds to the throne, has been carefully trained for his high place and will, his subjects hope, follow carefully in the footsteps of his father.

NOTE AND COMMENT

"Amend the British North American Act," is likely to become the new Canadian slogan.

The Montreal Star draws hope from the visit to France of Premier Borden and his Ministers on the ground that an exchange of national courtesies will cement the friendly bond between that country, England and Canada.

The fact that the United States Senate has once more repealed the Reciprocity treaty does not mean that the pact is dead so far as the Republic is concerned. The Democratic House of Representatives has once already refused to concur in this legislation and without this concurrence the measure continues to stand on the Statute books of the country.

The general opinion of the press of Ontario is that the newspaper profession is entitled to representation in the Senate and Mr. W. S. Dingman of the Stratford Herald, is the editor whose name is most frequently mentioned in connection with the vacancy. Mr. Dingman has rendered his party valiant service always and has also served his own city faithfully and ably in the capacity of Mayor. He has friends everywhere throughout the province and all would be pleased to see him appointed to a position of honor for which he is so eminently fitted.

Left Over Sweets.

Use bits of jelly to enrich puddings. Small quantities of berries serve the same purpose. A cupful of ripe currants or any sort of berries can be mashed into a cupful of sugar and added with a beaten egg to make a pie. Even a half cupful of berries or jam adds a delicious flavor to a quart of ice cream. Save the leftovers or sirup from cans of fruit for gelatin desserts, sherbet, creams, puddings, sauces, charlottes, fruit cottage puddings, with stale bread or cake or to pour over French pancakes.

SO NERVOUS, HE COULD NOT SLEEP

Three Months Treatment Of "Fruit-a-tives" Cured Him

KINCARDINE, ONT., SEPT. 12th 1910

"The effects of "Fruit-a-tives" on Sleeplessness, Nervousness and Disordered condition of the Body, is simply marvellous.

I have taken "Fruit-a-tives" for three months—and am now perfectly well and have gained ten pounds in weight.

"I have found "Fruit-a-tives" is the only medicine that will purify the blood, quiet the nerves and restore the whole system to its natural condition"

S. G. SMITH.

"Fruit-a-tives" cures nervousness and Sleeplessness because this fruit medicine keeps the blood pure, the stomach sweet, the bowels regular and the skin active.

50c a box, 6 for $2.50—trial size, 25c. At dealers or write to Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

$100 REWARD $100

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucuous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

GREAT MEN'S SWEETHEARTS.

Geniuses Are If Anything a Little More Foolish Than Others.

Some men of genius have undoubtedly believed with Thackeray that it is better to love foolishly than not at all; that they have practiced this philosophy is proved by their memoirs and biographies.

Leigh Hunt loved a good girl whose spelling was unconventional, and whose chirography could not be called her chief accomplishment. Keats was wildly, madly in love with a commonplace girl named Fanny Brawne. He married her, but she was incapable of appreciating him. [illegible], the brilliant essayist, loved the pert, coarse daughter of his landlady. He wrote her a letter which she never answered, and he said that "the rolling years of eternity would not fill up the blank that her failure to answer that letter caused."

A practical Scottish girl, Charlotte Carpenter, won Walter Scott's love. She not only hated literature, but objected to writing to him. He wrote her, saying, "You must write me once a week." She replied, "You are quite out of your senses, and you need not put in so many 'musts' in your letters. It is beginning too early."

Alfred de Musset's love for the irresponsive George Sand gave his thoughts such an extraordinary elevation that he wrote many brilliant poems in consequence. Chaucer sang the praises of many queens, but his one great love was Phillippa Picard de Rouet, the Lady-in-Waiting to Queen Anne of Bohemia. He waited nine years to marry her, but made it a matter of complaint in several poems.

Moore lived up to his theory that love's young dream is the sweetest thing in life. He never let one love get old before he supplanted it with a new. Carey had his Sally of "Sally in Our Alley" fame. Surrey loved Geraldine from the time she was a child in short dresses. Corneille, the astute lawyer, fell in love and became the brilliant dramatic poet. Thus it seems that love, whether successful or otherwise, for a time inspires its votaries.

Can Transplant Oysters.

That the Canadian Atlantic oyster can be transplanted and propagated in British Columbia waters is one of the statements made by Dr. Jos. Stafford of McGill University, Montreal. Hitherto it was believed that the large Atlantic oysters would not reproduce themselves on the Pacific coast, so that this announcement is of very great moment to the oyster fisheries of British Columbia.

MONTREAL, July 29.—Business in Manitoba spring wheat over the cable [illegible] but the demand for oats is fair, and further sales were made. The local trade in oats was also more active at firm prices. Flour is steady, with a fair trade passing. Demand for millfeed is good. Butter is firm, but business is rather quiet. Cheese firm, but demand not so good. Exports for week were [illegible] boxes, against [illegible] a year ago. Eggs fairly active. Provisions firm.

Corn—American No. 2 yellow, 78c.

Oats—Canadian western No. 2, 45½c; No. 3, 44½c; extra No. 1 feed, 45½c.

Barley—Manitoba feed, 64c to 65c; malting, $1.05 to $1.07.

Flour—Manitoba spring wheat patents, firsts, $5.80; seconds, $5.30; strong bakers, $5.10; winter patents, choice, $5.35; straight rollers, $4.85 to $4.95; do., bags, $2.40.

Millfeed—Bran, $22; shorts, $26; middlings, $27; moullie, $30 to $34.

Hay—No. 2, per ton, car lots, $16 to $17.

Cheese—Finest westerns, 13½c to 13⅝c; finest easterns, 12½c to 12¾c.

Butter—Choicest creamery, 25½c to 26¼c; seconds, 25c to 25¼c.

Eggs—Selected, 25½c to 26c; No. 2 stock, 15c to 16c.

Potatoes—Per bag, car lots, $1.60.

CATTLE MARKETS.

Union Stock Yards.

TORONTO, July 29.—Receipts of live stock at the Union Stock Yards were 142 carloads, comprising 3131 cattle, 222 hogs, 579 sheep and lambs, 162 calves and 18 horses.

Exporters.

Swift & Co. bought 150 export steers for Liverpool, 1341 lbs. each, at an average of $7.45, or a range of $7.25 to $7.60; export bulls at $6 to $6.40.

Butchers.

Choice butchers' steers sold at $7 to $7.50; good, $6.50 to $7; medium, $6 to $6.50; common at $5.25 to $6; cows, choice, at $5.25 to $6; good cows, $4.75 to $5.25; medium cows, $4 to $4.75; common, $3.50 to $3.75.

Stockers and Feeders

Stockers and feeders, 650 to 900 lbs., sold at $4.50 to $5.25.

Milkers and Springers.

About thirty milkers and springers sold at a range of $45 to $65, with one or two as high as $75 each.

Veal Calves.

Calves were reported at $4 to $9 per cwt., with a very few choice at $9.25 to $9.50.

Sheep and Lambs.

Sheep, ewes, sold at $4 to $4.50, with selects at $5; heavy ewes, bucks and culls, at $2 to $3.50; lambs were quoted easier, at $7.50 to $8.15.

Hogs.

The market was 10c to 15c per cwt. higher. The general price for selects, fed and watered, was $8.50, and $8.15 f.o.b. cars, with one or two selected lots at $8.60.

Montreal Live Stock.

MONTREAL, July 29.—At the Montreal Stock Yards west end market the receipts of live stock for the week ending July 27 were 2000 cattle, 2600 sheep and lambs, 2000 hogs and 800 calves. The offerings for sale this morning were 900 cattle, 1000 sheep and lambs, 1400 hogs and 800 calves.

Owing to the increased offerings of cattle, which consisted principally of common stock, an easier feeling prevailed in the market. Prices were fully 25c per 100 pounds lower than a week ago, but there was no change in the condition of the market for good to choice steers, as supplies of this class were limited and in good demand at firm prices. The gathering of buyers was fairly large, and, considering the season of the year, quite an active trade was done, both for local consumption and for shipment to outside points. Canners have commenced operations again, and in consequence a good trade was done in that class of stock at $3.50 per 100 pounds. The top price reached for full loads of choice steers was $7.50 per 100 pounds, but the bulk of trading was done in cattle ranging from $6 to $7 per 100 pounds.

Owing to the very irregular condition of hogs coming forward and scarcity of selected stock, a stronger feeling prevailed in the market for such, and prices scored a further advance of 15c per 100 pounds, as compared with the prices paid a week ago. The demand was good from packers, and sales of selected lots were made at $9.25, but a number of mixed lots, including sows and stags, were sold at $8.50 to $8.75 per 100 pounds, weighed off cars.

There was quite an active trade done in small meats, owing to the fact that butchers were generally short of stock, and, as the supply was larger than usual on a Monday, they took advantage of it, but they had to pay higher prices for sheep, sales of ewes being made at $4 to $4.50, and bucks and culls at $3.50 to $3.75 per 100 pounds, while western lambs sold at $6, and Quebec lambs at $4.25 to $4.50 each. Calves were scarce, with the demand good.

Butchers' cattle, choice, $7.25 to $7.50; do., medium, $5 to $6; do., common, [illegible] to $4.50; canners, $3.50; butchers' cattle, choice cows, $5.25 to $5.50; do., medium, $4.50 to $5; do., bulls, $4.75 to $5; milkers, choice, $70 to $80; do. common and medium, each, $50 to $70; springers, $40 to $50.

Sheep, ewes, $4 to $4.50; bucks and culls, $3.50 to $3.75; lambs, $7 to $8.

Hogs, f.o.b., $9.25.

Calves, $3 to $8.

East Buffalo Cattle Market.

EAST BUFFALO, July 29.—Cattle—Receipts, 4300 head; active, steady to 10c lower; prime steers, $9.15 to $9.40; shipping, $8.50 to $9; butchers, $5.50 to $8.75; heifers, $4.50 to $7.25; cows, $3 to $6.75; bulls, $4 to $6.50; stockers and feeders, $4.25 to $5.50; stock heifers, $3.75 to $4.25; fresh cows and springers active and firm, $30 to $70.

Hogs—Receipts, 10,500 head; active and steady; heavy, $8.75 to $8.80; mixed, $8.75 to $8.85; yorkers, $8.65 to $8.80; pigs, $8.65 to $8.70; roughs, $7.40 to $7.60; stags, $5 to $6.25; dairies, $8.50 to $8.70.

Sheep and Lambs—Receipts, 6400 head; active; wethers and ewes 25c higher; lambs, $4.50 to $8; yearlings, $5 to $6.50; wethers, $4.75 to $5.00; ewes, $3 to $4.15.

A Blunt Bishop.

Famed for his blunt criticism, Dr. Sheepbanks, formerly Bishop of Norwich, Eng., has died at that city at the age of 77. Dr. Sheepbanks, who had been ill for nearly two months, was strong in his denunciation of clergymen, who, in his opinion, sought too much popularity with ladies, and he was also a strong critic of costly bishops' palaces, short sermons, and the week-end habit. His early pioneer work and hardships as a missionary among the Cariboo Indians in British Columbia endowed him with a blunt outspokenness which he never lost.

He was a missionary from 1859 to 1867, working among the miners in the Canadian further west, mending his own boots and clothes, sleeping on the ground, hunting with the Indians, and enduring the utmost rigors of pioneering. At the end of his service he walked across Mongolia and came home to England. After many years of work for the Church he was appointed Bishop of Norwich in 1893 by Mr. Gladstone.

THE REGATTA AT CHEMONG PARK

The Chemong Park Cottagers Association, at a meeting held last night decided to hold their annual Regatta, Thursday, August 22nd. The secretary's report showed the finances for the year to be in good condition. The money will be devoted to improving the Club House premises and preparing floats for the lake. Communications were received from the Stoney Lake Cottagers' Association, and the Sturgeon Point Association with regard to the dates of their regattas, and it was decided, if boats are procurable, to run excursions to these places from Chemong.

The club will introduce a number of new and novel features to their regatta, and are determined to make this year's, the best as yet. There will be the usual dance in the evening.

The officers elected for this year are as follows—

Sec.-Treas.—W. J. O'Brien.
Chairman of Dance—J. Patte.
Park Committee—Gordon Matthews H. Hill, Roy Dixon.
City Committee—Mr. Fred. Roy, G. N. Gordon, V. Eastwood.
Starters—A. Jobe, Alex. Elliott, V. Eastwood.

AUTO TURNED TURTLE AND DRIVER WAS BADLY HURT

Mr. Percy Bond's Car Wrecked in a Collision With a Telegraph Pole and Bert Hensley Received Painful Injuries—Was on Trial Spin.

While speeding west on McDonnel street, an auto owned by Mr. Percy Bond, and driven by Bert Hensley, skidded off the road and struck a telegraph pole at the Reid street corner with terrific force. The car completely turned turtle and is a complete wreck. The driver was pitched out headlong but fortunately escaped with minor injuries, and a few bruises.

Eye witnesses say that the car was going a fair clip, and that it veered close to the ditch by the roadside at the corner, and struck the pole before the driver could avoid it by steering out.

Mr. Bond was first informed that it was his car that was damgaed, by a Review reporter, and expressed much surprise at learning of his loss. He had sent his auto to Mr. Wilson's shop to have some small repairs effected, the whole cost of which would not amount to more than fifty or sixty cents.

Hensley, one of Mr. Wilson's employees, took the car out this morning for a trial run, and it was while he was tearing off pretty fair speed that the accident occurred. A kit of repairs tools in the auto at the time were scattered over the road when the car collided. After the crash, the chauffeur picked himself up in a very much dazed state. One leg was rather painfully bruised, causing him to limp badly. Spectators of the affair hurriedly ran to the spot and helped right the car. The chauffeur was taken away in another car to have his injuries cared for.

Mr. Bond when informed of his loss went up to the scene and inspected the damaged car. It is apparently incapable of being repaired. The axles are both broken, the front part entirely crushed in, the wind shield shattered and the tires smashed in.

Mr. Bond took his loss with apparent optimism.

LAWS, EXIST--TO BE CHANGED WHEN CHANGE IS NECESSARY

Mr. Burnham Says Responsible Government is a Myth Unless People Can Get What They Want.

To a Review reporter, Mr. Burnham said to-day—

"The Privy Council has construed the B. N. A. as all in favor of the provinces. This is a serious blow to Canadian unity. We shall now have to begin to get this fault repaired by petition to the Imperial Parliament so far as we can.

Ecclesiasticism has a much stronger grip on us than we supposed. However, what a people wants, they will no doubt ultimately find a way of obtaining. Otherwise, Responsible Government is a myth. Laws exist to be changed when necessary. If not, why not?"

WHAT THE PRESS OF CANADA SAYS OF MARRIAGE QUESTION

The following editorial comments on the Privy Council's finding in the Marriage Appeal Case has been gleaned from the papers that have already spoken on the subject;

ABSOLUTELY AT THE MERCY OF THE PROVINCES.

(Montreal Witness.)

The judgment of the Privy Council, as was expected, confirms the finding of the Canadian Supreme Court, that the Lancaster Bill or any other that would undertake a like purpose is beyond the power of Parliament. This leaves the conditions of marriage, as we read the despatch, absolutely at the mercy of the provincial legislatures. As requested by the Province of Quebec, the court refuses to answer the second quesiton, whether marriages of Roman Catholics in Quebec by other than a Roman Catholic priest are null. This, therefore, remains where the Supreme Court of Canada left it. The answer of that court was that as between a Roman Catholic and another such a marriage would not be null, as between two Roman Catholics, the majority of that court held the same, though, of the two Roman Catholic members of the court, one held that such a marriage would be null and the other declined to speak. The Herbert case has yet to come before the Privy Council.

WILL NOT STAND FOR IT

Toronto World

What are we to do with the situation in Canada?

Our people will not stand for a marriage law that affects the peace and welfare of any citizen, made by an authority outside and foreign to our people.

ONE POINT NOT TOUCHED

The Mail and Empire

But neither the Supreme Court's nor the Judicial Committee's way of dealing with the question, touched the point as to the competence of the Quebec Legislature to enact a law embodying the Ne Temere prohibition.

APPEAL THE HEBERT CASE

Toronto Globe

The rulers of the Roman Catholic Church in Quebec are no doubt sincere in their adherence to the dogma that as marriage is a sacrament only a Catholic priest can administer it to Catholics, or to the Catholic in a mixed marriage. Holding these views, they should be eager to appeal the Hebert case and get upon that definite issue —involving not merely the validity of a marriage, but the legitimacy of a child— the decision of the highest court in the Empire.

EXPLOSION IN POWER HOUSE

Mr. Pomeroy Was Badly Burned —Fire Occured in Switchboard Coils

Excitement ran high for a short time this afternoon, when fire broke out among the switchboard coils in the London street power house. The alarm was quickly sent in. In an explosion which followed, Mr. Pomeroy who was in charge, sustained severe and very painful burns. He was taken to the hospital suffering much agony.

The brigade responded with splendid speed and a line of hose was soon laid. It was found necessary to despatch a waggon back for a second stretch of hose. The chemical tanks, however, were used effectively in putting out the flames in the switchboard apparatus. The smoke was very thick and filled the whole interior of the power house with musky fumes.

While the fire was in progress trouble ensued with the power plant which was shut off.

Superintendent W. H. Denham, of the Quaker Oats was on the spot and assisted in directing operations.

PROMINENT WESTERN LIBERAL DEAD AGAINST RECIPROCITY

Visitor Here To-day Talks Very Strongly on Grain Situation in Western Provinces.

A Liberal grain dealer of Western Canada, who was here on a hurried visit this morning, was asked about the grain situation in the West.

AGAINST RECIPROCITY

"I can only say," he replied "that altho I a Liberal, I am dead against reciprocity. Reciprocity is unnecessary for the West. It is only another attempt on the part of the Americans to drain their country at our expense. It is possible there might be a little increase in the price of flax and barley, but not in wheat. The Americans don't want our wheat except to grind, and our people are going to do the grinding in the West Let the Americans come over as they are doing and help us develop our country. They are coming over because it is a good country to come to."

MORE DOUBLE TRACKAGE

"We don't want any more charge for railways, but we do want more double tracking. We want the Hudson Bay railway built at once. We want another route to the West. That will give us outlet enough. Then we want a sample market, so that men can sell their wheat by sample at once, and not be done out of it later at the elevator.

"It is a mistake to build too many branches of railways in the country The trouble has been, that branch lines have been built more rapidly than main lines, but take it from me it is not more markets we want, but lower freight rates and more main lines to the markets we already have.

ARMY VETERAN IN POLICE COURT

Aged Military Man Pleads Drink as excuse for Lamentable Plight.

Frederick Rawlings, seventy-two years of age, told Magistrate Dumble this morning that he was a veteran of the Afghan war, and had been with Lord Roberts at Kandahar.

"And if I could only let drink alone. I would not be here before you now, Your Worship," said the aged veteran. "Freddy" unfolded a sad story, a story that contained a lesson and a moral. He referred to good positions which he had lost through a love for liquor. When a soldier, in decades gone by, he said he stood high in the opinion of his commanding officers. He still retained an upright figure, considering his age, and the wreck of a constitution that was left him from years of dissipation.

MUST TOIL TO EAT.

"Here I am now, seventy-two years of age, and have to toil for a living." Rawlings has been working on a farm, and promised to go back. He was given another chance. He was found drunk in a public place last night.

$2 FOR BEING DRUNK.

For being drunk and disorderly in a public place last night, Fred Johnston forked up a two-spot. He was the subject of a lecture, also, on the subject of getting drunk, administered by the magistrate.

"Fred" couldn't remember anything about being drunk.

Come with the Bugle Band Moonlight on Friday, August 2nd. Tickets may be procured from all members of the Bugle Band. 3d

HOTEL RATES RAISED

The hotelkeepers of the city have decided to raise their rates 50 cents a day, saying that they are forced into the increase owing to the high cost of provisions. The cheapest rates charged by any hotel in the city will, after August 1st, be $1.50 a day.

Too often popularity isn't worth the price.

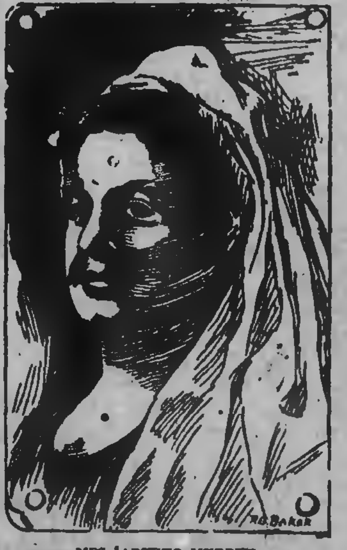
A VERSATILE WOMAN

MRS. MURPHY LOOMS LARGE IN CANADIAN LETTERS.

Edmonton Woman Whose Pen Name, Janey Canuck, Has Endeared Her to Thousands of Readers All Over the Dominion, Hails From Ontario and Has Done Real Pioneer Work on the Prairies.

On the twentieth of last month a glad company of two hundred women assembled at the King Edward Hotel, Edmonton, to hold the inaugural luncheon of the Women's Canadian Club. As was fitting and fraternal, the Men's Canadian Club sent a message of greeting to the new sister organization, and several of the old-time "hostesses" of the Albertan city told of the days of the buckboard and the four-horse stage. The speech of the occasion was delivered by the president, Mrs. Arthur Murphy, whose words were so characteristic of the speaker and the country that we may well consider their final monition:

"I tell you women, the danger to which we are most liable is not one that springs from the rude hordes which we must convert into patriotic Canadians—not by any means. Our chiefest danger lies in the fact that we are likely to be smothered by chiffon. In these days of ease and rapidly-growing wealth, there is a tendency that we shall become anaemic hair-splitters or flabby parasites on the body politic. It is well that the northern eagle should have a downy breast, but it is equally well that she have strong talons and a firm beak—in a word, that she has opposite qualities in perfect balance.



MRS. ARTHUR MURPHY.

"And so, in conclusion, as first president of the farthest north Canadian Club of women, assembled at our first meeting, my message to you is a ringing call to hardihood, a call to endurance, to work; and to outdoor days. Let our spirit be that expressed by one of the hardiest of our Canadian singers, Arthur Stringer:

"'When I quail at the snow on the uplands,
When I crawl from the glare of the sun,
When the trails that are lone invite me not,
And the halfway lamps allure,
Oh, purge me in thy primal fires and fling me on my way.

"'When the wine has all ebbed from an April,
When the Autumn of life forgets
The call and the lure of the widening west,
The wind in the straining rope,
Oh, on the anvil of thy wrath, remake me, God, that day.'"

Mrs. Murphy is a woman of such varied and buoyant activities that one may well hesitate to say what she does best or where she is most at home.

In the course of her educational career Mrs. Murphy, then Miss Emily Ferguson, attended Bishop Strachan School, Toronto, and carefully observed the rules of that historic institution. She was married at the age of nineteen to Rev. Arthur Murphy, an Anglican clergyman, and entered with a light heart on parish work in western Ontario. After a trip to the old country, Mrs. Murphy wrote a series of sketches, "Janey Canuck Abroad," which attracted much attention for their bright and original comment on things European, from German cooking to English ritualism. There followed a move from Ontario to Manitoba, where Mr. Murphy engaged in timbering and agricultural pursuits, assisted by his wife, who also kept up her literary work, contributing to various magazines and continuing her duties as a review editor of The Winnipeg Telegram.

However, the far west was beckoning, and the Murphy household finally found itself established near the banks of the Saskatchewan, in Edmonton, where Mr. Murphy is interested in both mining and church work. Mrs. Murphy is indeed a woman of the west, and is as exhilarating as a mountain breeze when she discourses on the past, present and future of the land of golden opportunities. Hers is not the cheap optimism of the real-estate expert, nor the unthinking boast of the inexperienced. Hers is the belief which has seen hardships endured and work crowned with success and is confident of the fulfillment of To-morrow. In the bright lexicon of Janey Canuck there is no such word as "fail."

Mrs. Murphy's book, "Janey Canuck in the West," was a most enjoyable collection of sketches of the author's adopted country and showed a breadth of intellectual grasp as well as a keen sympathy with all phases of human endeavor which stimulated the reader's interest in the people of Canada's great new provinces.

Maybe a trip to a store to-day is the most profitable possible use of your time—or a little of it!

ALD. GRAHAM IN ACCIDENT

Horse Knocked Him off His Bicycle, and Nearly Trampled Upon Him.

Ald. James Graham while riding his wheel up George street, north, was knocked off the machine by a horse and rig, the wheel being badly smashed and the rider narrowly escaping serious injury. The scene of the collision was at the corner of Hunter and George at the south crossing. While Mr. Graham was on the ground a street car was approaching, and but for quick work of the motorman there might have been a more serious ending to the accident. The names of the occupants of the rig could not be ascertained. The horse put a hoof right through one of the bicycle wheels, breaking spokes and tire and altering the shape of the machine in other ways. Ald Graham had a narrow escape under the hoofs of the horse. The driver stopped and apologized for any liability on his part for the accident.

NEW INSURANCE ACT TAKES EFFECT

Companies Under Heavy Expense Providing New Stationery

Under the new Fire Insurance Act which goes into effect throughout the province August 1st, the company will be required to pay for damages by lightning, whether an actual fire results or not. The insured, whose property is damaged, will be permitted to employ workmen for fifteen days a year, instead of for five days as at present. Other changes are made in the old law with regard to renewal receipts.

The insurance companies are put to a heavy expense in the printing of new stationery but the new act is generally acceptable to them.

RIFLE RANGE SITE SELECTED

Local Regiment Will Get Place for Target Practice.

Word has been received here by Mr. Burnham that a site has been decided upon for the Rifle Range. It will be necessary, however, to have the purchasing arranged for by Order-in-Council and this will be done in due course. It is satisfactory to know that the arduous labors of the summer in this respect are likely to turn out acceptably. For years the local regiment has been without a range greatly to the detriment of regimental efficiency.

The local regiment has at present no place for rifle practice except in the range gallery at the armories and there the marksmen are limited to a distance of about forty yards. What they want is a range where they can shoot at a target placed at a distance of one thousand or fifteen hundred yards.

COLLECTING AND DELIVERING DEVICE

A new mail pouch collecting and delivering device, which, it is hoped, will prove vastly superior to the present system, has been tested by a number of prominent officials of the Railway Commission, and of the Grand Trunk Railway at Ottawa, within the past couple of days. The device is the invention of Dr. W. M. Corthill of Washington, D.C., and has been approved by the United States Government. It consists of a swinging gate attached to the door of a railway mail car and a crane erected at the side of the track. The gate is so constructed as to strike a pouch of mail suspended from the crane, at an angle of 30 degrees, thereby reducing the shock of contact, and throwing the sack of mail safely into the car. A great advantage is that it does away with the necessity of a clerk standing at the open door of a car to throw the pouch out. The officials were highly pleased with the eight trials which took place, some of them at the speed of [illegible] miles an hour, and expressed the opinion that this system was the right one, provided that several minor matters would be adjusted to local requirements. Up to the present, mail bags have only been caught up, weighing 10 pounds and under, but the new device has no such limitations.

VISITING BOWLERS PLAYED HERE

Yesterday there was an excursion from Bowmanville and vicinity to Peterborough and on to the lakes. The party included two rinks of lawn bowlers from Bowmanville, and the occasion was given added interest by one rink from Keene. Play was held on the greens on Aylmer street. The morning games resulted as follows:

First Round—Pratt vs. Lyle of Bowmanville. Score 11—14 in favor of Lyle.

Waddell vs. McWilliams, of Keene—Score 13—8 in favor of Waddell.

Fitzgerald vs. Bayman, of Bowmanville. 14—8 in favor of Fitzgerald.

Second Round—Waddell vs. Lyle. 14—7 in favor of Waddell.

Fitzgerald drew a bye.

Final Round—Fitzgerald vs. Waddell. 15—9 in favor of Fitzgerald.

The winning rink received, as prizes, four razors. The losers in the final received pearl handled knives.

Many a woman knows that "pocket money" doesn't just "happen"—but that it is SAVED by careful BUYING. Ad-students usually "happen" to have pocket money.

Someone of to-day's ads touches your SELF-INTEREST, so unmistakably that it comes to have ESPECIAL VALUE for you!

A good many offers of "things to wear" in to-day's ads. Everyone of these offers will find "takers."

THE COOKING OF CEREALS.

Some Old Fashioned Foods That Deserve a Revival.

Old fashioned oatmeal requires a much longer time to cook, as every one knows, than the kind usually found for sale nowadays. Yet many housekeepers prefer it and when they can get it gladly take the extra trouble required to prepare it. To cook it use a scant quart of water to every heaping cupful of the cereal. Salt it and boil it two hours the day before serving. Then turn it into a double boiler and let it cook slowly all night. In the morning bring it forward and let it boil up well for a minute or two. Serve immediately while hot. Some palates prefer a thicker gruel, in which case use only three cupfuls of water to a cupful of the meal.

Samp is a delicious old cereal that should be seen more often on the tables of today. Like old fashioned oatmeal, it requires long cooking. It is very nice for Sunday suppers or as a starchy vegetable in place of rice or potatoes for dinner. Soak in water two cupfuls of samp all night. In the morning wash thoroughly. Cover with boiling water and cook steadily all day, adding more water as it boils down. An hour before serving stir into it a tablespoonful of butter and a cupful of milk. Season thoroughly with salt. Boil up well and serve hot.

Left over samp is very nice fried. Grease a very hot frying pan and spread the hominy over it. Season with a little salt and pepper. Brown and fold like an omelet. Serve with tomato sauce.

Old fashioned wheat calls for four cupfuls of cold water for every cupful of the grain. Let it come gradually to the boiling point and cook steadily for one hour.

The day on which the wife becomes a regular ad-reader was a day of even better fortune than the one on which the husband had a salary raise!

Enthusiasm is frequently arrested for exceeding the speed limit.

Go to the store whose ad impressed you strongly—and you'll go to the right one, NEARLY ALWAYS!

EXTENSIVE IMPROVEMENTS TO THE TRENT CANAL SYSTEM

Dominion Government Has Been Busy—New Lighthouses, Dams and Locks—New Docks at Peterborough Nearly Ready.

On Lake Simcoe a large gang of men are busy erecting lighthouses, at Big Bay Point, Kempenfeldt, Barrie Roach's Point, Thorough Island and Strawberry Island, near Orillia, and also buoying the shores of Lake Simcoe. This is work which is being done by the Trent Canal for the Department of Marine and Fisheries.

There are also improvements being made to Beaverton Harbor, at Big Bay Point, a new dock costing $5,000; Belle-Ewart dock, costing $4,500; Beaverton dock, costing $15,000; Orillia, costing $4,000. These latter docks are being built with the appropriations voted through the Public Works' department.

Lake Simcoe has been for a great many years neglected by the Government, no money having been spent on it in docks, lighthouses, etc., and the present Government have seen the necessity of improving it, as it is now a very important part of the Trent Canal system.

Extensive operations are going on around Lindsay river, owing to the difficulty in getting boats up to the low dock at that place. The Department of Railways and Canals is now blasting and dredging a channel 100 feet wide and 10 feet deep from the Lindsay dock down past Baker's mill to deep water, about one mile long. This will make Lindsay one of the best harbors on the Trent waters. They are also taking the rock dredged there to Sturgeon Lake and making two entrance piers from the lake into Lindsay river.

Some years ago there was an entrance from Stoney Lake to Lindsay made of piles. These have all washed away and the entrance has filled up. This is a work appreciated by steamboat men and the residents of Lindsay, and also a great benefit to lumbermen who tow logs in rafts up the river.

The locks and dam at Bobcaygeon have undergone large improvements this year. Bobcaygeon certainly presents the best appearance in twenty years. Lovesick dam and the lock gates have all been repaired and painted, also the lockhouse. Lovesick is now in good repair and looks clean and tidy. The three dams on Deer Bay have been repaired, new stop logs put in and benefits greatly the holding of the water on that reach.

Burleigh Falls dam has been corked and tuck painted, the lock gates repaired and painted, the bridge painted. A new dam which has has been under construction is now finished and in fact, Burleigh presents a highly creditable appearance to what it has heretofore. The new dock at Mount Julian has been completed and a store house placed on it for the convenience of persons in the country. A light has also been placed on the Mt. Julian dock.

There is a new lighthouse on Cameron Lake, at the entrance to Rosedale Locks. The new dock in Peterboro, is being filled in, graded and sodded, and will soon be ready for use. There is a new dock to be built immediately on the end of the boundary road between North and South Monaghan on the Otonabee river for the convenience of the farmers in that neighborhood. There is also another dock to be built on the Otonabee side opposite Wedlocks for the convenience of the farmers. The light house at the fork of the Otonabee, entering Rice Lake is being placed and lighted, and will prove a great help.

The light on Tick Island on Rice Lake, is now under construction and will be in operation next week. The wharf at Harwood, Pengellys, Gore's Landing, Bewdley, Dummitt, are all being repaired and put in first class order. Next week the buoys will be all overhauled and repaired in Stoney Lake. This would have been done before, but was delayed owing to the presence of log drives.

The amount of work now being done on the Trent Canal, shows that the Dominion Government are taking more interest this year and doing more to put the canal in first class order, than has been done for some years in the past. The remarks that have been passed that Hon. Frank Cochrane was indifferent to the canal, are certainly without foundation, or this work would not be going on. No matter what is said to the contrary the people can rest assured that the Trent Canal has a good friend in Hon. Frank Cochrane.

All the members along the route of the Trent Canal, have not been idle in pressing their claims of the Trent Canal upon the Government.

CITY COUNCIL NOT TO INTRUDE IN SETTLING MOULDERS' STRIKE

Ald. Johnston Suggested Mediative Measures—Council Will Wait Until Asked.

With a view to securing for Peterborough improved freight rates, Mr. J. H. Burnham, M.P., was present at a special meeting of the City Council last night. A meeting of the interested parties will be called for Friday evening at which the Board of Trade and manufacturers of the city will be asked to be present and take part in the discussion.

Ald. Johnston sprung somewhat of a surprise on the Council, when he mentioned the existing strike of the moulders at the Peter and Wm. Hamilton Companies, and suggested that they might be able to act as a conciliating medium between the opposing factions. The fact that strike breakers had been imported from Hamilton was serious enough to warrant consideration, in the opinion of Ald. Johnston. In support of his suggestion Ald. Johnston referred to the time of the trouble between the E. F. Ackerman Company and their men, which the Council had helped materially in settling. He thought that similar action might be useful in the present strike situation.

Mayor Bradburn stated that he personally or any member of the Council, he thought, would be pleased to help in alleviating the trouble, but considered that it would not be policy by any means to think of it doing until solicited by the interested parties.

Ald. Morgan said that the firms would have to capitulate to the men's demands eventually, as they were losing money every day.

Several of the other aldermen gave their opinions on the matter.

It was also pointed out that the two firms who are holding out, were the very ones who had received concessions from the city.

Council did not feel like interesting itself in any conciliatory measures until personally asked by the parties concerned. The question was left in abeyance, in the hope that the strike would wear itself out.

MOULDERS' STRIKE STILL CENTRE OF PUBLIC INTEREST

Large Crowds Gather Daily at the Factory Which is the Scene of the Trouble and Where the New Men are Confined—Further Statements by the Company and Men.

The large factory of the William Hamilton Company was the central point of interest in the city yesterday and large crowds gathered in the vicinity at each meal hour, when provisions were brought for the new moulders who are at work there. There was a good deal of jibing and chaffing indulged in by the crowd, but nothing like an attempt at violence was made. The men are kept in the building on the east side of the street where the moulding department is, and are not allowed to cross the street to the main building. Not a sight of one of them was obtained by the curious crowd. The striking moulders keep pickets in the vicinity all day, but the men inside cannot be reached.

The company does not appear to be worrying over the situation. They claim that the men are competent and that other moulders can be obtained just as soon as it is seen that the moulding department can be operated.

PIECE WORK SYSTEM.

Manager McFarlane said to-day that it was unfair on the part of the men to give prominence to their statement to the fact that the Lock Works conceded the nine-hour day just as soon as it was demanded by the union. In that factory the piece work system prevails, so that it is immaterial to the firm how many or how few hours the men work.

ANOTHER STATEMENT FROM THE UNION.

An officer of the union stated this morning that when two years ago the company raised the minimum rate of wages from $2.30 to $2.75 a day, this meant an increase of only 8 1-4 cents a day, and that no man outside of the foreman of the shop ever received more than the minimum scale. They complain, too, that their work was not steady and say that the company could have reduced the hours of labor and still had no difficulty in keeping up with their orders.

THE COST OF CASTINGS.

With reference to the statement by the company that they could purchase castings cheaper than they could make them, the men assert that if such is the case it is not due to lack of efficiency on their part, but to the conditions under which their work is carried on.

PROFESSIONAL STRIKE BREAKERS.

"The men the company have under lock and key," said an officer of the union, "are professional strike breakers, and we know they are not competent moulders. If they could break loose now they would go back to Hamilton at once for monetary consideration from us. This we know, for they made us that offer before the company confined them in the factory. They told us, too, that they were promised from $3.25 to $3.50 a day. None of our men tried to intimidate restaurant keepers or delivery waggon owners. But we do hold that the latter were violating the law by carrying on their business on Sunday."

"What to eat" is a subject never wholly absent from the day's ads!

WEDDING BELLS

BARWICK — BULLER

At Lustleigh, Devonshire, Eng., the marriage took place recently of Mr. William Stanley Barwick, eldest son of the late William Barwick and Mrs. Barwick, British Columbia, to Miss Charlotte Eva, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edmund Ridley Buller, of Vancouver B.C., formerly of Campbellford, Northumberland County, Ont. Rev. Canon Palmer conducted the ceremony. The church was beautifully decorated with ferns and pink roses. Miss Frances Buller, sister of the bride, was bridesmaid, and Mr. F. L. Beecher of Vancouver, was best man. Mr. and Mrs. Barwick will spend the summer travelling in England, Scotland and Wales, returning to Vancouver to take up residence next Autumn.

SHOULD PLAY GOLF.

Canada Herself Is to Blame For Her Poor Showing.

Canadians in general have a habit of looking upon the game of golf as a pleasant, gentle pastime for elderly persons with an inherent dislike for the more strenuous forms of sport. There are many younger enthusiasts who follow the game perfunctorily at various clubs in the Dominion, but the great majority consists of middle-aged men, says The Montreal Standard.

Canada takes considerable pride in the fact that she has turned out one international champion, in the person of Miss Dorothy Campbell, but Miss Campbell is not a Canadian golfer. She came to this country from Scotland already the possessor of many golfing laurels and women's championships. That she joined the Hamilton Golf Club was a matter of luck for Canada. Then there is George S. Lyon, who almost won the amateur national championship of the United States some years ago, and with that the roll of honor for Canada closes abruptly.

There is an excellent reason for the poor showing made by Canada in international golf, and that is the common assumption that golf is "an old man's game." It becomes ever more popular in England with the younger generations, but in this country the youngsters are over-absorbed in tennis, baseball or lacrosse. Golf is considered an excellent way to spend an idle afternoon, but further than that is left to the elders.

Canada has produced champions in nearly every form of sport. Lou Scholes proved himself to be the world's best oarsman when he won the Diamond Sculls at Henley. Butler, of the Toronto Argonauts, was an easy winner of his event in last year's international rowing race in the United States, and even to professional boxing there has been once a world's champion born in Canada, Tommy Burns, by name. In lacrosse Canada is given the palm, as in hockey; but when it comes to golf Canada is regarded much in the light of a growing child by other countries of the world.

Even Australia, the far-off colony, has produced golfers who could romp off with the Canadian championship in short order. At the British amateur championship tournament last year an eighteen-year-old left-handed golfer went to England from Australia and was responsible for the easy defeat of Charles Evans, Jr., a former United States champion, and considered one of the strongest golfers in the republic.

Golf is most decidedly a young man's game, if the young man in question takes an interest in it. He learns many things not taught by any other sport. Steady nerves are essential, so too is self-control. He must learn to be beaten with a smile, and win with a word of appreciation for his opponent. It is a game which keeps every muscle of the body in perfect control, and ready to respond to every intricacy of a game demanding perfect union between mind and muscle. Above all, the game is clean, and produces the best sportsmen in the world.

In the preparatory schools of England, golf has become popular. There are innumerable public courses where the least wealthy can play to his heart's content at no expense other than for clubs and balls. Until Canada arrives at this stage there will never be an international champion who can call Canada his home.

WHITE CAPS LOST EXCITING GAME TO GUELPH IN SEVENTH

Cannonade of Hits Drove Erd From Box in the Seventh—Applegate Pitched Well for Visitors—Beautiful Hit by Trout in First.

Yesterday's ball game at Riverside gave Guelph their third consecutive victory over the White Caps. The contest for the lowest round on the league ladder is becoming quite interesting, and it is the daily prayer of the fans that "Davy's" pets will not annex the "booby" prize. The local's chances for pulling out a win were shattered yesterday in the seventh innings, by the erratic flinging of Erd for the Petes, who was pounded unmercifully for six runs. Osborne was sent out to relieve him and fortunately prevented the score from increasing. The going was good right up till the seventh, and it appeared that the Petes had the contest tucked away, but the inevitable happened when Erd blew up. The latter looks good, however, and if he had continued the same brand of twirling, the board would have told a different tale.

TROUT'S GREAT HIT.

A large crowd of the fans witnessed the go, and the game especially in the chrysalis stages looked good from the bleachers. Guelph worked in one run in each of the first two innings, but the Petes doubled it each time, making the score 4—2 in their favor. From then up to the seventh there was nothing doing for either team. In the first innings Brant and Barthold both came home on a beautiful two bag hit by Trout, who was put out at second. Trout's hit was one of the most nicely placed of the game; a perfect liner to left field.

Guelph came up to bat, in the second, first man up reaching second on a hard crack to left field, that Swartz missed after a long chase. Second man up was out on a fly to Brant. Next man went to first on a hit to Nickels who fielded ball well, but threw short to first. Third man, out, fanned by Erd. Man on second reached home on a long drive, making one for the visitors. Score 2—1 for Petes.

In the second innings Beard went to second on a nice hit to right field. White bunted and beat the ball to first. Beard reached third place. Beard came home on fumble by Guelph catcher. The Petes captured another, making score 4—2. In the next four innings neither side tallied, but in the seventh, the visitors jumped ahead through well placed hits off Erd.

OSBORNE PITCHED WELL.

In the eighth innings Peterborough got another. Osborne retired Guelph with only one hit, pitching clever ball. Nothing was scored in the ninth and the game was over.

Applegate, the Guelph flinger, allowed eleven hits against the ten secured off the two Petes twirlers.

The score was as following:

		R.	H.	E.
Peterborough	220000010—	5	10	5
Guelph	110000600—	8	12	4

Guelph batteries — Applegate and Daniels.

BREEZES FROM THE DIAMOND

Pitcher McManus, although he is doing nicely, is not likely to be out again this season. Dr. Birkett thought that he would be able to have the big twirler out again within three weeks but Mac now looks in for a long spell of the fever.

That the Brantford fans are keen on their team was only too evident Saturday. Fully three hundred of them were in attendance at the game and they made things interesting all the way, their jubilation in the ninth being a feature of the day.

Third Baseman Fox, of the London team, was fined $10 by Manager Barrett, of the Cockneys for using vile language to fans in the grand stand during the second game on Saturday. The London management are talking of giving him his release, as he got in wrong with the crowd. They may also release Pitcher Silcox.

C. G. E. TEAMS PLAY BASE BALL

Meter Department Defeated the Armature Department Team 14 to 7.

In a fast and exciting game of baseball on Saturday afternoon, July 27, at the King Edward School grounds, the Meter department defeated the Armature department by the score of 14 to 7. In batting and base running the Meterites had it over the Armature like a tent.

The Armature used two pitchers during the fray, and had but five strike-outs, while Anderson, who pitched for the Meter, had fourteen.

The feature of the game was the hard hitting of Thurber; He had a home run, a three base hit, and also a two bagger, his all round work with the stick scoring a good many runs.

The line-up for the winners was as follows:

Cooke, catcher.
Anderson, pitcher.
Williams, 1st base.
Wheeler, 2nd base.
Asta, 3rd base.
Eakins, short-stop.
Hayes, right field.
Thurber, centre field.
Wells, left field.

The Meterites hereby challenge the Armature, Assembly, and also the Brass department to a game of ball at any time, place or date.

LADIE'S DAY AT BALL GAME

Points for Mothers

Baby's Diet.

The majority of babies who die before they are a year old die from gastro-intestinal disease (so called stomach trouble). In nearly every case the cause is an error in feeding, says Edith Lowery.

It is no uncommon sight upon entering a home to see a six-months-old baby being fed potatoes and other vegetables, soft bread and cake and then given a drink of coffee, tea or even beer.

A small baby is unable to digest much except milk, and if the stomach is constantly imposed upon by being forced to take care of these foreign substances it rebels and will not do its work properly. As a result the baby is sick.

Until a baby is a year old it should live almost entirely upon good pure milk. It also requires a moderate amount of water every day. The only addition to the diet should be a teaspoonful of orange juice once a day after it is six months old. The habit practiced by some mothers of taking the baby to the table during the regular meal and giving it a taste of the various articles of food is reprehensible.

After the baby is a year old a little prune juice or pulp of a baked apple may be given once a day. Gradually other articles of food may be added, but these must be such as are easily digested. Meat broths, soft boiled eggs, cereals and baked potato moistened with milk should be the chief things given. At first these should be given only at the noonday meal, but gradually they may be added to other meals. Oatmeal is a good winter food for children. It should not be given in summer, as it is too heating.

The child should be urged to drink plenty of water between meals, but never should be given ice water. No drugs should ever be given except on the advice of a physician. Especially should mothers shun "soothing sirups" as they would poison, for these have caused the deaths of numerous babes.

When a young baby is fed upon cow's milk, this should be from a good dairy. Usually milk from a herd of cattle is better than that from one cow, as it varies less from day to day. Milk from Jersey or Guernsey cattle usually is too rich for babies. Absolute cleanliness in the care of the milk is imperative. Milk must be kept strictly clean and free from all contaminating odors. Bottles and milk pans should be scalded every day with hot water in which a little baking soda has been dissolved. Afterward they should be rinsed with clear water.

If mothers would remember that babies do not "catch" diarrheal and intestinal troubles, but that they eat them or drink them, they would be more careful of baby's food.

Teach Children to Amuse Themselves.

To teach children to amuse themselves is the duty of every mother. The baby that requires constant dandling, the shaking of a rattle, the walking or rocking, the constant, never ending amusing, will grow into the fractious, nervous child without any resources. Indeed, the very happiest little ones are those who must make a fishing rod of a branch, a length of cord and a bent pin, to illustrate. It is in the preparing rather than in the actual performing that a child's pleasure lies, and when deprived of this there is no motive.

Grownups must remember that children enjoy the make believe far more than the reality and manage accordingly. Like what is known as "predigested" food, there is nothing left for the childish energies to accomplish, just as there is nothing left for the natural functions of the physical body to do in the way of digesting.

Books are of course a very great help, but there is always the chance of the little one growing into sedentary habits if too great a love of reading is developed. One of the most intelligent and really intellectual men I know has an only son, a splendid boy, and, while the man is an insatiable reader, he declares that he doesn't care a rap whether the boy ever reads a book through or not if he will only keep his body and soul clean. This is radical, to be sure, but voracious readers, unless cultivating a literary turn, may pay for their taste in too acute sentimentalism and an almost absolute lack of practical knowledge of actual life.

But it is the mothers that are the right ones, the only ones so to train their children that play will be real play—mirthful, full of the childish realization that fails when maturity comes. It is the mothers that must cover their tracks, so to speak, making it appear to the inquiring, innocent, yet hard to deceive children that they themselves are doing the whole thing. So will the little ones grow self resourceful and easy to be interested and amused.

DETAILS OF POLICE GRAFT ARE NOW COMING TO LIGHT

Confessions of Rose and Webber and the Arrest of Lieut. Becker, Charged With the Murder of Herman Rosenthal, Create a Sensation That Has Only Begun — Becker May Tell All He Knows.

New York, July 31.—Sworn statements tending to show that the annual graft collected by high police officials in New York City from gambling houses and other illegal resorts within the last year was $2,400,000 are in the hands of District Attorney Whitman to-day. The statements were made to the district attorney yesterday by "Bald Jack" Rose, self-confessed graft collector for Police Lieut. Charles Becker, head of the "Strong Arm Squad," who last night began his second day of incarceration in the Tombs Prison as an alleged instigator of the murder of Herman Rosenthal, the gambler.

This annual yield of $2,400,000 protection money was equally divided, according to the story told by Rose, among four high officials of the police department, one of them being Becker, and from other evidence the district attorney has collected he has reason to suspect that each $600,000 was further distributed. In other words, there were four separate systems or bureaus of graft collection, each headed by a high police official.

Mr. Whitman, it was learned, has the names of the other three police officials whom Rose has named and his further efforts in this now most sensational "police exposure" that New York has ever seen will be directed toward strengthening the evidence which points against them. One of the officials named, it was learned, holds a position at headquarters and is in a strict sense a civilian employe.

The name of a former prominent city official has been brought to the attention of the district attorney as having been closely connected with the "graft system," but it was learned that the evidence thus far obtained against him is not of a tangible nature.

The evidence, however, is being closely followed by the detectives in the employ of the district attorney.

It also became known last night that if Lieut. Becker will tell all he knows, not only in respect to his own alleged complicity in the murder, but will unfold the inner workings of the graft system in so far as it may involve the "men higher up," that he will be granted mercy, and on that condition only.

The alleged fact of the $2,400,000 graft fund was told to Rose by Becker, the little, bald-headed gambler, said in a sworn statement yesterday. Becker, he said, told him that he handled $600,000 a year, and that equal amounts were handled by three other officials. This, he said, came in collections from gambling houses, poolrooms, houses of ill-repute, and the like.

"Bridgie" Webber, the gambling housekeper, who has also confessed, and whose story largely resulted in the arrest of Becker, promised Mr. Whitman, it was learned, to corroborate Rose's statement in regard to the collections. Incidentally, Webber yesterday admitted to the district attorney that $2,000 was the sum which he received to pay the men who actually fired the shots which killed Rosenthal.

The gamblers' confession caused a sensation in official circles that is without precedent, but the arrest of Lieut. Becker, and the placing him in the Tombs was the climax which threatens to shake the American police system to its foundations. District Attorney Whitman firmly believes that the story of police graft is as yet only half told, and the next two or three days will see the arrest of several officers higher up in the service.

"Bald Jack" stated that Lieut. Becker approached him, and, feeling desperate over Rosenthal's intention of telling all he knew of his relations with the police department, exclaimed, "Rosenthal has lived too long. He has got to be put out of the way."

The public prosecutor and grand jury were told how the gunmen were hired at the instigation of the leader of New York's "Strong Arm Gang," and that after the murder he met Rose and Webber and promised complete police protection.

The actual murderers, according to the men who have turned state's evidence, are "Lefty Louis" or Louis Rosenberg, Harry Howitz or "Gib the Blood," Frank Muller or "Whitie Jack" Lewis, and "Dago Frank" Cirofici. The last named is the only member of the gang who has yet been placed under arrest. These men were all members of the notorious "Big Jack" Zelig gang. They had plied themselves with liquor, and then went out and shot Rosenthal for a price which is affirmed to be in the neighborhood of $5,000.

Terror-stricken, Rose told how he met Becker in company with Webber a few days before the murder was committed, when Becker emphatically declared that the killing had to be gone through with, or he would send them all up for a term of years.

Rose and Webber say they believed that Lieut. Becker would send them away, and had the power to do it. Then the murder plot unfolded itself.

Monday night came and with it the word for the gunmen to get together. Rose told how he got the assassins together, and how, after the killing, he went over to the Hotel Metropole to see how the job had been done. Rosenthal lay dead upon the sidewalk with a tablecloth spread over his body. Rose says he went to a telephone booth and called up Lieut. Becker, but he was so unnerved by the shock he could only gasp: "My God, this is horrible!"

Becker, Rose says in his confession, replied over the wire in a steady voice "Oh, don't worry. I'll protect you. Wait a few minutes and I'll be right down."

The chase of the slayers became hot and finally Rose says that Becker advised him over the telephone to surrender, but that everything would come out all right. Of the real murderers, Rose says in his confession:

"These poor devils did not know what they were doing. They were full of booze. They had been told to kill, and they went out and did what they were told."

The three prisoners, Rose, Webber, and Vallon, were still in a state of terror this morning, though guarded by a squad of detectives, who locked them in a room in the district attorney's office. Webber was hysterical, and frequently wept during the night.

LORD MERSEY MAKES REPORT

Ismay and Duff-Gordon Both Escape Censure.

London, July 31.—The judgment of the British Board of Trade court of enquiry into the disaster to the White Star liner Titanic, which sank in midocean, with 1,517 souls after collision with an iceberg on April 14, was pronounced yesterday by Lord Mersey, the presiding judge, before a large audience.

The court finds that the collision of the Titanic with the iceberg was due to the excessive speed at which the ship was navigated, that a proper watch was not kept, that the ship's boats were not properly lowered but that arrangements for manning them were insufficient, that the Leyland liner Californian, might have reached the Titanic if she had attempted to do so, that the track followed was reasonably safe with proper vigilance and that there was no discrimination against third-class passengers in the saving of life.

The court of enquiry exonerates J. Bruce Ismay, chairman and managing director of the White Star Line, and Sir Cosmo Duff-Gordon, one of the passengers, from any charges of improper conduct.

While the judgment was being delivered, no attempt at rhetoric was made. There was no argument and no direct reference to the enquiry by the committee of the United States Senate under the chairmanship of Senator William Alden Smith.

The court thinks changes may be necessary in the size and type of boats carried by ships and in the methods of slowing and launching them. Possibly it may be necessary to reserve one or more of the decks for the carrying of boats and the drilling of the crew.

PORTS TO BE NATIONALIZED

Hon. F. D. Monk Will Make Important Recommendation.

Ottawa, July 31.—That the Government, acting upon the advice of Hon. F. D. Monk, will at the next session of Parliament, announce a bold, broad policy of nationalization of ports, is the belief here in political circles.

It is understood that the Minister is now formulating a scheme which he will recommend in Cabinet Council, and which will be largely along the lines suggested by the 1906 commission. As Mr. Borden has on several occasions himself favored the nationalization idea it is felt that the policy will be put in practical and early operation.

Another Victim of Gangsters.

New York, July 31.—James Verall, manager of a saloon on West 34th street, near the corner of Broadway, was shot and instantly killed in an altercation with a disorderly crowd of gangsters in front of his bar yesterday morning. Jacob Pibba, his cashier, was also shot and dangerously wounded. The police arrested two suspects, one of whom carried a half emptied revolver.

The scene of the murder is only a few blocks from the corner where the Rosenthal murder occurred.

ASQUITH TO COME TO CANADA

English Premier and Visitors May Cross the Ocean.

London, July 31.—The London Daily Mail states that it is now understood that Premier Asquith, the First Lord of the Admiralty, Winston Churchill, will visit the Dominion after the return of Mr. Borden and his colleagues, but the date has not yet been definitely fixed. At any event, the visit of a Britsh Dreadnought might be made the occasion of an Imperial demonstration, and out of compliment to the French-Canadians, Quebec would be an ideal place to hold the celebrations.

A Kingston Heroine.

Kingston, July 31.—Miss Nettie Campbell of Sanbury proved herself a heroine here yesterday. She was driving with five others when the horse shied at a motor cycle and overturned the carriage into the ditch. The occupants escaped with a few bruises. As Miss Campbell crawled out from under the carriage she grabbed hold of the horse and was dragged some distance. She had her clothes torn off, but succeeded in bringing the animal to a standstill.

Quiet at Last.

Port Arthur, Ont., July 31.—Quiet reigns to-day in the section where the former employes of the Canadian Coal & Dry Dock Co. met in hand-to-hand battle with the city police and for a time so threatened property and public order that the militia was called out. The staff of militiamen has been cut down to one company and it is possible that the situation will again be left in the hands of the city and Canadian northern police by to-morrow.

BRISTOL PEOPLE REACH MONTREAL

Delegation to Attend the Cabot Anniversary.

Montreal, July 31.—The delegation of Bristol citizens who are coming to Canada to attend the Cabot anniversary at Halifax on Aug. 14 and 15 are due to arrive in Montreal this evening on the Canadian Northern liner Royal Edward. They consist of the lord mayor of Bristol, with the lady mayoress and Miss Wills, Mr. and Mrs. G. Palliser Martin and Henry Riseley.

Mr. Riseley has taken great interest in promoting trade between Canada and the port of Bristol, and was a member of the Bristol delegation which toured Canada a couple of years ago.

Sir William Mackenzie is also on the Royal Edward.

PREMIER ASQUITH.

The London Daily Mail states that he will visit Canada at an early date in company with Winston Churchill and other members of his Cabinet.

U. S. Again Protests.

Washington, July 31.—The United States has again protested to the Mexican Government, and to General Orozco, leader of the revolutionists, against attack upon American citizens and property in northern Mexico.

Secretary Knox yesterday officially renewed his notice of two months ago, that the United States would hold Mexico to strict account for all damages, and unofficially notified Orozco that he would be held personally responsible for damages to Americans or their property. President Madero has promised to send more troops to northern Mexico.

DEMOCRATS AGAIN REFUSE TO REPEAL RECIPROCITY

Proposal to Repeal Killed by Vote of 127 to 107.

Special to the Review.

Washington, July 31.—For the second time the House of Representatives has declined to repeal the Reciprocity Pact, a division of the House yesterday resulting in a vote of 127 to 107 against the proposed repeal. The Democratic members voted solidly with the majority. The result is a deadlock with the Republican Senate, which repealed the treaty for the second time last week.

The Democrats evidently intend to make Reciprocity an issue in their approaching campaign, in the hope that Canada may yet agree to the adoption of the treaty.

Senator Washburn Dead.

Minneapolis, Minn., July 31.—Former U. S. Senator William D. Washburn, for many years prominent in political life of the United States and one of the leaders in the upbuilding of the northwest, died here Monday night. He was 81 years of age.

Ne Temere Unchanged In Canada.

Montreal, July 31.—It was stated by Rev. Chancellor Harbour at the archbishop's palace yesterday afternoon that any recent revocation of that clause of the ne temere decree ruling that a Protestant wishing to marry a Roman Catholic must agree to rear the children resulting from the union in the Roman Catholic faith, does not apply to Canada.

MIDLAND ASSOCIATION WILL USE THE HYDRO-ELECTRIC

Hon. Adam Beck Meets With an Enthusiastic Reception When He Enters York, Ontario and Simcoe Counties With a New Power Service—May Draw "Juice" From Niagara or Severn River.

Uxbridge, July 31.—At a meeting in the Music Hall yesterday, attended by about 200 representative farmers and merchants from the district around, including south to Scarboro, and north to Brechin, the Midland Association of the Hydro-Electric Power Union was formed with Mayor Norman R. Beal of Uxbridge as president; Warden D. A. Brown, first vice-president; R. P Coulson, Stouffville, second vice-president; H. P. Cooke, Uxbridge, secretary-treasurer, and an executive committee of one member from each municipality.

A table was submitted by Hon. Adam Beck, giving the estimated cost of power for the anticipated demand of 1,900 horsepower from the eight municipalities in the Uxbridge division. These were approximately: Bradford, 200 h.p., $50; Newmarket, 400 h.p., $40; Aurora, 350 h.p., $49; Richmond Hill, 100 h.p., $49; Markham, 250 h.p., $43; Stouffville, 150 h.p., $41; Uxbridge, 250 h.p.; Port Perry, 200 h.p., $54.

There were two sources of supply for the Midland district, one from the Niagara Falls plant and the other from power sources on the Severn. It would depend on the demand how these would be availed of. The Brechin district if the demand warranted would be supplied from the Severn, which had 1,000 horse-power to meet the demand of 640 from Penetang, Barrie, Beaverton, etc.

The meeting was one of the most solid that has been held in the Hydro-electric interests, and Hon. Mr. Beck was much pleased with his reception.

There is no electric power service in the district at present. The light plant in Uxbridge only serves till midnight and the charge is 10 cents per k.w., which under the Hydro scheme would be reduced to 7 cents.

Heavy Loss Through Collision.

Montreal, July 31.—What is considered as a conservative estimate of the money loss through Saturday's collision follows:

Loss of Helvetia	$275,000
Cost of coal cargo	28,000
Repairs to Empress of Britain	100,000
Loss on trip	300,000
Total	$703,000

Son Accuses Father.

Kingston, July 31.—Shortly after the home and barn of George Offord, near Sharbot Lake, was destroyed by fire, Offord was placed under arrest, charged with arson.

It is alleged that just before the fire was discovered, Offord was seen coming out of the barn with an oil can. His son swore out the warrant for his arrest.

AUTO CAPSIZED; TWO MEN KILLED

Special To The Review.

Forest, July 31.—James Willis, Merrickville, Mich., and another man not identified were found dead under an overturned auto in Warwick township, ten miles from here this morning. They had been dead several hours when found. It is believed the auto turned turtle when it struck a small ditch at the side of the road.

Drowned When Launch Struck Wall.

Montreal, July 31.—Miss Emma Poulliot of Cedar Hall, Que., was drowned Monday night when a gasoline launch, driven by her uncle, A. Boulanger, of Lachine crashed into the masonry near the entrance to the old Lachine Canal at the rate of 20 miles an hour. Mr. Boulanger rescued his sister, but his niece went under before he could reach her. The boat is a total wreck.

Another Collision With Collier.

Rockport, Mass., July 31.—The steamer City of Rockland, bound from Bath, Me., for Boston, was in collision early yesterday in a fog with the collier William Chisholm. The accident is reported to have occurred 30 miles northeast of Boone Island.

All of the passengers on board the City of Rockland were safely transferred to the steamer Belfast, bound from Bangor to Boston. The former was making water rapidly.

PRESCOTT PEOPLE ARE IN A PANIC

Special To The Review.

Prescott, July 31— The people of this neighborhood are in a condition bordering on panic, owing to the threats of a dangerous lunatic, who escaped from Brockville Asylum Sunday, and is now hiding in the woods near here. Keepers from the asylum have been sent for, and an effort will be made to effect the capture of the man, who has threatened to take the lives of those who before made an attempt to secure him.

QUEBEC FARMER FATALLY INJURED

Special to the Review.

Danville, Que., July 31.—A bolt of lightning which caused the destruction of Radnor Armstrong's barn yesterday, pierced a hole in each of Armstrong's thighs and stripped the clothing and boots from his body. He was dragged from the burning building by a lad named Fournier, who also succeeded in getting the horses and cattle to safety.

It is feared Armstrong will not recover.

Look For Bodies.

Uniontown, Pa., July 31.—After 60 hours' continuous labor, workmen yesterday succeeded in cutting through the 65-foot wall separating Lamont Mines No. 1 and No. 2, but found no trace of John Scanlon and John Bolchek, miners caught in the mine by the flood of July 24. Their bodies are believed to be under debris in another part of the mine.

It was decided yesterday to drill from the surface into the workings at the Superba mine, in an effort to recover the bodies of 15 miners who were drowned there last Wednesday. Three big pumps have been working since the mine was flooded and have only lowered the water 16 inches.

PROGRESS OF LIBERAL TOUR

Mr. Rowell and His Party Reach Cobalt.

Cobalt, July 31.—"We have come to you that we may better appreciate and understand the many questions of great interest to this great north country. We seek to become more familiar with conditions as they are on the ground and to meet and confer with our fellow-citizens, the men of the north. We believe that the interests of North Ontario are alike the interests of the whole province, and that there is a primary responsibility on the Government and upon the Legislature to seek to further such a policy as will open up, develop and expand this country of splendid possibilities with the best of settlement. With these ends earnestly in view we have come to greet you, to join hands in a fellow-citizenship of true service for the welfare of our province." This was the keynote of Mr. Rowell's message to the people of the silver belt at the meeting here yesterday.

At the various stopping places on the Timiskaming & Northern Ontario Railway yesterday morning there were gathered enthusiasts and admirers who emphasized their welcome in a hearty manner. When the train steamed into Cobalt a great crowd was waiting at the station, and Mr. Rowell's appearance was a signal for three vigorous cheers. Despite the fact that the weather was cool and cloudy and that a gentle rain sprayed the atmosphere, the gathering which included many ladies, waited until the touring party had been duly received by Mayor Trudel and the officers of the Cobalt Liberal Association. Over the street entrance to the station floated a mammoth streamer with its scarlet inscription, "Cobalt welcomes Rowell."

At the luncheon, which was presided over by Mr. George Ross, short addresses were delivered by the mayor, the president of the Board of Trade, and other representative citizens, bespeaking the appreciation of the north for the evident sympathy and interest which had prompted the tour.

Mr. Borden and Premier Poincare Eulogize the Good Feeling Between France, Britain and Canada at a Big Function In Paris — Rodin, Hervieu, Pallain and Other Are Present.

London, July 31.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—Amidst the strains of the Marseillaise and God Save the King, the Premier of France and the Premier of Canada eulogized the entente cordiale and expressed the desire that the friendly feeling grow deeper and stronger. The leaders of the French haute politique, finance, art, literature, army and navy, were present to applaud in person, and the French Premier, regent of the Bank of France, and Messrs. Pallain, Paul, Hervieu of the Academy Rodin, celebrated artist; Gen. Brugere and representatives of the British and Spanish embassies.

"As years go by and the friction removed between France and Britain, the affection of France for her sons in Canada is expressed more strongly," said the French Premier, in a stirring speech. He looked forward to the future with confidence, because esteem and respect would prevent any possible friction as between France and Canada. He could see nothing to menace the friendship. He raised his glass to Canada and Great Britain.

A citizens' banquet was given by the committee of France Amerique to the Canadians, at which Gabriel Hanotaux, ex-Foreign Minister to France, presided. The entente cordiale, he said, rested on the sentiment of esteem, friendship and common aspirations. He dwelt on the extraordinary development of Canada since the conquest.

"Give us maximum security," said he, "and France will give maximum co-operation." He wished Canada in the future to be worthy of the great nation from which she sprung.

Hon. Mr. Borden, who followed, said, harmonious co-operation of French-Canadians and English-Canadians was a symbol and precursor of an entente cordiale between the republic and not Great Britain alone, but the British Empire. He could assure his hearers of Canadian appreciation of the same.

When Poincare had spoken, Hon. Mr. Pelletier referred to the time when Canada had to raise a voice in the world's affairs, and said it would be glad to be guided by the experience of the two mother countries co-operating, England and France. Canada desired to preserve the world's peace. There was loud applause in which the French Premier joined.

LONDON DOCK LABORERS IN CONFLICT WITH POLICE

One Man Killed and Twenty Seriously Injured in Riot This Morning—Trouble Caused by Dispute Between Strikers and Strike Breakers.

Special To The Review.

London, July 31.—Three persons were wounded by bullets and many others were injured as a result of rioting on Victoria Dock this morning.

Two thousand former strikers appeared for work at the docks and were attended by a mob of men still out. Bullets, brick bats and stones flew in all directions. A dozen police who were on hand were taken completely by surprise and were unable to quell the disturbance.

Seven strikers were shot and one died later in the hospital. Twenty others were seriously injured by stones and clubs. The real cause of the trouble, it has been learned, was an effort on the part of the strike breakers to retain jobs which the former strikers had returned to take.

Dr. Hamilton's Pills Cured

"I think it should be the duty of the schools to teach children how to keep well," writes Miss Nannie E. Naydon, a well-known and highly esteemed resident of Bristol. "Ignorance of the laws of health and the use of improper remedies destroyed my vigor, and led me to the verge of invalidism. I was as a girl ruddy and strong. Nothing seemed to affect me until I was about thirty. Then gas began to form in the stomach. I suffered with bloating and a general failure in strength set in. If I went upstairs my breath hurt. My system was very irregular, and until I grew pretty bad I didn't pay much heed to my condition. Then I got blue, worried all the time, wakened in the night, and couldn't get to sleep again. None of the medicine I took helped me. One day I was reading of a very interesting case like mine cured by Dr. Hamilton's Pills. I took the same treatment. It was just right—didn't gripe me to death, but took hold of the weak, sick parts of my system, and set things right. It seems as if Dr. Hamilton's Pills have made me young again, and all my color, spirits, vigor, and health of former days have returned to stay."

Every girl and woman should use Dr. Hamilton's Pills regularly. They help a woman in many ways. Beware of the dealer who asks you to take an inferior pill on which his profit is larger than on Dr. Hamilton's. Sold in yellow boxes, 25c per box, all dealers, or The Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Ont.

AMEND THE ACT

Amend the British North American Act if it is necessary to do so in order to secure a uniform marriage law for the Dominion seems to be the demand of the general public so far as the opinions of the people are reflected in the press of Ontario, but no sooner is the cry for amendment set up than new obstacles are encountered.

The point is now raised that the Act cannot be amended without the consent of all the provinces in Confederation any more than a private agreement can be set aside in opposition to the will of either or any of the contracting parties. If this contention proves to be sound it will in all probability tend to prolong indefinitely any amendment to the Act. It is not reasonable to suppose that Quebec, getting as she did, all the best of it when Confederation was perfected will be willing to waive any of the rights and privileges which she enjoys under the provisions of the Act especially with regard to the exercise of her religion and the preservation of her language. It is not hard to foresee the difficulties which lie in the pathway of those who would straighten out the legal tangles which are arising every time a high judicial body is called upon to interpret some particular clause of the Act. The end of the marriage muddle is far lost to sight if a settlement is to be effected only through the amendment of the inter-provincial agreement by which Confederation was made possible.

The British North American Act since it became a legal fixture has been used as a mantle time and again to cover a multitude of political sins. Partisans who encounter public condemnation by the adoption of some line of policy can find justification for their position in some clause of the measure. Only the other day the Privy Council interpreted a particular section and by that decision a corporation is given authority to erect poles in any municipality without let or hindrance. That this remarkable situation could have been avoided by the Laurier Government denying the corporation referred to a Dominion charter and by so denying leave its control in the jurisdiction of Ontario is lost sight of apparently and to the fallacy of the Act is charged the entire responsibility for the situation which no one ever dreamed possible until the Privy Council was heard from. The Globe is not slow to take note of this avenue of escape and hides itself behind the Act dragging its party along with it.

The country has evidently been roused from the slumber of fancied security, from its felicitations that it possesses responsible government, to a sense of its danger by the marriage law decision. That the church in any province in the Dominion, ruled by a potentate thousands of miles away, has the right to ride rough-shod over the decrees of the state, declare marriages illegal and the offspring of such unions illegitimate, is a condition of affairs little short of appalling. That the fathers of Confederation, zealous for the blending together of the scattered elements of a nation erred innocently and never for a moment imagined that such a situation could result from their years of arduous labor, does not help matters nor, by so much as a hair-breath, abate the danger.

The fight has already commenced in earnest. One organization in Canada has declared its intention to spend millions of dollars, if that expenditure is necessary, to amend the Act, so that all provinces may enjoy equal rights and the civil courts be recognized as supreme over purely ecclesiastic bodies and the state occupy its true position as the superior of the church in the enactment of decrees whether relating to marriage or any other question of public moment.

BE NEUTRAL

Often it is necessary to pray for deliverance from our friends, lest their misguided efforts to advance our interests may result in our temporal undoing. The striking moulders might, with profit to themselves and their cause, offer up petitions to the same end.

The present trouble between the Moulders' Union and a certain firm of manufacturers, is peculiarly the affair of the two parties directly interested, and we all trust that it will not result in a funeral for either. The public, naturally enough, take sides in the dispute, but, the people who sympathise with the men should maintain a position of strict neutrality and suppressing their feelings, watch the contest from a safe distance. Let the moulders and the firm have the arena to themselves, fair play, and no interference from anyone outside the ropes. So far, the trouble has been free from acrimony on the part of the chief actors. Both sides are firm, and so far, have been inspired with the confidence that their several contentions are right and that victory is assured them.

In the crowds, that have gathered daily about the factory, anything in the nature of warlike demonstrations did not originate with the strikers themselves but among their sympathizers. Members of the union passed through the gathering and offered counsel in the interests of harmony. Last night, when one of the imported men left the security of the factory, where he had been confined for two days and nights, a belligerent individual with indirect interest in the dispute, made a rush at the stranger with evident hostile intentions, and was restrained from personal conflict, only by the intervention of a burly striker.

When men are contending for what they consider a principle, nothing will so soon deprive them of public sympathy as a display of violence, just as drastic measures, adopted by members of the firm would make enemies for them.

Once more, let the public be advised to remain neutral, let the fight go on fairly to a finish and right and justice will eventually triumph.

NOTE AND COMMENT

Peterboro's little labor difficulty looks like a Sunday school pic-nic, compared to the strike they are having up at Fort Arthur.

Lieut. Becker may be arrested for the murder of Gambler Rosenthal but in New York there is many a slip between the court and the electric chair.

Perhaps when the Suffragettes are made to pay out good money for their window smashing diversions, they may be inclined to reason the question and change their tactics.

It requires something more than a collision of a farmer's rig and an alderman's mounted bicycle to work damage to the city father, although his wheel may find its finish in the mix up. Nothing short of a freight train, or perhaps an auto keyed up to full speed, could produce serious results in such a case.

The first duty of Mr. Rowell and his party, when they arrive in New Ontario, on their tour of investigation, will be to convince the populace that they are not liquor detectives in disguise, after which the visitors will be received with every form of generous and hearty hospitality. Nowhere in the world are strangers given warmer welcome than in New Ontario, when their hosts are assured that it is the intention of their guests to play the game fairly.

Montreal Grain and Produce.

MONTREAL, July 30.—The trade in all lines of grain was dull, but exporters stated that there was a better enquiry from foreign buyers for new crop wheat, and that bids were closer to a working basis than they have been yet. The local trade in car lots of oats was fair, but no round lots are changing hands. Some business has been done in new wheat flour for export account for October-November shipment, but the demand for old is very small. The local trade is fair. Millfeed is very active, and millers find it impossible to fill all the orders coming forward promptly. The butter trade is quieter, but firm. Demand for cheese is fair. Eggs active and steady.

Luncheon Asparagus.

Prepare two large slices of toast by slicing lengthwise of the loaf. The slices should be uniform in size and thickness. Toast a nice even brown on both sides. Lay one slice on the heated dish and moisten slightly with a little of the water the asparagus is boiled in. On the toast arrange a layer of nicely boiled asparagus with the tough ends cut off. Cover with a cream sauce to which you have added a little lemon juice and two beaten egg yolks. Place the second slice on the asparagus and add another layer of asparagus and the sauce. Decorate the border with parsley and potato chips or, when served as a luncheon dish, serve thin, crisp brown bacon slices with it. Fresh green peas boiled in salted water and drained, seasoned and a little butter added make a suitable combination and a nice border. Boiled rice or spaghetti increases the value of the dish when either takes the place of meat.

BEAUTIFUL EYES

are made beautiful by long, silky lashes and well defined, lustrous brows. Eyes, like diamonds, depend on their setting. The beauties of the face are lost if the eye brows are thin and scanty, and the lashes are lacking and scanty. Parisian Lash Lustre grows beautiful, soft, silky lashes. It has done so for society women throughout Europe, and it comes here well recommended to do the same for you. Parisian Lash Lustre is not a dye or colorator, but a scientific preparation for beautifying the eye lashes and brows. Our guarantee goes with every box of Parisian Lash Lustre. A two weeks' treatment will bring beauty to your eyes that you have never before possessed. By mail, prepaid, in opal boxes on receipt of price fifty cents. R. V. Woman's World

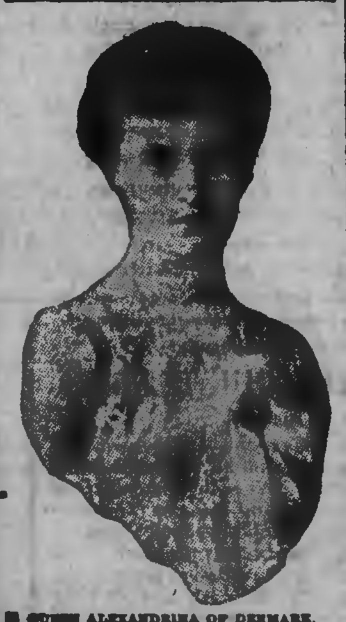
The New Queen of Denmark's Marriage a Love Match.



QUEEN ALEXANDRINA OF DENMARK.

Christian Charles Frederick Albert Alexander William, the new king of Denmark, has lived a life that has been notable for its domestic happiness rather than for any spectacular incidents. To the public outside of his own country he is known particularly for his happy marriage with Princess Alexandrina, the elder daughter of the Grand Duchess Anastasia of Mecklenburg-Schwerin.

It was a pure love match, differing from the unions between royal families which are usually arranged for political expediency. They were wedded at Cannes on April 26, 1898, and have two sons, Christian Frederick Francis Michael Charles Waldemar George, born March 11, 1899, now the crown prince, and Knut Christian Frederick Michael, born July 27, 1900.

The new queen of Denmark is just three months younger than her husband, having been born on Dec. 24, 1870. King Christian X. was born at Charlottenlund on Sept. 26, 1870.

It is interesting to note that the flag under which Christian X. will reign is the oldest national ensign in Europe. Its origin is much mixed up with legend, but it is certain that it dates back to the thirteenth century.

According to the legendary origin of the flag of Denmark, King Waldemar was leading his forces to battle in the year 1219 when a cross suddenly appeared to him in the sky. He adopted the cross as his emblem, went to victory, and thereupon the cross became the dannebrog, or "strength," of Denmark.

The present king is colonel of the Fourteenth regiment of Prussian hussars and a knight of many orders, among them the Golden Fleece, the Black Eagle, the Elephant, the Annunciad, St. Andrew and the Seraphim.

The repetition of the names Frederick and Christian in the members of the royal family of Denmark is notable. This repetition is due to a family law which requires that each son shall bear the name of either Frederick Christian or Christian Frederick. By the same law the monarchs are crowned alternately as Frederick or Christian. Thus the successor of the present king, whichever of his sons it may be, will be known as Frederick IX.

The name Knut, or Canute, reappears frequently also in the royal line of Denmark, being borne by the younger son of the present king. This is out of respect for the original King Canute the Great, who, besides ineffectually commanding the waters of the ocean to roll back from his throne, crossed over to England with a host, gained effective control of that island and was named king there subsequent to the death of Edmund Ironside.

CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS.

CURE

Sick Headache and relieve all the troubles incident to a bilious state of the system, such as Dizziness, Nausea, Drowsiness, Distress after eating, Pain in the Side, &c. While their most remarkable success has been shown in curing

SICK

Headache, yet Carter's Little Liver Pills are equally valuable in Constipation, curing and preventing this annoying complaint, while they also correct all disorders of the stomach, stimulate the liver and regulate the bowels. Even if they only cured

HEAD

Ache they would be almost priceless to those who suffer from this distressing complaint; but fortunately their goodness does not end here, and those who once try them will find these little pills valuable in so many ways that they will not be willing to do without them. But after all sick head

ACHE

Is the bane of so many lives that here is where we make our great boast. Our pills cure it while others do not.

Carter's Little Liver Pills are very small and very easy to take. One or two pills make a dose. They are strictly vegetable and do not gripe or purge, but by their gentle action please all who use them.

What Women Are Doing.

Vassar college has just been given a prize fund of $1,375 for honor reading in memory of Miss E. Elizabeth Dana. This fund was contributed by the students and graduates of the school which Miss Dana founded in Morristown, N. J. Miss Louise L. Newell, Vassar, '80, is now the principal of the school. Vassar has also just received a collection of butterflies from Miss Lucy Tappan, class of '89, who is now in India.

To Miss Julia E. Hamblet of Florence, Mass., has been awarded the Mary Lanning scholarship at Smith's college.

Mother Mary Stanislaus of the St. John's Wood convent, England, and Mother St. George, at the Convent of the Faithful Virgin, Norwood, are said to be the only survivors of the band of young nuns who accompanied Florence Nightingale as nurses to the Crimean war.

Fashions In Perfumes.

These are going up in price. Essential oils become dearer and dearer every year. Bergamot has gone up by leaps and bounds, and attar of roses never was so dear. There are fleeting modes as to perfumes. Sweet peas had a great vogue. Now this has given place to lilies of the valley. Violet is never out of date, while in sickness eau de cologne and lavender water are always in demand, and for the bath rose, lily of the valley, violet and sweet pea are ever in favor. For burning, oriental scents are preferred.

Baked New Beets.

Many prefer them baked instead of boiled, as the flavor is best preserved in this way. Select beets of uniform size, wash carefully, and bake until tender, allowing more time than for boiling usually. When done, peel, slice and serve them hot, seasoned with salt and pepper and a little butter.

Fried Chicken.

Fried spring chicken is a favorite treat. Do not neglect the gravy, which to many is the best feature of the entire dish. To fry the chicken cut a small chicken in four or six pieces, dip each piece hastily in cold water, then sprinkle with salt and pepper and roll the pieces in plenty of flour. Have some sweet lard heated very hot in a frying pan and fry the chicken until each piece is of a rich brown hue on both sides. Take up, drain well and arrange the pieces on a warm platter, setting the dish in a hot place to keep the meat from cooling while the gravy is being made. Pour out of the pan all but a tablespoonful of the fat and stir into the pan one cupful of milk. When the liquid is hot and well stirred thicken to a rich cream with one tablespoonful of flour rubbed in smooth and one tablespoonful of butter. Boil two or three minutes, stirring constantly. Season with salt and pepper. A little chopped parsley is often added to the gravy. Butter if here used in place of lard is difficult to manage, as it burns so easily.

Cheese Patties.

This makes a good luncheon dish when meat is not served. Cut out some rounds of bread about two inches in thickness and with a small cutter take out the middle, making a little tartlike case. Fry in fat both the case and the piece removed (which is to form the lid) until a golden brown and drain on paper, or brush the cases with melted butter and brown in the oven. At serving time fill the cases with the following mixture: Boil half a cupful of water and two teaspoonfuls of butter together and add to it four ounces of grated cheese, and season with a pinch of cayenne pepper. Stand the saucepan in boiling water and stir in the beaten yolk of an egg and half a cupful of fine breadcrumbs. Reheat and fill the bread cases and serve hot.

YOU CAN BE ABSOLUTELY SURE OF VALUES

If you carefully read the store advertisements and follow them in your buying.

Merchants advertise certain lines because they know these lines will advertise their stores. Because there is something about certain goods, they are put in conspicuous places and the people are told about them. It may be the exclusiveness or newness of design, it may be an unusual quality, it may be an attractive price.

But there is at least one definite, sure reason why a merchant advertises an article and is willing to stake the reputation of his store upon it.

Therefore, when you see an article advertised in THE REVIEW, depend upon it, that article is good value, as good value as can be obtained in that particular store.

PETITIONS FOR WATER MAINS

One for Bonacord Street and Dalhousie--Water Commissioners in Session.

At the Water Commissioners meeting yesterday, the Acting Superintendent, reported on a petition for a main on Bonacord street, from Park street to the Grand Trunk Railway, estimating the cost at $1187.68, and the revenue at $121.72 It was resolved that the Acting Superintendent be instructed to lay the main.

A statement of the rates was submitted from the collector.

A letter was read from the Canadian General Electric Company saying they would not build a concrete wing wall at the dam, but would build a permanent wooden one.

The Acting Superintendent reported on a petition for a main on Dalhousie street from Stewart street, estimating the cost of $356.05 and the revenue at $34.76. It was resolved that the Acting Superintendent be instructed to lay the main.

A proposed agreement with the Brinton Carpet Company was read and revised, and instructions given to submit it to the company.

OBITUARY

Mrs. Henry Denne

Mrs. Henry Denne died at her home, 723 George street, at 10 o'clock Tuesday morning aged 65 years.

Mr. Denne, whose maiden name was Harriet Fitzgerald, was born in Peterborough county and has spent her entire life in this vicinity. Her husband, Henry Denne, was one of the best known business men in the city.

The deceased is survived by two sons, T. H. G. and Roland, both of this city, and by eight daughters, five of whom are at home. The three who live at other places are Mrs. (Dr.) Bell, of Winnipeg; Mrs. W. H. Graham, of Kingston, and Miss Helen Denne, of Chicago.

The funeral will be held from the family residence at 3 o'clock, Thursday afternoon, to Little Lake Cemetery, and Rev. F. J. Sawyer and Canon Davidson will conduct the religious services.

Charles Herbert Campbell

Charles Herbert Campbell died at his home, 363 Babb's Lane, at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon, aged 42 years. The funeral will be held Thursday afternoon at 4 o'clock, under Masonic auspices, to Litttle Lake Cemetery. Rev. R. B. Grobb, of whose church deceased was an active member, will officiate.

Mr. Campbell was born at Bethany in 1870 and came to Peterborough about ten years ago, being employed as a wheelwright by the C.G.E. He was a member of the local lodges of Masonic and Oddfellows and had always been a Conservative.

He is survived by a widow and four children, the ages of the latter varying from seven to sixteen years. Mrs. Campbell was formerly Miss Edith Jordan, of Byng Inlet.

Mr. and Mrs. George Campbell, of 26 Weir street, are the parents of the deceased. Three sisters and four brothers survive, Miss Minnie, Waubeshene; Miss Eva Maud, at home; Mrs. W. R. Douglas, of Hamilton; John Henry, of 104 Lock street; Picton, of 608 Bethune street, and George Allen and Lawrence, at home.

An emergent meeting of Peterborough Lodge A.F. & A.M. No. 155 G. R. C. will be held at 3.30 p. m. on THURSDAY, August 1st, 5912, for the purpose of attending the funeral of our late brother, C. Herbert Campbell. Brethren of sister lodges are cordially invited. Masonic clothing.

Fine Wash Dresses $1.89 - Worth up to $6.50

One of the most successful "Dress Sales" this store has ever known was a year ago when we sold in 4 hours a very large number of Dresses at a price 20c less than we have marked the price this year - but the lot was not nearly so comprehensive or good - making this year's offering much better We make a special purchase each year with this sale in view, and also gather odd garments from our regular stock. The outstanding feature is a complete clearance in 4½ hours. This year's lot comprises white and colors—all this season's garments—and also 10 very fine Lingerie Dresses left from last season, and which sold at $7.50 to $12.00—a very little fixing will make these quite correct, We will display these Dresses in our large centre window Wednesday afternoon and evening—none will be laid aside or sold till 8.15 Thursday morning—about 95 garments in the lot. We think from last year's experience the entire lot will go quickly, so we advise an early selection. A Great Merry Half-Day Sale Leader at only $1.89

STRIKE OF MOULDERS TAKES A NEW TURN

Five of the Imported Men Quit Work Last Night and Returned to Hamilton This Morning—More Outside Men Expected.

Five of the six moulders who were brought from outside points, Saturday night to work in a local factory, and who have been boarded and lodged in the shops ever since to keep them from the influence of the men on strike, broke rank last night and deserted. The quintette returned to Hamilton on the C. P. R. train this morning. The sixth man, whose home is in London, remained on duty and is working to-day.

Sometime during Monday night, the local moulders, by some means known only to themselves, and in spite of all vigilance on the part of the officers of the firm, held communication with the guarded men.

Shortly after six last night, the five men left their quarters in the moulding shop, and walking across the street to the office secured their personal belongings. Every man carried his tools with him, and after they had changed their clothes they went out on the street, and announced to the crowd that they were ready to quit, This was greeted by a loud cheer and the five men were then taken to a hotel on Hunter street, where they passed the night. By this time they are back in the city in which they were engaged by a representative of the local firm.

The strikers are naturally somewhat elated over the outcome. The firm, however, has given out that more men will be brought in so that the fight is likely to be prolonged for some time yet.

Where a man usually has bad luck is relying on his good luck.

If "placard publicity" were sufficient to rent or sell property to advantage—wouldn't real estate dealing be a simple occupation?

The worth advertising business opportunities are the only kind that get much beyond the stage of "plans"

FORMER EMPLOYEE SETS FIRE TO OTONABEE FARMER'S BARN

Remanded for Sentence — Thomas Armstrong Suffers Severe Loss—Man Said to be an Army Deserter.

Charged with setting fire to the barns of Thomas Armstrong, lot 17, con. 17, Otonabee, a young man named Patrick Doherty, elected summary trial and pleaded guilty. He was remanded for sentence till August 21st.

LIKED HIS LIQUOR.

Doherty was at one time last spring an employe of Mr. Armstrong, but quit work, so his employer said, because of his inability to secure liquor for which he had a terrible craving. Doherty hails from Ireland originally and after leaving Mr. Armstrong went to Mr. Dummett's farm for a short period. For some reason he appeared to cherish a spite against his first employer, and yesterday afternoon he was seen skulking around the latter's barns. From his own story it appears he took a piece of paper from a note book he carried, went into the barn and ignited the paper, throwing it amongst the hay. The flames spread like lightning and the man took to his heels. The barn could not be saved and everything it contained was lost.

All of this season's out of hay, besides several valuable implements, were lost.

A LIVELY CHASE.

Special Constable Archie Moore was notified and set out to hunt for the man. The latter led him a lively chase, although ignorant of the fact that he was being pursued. The chase was taken up by Constable Moore with a horse and rig, and part of the time on foot. Finally the officer spotted this man getting a drink of water at a pump in the neighborhood of Samuel Deyell's farm, and he was placed under arrest.

It is said that Doherty deserted from the Irish army once.

The penalty for an offence like Doherty's is very stiff.

While the Pacific Coast steamers of the Grand Trunk Pacific have within the past few years become very widely known it is probable that the public generally does not realize the full extent of the marine activities of the Grand Trunk System. Only recently two new steamers were ordered that will ply between the ports of Providence and New York while a fleet of 16 steamers is at the disposal of the G. T. R. upon the Great Lakes in addition to the car ferry services between Cobourg and Rochester, Windsor and Detroit, and Grand Haven and Milwaukee respectively.

CHAUFFEUR WAS BADLY INJURED

Bert Hensley Explains the Auto Accident of Yesterday.

Bert Hensley, who figured in the auto accident on McDonnel street yesterday, is limping around to-day with the assistance of a stout cane. One of his limbs and his back were severely injured when the auto, which belonged to Mr. Percy Bond turned turtle and threw him out.

The car was more fortunate than the chauffeur. Mr. Hensley says it was not seriously damaged and that it was run back to the repair shop on its own power. It will soon be in commission again. He says he did not collide with anything but that in turning out to avoid a rig, the car skidded and turned over without striking anything.

SUFFERED EVERYTHING

For Years, Restored To Health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Canadian women are continually writing us such letters as the two following, which are heartfelt expressions of gratitude for restored health:

Glanford Station, Ont.—"I have taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and never found any medicine to compare with it. I had ulcers and falling of womb and doctors did me no good. I suffered dreadfully for years until I began taking your medicine. I also recommend it for nervousness and indigestion."—Mrs. HENRY CLARK, Glanford Station. Ont.

Chesterville, Ont.—"I heard your medicines highly praised, and a year ago I began taking them for falling of womb and ovarian trouble.

"My left side pained me all the time and just before my periods which were irregular and painful it would be worse. To sit down caused me pain and suffering and I would be so nervous sometimes that I could not bear to see any one or hear any one speak. Little specks would float before my eyes and I was always constipated.

"I cannot say too much for Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Liver Pills, for there are no medicines like them. I have taken them and I recommend them to all women. You may publish this testimonial."—Mrs. STEPHEN J. MARTIN, Chesterville, Ontario, Canada.

TRACY'S GOOD TWIRLING WON GAME FOR THE WHITE CAPS

"Petes" Jumped Ahead Early and Were Never in Danger—White's Home Run and Beard's Three Bagger Were Features of the Game.

Guelph's winning streak was broken yesterday afternoon, when in a clean, fast and exciting contest, the home team won out by a score of 8 to 1. It was very unfortunate that a larger number of the fans were not there to see how the trick was performed. The "Petes" plainly showed that they are by no means a back number, if they do stand at the foot of the league, and if similar classy work was maintained at every game, the league standing would soon be changed so far as the "Petes" are concerned. The latter also displayed more snap, vim and confidence in their playing than heretofore, never letting up at any stage.

Umpire Davis supplied the comedy for the crowd. He parcelled out a considerable line of dope that might give him a try out in the vaudeville field. "Ump," however, knew his business, and no fault at all was found with his decisions. Davis is the most satisfactory umpire seen here this season.

The game was most agreeably brightened by many sensational and lightning-like plays. You may talk as you like, but the "Petes'" fielding at every point deserved praise. This department of the team has been gradually strengthened, and Manager Rowan has nothing to be ashamed of there at least.

"Davy" selected his star twirler, Tracey, for the slab work yesterday, and Tracey made good. He exhibited fine control, fooled the Guelph batters repeatedly, and pitched one of the best games yet.

The "Petes'" batting was so much superior. The bleachers went wild when White drove a beautiful liner away into left field and romped home on it without being pushed.

Guelph put in Boardman to twirl in place of Manager Applegate, who failed to make as good a showing as his chief, although he put up a pretty fair article at times.

Nickels for the "Petes" yanked down a ball in spectacular style, at second but failed to connect with the runner in the first innings. Guelph got nothing in the first.

Petes came in to bat, Brant got to second, White walked on balls, Swartz hit to first, filling the bases. Trout walked on balls and Brant came home, making first run for the locals.

Beard fanned. Byrne's hit brought White and Swartz across the plate. Byrnes reached first. Trout got to third, but went out on stealing home. Score Peterborough 3, Guelph 0.

Nickels brought in Peterborough's lone run in the second.

Tracey fanned the first two men up for Guelph in the third. Third man was out on a caught ball, pulled in by Beard. Tracey was in splendid form. No runs for the visitors.

For the "Petes," Swartz got to second. Trout was walked, Beard was out on a fly. Trout made second, and Swartz third. The latter came home on a line hit by Byrnes, who got to first. Nickels navigated to first, Byrnes to second. Tracey fanned; Brant's fly was caught, making side out with Byrnes and Nickels left on bases. Score, Peterborough 5, Guelph 0.

Poor fielding by Guelph helped the "Petes" in the fourth. Neither side scored.

In the fifth Beard drove the sphere for a two-bagger, Byrnes was put out. Beard was out stealing home. Nickels reached second. Tracey was fanned. No runs for either.

In the sixth Swartz annihilated space and snatched the sphere after a hard run. No runs for the visitors.

For the "Petes," Brant walked. Shea bunted and reached first on Guelph's fumble. Brant made third on White's hit. Swartz was out. Trout walked to first. No runs for either team.

Tracey pitched grand ball in the seventh, fanning two men, while Beard pulled in a hit to his territory, making side out in short order.

In the eighth the grand hit for a home run was pulled off by White. The crowds went crazy, and the big right fielder was the hero of the day.

Guelph got one in the eighth. The nought sign was hung up in the ninth, and the game ended Peterborough 8, Guelph 1.

The score was as follows:

Peterborough... ... ...312001010—8
Guelph... ... ...000000010—1

Peterborough batteries—Tracey and Trout.

Guelph batteries—Boardman and Daniels.

TWO NEW PITCHERS FOR WHITE CAPS

¶ We sell the very best quality of hard coal, as good as we know how to buy.

¶ Are you getting results from the you are now using? Are you sure it is good? Are you burning it the right way?

¶ There is a deal of difference in how you handle the range or furnace Our long experience tells us that fact, and we are ready to advise any in doubt as to the best way to make use of coal as fuel.

FLAGMEN WANT MORE WAGES

Minister of Labor Will be Asked to Intercede

A special effort is being made to obtain an increase of wages for crossing flagmen employed by the G. T. R., C. P. R. and C. N. R, and the Peterboro employes are interested. These men are exposed to all kinds of weather and all one of them receives is $1.30 a day in wages, out of which he must pay every month from $18 to $20 for insurance. At least, that amount he never sees, because it is deducted from his wages.

"It's pretty hard" said one of the men, "to keep a family on such wages when the cost of living is so high and going higher."

Their case will be taken up by the local labor leaders and heads of the railway brotherhoods, who will appeal to the Minister of Labor with the hope that he may be able to influence the railway authorities to improve the condition of the men.

The usual reply of the railway officials, when these men ask for an increase or someone speaks for them is; "Well, we don't want them very bad and just put them at their jobs because they are getting old or they have been injured in the company's service."

LURID SNAKE YARN FROM PRESCOTT

Three Young Ladies Chased by Reptile That Sprang Into Their Boat

This is the open season for snake stories, and the most lurid anecdote sprung on the public up to date is going the rounds stamped by way of endorsation with a Prescott date line. Three young ladies of that place while out boating on the river and close in to the bank, were startled by the appearance of a reptile six feet long, and constructed otherwise on lines of conformation, which suddenly emerged from the bushes, and with a flying leap sprang into the boat, snapping at the occupants who promptly took to the water and stood not on the order of their going as they fled, being content to run for the simple reason that they could not fly. The snake pursued them, but was distanced at the first quarter.

Prescott could render science a service by capturing this monster. Any snake outside the realms of delerium tremens, that attacks man, or young ladies, either, with such militant fury, apparently without just cause or provocation, would be worth everything the captor might ask in any zoological institution in the world where it would be prized as the rarest specimen in existence.

Snakes never assume the part of the aggressor to such an alarming extent. Even the serpent that invaded the domestic peace of the Garden of Eden and wrought the greatest evil to mankind, used diplomacy, and not force.

HAVE YOU ENTERED FOR THE LAWN COMPETITION

There is Yet Ample Time—Peterborough May Get Canadian Horticultural Society Convention.

Peterborough intends making a strong bid to have the Canadian Horticultural Society hold their annual convention here next summer, Mr. H. B. Cowan, of "Farm and Dairy" is one of the prime movers in the endeavor, which should it prove possible, will awaken and stimulate great interest in horticultural operations in this city.

LAWN COMPETITION

At a meeting of the local Horticultural Society on Monday evening, the chief topic of present importance discussed, was the ways and means of booming the annual lawn competition to be held here some time in August, A competent judge from Toronto, will pronounce the verdicts on what house owners' lawns present the best appearance in the various classes. There are three classes, first for the man whose lawn is cared for by professional help, second, the man who looks after his own land; and third, for the party whose lawn is partly cared for by professional help. Good prizes of $5 down are offered, with the probability of extra rewards.

There is yet ample time for contestants to send in their names to the secretary-treasurer, C. H. Williamson, 203 King street.

The contest is open and free to all.

All the foregoing books have been placed on the seven day list in order to give every one a chance to obtain a volume without undue loss of time. This has been rendered necessary owing to the fact that so many persons as soon as they finish a book pass it on to one or other of their friends, and thus keep many waiting to obtain it in the ordinary way at the Library.

The above books were placed on the shelves yesterday and the list would have been published last evening but for the trouble caused by the fire at the power house.

MR. BOUCHER'S NEW JOB

Mr. George Boucher, an old Peterborough boy, was in the city a short time yesterday. Mr. Boucher has for years been in the employ of the Hudson Bay Company, but leaves that organisation to accept the position of Canadian fur buyer for the Fairweather Company of Toronto and Montreal. Mr. Boucher will reside in the latter city.

INSISTENT want advertising finds the "hard to find" sort of work! You can keep AT IT in want advertising—and not financially embarass yourself!

If YOU were looking for board in this city, or in any city, wouldn't you read and answer ads? Wouldn't ANYONE!

It may be hard to find a good servant by advertising—but it's harder if you try some other way!

NEWS FROM OMEMEE

Special Correspondence

Omemee, July 31— Mr. and Mrs. Arthur McCrea and party, of Toronto were the guests of his mother, the last of the week. They returned home on Saturday.

Painters are at work on our Main Street bridge over the river. The contractor, was inspecting the work one day, without donning his submarine suit. He took an aquatic somersault to the amusement of the onlookers. The water was wet.

Our former High School Principal Mr. W. W. Jardine, who is now in a similar position at Wardsville, spent a week as the guest of Mr. J. G. Lamb. Mr. Jardine's many old friends were glad to meet him and find him in excellent health. The High School old boys took advantage of his visit and on Monday afternoon a picnic in his honor was held in Stephenson's Grove. An enjoyable time was spent and many old friendships renewed.

Mr. J. H. Trevan of Youngstown, Ohio, spent Friday as the guest of Mr. T. W. McLean.

Mr. Robert Gardiner of Mount Pleasant was in town on Thursday evening.

Messrs. Ernie McPherson and Melville Earle returned on Saturday from a well earned holiday trip.

On Thursday evening, Mrs. J. A. Wylie returned from Peterborough, where she had been visiting with friends.

The fire escapes and other small jobs, in connection with the completion of Coronation Hall, are being executed by a staff of local and Lindsay workmen.

At the recent meeting of the Board of Education, the proposal to add another teacher to the Public School staff was received with favor. Appointments were made to the vacancies on High and Public school staffs

The Methodist Garden Party on Wednesday evening on the lawn of the church had lovely weather and a large crowd, delegations being present from Mount Pleasant and other suburban centres and a party in autos from Lindsay. The grounds were beautifully illuminated. The 57th Regimental Band of Peterborough discoursed choice music and the scene was one of beauty, animation and feasting. The menu was of the very best and was served in the basement, while the booths on the lawn did a rushing business in ice cream, candy, etc. The receipts ran up into three figures and were quite gratifying to the ladies who labored so assiduously to make the affair a success.

Mr. F. W. Laidley, of Swift Current, Sask., is calling on his many friends in town. He is the guest of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Laidley, of Sturgeon St.

A party of young men returned from a huckleberry picking on the lakes and were quite successful, having secured good quantities of the delicious fruit. Another party went later in the week and had as good luck.

Dr. W. Cook, of Sudbury, has joined Mrs. Cook and children, who are the guests of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. S. Grandy, of Sturgeon St.

Public School Inspector, Mr. G. E. Broderick, of Lindsay, was in town on Tuesday.

Mr. Robert Thompson, of Toronto, is spending his holidays at the home of his parents, Dr. and Mrs. J. N. Thompson, of Sturgeon St.

Little Miss Astor, Who Inherits Great Wealth.

© 1912, by American Press Association.

Ava Alice Muriel Astor, daughter of the late John Jacob Astor, who perished in the Titanic wreck, will be one of the richest young women in America when she becomes of age. By the terms of the will $5,000,000 has been set aside for her benefit. Muriel is now ten years of age, and the accumulations of the great fund will probably increase it to the sum of $7,000,000 by the time she is twenty-one. She will then receive it outright. Hereafter the ten-year-old girl will be known to friends of the Astor family as Miss Alice Astor. Heretofore she has been called Muriel. But always within the home she was called "Alice."

Conversation.

To play this game successfully two of the company must privately agree upon a word that has several meanings. The two then enter into a conversation, which is obliged to be about the word they have chosen, while the remainder of the company listen.

When a member of the party imagines that he has guessed the word he may join in the conversation, but if he finds he is mistaken he must immediately retire.

To give an illustration, supposing the two players who start the conversation decide upon the word box, they might talk about the people they had seen at the theater and the particular part of the house in which they were sitting. Then they might say how nice it looked in a garden, and one might mention that it grew into big trees. Perhaps one of the company might imagine that he had guessed the word correctly and join in, when the conversation would be immediately changed, and the two would begin to converse about a huge case in which a very great number of things were packed away. By this time possibly the person who joined in the conversation will leave off, completely mystified.

If, however, the word should be correctly guessed the person guessing it chooses a partner, and they together select a word, and the game begins again.

You can't judge how a woman will run for office by the way she runs for a car.

MR. ROWELL SAYS LITTLE ABOUT ABOLISHING THE BAR

Liberal Leader Gets a Rousing Welcome From New Liskeard Citizens Who Want to Hear About Northern Development But "Banish the Bar" Policy Gets Scant Applause—Four Needs of North.

New Liskeard, Aug. 1.—The burden of the speeches of N. W. Rowell during the Liberal tour of Northern Ontario has been criticism of the measures of the present administration so far as the development of this region is concerned, and constructive suggestions as to what should be done. Mr. Rowell has here subordinated his program of abolishing the bar to a secondary place. In his speech at Cobalt late Tuesday night, he merely gave a sentence to it at the close of his remarks. Last night he also devoted only scant attention to this subject and the lack of applause was noticeable.

At last night's Liberal rally at the opera house, E. N. Goodwin, president of the Board of Trade, said that if the appropriation for the development of Northern Ontario were ten million dollars instead of five millions, it would be much more adequate.

Mr. Rowell received a rousing welcome.

"If," said Mr. Rowell, "we could induce Mr. Whitney to come here and see the farms and the country as we have seen it, you would get measures more in harmony with what you require."

Any important program must embrace four important considerations, first, transportation must be considered, adequate railway facilities must be furnished. As fast as conditions warrant it, branch railroads should be built. The Government railway should not be run for revenue, but for colonization service. The most important factor was to make the railway a means of fully opening up the country.

The second need was good roads. The test by which to judge was whether the Government was pursuing the best policy calculated to open up the country. Make shift ways of building roads, especially where political considerations governed, where those patch work roads were built were obviously not adequate. The next need was publicity.

The Dominion Government and the railroads are all active in booming western Canada. Of what use are the sixteen million acres if the facts are not brought home to people who are looking for just such opportunities as exist in northern Ontario. The Government should organise and carry forward an active campaign of publicity.

Publicity, said Mr. Rowell, will enlist the interest of millions of farmers in the United States and elsewhere who now know nothing, of the existence of the great clay belt here, while there should also be homeseekers' excursions and the Government should assist the settler after he gets here.

Mr. Rowell promised that when the Liberal party got in power the people here would have local option to extend local improvements from taxation.

LONDON PAPER SEES NEW PERIL

London, Aug. 1.—The London Daily Express prints the following report that Germany is building a secret squadron in the race for sea supremacy with Great Britain:

"It is reported in armor-plate circles that for some months past the firm of Krupp has been engaged in the manufacture of guns and munitions for a new squadron of nine battleships for Germany. It is understood that during the last three weeks the angle irons and plates for these ships have been received from England.

"The importance of this information consists in the fact that in the event of Germany forcing the pace either for herself or for the other members of the triple alliance, a fresh battle squadron of nine ships could be ready within a year, or, at most, eighteen months. It is understood that the action which has been taken is a reply to Churchill's speech on his accession to office.

"An addition of nine battleships to the German fleet in 1914 would place this country in the gravest peril with which it has ever been faced.

"Mr. Churchill in the House of Commons a few months ago, laid it down that the absolute minimum of safety was the maintenance of a 60 per cent. margin of superiority in capital ships over Germany. In the House of Commons ten days ago he said that at the end of 1914 we would have a minimum of 33 and a maximum of 41 battleships fully manned and in full commission, against 29 of Germany.

MINISTER MONK WILL NOT RESIGN

Quebec, Aug. 1.—Hon. F. D. Monk, Minister of Public Works, who was in Quebec yesterday, emphatically denied the rumors that he was to resign from the Borden Cabinet on the naval policy. How such a story got abroad, Mr. Monk says he did not know.

His relations with the Premier and the other members of the Cabinet were never more cordial, and he could not understand how such a story could have got started.

To Reaffirm Doctrine.

Washington, Aug. 1.—The Senate Foreign Relation Committee yesterday adopted, without dissent, Senator Lodge's recommendation that the United States reaffirm the Monroe doctrine in terms clear to all the world, and adopted a resolution to express disapproval of the purchase of any possible naval bases on the American continents by any foreign power.

Senator Percy In Montreal.

Montreal, Aug. 1.—Senator Leroy Percy of Mississippi, who recently made a strong speech in the U. S. Senate on the Panama bill, is in the city to-day, en route to Washington.

PRISON REFORM IN CANADA

Ottawa, Aug. 1.—Hon. C. J. Doherty, Minister of Justice, while in England, has been visiting the prisons with a view to securing suggestions for reforms in Canada's penitentiary systems. He has also been visiting some of the prison farms which have recently been established in France and are considered models of their kind. It is likely that this coming session the legislation will be introduced by Mr. Doherty with a view to re-organizing and modernising our penitentiary.

Two Years for Procuring.

Toronto, Aug. 1.—Margaret Jordan, arrested by Constable Donoghue at the instance of the morality department Tuesday afternoon, appeared in the police court yesterday morning to answer to a charge of procuring. She was given two years in the Mercer.

END MOURNING FOR THE LATE EMPEROR

Tokio, Aug. 1.—Business in the capital and generally throughout the country, which came to a standstill with the death on Tuesday morning of Emperor Mutsuhito, was resumed yesterday, the Emperor Yoshihito having expressed the desire that there should be no further cessation owing to the losses entailed by it on the poor people and its interference with international exchanges. Nevertheless, deep national sentiment is discernible everywhere, while international sympathy is pronounced.

The Emperor Yoshihito was kept busy throughout the day, during which he issued an edict proclaiming his accession to the throne, which he read before a vast concourse of high officers and officials of the administration. He also personally proclaimed his succession to the army and the navy.

The Japanese Foreign Office has notified the foreign powers that the imperial birthday has been changed from Nov. 3 (Mutsuhito's natal day), to Aug. 31 (Yoshihito's borthday).

Following on the farewell taken of the late emperor's body by the members of the imperial family yesterday, the body was last night deposited in a casket with a quadruple covering, the outer one measuring nine feet by four feet, and placed in a special mourning chamber.

SWATTING FLIES ENDS IN TRAGEDY

One Boy Burned to Death and Three Badly Injured.

Special to the Review.

Sherbrooke, Que., Aug. 1.—While preparing to burn heaps of flies in a "Swat the Fly" campaign, four little boys set their clothing on fire, and one, J. Blais, died as a result. They poured coal oil over the insects and got some of the oil on their clothes, which ignited, and they ran through the streets, blazing like torches. The other boys will recover.

COILS ARE TIGHTENING AROUND LIEUT. BECKER

Rosenthal Was to Have Been Made Away With Ten Days Earlier, But the "Gunmen" Lost Their Nerve—Official Says Becker Will Break Down and Tell Everything Before Long—Lid Is On In City.

New York, Aug. 1.—Police Lieut. Charles Becker, head of the "strong arm" squad of gambling raiders, who is charged with instigating the murder of Herman Rosenthal, was last night further implicated in the plot to "get rid" of the gambler when Bald Jack Rose and Bridgie Webber added another chapter to their already amazing allegations. They told District Attorney Whitman that Rosenthal was to have been killed at the instigation of Becker ten days before he actually met his fate, and that the plot failed because the under world thugs selected to do the murder lost their nerve at the last moment.

The district attorney spent the greater part of the afternoon with Rose and Webber in their cells at the west side police station, and under the promise of leniency, which the prosecutor has given them, they talked freely. They gave little additional information regarding the $2,400,000 fund which they alleged illegal resorts paid for police protection in the city every year, but their story of the alleged anxiety of Lieut. Becker, because of Gambler Rosenthal's threatened exposure, was amplified to the district attorney, and in the prosecutor's opinion he strengthened his evidence against Becker.

The "plot that failed" was to have been brought to its climax at the Gorden Restaurant on 51st street on Saturday night, July 6, when Rosenthal and his wife were dining there, according to the account told by Rose to the district attorney as spokesman for the two gamblers. With Rosenthal and his wife at the time was Jack Sullivan, the newsboy, now under arrest for alleged complicity in the murder. Rose himself engineered the "job" and brought to the restaurant "a fleet of thugs," who were to do the actual shooting, according to Rose. Two of the hired assassins were "Gib the Blood" and "Lefty Louis," who are wanted by the police as two of the men who actually shot Rosenthal ten days later in front of the Hotel Metropole. Becker at that time was down town, Rose said, waiting for the murder plot to be consummated.

"Becker had talked with me every day," Rose said. "He kept saying to me, 'Why don't you kill this fellow off?' Rosenthal would have been killed off that night if the bunch had not lost their nerve. They got the notion after they reached the restaurant that a detective was on to them. After giving up the assassination we went to 'Bridgie' Webber's place and there we met Becker. He denounced us all up and down.

"'You are all a lot of cowards,' he said. 'I'll have to do it myself'."

District Attorney Whitman has arranged to keep the grand jury in session all summer to investigate the relations between the gamblers and the police, which is in the opinion of the district attorney, a matter of more public importance than the Rosenthal case.

He proposes to break up the relations between the gamblers and the police and he has indicated that he will do so if he has to protect every man involved in the murder of Rosenthal, except the gunmen who fired the shots.

Meanwhile Police Lieut. Becker, a prisoner in the Tombs, is saying nothing. His counsel had made no statements and there is nothing to confirm the report that his defence will be that the three gamblers, Rose, Vallon and Webber, finding the case going against them, got together and framed the story that would involve Becker.

Attorney James Sullivan, counsel for Rose, says that Becker will break down and tell his story after he has been in the Tombs 48 hours.

The arrest of Becker and the confessions of Rose, Vallon and Webber have completely demoralized the gamblers and poolrooms, and gambling houses are shut up tight. The gamblers say they don't know when they will be able to open again.

The actual assassins of Rosenthal—Harry Horowitz, or "Gib the Blood," "Lefty Louis," and "Whitie" Louis — are still at large. "Dago Frank" Cirofiel is in custody.

CONGRESS IS MOVING SLOWLY

Delay May Prevent Panama Canal Opening In 1913.

Washington, Aug. 1.—Unless Congress takes action to provide for the operation of the Panama Canal at the present session, President Taft and Secretary of War Stimson believe that it will be practically impossible for the army engineers to keep their promise and open the ditch to the ships of the world next year.

According to the information brought to the White House yesterday the prospect of action by Congress on canal legislation at this session is growing dimmer.

Mr. Stimson was understood to believe that there is little contention over the proposed administration and operation of the canal, but the question of tolls and of railroad-owned steamships have stirred up controversy in both Houses, and to-day neither the President nor his Secretary of War was hopeful of settling it.

The Panama bill was put aside again in the Senate yesterday, after Senator Brandegee, who is guiding it stated that adjournment probably would be hastened if it were considered in the Senate while the postoffice bill was in conference, but the only ray of comfort that filtered through to the White House was the news that Representative Adamson of Georgia, chairman of the House committee on interstate commerce, was considering the introduction of a joint resolution providing for the machinery of administration and operation of the canal.

Mr. Adamson was understood to be ready to bring in such a resolution whenever it becomes apparent that there is no chance of a compromise and the two Houses become deadlocked over the other questions.

President Taft was much concerned yesterday over the prospect of a delay in the opening of the canal.

BIG FRANK HAS BEEN LOCATED

Toronto, Aug. 1.—After a long search the county police have at last located "Big Frank" Sastito, wanted on a charge of murdering John Masternak at the Humber Polish Colony some weeks ago. The present whereabouts of the Italian, although known to the officers, is being kept secret.

From a reliable source it is learned that Sastito is in a large Italian colony in the United States. The American police have been notified and already steps have been taken to identify him amongst his scores of compatriots.

Special To The Review.

Mexico City, Aug. 1—Two Americans were hanged near Cananea Sonora within the past 48 hours. President Madero has ordered an investigation which he believes will show that the men were executed by the rebels to precipitate American intervention. This action on the part of the rebels leaves the American nation no alternative but to interefere in the Mexican trouble. If the new Mexican Government is not able to protect the lives of American citizens in Mexico, the United States will proceed to do so. Such intervention is sure to result in complications of a grave nature.

MAY RATIFY THE TREATY

U. S. Senate Committee Recommends Acceptance of Fisheries Pact.

Washington, Aug. 1.—The Senate foreign relations committe yesterday agreed to recommend the ratification of a treaty, signed July 20, by the United States and Great Britain, promulgating fishing regulations in Newfoundland waters. The treaty carries out, with some modifications, the rules and methods of procedure recommended by The Hague tribunal Sept. 7, 1910.

The treaty provides that all future laws or rules for the regulation of the fisheries of Great Britain, Canada or Newfoundland, such as relate to the time and method of taking fish, shall be promulgated and come into operation within the first 15 days of November of each year. At ten years intervals a change in the date may be made the subject of negotiation, and, if necessary, of submission to a commission.

After the promulgation the United States is given 45 days in which to object. The objection may be submitted, it is provided, to a permanent mixed fishery commission. This commission is to consist of three members appointed for five years, one of whom shall be an expert from Great Britain and the United States respectively.

The recommendations of The Hague tribunal regarding the determination of the limits of the bays enumerated in the award was adopted in so far as they related to the bays contiguous to the territory of the Dominion of Canada. It was expressly asserted that the two nations understood that the award did not cover Hudson Bay. It was further agreed that the delimitation of bays on the Newfoundland coast, whether mentioned in the recommendations or not, did not require present consideration.

Asquith and Churchill Have Been Invited to Come to Canada to Finish Talking It Over—Dominion Will No Longer Be a Silent Partner In Imperial Affairs, Says Hon. Mr. Borden.

London, Aug. 1.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—The naval defence negotiations will be resumed to-day. This will probably be the last meeting until after the recess, which begins Tuesday. It is not improbable, says The Morning Post, that negotiations may be continued in Ottawa later this month. Unofficial representations have been made to Premier Asquith and Winston Churchill to this effect, and if Mr. Borden, it adds, is assured the proposal is viewed with favor, and official invitation will be made in a day or two.

Canadian Ministers are experiencing difficulty in securing accommodations for the return journey, owing to the rush of passengers and the mishap to one liner. The Admiralty, however, may solve the difficulty by placing a warship at their disposal for their return.

Responding to the toast of the worshipful company of leather sellers, who entertained Premier Borden last night, the Premier, appropos naval negotiations, declared the conferences had been conducted in the best spirit of good will. The members of the present Government had received them most cordially, and as a result, their negotiations would be found to be an advantage not only to Canada, but also to the Empire.

Britain in the last fifty years had undergone very considerable changes in respect to constitutional relations between the Mother Country and the Dominrions. As increased powers of self-government had been granted to the great dominions, the Parliament of the United Kingdom had partially lost Imperial character, which it once possessed. In so far as foreign policy was concerned, that necessarily must be carried.

Controlled by one body fit for the purpose, by consent of the Empire, which that body represented, and up to the present in the very nature of things the Government of the United Kingdom had been performing that function.

The principle upon which it was performed has been debated by many constitutional writers and the best explanation given was that it was performed by His Majesty's Government as trustees for the great nations across the seas. He might add that in these dominions as firm and strong allegiance were to be found to the King as to the mother isles. (Applause.)

It was not a silent partner, knowing as he did the spirit and ideal and aspirations of the people of Canada. He was confident that that great Dominion would not be inclined to become a silent partner in the work of carrying out this Empire. They in Canada were determined that the Empire shall be maintained — (applause)—that the open path across the seas shall be kept secure; that British people in all continents and isles should continue to perform in future that great work in the cause of humanity, civilization and high ideals of democracy which it had been performing for so many years past. (Loud applause.)

CANADIAN LOANS WELL RECEIVED

Montreal, Aug. 1.—Sir William Mackenzie, who passed through the city yesterday en route home from London, stated that there was nothing really wrong with the London market as far as Canadian stocks are concerned, although there may be some congestion. If the Toronto and other loans have not met with that success expected, it was because those handling these matters did not attempt the flotation at the proper time. If, he said, people would have a little patience, all Canadian loans of his nature would be well received.

THURSDAY, AUG. 1. 1912.

THE GHOST WALKS AGAIN

For the second time within a space of two months the Democratic majority in the House of Representatives, the lower branch of the American Congress, has refused to fall in with the Republican Senate and repeal the Reciprocity Pact. Their reason for this course is obvious; They realise that in the event of the treaty becoming operative the United States would have the long end of the bargain. The Democrats hope to win out in the approaching presidential election, and free trade with Canada, or free trade as far as provided for in the treaty, is to be their leading campaign slogan. This was clearly set forth by all the orators at the Democratic National Convention. Judge Parker, the keynote speaker, went so far as to say that Canada made a huge mistake on September 21st, but he was not without hope that the people of the Dominion might yet see the error of their ways.

Patrick Henry, oratorically famous in the United States over a century ago, once accused his compatriots of a tendency to hug the delusive phantom of Hope. The Democrats, at least have not yet overcome their tenderness for that fair but fickle goddess.

A CIVIL MARRIAGE LAW

The Toronto World has evolved a plan for the solution of the tangled marriage question. Briefly its suggestion is that a civil marriage law be passed by the different provinces in which the majority of the population are Protestants in the hope that this example might be followed by Quebec and thus mixed marriages could be made legal. In support of its argument the World says that in the United States, in every section of which civil marriage is allowed, the Catholics have no objections to such ceremonies. Taking an optimistic view of the situation the Toronto paper concludes that Quebec would pass a civil marriage law and that Protestants and Catholics could intermarry without ecclesiastic interference.

If the plan proposed by the World could be made of effect the remedy for the present trouble would be simple, but it is not for a moment to be supposed that Quebec would adopt any such course. Moreover the World misrepresents the attitude of the Catholics in the United States. In that country civil marriage is not recognized as legal by members of the religious body referred to and if two Catholics were married before a Justice of the Peace the union would not be regarded as binding by the church to which the contracting parties belonged, and they would be denied the fellowship of the church until the marriage was solemnized by a priest.

The marriage of a Protestant to a Catholic in that country is recognized by the Catholic church if solemnized under certain conditions. In case a young man of the Protestant faith choose for his bride one who is a Catholic, a special dispensation from the Bishop is first of all necessary. When this is obtained a priest is at liberty to perform the ceremony but the parties cannot enter the church and the wedding must take place in the priest's residence or in a private house. So far as the bride is concerned the ceremony is as ecclesiastically legal as if the husband was of the same faith as herself. If the groom has any compunctions on the subject, if he is not satisfied that he is duly and legally wedded, he can go with his wife to a Justice of the Peace and there be married again. These double ceremonies are of daily occurrence in the United States. Every state has its own laws regulating marriage, but a union that is legal in one is binding in every state in the country. The conditions as to mixed marriages have been made uniform in every state by the Catholic church and the double ceremony referred to above is as common in Maine as it is in California.

It is idle to hope that Quebec would ever, of her own accord, adopt a civil marriage law. If such a measure could be forced upon that province by the Federal Parliament Quebec might yield to the extent of tolerating a marriage of a Catholic and a Protestant when the two had previously been married by a priest following the example of the sister church across the border. The temper of the people of Quebec is too well understood to warrant the belief that they would ever voluntarily surrender any of their rights to say who shall or who shall not either enter into the marriage contract or perform the ceremony, which they regard first of all as one of the sacraments of their church.

Quebec is not the only province, the Catholic church is not the only religious body that would oppose a purely civil marriage ceremony. Every so-called Evangelical church in Ontario and throughout Canada regards the marriage ceremony as a purely religious rite, even if they hold more liberal views on the question of divergent creeds of the contracting parties. Protestant clergymen do not encourage, neither do they condemn such unions, but from all Protestant churches opposition to such a sweeping change as the enactment of a civil law would be encountered. Church people, of whatever denomination, do not lightly part with the religious sentiment that they have cherished for ages.

The road leading to the desired goal, a uniform marriage law for the Dominion, may be strewn with rocks and difficult to travel, progress may be slow, but there is now apparently no other avenue open. The Lancaster Marriage Bill would solve the question once for all if it was in the power of the Dominion Parliament to give it effect. Seeing that this power is lacking, the British North American Act must be amended and the required authority secured.

NOTE AND COMMENT

If the man who purloined Chief Thompson's new shoes, designed them for personal use, it is a cinch that he is a man of comprehensive understanding.

Do not worry if the White Caps lose an occasional game. The Hydro-Electric System is being extended steadily and the bigger it grows, the cheaper will be the cost of light and power.

In the heat of an argument, a Kingston clergyman offered to wager $1,000, that the first and not the seventh day of the week was the scriptural sabbath. After that, how can he object if one of his flock should venture a quarter on the ball game?

With a dangerous lunatic lurking in the woods and threatening death to all who approach, and with a snake in the suburbs that chases young ladies, the people of Prescott may be forgiven if they feel a trifle panicky and never venture beyond the corporate limits after nightfall.

Seeing that his temperance sentiments are well known, Mr. Rowell on his tour of investigation through New Ontario, will be carefully denied a look in at the "blind pigs." All of which will tend to confirm him in his belief that where is no bar there is no drinking.

W. J. Bryan has contributed $1,000 to the presidential campaign fund of Governor Wilson, the Democratic nominee. As Mr. Wilson insists that every contribution shall be accompanied by a statement as to how the money was secured, Mr. Bryan sent with his check a letter which has not been made public. We are justified however, in surmising that the Nebraska orator assures his leader, that the offering was honestly carried by the sweat of his jaw.

CHICAGO, July 31.—July grain prices whirled rapidly to-day in the last 15 minutes before the business in that month's delivery came to an end. July wheat went to pieces. It broke 8 cents from the top point of the session and closed 6 1-2c under yesterday's finish. Unloading by a few longs, who had miscalculated there there would be a lively demand, was the reason. Other wheat futures closed 1-4c to 3-8c and 1-2c down. Latest trading left corn 1-4c off to 3-4c up, oats 1-4c down to 2 1-2c advance and provisions strung out from 17 1-2c under last night to 2 1-2c above.

Montreal Grain and Produce.

MONTREAL, July 31.—There was an improved demand from foreign buyers for Manitoba spring wheat, and as the prices bid were 3 pence higher sales of several loads of new crop wheat were made for September-October shipment. There was also a better demand for oats at an advance of 1½d to 3d, and some business was done. The local trade in oats continues fairly good. Demand for flour is fair for local account, but the export trade is dull. Millfeed is active and firm. Butter is quiet with a firm undertone. Cheese is steady. Eggs fairly active. Provisions firm.

CATTLE MARKETS.

Montreal Live Stock.

MONTREAL, July 31.—At the Canadian Pacific live stock market, the receipts of live stock for the week ending July 27 were 1100 cattle, 1600 sheep and lambs, 1275 hogs, and 900 calves. The offerings on the market this morning for sale were 1000 cattle, 1000 sheep and lambs, 1300 hogs, and 600 calves.

There was no important change in the condition of the market for cattle, prices being well maintained under a fairly good demand from both butchers and packers and a more active trade was done than expected considering the supply, which consisted principally of common stock. A few choice steers sold at $7.35 to $7.50, but the bulk of the trading was done in stock ranging from that down to $5 per 100 pounds. The top price realized for choice cows was $5.50, and the lower grades sold at from $3.50 to $5 per 100 pounds. There were no choice bulls on the market, and the common sold at $3 to $3.50 per 100 pounds.

The trade in sheep and lambs was active, but as they were all Quebec stock the top prices of the market were not reached. Sheep sold at $3.75 to $4, and lambs at $7 per 100 pounds, while calves brought from $3 to $10 each. The tone of the market for hogs was firm with sales of selected lots at $9.25, and mixed lots, including sows and stags, brought $8.25 to $8.50 per 100 pounds weighed off cars.

East Buffalo Cattle Market.

EAST BUFFALO, N.Y., July 31.—Cattle—Receipts 200 head; steady.

Loose Flesh Beneath the Chin.

When a person is naturally stout and the flesh is healthy and firm the wisest plan is not to meddle with nature. She intended you to be as you are, and so to leave well enough alone is best. However, if the flesh under the chin is soft and loose persistent treatment will make it firmer.

To about four ounces of alcohol add a half teaspoonful of powdered alum. The chin should be bandaged with cotton or soft cloths, wet with this solution several times daily. As little warm water as possible should be used on a soft chin, and whenever it is used plenty of cold applications should follow. It should always be remembered that heat has the tendency to soften, while cold will harden and make firm.

Carelessness is one great reason why many girls and women have loose, baggy flesh. In cleansing the skin no doubt they work well, but if the weather is the least bit raw or chilly they feel too cold to rinse the skin properly, which should be done several times with cold water. Failure to give the skin this all important tonic soon causes it to become relaxed, soft and loose. Little ice bags may be laid or bandaged on loose flesh to help in the process of hardening, and if made after the following directions the extreme cold will be prevented from coming in contact with the skin, and only the cooled air will be felt:

Make a bag of two thicknesses of flannel the desired size, then a bag of oiled silk to fit over the flannel one; then fill the flannel bag with cracked ice and close it by tying or any other convenient way. Lay the little bag with the oiled skin next to the flesh and bandage on firmly to hold in place. The cold air will penetrate the flesh without the severe icy feeling. The flannel is responsible for this, while the oiled silk prevents the clothing from becoming wet. Although the ice will keep for some time in the little bags if made as directed, they may be changed and refilled frequently if desired.

Health and Beauty.

Avoid eccentric shaping of the nails. Accentuated points and a high polish are considered evidences of ill breeding. Conservative shapes and polish are best.

Violet water is almost an indispensable article of the toilet on some dainty dressing tables. A good recipe for the fragrant and cooling luxury is: Essence of violet, four ounces; essence of cassia, one and one-half ounces; essence of rose, one and one-half ounces; deodorized alcohol, two pints. This will be found fully as good as that on sale in the shops, and considerably less expensive.

A girl who for some time had suffered extreme annoyance from cold feet tried the following with splendid effect: Every morning she rubbed the feet with handfuls of wet salt until the skin was in a glow, rinsing off the salt with cool water and rubbing with a coarse towel. A piece of paper cut to fit the bottom of the foot was slipped over the sole and the stocking carefully drawn on.

Green liquid soap, which is recommended by skin specialists for fine skins or for those which have the pores extended, can be made at home. Take equal parts of glycerin, water, alcohol and green castile soap. Shave the soap into the water and stir over the fire till the mixture is smooth. Add the glycerin and, lastly, after the kettle is removed from the fire, the alcohol. Add a teaspoonful of eau de cologne, if perfume is desired. Touch the fever blisters with camphor.

Treatment For Weakened Scalp.

Where there is a pronounced weakness of the scalp and the hair is thin and falling, massaging first will increase the benefit. Part the hair all over the head into small separate strands and with the tips of the fingers rub in the following tonic: Half an ounce of tincture of capsicum, half an ounce of tincture of cantharides, one-eighth of an ounce of resorcin, one-quarter of an ounce of oil of bergamot, three ounces each of bay rum and witch hazel. See that the tonic is well rubbed into the roots and scalp.

CURE SICK HEADACHE.

When the hair is thin, dry and harsh applications that will penetrate the pores of the scalp are efficacious. However, it must always be remembered that what is good for one trouble might in some other case be harmful, as that which would be used to counteract excessive oiliness would in all probability contain a certain amount of astringent and so would be harmful to a dry scalp. Yet the hair may fall from an excess of oil and also from an extremely dry scalp.

The Right Face Powder.

Face powder does not always suit a dry skin, and it should in all cases be preceded by the application of a skin food or a cream of some sort. Animal fats in creams should be avoided, as it is claimed that where there is a tendency to superfluous hair the animal fat increases it. This may or may not be true. Cream should be rubbed well into the skin, left for some time, then rubbed off and the powder applied carefully. As nothing injures the skin more than the cheap, impure powders, one should always be careful to purchase a good brand.

The Hayseed Leads.

The respectable Irish of this continent have protested against the stage Irishman, but he is milk and water compared to the conventional Rube and Hayseed that we see in the prints, says The Khan in The Toronto Star. They don't exist, and, what's more, they never did. What they call Rubes and Hayseeds are the very salvation of the big cities, and through them of the whole country. The editorial rooms of the great newspapers, the board rooms of the great insurance and banking concerns, are full of men who came in from Bullock's Corners and Coboconk, from the concessions and the sidelines and from the little 'wayback towns. The judges on the bench, the best of them, and the best of the men in the pulpits came from the hayfield and the woods. The moderator of the great Presbyterian Church was born and raised on a rough bush farm in Beverley Township.

To Dredge St. Lawrence.

Ottawa, July 13.—Dredging of the north channel of the St. Lawrence below Quebec, to a depth of 35 feet, is recommended to the Government by the chief engineer of the St. Lawrence. Eighteen million feet of material would have to be removed and an elevator dredge and barges costing $500,000 would have to be built.

Kitchenettes.

By turning a cauliflower head downward it cooks more quickly and improves in favor.

A little white sugar in hot water—two lumps to a basinful—is sufficient stiffening for delicate laces.

Starched clothes, shirts, collars and cuffs, if dried before a bright fire after ironing, become beautifully stiff.

Books bound in leather may be freshened by using equal quantities of white of eggs and water beaten together. Apply this with a soft flannel cloth and polish when dry.

An easy way to crumb bread is to put it into a muslin bag, an empty salt sack, for instance, and then, unless it is too hard and dry, it can be squeezed between the fingers and quickly crumbed without any waste.

Meat that is to be grilled should not be salted. This hardens the fibers of the meat and tends to extract the juices. Salt on the platter just before sending to the table. No meat should be salted uncooked, but after the surface has been seared and the meat partly cooked.

An Apron Effect.

The bib apron of pale blue moire silk gives this chantilly lace dinner gown a housemaid effect, but the little apron over the flounced gown is really very graceful. Crystal buttons go down the front of the apron, and it is weighted with crystal fringe. Crystal buttons on the black satin shoes are a very new note.

YOU CAN BE ABSOLUTELY SURE OF VALUES

If you carefully read the store advertisements and follow them in your buying.

Merchants advertise certain lines because they know these lines will advertise their stores. Because there is something about certain goods, they are put in conspicuous places and the people are told about them. It may be the exclusiveness or newness of design, it may be an unusual quality, it may be an attractive price.

But there is at least one definite, sure reason why a merchant advertises an article and is willing to stake the reputation of his store upon it.

Therefore, when you see an article advertised in THE REVIEW, depend upon it, that article is good value, as good value as can be obtained in that particular store.

"IMPOSSIBLE TO HELP MY KIDNEYS"

Until I Used "Fruit-a-tives" Worlds Greatest Kidney Cure

Practically everybody in Toronto knows Professor J. F. Davis. For years, the elite of that city has taken lessons from Prof. Davis in the art of Dancing and Deportment.

His constant activity gradually weakened his Kidneys, which calamity threatened to make him an invalid.

But read Prof. Davis' letter—

563 CHURCH ST., TORONTO, ONT.
DECEMBER 29th. 1911

"I want to say that "Fruit-a-tives" is my only medicine, and has been for the past five years. Previous to that, I had been troubled with Rheumatism and Kidney Disease, and had taken many remedies without satisfactory results. Noticing the advertisements of "Fruit-a-tives" I adopted this treatment altogether, and as everyone knows, I am now—and have been since taking "Fruit-a-tives"—enjoying the best of health".

J. F. DAVIS.

If Rheumatism or Kidney Trouble is making you miserable, take "Fruit-a-tives" and get well.

LONDON STREET PROPERTY SOLD

Transfer Was Affected by Mr. G. A. Gibbs, Last Week

The handsome residence lately occupied by G. W. Fitzgerald, 174 London street has been sold, the transfer having been effected by Mr. J. A. Gibbs, the Water street real estate dealer last week. The property is a most valuable one.

Mr. Gibbs reports real estate operations quite brisk with him, considering the brief period that he has been established in Peterborough.

WHY SOME FUNERALS ARE STILL HELD ON SUNDAY

President W. H. Moore of the Cemetery Board Explains the Rule Governing Such Cases — Certificate Necessary From a Responsible Person.

A communication in a recent issue of the Review contained a request for information as to why the Cemetery Board should permit Sunday funerals in some cases and deny the same privileges to others. A number of such inquiries along the same lines have lately been made at this office.

"Our rule is," said Mr. Moore, president of the Board, this morning, "to allow no Sunday funeral unless the necessity for such is certified to by a doctor, an undertaker, a minister or some other responsible person. In the case of death from contagious diseases Sunday funerals have always been permitted."

From the statement of Mr. Moore it will be seen that the members of the Cemetery Board have not been guilty of discrimination in such matters as some persons have more than hinted. The members have made a rule and have always consistently lived up to it.

When some years ago a deputation from the local Ministerial Association waited upon the Board and asked them to prohibit Sunday funerals, the members very gladly acceded to the request. They were not only in favor of making the first day of the week one of rest, but the proposed change was in the interests of economy. When the cemetery employees are required to work on Sunday they demand and receive extra compensation for their services. The ministers who presented the request were actuated not only by a desire to preserve the sanctity of the Sabbath but they held that the Sunday funerals imposed upon them an extra amount of work which they were not well prepared to undertake.

It is charged that the ministers themselves were the first to become parties to the violation of the rule, when a prominent clergyman waited upon the Board and asked for a permit for a Sunday funeral.

All sorts of means are resorted to in order that permission for the holding of Sunday funerals may be obtained. A citizen whose wife had died on a Friday, importuned the Board for leave to bury her on Sunday. The circumstances of the case did not seem to warrant a suspension of the rule, so the request was denied. The applicant, however, soon returned with a request signed by a minister and the Board had no alternative but to allow the funeral to be held. It afterwards transpired that the bereaved husband's only reason for haste was a desire to keep a business appointment the following Monday.

A member of the Board to-day deplored the fact that any of the local clergy should, without substantial reason, aid and abet the public to violate a regulation which the ministers themselves were responsible for putting into effect.

The Board has now on hand a surplus of $17,000 and the only way in which this can be expended is in improving the cemetery.

SPEED LIMIT FOR AUTOS IN DEFINED AREA MAY BE LOWERED

Traffic By-law Provisions Framed — Smith Street Curve to be Widened—What the Board of Works Did.

The provisions to be embodied in a traffic by-law for the city were taken by the Board of Works last night, and the Mayor, Ald. Gillespie, Duffus and Johnston appointed as a committee to draft a by-law on the lines prescribed.

Vehicles shall keep to the right hand curb; on passing another must pass to the left; on meeting a rig shall pass to the right; on turning a corner shall turn as near the right hand curb as possible; vehicles going in a northerly or southerly direction shall have right of way over vehicles going in an easterly and westerly direction. Any person driving shall do so at a moderate rate, and at crossings vehicles shall give pedestrians the right of way. No horse shall be left standing on the streets unless tied, and vehicles must not be left standing on the streets longer than absolutely necessary.

Ald. Buller contended that automobiles and bicycles should be compelled to come to a standstill when street cars are loading or unloading passengers, otherwise some one will be killed in this city one of these days.

The Chief of Police replied that the Provincial Act covers that.

Ald. Buller—"Well, auto drivers don't comply with the Act in this city, and should be forced to do so. Many narrow escapes by citizens from being run down have come under my own personal observation."

The Chief of Police suggested that the speed limit for autos and motor cycles be 10 miles an hour within the following area: C.P.R. to McDonnel street, and Water street to Stewart street. Outside that area the limit to be 15 miles an hour. This suggestion found favor with the committee as being quite reasonable for operation in this city.

On Thursday afternoon in future advantage will be taken of the holiday to roll the roads on the main streets. Last Thursday the street from Brock to Hunter was well rolled.

The Board also decided to have Mr. Munro comply with his offer to give four feet more curve at the corner of Smith and George streets. The Board agreed to expend $200 on the work, which will do away with present dangerous conditions for traffic at this point.

The matter of securing trap rock from a quarry 29 miles from the city for macadam road purposes, was also considered. Such material costs $3.40 a ton, exclusive of freight rates.

WHAT RECIPROCITY WOULD HAVE DONE TO CANADA

The following amazing facts are contained in a letter to the Toronto Star:

Editor of the Star: One is impelled sometimes to ask whether Liberal papers like the Star are sincere in advocating reciprocity, or whether they argue from partisan bias, determined to be adversely critical because protection is a doctrine of their political opponents; knowing instinctively that the facts of experiences are against them.

Egotism knows no candor when a worn-out shibboleth like Free Trade confronts its most zealous supporters with plain incongruities. The sophistry of the argument is apparent in the declaration that the West will get better prices for their wheat, while buying agricultural implements cheaper in the United States than here, whereas the facts are quite the reverse.

We must not overlook the fact that as duties were to remain unchanged between the United States and Great Britain, the arrangement involved an act of injustice on our part towards the mother country in our accepting a preference which she did not share.

The assumption is false that the free exchange of trade between the West and the United States would not have been a wrong committed against the industries of this country, especially on such articles as are produced here.

Quotations of trade do not warrant the assertion that such benefits would result.

Prices are to-day as follows:

No. 1 Wheat—Winnipeg, $1.09 3-8; Chicago, $1.04 1-8; Toronto, $1.12 1-2; Buffalo, $1.08 3-4; Fort William, $1.08, Minneapolis, $1.06.

Considering that the distance from Alberta and Saskatchewan to Chicago are greater than to Winnipeg and Fort William, freight must be higher.

From The Daily Star, July 15th inst., we quote:

Cattle, avg., per 100	$7.52	$0.17	$7.65
Cows, per 100...	5.12	3.50	5.32
Butchers, per 100... ...	6.88	6.92	6.27
Calves, per 100...	7.72	6.87	7.50
Stockers, per 100...	5.13	4.75	5.15
Sheep, per 100...	4.25	3.12	4.15
Lambs, per 100...	8.62	6.37	5.62
Hogs, per 100...	7.82	7.97	7.38
	$53.16	$46.67	$49.04
	$6.64	$6.08	$6.13

According to the report of the Department of Trade and Commerce for 1910, we exported agricultural implements cheaper than they were imported in Canada from the United States.

PRESENTATION TO CLARA DOBBIN

Bright Young Springville Student Who Won Gold Watch Donated by J. H. Burnham M.P.

The Review's Springville correspondent 'phoned in an account of a pleasant function, held in the Presbyterian church there last night, the occasion being the presentation of the gold watch donated by Mr. J. H. Burnham, M.P., won by Miss Clara Dobbin, for proficiency in the entrance examinations.

Mr. Burnham was present and opened the proceedings by formally presenting the successful scholar with the prize, accompanied by an inspiring address, referring to the value of an ambition to secure a good education. Speeches of congratulation were also made by Robert Dobbin, Fred Wilson, Bert Sanderson and Mr. G. C. Wainwright.

Afterwards vocal solos were rendered by Miss Hill and Miss Sherry, of Peterborough, and readings by Mertin Colin and Miss Hill.

The evening was a source of pleasure to all present.

Miss Mabel Christie, who won the gold watch for taking highest marks at the entrance examinations in the city of Peterborough, was also present and congratulated Miss Dobbin.

WHERE IS ALL THE POWER TALK GONE?

The Organ of the Private Interests on George street, has been as mum as an Italian handorgan lately on the power question.

The city seems to be badly in need of being stirred up on the power question by somebody. What's the matter with the City Council? Have they forgotten that Peterborough is in need of cheap power? Because we let the Burleigh Falls slip through our hands and Buckhorn and all the other gilt-edged privileges which belonged to the people by right is no reason why we should repeat the dose at the present time. Peterborough is badly in need of a constructive policy on the power question, not for the future, but right now.

ORILLIA MAN AS A GLOBE TROTTER

W. H. Curran Spent Some Time in the West Indies.

Mr. W. H. Curran, of the Orillia News Letter, arrived in the city yesterday, on his way home from the West Indies, where he went about a year ago for the benefit of his health. Ever since he left Orillia Mr. Curran has travelled extensively and among other places of interest he visited was the Panama Canal. He says that when that waterway is opened the trade of the West Indies with the world will be doubled, and the value of land in the islands will be increased several times over.

Mr. Curran is well known in Toronto, where he was for some time on the staff of the Telegram. He paid the expenses of his long trip by writing special newspaper and magazine articles.

METHODISTS SHOW MARKED INCREASE

The Total Membership in Canada is Now 351,710.

Rev. Dr. Cornish, the Methodist general conference statistician, announces that there was a net increase during the past twelve months of 6622. The total membership of the Methodist church in Canada is placed at 351,710.

The net gain must have been greater had it not been for the removals and "the loose methods" of transferring members, which aggregated 5198 in number.

SENTENCED TO FIFTEEN YEARS IN KINGSTON PENITENTIARY

Extremely Heavy Term for Man Who Fired Barns—A Dangerous Character, With Many Aliases—Was Once Deported.

PRISONER DISPLAYED CUNNING

Police Magistrate Dumble sent Patrick Doherty to Kingston Penitentiary for fifteen years this morning. The sentence was the severest meted out at police court for many years. The prisoner admitted that he had fired the barns of Thomas Armstrong in Otonabee, purely out of revenge. Doherty is a man of many aliases, his record showing him to be a desperate and dangerous criminal. His special forte seems to be housebreaking, for which he has served prison terms in England for convictions on four separate occasions at Plymouth and Exeter, Devon

A CUNNING CRIMINAL

His apperance denotes a criminal of the very lowest order, yet possessed of a crafty and cunning disposition.

Questioned by Crown Attorney Wood, about his past, he volunteered his record quite readily, in a manner that demonstrated intimacy with the ways of court.

DID IT FOR SPITE

He admitted he burned the barn on Tuesday, because of spite against his former employer. He worked just eleven days and the matter of wages did not suit him. He bundled his clothes together and left Mr. Armstrong after giving vent to some unprintable language. Prisoner, on being asked if he would do a similar trick for spite again, admitted that he would. He showed not the slighest evidence of being contrite for the deed, and freely expressed his hatred of the man upon whom he had committed the crime of arson.

WAS ONCE DEPORTED

Doherty is an Irish immigrant to this country. He was convicted of house breaking in Quebec City and was deported. He again struck Canada last Spring, and was placed out as a farm laborer by the local immigration office. Two of his aliases are Gough and Grady.

WORKED A SKIN GAME

When the prisoner was having the impressions of his fingers taken in Chief Thompson's office, he worked a scheme which showed the peculiar cunningness of his character. He endeavored to leave the wrong imprints on the paper, by previously picking the skin in places from his finger tips, thus leaving a ragged and inaccurate impression. His scheme was, of course, detected by the Chief.

When asked about his reason for acting so, he told the Crown Attorney, that he knew he had a bad record. He smiled with an appearance of bravado as he spoke.

TOOK SENTENCE NONCHALANTLY

After being sentenced, prisoner took his seat nonchalantly and watched a couple of other individuals before the court, stand up and take their medicine. He gave vent to a yawn and took his sentence quite indifferently.

Chief Thompson has a careful record of Doherty's past criminal career that will be available to counteract any petition for prisoner's release, should such arise.

The Magistrate held that Doherty could not be mentally sound or he would not have placed himself in such a fix, and incurred such a penalty, for such slight cause.

WORK AMONG NEGLECTED AND DEPENDENT CHILDREN

An Official Who Visits Children That Have Been Adopted Finds Conditions Satisfactory.

During the past week several children who have been placed in foster homes in Peterborough and vicinity have been visited by the officer, who has been appointed by the Provincial Superintendent of Neglected and Dependent children, as agent and visitor for a large section of the Midland District.

The children visited were found to be in good health and as bright and happy as the children who live with real parents.

Many of the children do not know of their adoption, and others, who do know, have no desire to leave their present homes. It certainly would be a matter of deep interest to the public to know precisely of the work being done by the Children's Aid Societies of different counties, but for certain reasons, the facts pertaining to the guardianship of the adopted children are not given out. It is no easy task for a visitor to enter a home where an adopted child is in residence and get the information required by the department, without letting slip a word or look which might tend to reveal the secret of a child's adoption, much less is it possible to satisfy the curiosity of the oft time near neighbor who may wish to know the business of the strange visitor.

Occasionally, the larger boys, who have been placed out to work on farms or to do chores, are not satisfied, and after a time take thought to run away and seek a place that would suit better, and seldom does the boy who once tries this means of escape from a home that is not to his liking, fail to perform the same act over and over again. At present there are a couple of boys who have left homes in this locality in which they were legally placed, and of their present whereabouts, nothing is known.

Any person who induces a ward of the Children's Aid Society to break any articles of apprenticeship or agreement lawfully entered into, by or with the managers of a Children's Aid Society, shall be guilty of an offence against the Children's Protection Act and shall incur a penalty, not exceeding $20 and costs.

The desire to keep from the adopted children the fact that their foster parents are not really their fathers and mothers, is a humane and kindly one, although it is almost impossible to accomplish this when the little ones begin to attend school. The fact that they are only adopted orphans is often made the subject of taunts on the part of their schoolfellows.

WHAT THE GLOBE HAS TO SAY ON THE MARRIAGE QUESTION

The Globe of July 30th, immediately following the announcement of the Privy Council's decision in the Marriage Case, makes a powerful demand for a civil marriage law that would apply to the whole Dominion. The Globe is to be congratulated in taking a stand that is really a strong support of the action of the Borden Government in trying to clear up the marriage difficulty.

Among other things the Globe says in its leading editorial:—"The clergyman or other person authorised to perform the marriage ceremony does so as the accredited agent of the state. He may believe that he is also Divinely appointed. A marriage before the law is a civil contract involving certain rights and certain responsibilities. The state must see to it that civil law and not ecclesiastical shall be supreme in settling whether or not a marriage is valid."

This statement of the Globe's is undoubtedly the motto that will be used by the electors and the people of Canada who believe in the supremacy of the state in the new agitation about to be begun for a civil marriage law. It is wholly intolerable that on any pretence the ecclesiastical law shall be supreme in defiance of the popular will.

The Globe also says:—"The controversy that has so disturbed the peace of Canada, and must continue to disturb it until an absolute equality is secured, is that the marriage law of all the provinces has reference to the law in Quebec alone. In the other provinces all persons authorised to perform the marriage ceremony are empowered to marry Catholic, or Protestant, Jew or Gentile."

As the Globe says it is plain therefore that if it were not for Quebec the question of a uniform law would be a simple one.

With regard to the famous mixed marriage question the Globe says: "Mr. Borden's effort to have the question settled in the form of a stated case fails."

From this it will be seen that Mr. Borden is accredited by the Globe with having made an effort. The Hebert case in which judgment will be given shortly by the Privy Council will answer this question. It is possible that for this reason the Privy Council did not answer Mr. Borden's question.

Going further into this matter the Globe says that if the expected decision in the Hebert case is not satisfactory from a civil point of view, "there would unquestionably spring up all over the Dominion a demand for a uniform marriage law in which any person entitled to perform the marriage ceremony in any part of Canada could validly marry all persons presenting themselves to be married, and that irrespective of ecclesiastic or other religious creed, or lack of creed."

SILVER CUP FOR REGATTA PRIZE

Peterborough Company Make Valuable Donation.

The Peterborough Canoe Company are donating a silver cup to be competed for, annually, at the Stoney Lake Regatta by war canoes.

The contestants must not use any but war canoes. The cup will become the property of the club winning it for three successive years.

The only entries thus far are a club composed of the boys of St. Paul's Presbyterian church, and the crew of the Y.M.C.A.

The trophy will be competed for at the regatta Wednesday next.

FINE WEATHER FOR PRINTERS' PICNIC

It is generally well known that the Printers have a "stand-in" with the Weather Man, as evidenced by the fact that on every occasion they have held an excursion the weather conditions have been ideal, but to make assurance doubly sure, however, they have again this year had a Special Forecast prepared for them by the Head Observer at Toronto, otherwise known as "Old Probs." He wires to-day:

SECOND VICTORY FOR "PETES" GUELPH BEATEN BY 5-1 SCORE

Four Runs in the Seventh Cinched Contest—Osborne Won His Game—Splendid Work of Outfield.

Whether or not the feminine shrieks of encouragement goaded the "Petes" to victory at Riverside yesterday, is a question that may never be known. But the figures 5 to 1 in favor of the tail enders is ample evidence that the boys played good ball. Guelph has now swallowed two lickings in succession, administered by the "Petes" and the battle for bottom place is becoming keener every day.

'TWAS LADIES DAY

Yesterday was ladies' day. Opportunity was given the fair fans to attend free of admission, and root as vigorously as their delicate vocal organs would permit. The idea had its origin, it is said, away back in the dark ages, when ladies turned out to witness gladiators fight, stirred on by the plaudits of the ladies.

"OSIE" IN THE LIMELIGHT

It is a little difficult to say who was in the centre of the spotlight. Osborne the "human finger building," pitched particularly good ball, excelling himself throughout. At various stages he was touched up rather freely, but he always redeemed himself.

"Osie" as he familiarly is known, seems to be a popular man with fans particularly the younger fry. To their youthful fancy he typifies the baseball "beau ideal."

Campbell was sent into the box for the Applegate outfit, and tossed pretty good ball, although he was hit all over the lot near the latter part of the play.

THE LUCKY SEVENTH

The Petes' ship came home, during the seventh innings, when Swartz and Trout, as in yesterday's game, chased each other across the pan for runs, on a peach of a two-sack hit by Byrnes. Beard two-stepped home also in the seventh, followed by Byrnes, making four runs in all. The crowds were by no means slow in showing their appreciation.

STORY OF THE PLAY

There was nothing doing either way until the fourth when Guelph annexed their lonely. In this innings, Shea was put out making first; White and Swartz were retired on flies.

In the fifth innings Trout touched second on a pretty slide, by a hair's breath. Beard did not make first on a bunt, but Trout stole third. Byrnes failed to reach first bag, Nickels walked on balls, Osborne flied, making side out with two men left on bases.

In the sixth, Osborne allowed Guelph three hard cracks. Good catches, one by Swartz and two by White in succession saved the Petes.

Brant hit to pitcher and was out easily. Shea fanned and White went out by Daniels. A double play in the seventh, Trout to Brant, spoiled Guelph's chance of bringing in a run from third sack.

"Petes" did the trick next. Swartz hit for a two bagger. Trout was safe at first. Beard bunted and made first, Swartz got to third, and Trout to second. It was up to Byrnes to bring them home, which he did on a perfect two-base hit. Nickels flied, but Beard came home from third, Osborne's bunt failed, but Byrnes wiggled to the plate, tallying four runs in all. It was plain that "Petes" had the game cinched, barring flukes. Brant made a pretty steal to second in this innings.

In the eighth Beard brought Swartz home for another, leaving visitors shut out with one run. Nothing doing in the ninth.

BREEZES FROM THE DIAMOND

During the game between London and Hamilton yesterday in London, Manager Knotty Lee, of the Hamilton Baseball team, was ejected from Tecumseh Park by a police officer. His objection to one of Umpire Pearson's close decisions waxed so strenuous that that official ordered his removal by the police. Lee thereafter watched the walloping of his Kolts from an adjoining housetop. The final score was 4—2 for London. The trouble started in the fifth innings, when Killilea grounded to Lindeburne, who cut him off. The decision was a close one, but Lee objected so strongly that the umpire called on an officer to eject him from the grounds. The officer and the furious manager headed a procession of hooting small boys to the gate.

"Count Your Blessings"

WOULD you be willing to go back to the standards of living that prevailed in 1812?

In spite of all the praise of "the good old days," would you be content to give up the many conveniences we have gained in the past century?

Former generations knew nothing of the luxuries of modern travel with its observation cars, individual lights in Pullman berths, phonograph recitals, rich appointments, home-like comforts, and special safety devices with which the modern railway system surrounds its passengers.

The rural telephone now places the farmer in instant communication with the source of the latest market reports, and saves him many hours of precious time in the event of sickness or accident.

The introduction of the typewriter and adding machine has lightened the load and lengthened the day of the business office.

It was Advertising that first proclaimed the usefulness of these devices, that created an immediate and universal demand for them, that established a world-wide distribution which made them readily accessible to us all.

McCormick invented the reaper and thereby made himself an everlasting benefactor of the farmer. But it was Advertising that carried the wonderful news with its far-reaching significance to the "man with the hoe."

You know what housework used to be. Realize what it is now, since the advent of sanitary plumbing fixtures, hot-water heating, vacuum cleaners, and electric household appliances. Advertising has brought these things into your home. It has eliminated drudgery.

Advertising is service. Science, invention, commerce, are all indebted to its aid. It has raised the standard of living, elevated business ethics, and put us within reach of more real comforts, more real blessings, than we ever enjoyed before,

Advice regarding your advertising is available through any recognized Canadian advertising agency, or the Secretary of the Canadian Press Association, Room 503 Lumsden Bldg., Toronto. Enquiry involves no obligation on your part—so write if interested.

PITCHER HOWSON FINED AND CANNED

At the game at Riverside Park, between Guelph and the White Caps this afternoon, Howson, one of the new pitchers for the home team, was put in to pitch. In the third innings he disputed a decision made by Umpire Davis and was fined $10 and put out of the game.

THE CLOSED DOOR

Its Secret Is Finally Revealed

By CLARISSA MACKIE

The landlord of the Foxboro inn drew aside the heavy curtain and looked out into the gathering dusk. He dropped the drapery and turned back into the pleasant, fire lit smoking room, where Frank Landis was enjoying an after dinner pipe of tobacco.

"I advise you not to set out tonight, Mr. Landis," warned the landlord as he went back to his chair.

"It's only ten miles to Riverbank. I can make it in half an hour," protested Landis, knocking the ashes from his pipe and placing it in his pocket.

"You don't understand this clay soil, Mr. Landis. I'm apparently trying to retain a very popular guest here overnight; but, on the contrary, I'm actually worried about you."

"Thanks, Smith; I believe you," said the other heartily, "but I've promised to be in Riverbank tonight, and I'm going to try for it if I have to walk part of the way."

"Very well, then. I'll try to make you as comfortable as possible. Do you want Joe to bring your car around?"

"If you please." Landis was shrugging himself into a heavy motorcoat and tying a leather cap over his ears. The storm was plainly audible now. The wind howled dismally, and the rain poured against the windowpanes in a drumming accompaniment.

"I may be making a mistake," he hesitated, sotto voce, "but I promised Robinson I'd get that money to him tonight. No one could have suspected that I started forth with ten thousand in cash in my pockets to help my old friend out of a tight squeeze, so why should I be afraid of a holdup? Brace up, Frank, my lad! I believe this confoundedly comfortable room has softened you against braving the storm. If my reaching there tonight will save Robinson a few hours' worry I'll do it."

Ten minutes later his little runabout moved swiftly down the bluestone driveway from the Foxboro inn.

The lamplights cut the darkness like a knife. The directions were simple enough. "Straight ahead," Smith had said, and straight ahead the road led between high wooded banks. The trees groaned and creaked as the wind and rain lashed at them; the heavy rain swished against the protecting hood and drowned the noise of the motor.

For a short distance the road was comparatively smooth and hard. Then it grew softer, and the machine labored heavily. Beyond the triangular points of light on the sticky soil ahead of the car all was midnight blackness.

"If I've got to stick fast I hope it will be in front of the halfway house," muttered Landis as the little machine bumped and tottered over the rutty road.

For awhile the way lay smoother, and then again it became impassable. All at once the runabout seemed to sink up to the hubs in mud, grunted helplessly and at last was silent and motionless as Landis shut off the power.

"The devil!" quoth Landis, thrusting his head from beneath the apron and surveying the blackness all about him. "What am I to do?"

He climbed out of the machine and stepped down into the oozy mud. It was over his shoe tops. He detached one of the lamps and threw its white glare into the blackness.

What he saw was far from reassuring. On either side of him tall trees bent their heads to a wild gray sky and a downpour of rain. A little beyond him there seemed a break in the trees, and after turning the light steadily upon it for a few minutes he could discern the ruins of an old house.

There were a broken backed roof and a sagging porch across the front, gaping windows and from somewhere the rushing roar of a river.

"The halfway house!" ejaculated Landis in dismay. "Well, I guess I better tramp back to the Foxboro inn or else spend the night in the car"—

He turned swiftly, suddenly aware that something was happening to the car. There was a strong smell of gasoline and then a roar and upward rush of flames from the stalled machine. The heavy rain partly extinguished the flames as fast as they found new foothold, but there were plenty of protected parts that furnished fuel for the flames.

The glare lighted up the dark roadway, and as Landis stared, for the moment stunned by the unexplained happening, a dark figure appeared on the other side of the car, scrambled and slipped up the embankment and melted into the darkness beyond the circle of flame.

Then was Landis aroused to action. He was about to climb the embankment in pursuit of that mysterious fleeing form when he saw that it had dropped down to the road once more a hundred feet beyond and was crossing rapidly over to the ruined halfway house.

As he looked the flames that enveloped the car were extinguished by the steady downpour of rain, and all was dark again.

"I guess it won't be a dull night if I can lay my hands on that individual!" he muttered as he plunged through the mud toward the halfway house.

Ahead of him other feet hurried toward the house. They were always in advance of him—up the broken steps to the sagging porch—within the creaking door into the mysterious gloom of the deserted house.

Landis hesitated there in the hall.

Tiptoeing up the stairs was a man's tall, lean form. Landis only saw his spare back and thin legs clad in black trousers with a loose raincoat flapping about his feet.

As the beam from the pocket lamp shot athwart the wall at his right the man leaped upward out of range of it.

Although danger and perhaps death lurked there at the head of the stairs, Landis was determined to end the mystery that had come upon him with the burning of the car. He extinguished the lamp, and, with his revolver ready, he crept silently up the stairs, alert for a sound from the man waiting above.

He saw nothing, heard nothing.

As he reached the head of the stairs something rushed at him out of the gloom—something that twined long arms about him and tried to throw him backward down the stairs.

"Let go or I'll shoot!" warned Landis as he struggled with the man.

There was no reply, only his assailant took a fresh hold. Lean fingers strove to catch at the motorist's throat, but the heavy fur coat served Landis a good turn now. He was enabled to wriggle out of its folds, which he left in the man's hands, while he plunged recklessly into the darkness. He banged into a solid wall, followed it down to an open doorway and turned into a room just as the man came running lightly after him.

Landis snapped on his light and saw a square room with a closed door in the rear wall. The door must lead to another room, and there was a wooden bar fitted into a socket that secured it. Two windows in the room were without glass, and through them the rain beat relentlessly, and the roar of the river was very plain.

Landis saw this in one sweeping glance before his assailant appeared in the doorway—a tall, lean form of a man with glaring black eyes and fierce smile.

"Robinson!" yelled Landis. "You? Why, man, what are you doing here? I was on my way to take the money to you."

"I know it," laughed the other fiendishly. "I know it. I've tracked you from Foxboro. I'll take the money now—now, Landis! Hand it over or by heaven you'll never leave this house alive!"

Landis stared. Was his friend mad? This Robinson was the man he was going to serve—to lend him $10,000, for which he had the cash in his pockets.

"You'll get the money in proper form in Riverbank tomorrow morning, Jim," he said calmly.

"I'll have it now. I shall never go back to Riverbank. I'm going to South America, and I need it to start afresh with. If I make a pile you'll get it back. If I don't, you won't be bothered with me again."

"You're crazy," said Landis, turning to the other door. "Come with me, Jim, and forget your worries. You've had a lot of trouble, and I guess you're pretty nervous. Come along, and walk back to Riverbank"—

"Never!" yelled the crazed financier, leaping at Landis, who ducked and ran for the closed door.

Robinson was upon him instantly, curved his long fingers around his benefactor's neck and choked him into half consciousness. Then when Landis sank limply to the floor, powerless to check his assailant, the other's fingers searched his clothing for the $10,000 in cash.

He snatched at Landis' leather wallet, and the fallen man watched him in helpless anger as the robber opened it and saw the thick mass of banknotes. Still holding it in his hand, Robinson kicked Landis away from the closed door, thrust up the bar, opened the door, passed through, slamming the door behind him.

Landis thought he heard Robinson yell once after that, but the wind and rain and rush of the river deadened all other sounds.

The electric pocket lamp lay on the floor, its white glare lighting the bare boards and throwing the upper part of the room in deep shadow. Landis lay there for several hours before he could arouse himself from the stupor which had resulted from Robinson's brutal attack upon him.

Then the first gray light of dawn gave him courage to rouse himself and investigate. The first thing he did was to open the closed door to find where his assailant had fled.

As it swung inward Landis uttered a startled cry and stepped back.

The door opened into empty space. It overhung the rushing river, and the balcony that had once adorned that second story room had fallen off no one knew when.

Jim Robinson, his false friend, had stepped through that door into eternity.

Landis leaned forth, faint and sick with apprehension.

There was no sign of Robinson, but caught among the rocks below was Landis' leather wallet, containing the little fortune.

Hours afterward, when Landis arrived in Riverbank with a farmer's wagon towing what was left of his little runabout, he found the little town in an uproar of excitement.

James Robinson, its principal citizen, had fallen, and his dead body had just been washed up on the banks near the railroad bridge.

They said it was a clear case of suicide, but Landis had seen his false friend walk through the door that separated life from death, and he knew the truth.

A Genuine Rupture Cure Sent On Trial To Prove It

Don't Wear a Truss Any Longer.

After Thirty Years' Experience I Have Produced An Appliance for Men, Women and Children That Actually Cures Rupture.

If you have tried most everything else, come to me. Where others fail is where I have my greatest success. Send attached coupon today and I will send you free my illustrated book on Rupture and its cure, showing my Appliance and giving you prices and names of many people who have tried it and were cured. It is instant relief when all others fail. Remember, I use no salves, no harness, no lies.

I send on trial to prove what I say is true. You are the judge and once having seen my illustrated book and read it you will be as enthusiastic as my hundreds of patients whose letters you can also read. Fill out free coupon below and mail today. It's well worth your time whether you try my Appliance or not.

The above is C. E. Brooks, the inventor, of Marshall, Mich., who has been curing rupture for over 30 years. If ruptured write him today.

Pennsylvania Man Thankful

Mr. C. E. Brooks,
Marshall, Mich.

Dear Sir:—

Perhaps it will interest you to know that I have been ruptured six years and have always had trouble with it till I got your Appliance. It is very easy to wear, fits neat and snug, and is not in the way at any time, day or night. In fact, at times I did not know I had it on; it just adapted itself to the shape of the body and seemed to be a part of the body, as it clung to the spot, no matter what position I was in.

It would be a veritable God-send to the unfortunate who suffer from rupture if all could procure the Brooks Rupture Appliance and wear it. They would certainly never regret it.

My rupture is now all healed up and nothing ever did it but your Appliance. Whenever the opportunity presents itself I will say a good word for your Appliance, and also the honorable way in which you deal with ruptured people. It is a pleasure to recommend a good thing among your friends or strangers. I am,

Yours very sincerely,
JAMES A. BRITTON.
80 Spring St., Bethlehem, Pa.

Recommend From Texas Farmer

Brooks Rupture Appliance Co.,
Marshall, Mich.

Gentlemen:—

I feel it my duty to let you, and also all people afflicted as I was, know what your Appliance has done for me. I have been ruptured for many years and have worn many different trusses, but never got any relief until I got your Appliance. I put it on last November, but had very little faith in it, but must say I am now cured. I have laid it away—have had it off for two weeks and doing all kinds of farm work with ease. While I was wearing it, I had lagrippe and coughed a great deal but it held all right. Words cannot express my gratitude towards you and your Appliance. Will recommend it to all ruptured people.

Yours sincerely,
Bald Prairie, Texas. J. E. LONG.

Others Failed But the Appliance Cured

C. E. Brooks,
Marshall, Mich.

Dear Sir:—

Your Appliance did all you claim for the little boy and more, for it cured him sound and well. We let him wear it for about a year in all, although it cured him 3 months after he had begun to wear it. We had tried several other remedies and got no relief, and I shall certainly recommend it to friends, for we surely owe it to you. Yours respectfully,

WM. PATTERSON.
No. 717 S. Main St., Akron, O.

Cured At the Age of 76.

Mr. C. E. Brooks, Marshall, Mich.

Dear Sir:—

I began using your Appliance for the cure of rupture (I had a pretty bad case) I think in May, 1905. On November 21, 1905, I quit using it. Since that time I have not needed or used it. I am well of rupture and rank myself among those cured by the Brooks Discovery, which, considering my age, 76 years, I regard as remarkable.

Very sincerely yours,
Jamestown, N. C. SAM A. HOOVER

Child Cured In Four Months.

21 Jansen St., Dubuque, Iowa
Brooks Rupture Appliance Co.

Gentlemen:— The baby's rupture is altogether cured, thanks to your appliance, and we are so thankful to you. If we could only have known of it sooner our little boy would not have had to suffer near as much as he did. He wore your brace a little over four months and has not worn it now for six weeks.

Yours very truly,
Andrew Eggenberger.

Ten Reasons Why

You Should Send For Brooks Rupture Appliance.

1. It is absolutely the only Appliance of the kind on the market today, and in it are embodied the principles that inventors have sought after for years.
2. The Appliance for retaining the rupture cannot be thrown out of position.
3. Being an air cushion of soft rubber it clings closely to the body, yet never blisters or causes irritation.
4. Unlike the ordinary so-called pads, used in other trusses, it is not cumbersome or ungainly.
5. It is small, soft and pliable, and positively cannot be detected through the clothing.
6. The soft, pliable bands holding the Appliance do not give one the unpleasant sensation of wearing a harness.
7. There is nothing about it to get foul, and when it becomes soiled it can be washed without injuring it in the least.
8. There are no metal springs in the Appliance to torture one by cutting and bruising the flesh.
9. All of the material of which the Appliances are made is of the very best that money can buy, making it a durable and safe Appliance to wear.
10. My reputation for honesty and fair dealing is so thoroughly established by an experience of over thirty years of dealing with the public, and my prices are so reasonable, my terms so fair, that there certainly should be no hesitancy in sending free coupon today.

Remember

I send my Appliance on trial to prove what I say is true. You are to be the judge. Fill out free coupon below and mail today.

OTTAWA'S TYPHOID EPIDEMIC IS DAILY GROWING WORSE

Situation at the Capital is Serious—There Are 508 Cases of Fever Reported and the Disease is Spreading—Health Officer Hastings Sent For.

Ottawa, Ont., Aug. 1.—With 508 cases reported up to 11 o'clock, and the death of the fourth victim of the disease reported yesterday, the typhoid epidemic raging in Ottawa at present has begun to assume serious proportions. Although the water is now officially declared to be pure, new cases are turning up at the rate of about 50 a day, and there seems no indication of any check.

July 19 was the date on which the unusual number of typhoid cases were at first noticed. There were then about two dozen cases, which have jumped in the comparatively short time which has elapsed to 20 times that number. The civic emergency hospital, which has been opened in an old Government building, was started yesterday, but even yet there is much congestion on account of the large number of patients, tents having had to be erected on the grounds of some of the local hospitals to accommodate them. There is a shortage of nurses, although six members of the profession from Toronto and several from Montreal have arrived to swell the local ranks, and more will be asked for.

The latest action of the city authorities on the water question was the recommendation of the waterworks committee at a meeting last night to engage another expert to report on water supply. The plan submitted by Dr. McCullough, Provincial Officer of Health, or rather dictated by him, is not favored locally, and will probably be turned down, unless some of its details are changed.

Meanwhile, it has been discovered that some of the brands of supposedly pure spring water which have had an enormous sale in the city lately are also contaminated.

Health Officer Hastings, of Toronto, yesterday received an appeal from the Health Officer of Ottawa for an additional staff of nurses. He had already sent six to the capital, and last night added half a dozen more. The typhoid epidemic there has assumed terrifying proportions.

In Toronto, a city five times the size of Ottawa, there were only 20 typhoid cases in July, as compared with 35 during July of 1911, and a number of these originated outside the city. In Ottawa, during less than two weeks of epidemic, there have been 508 cases reported, and a large additional number are probably in existence there.

Typhoid fever generally develops in two weeks, but it may take 20 days. It follows that an epidemic may show no signs of abating until twenty days after the cause has been removed. That means that Ottawa may expect cases for that length of time after its water supply was pronounced pure.

The present epidemic is alarming, and the daily additions to the sick list must have been a tremendous strain on every family. No family could be sure that the disease would not develop in some member at any moment, even though the cause—impure water—had been removed for weeks.

It may not be generally known that there is an anti-typhoid inoculation which is now accepted as a practically sure preventive, and this might have been used with advantage. It differs from vaccination in that its effects are not for life. One or two vaccinations will probably protect an individual against smallpox for all his days, but the anti-typhoid inoculation is not effective for the same length of time.

TWO CASES OF TYPHOID HERE

Health Officer McPherson Advises Citizens to Boil Drinking Water.

Health Officer MacPherson said to-day that there are only two cases of typhoid fever in the city, both the result of using water taken from wells. He says that impure drinking water is alone responsible for the outbreak at Ottawa.

While as a general thing Peterborough's supply of drinking water is pure, Dr. MacPherson says that at this season it is liable to become contaminated at any time owing to the presence of so many resorters on the lakes. For this reason he would advise all citizens to boil the water before drinking it.

AUGUST FIRST IS HISTORICAL DAY

Anniversary of Emancipation of British Slaves.

This is Emancipation Day, the seventy-eighth anniversary of the date when all the slaves in the British possessions were set free and it is observed as a season for rejoicing by the descendants of those who were held in bondage.

The British Government set the slaves at liberty by purchasing thier freedom from the owners, the sum of twenty million pounds being appropriated for that purpose, a part of the fund being used to give the newly liberated slaves a start in life.

The settlement of the slavery question cost the American Republic dearly both in blood and treasures, the question being the cause of the Civil War. In 1862 while that struggle was intense, President Lincoln issued his famous proclamation declaring that all slaves were free. This not only crippled the south by sweeping away her chief asset but gave the negro the right to enlist in the northern army if he so desired.

The negroes of the Northern States observe August 1st as a holiday and general rejoicing prevails, although the date does not mark the anniversary of the day that saw the last of slavery in the United States. In the South they would probably celebrate if they dared, but the whites of that section would not tolerate anything of that kind, declining to permit anything like rejoicing over an event which crippled the South so badly in a financial sense that the effects are still felt.

August 1st is destined to mark a new epoch in the history of the world. It is the date chosen by Col. Roosevelt for the formal organization of his new Progressive Party.

With grade work on the Calgary-Tofield branch of the Grand Trunk Pacific completed into the former city, and with the track-laying gangs close on the heels of the grading outfits all that will prevent the contractors from running trains into Calgary by the end of next month will be the completion of their bridges. Already the cement pier works are on and as fast as the track is laid the G.T.P. trains will haul the structural steel to the bridge sites and the actual work of building will be begun. At the outside there should be train service to Calgary from the main line by the end of November and it is reported that arrangements are being made for a temporary depot as it will be impossible to have the permanent building erected by that time.

THE DISPATCH BEARER

A Story For Memorial Day

By Captain F. A. MITCHEL

It was the summer of 1862. General McClellan was moving up the peninsula lying between the James and the York rivers. Somewhere to the north of Richmond between that city and Washington was an army under General McDowell.

One day an officer wearing the blue uniform of the United States and the yellow shoulder straps of a captain of cavalry, followed by an orderly, was riding amid the dust kicked up by his horse midway between these two armies. The hour was noon, the day was hot, and the horses of both officer and orderly were jaded. Coming to a plantation in the center of which stood a manor house bearing the architectural marks of having been built in colonial times, the captain turned his horse's head in between two stone pillars and rode up the lane under arched trees, making straight for the stable. There, dismounting, he strode toward the door, which stood open. A darky, sitting on a barrel, arose as he approached.

"Got any fresh horses in here, uncle?" said the captain.

"No fresh hosses, marse. Got two hosses in dar dat was 'pressed into de sarvice ob de south'n men, and day's all wohn out."

"Can't help it. They've had some rest since then, and mine can't go a mile further."

"Can I be of service to you, suh?" asked a voice from behind the captain, who turned and saw a gentleman wearing clothes that, though they had long before disappeared from the north, were still in fashion among a few planters of the south—a beaver hat, a high shirt collar with plenty of neckwear, a ruffled shirt, blue coat with brass buttons and trousers strapped down over his instep. There was something in his thoroughbred manner that made the captain ashamed of going into his stables and taking possession of his horses.

"I am sorry to be obliged, sir," said the officer in an apologetic tone, "to impress a mount for myself and my orderly into the United States service."

"If you will do me the honah, suh, to stop with me fo' an houah I can give you what you wish. My horses will be ready by that time to do a few hours' work. I am Thomas Randolph, suh, and it gives me pleasure to welcome you onto my plantation."

"I am Captain Cartright of the —th United States cavalry. I certainly need something to eat; but, being a bearer of dispatches, I do not feel at liberty to delay."

At the mention of the dispatches Mr. Randolph's eyes took on a peculiar look—a crafty look. Captain Cartright was too hot and tired and hungry to notice it or that the planter had any object in his subsequent words except in relieving that hunger.

"We haven't much to give you, suh," said the gentleman; "only some chicken, but my cook knows how to fry it deliciously, and some fine sweet potatoes that melt in yo' mouth. Her co'n pone is also excellent."

"Enough, sir!" cried the captain. "No man, famished as I am, can resist that bill of luxuries. I'll dine with you with pleasure. Let me see"—taking out his watch—"it is now 12 o'clock. Do you think your horses will be rested by 2?"

"I think so, suh. This way, suh." Then to the darky, "Pete, take the gentlemen's horses into the stable and give them a good feed, and tell Sam to give the captain's orderly all he can eat fo' dinner."

Mr. Randolph led Captain Cartright into the house and, asking him to be seated for a few moments in the drawing room, left him. After some time he returned with a negro and said:

"This is my own body servant, Jim. He will show you to a room where you will find the wherewithal fo' getting off the dirt of the road. When you have done so come down, and dinner will be served."

Jim led the way up the winding staircase to a spacious chamber containing an enormous four post bedstead with curtains above and valance below and other furniture of a corresponding pattern. The darky poured water into a great china bowl. The captain unbuckled his belt, from which hung his revolver and saber, and threw them on a chair. Then he took off his coat, rolled up his shirt sleeves and plunged his head into the water.

Jim took up the coat and brushed it carefully while its owner was spluttering in the water. When Cartright had finished his ablutions Jim stood holding the coat ready to help him on with it. After this had been done the captain placed his hand on his breast pocket and, feeling the envelope, was satisfied that his dispatches were still there and with a refreshed look on his face went downstairs.

Mr. Randolph received him cordially, glancing inquiringly at Jim, who was coming down the staircase behind the captain. What he saw in the negro's face evidently pleased him very much, for he renewed his attentions to his guest to such an extent that Cartright began to suspect his host to be one of those Virginians who adhered to the Union cause. A darky announced that dinner was ready, and the two went into the dining room, where they found the Randolph family waiting for them. Those at home were Mrs. Randolph, a stately lady, and her two daughters, Carey and Julia, very pretty girls. The sons were all serving in the Confederate army.

"On which side of this fracas are your sympathies, madam?" asked Cartright.

The husband and father took it upon himself to reply. "The fracas, as you call it, suh," he said, "is being disposed of by the armies of the respective sides. We noncombatants have nothing to do with the settlement. We intend to treat you no'the'ners when you come to us as ouah guests. Let me help you, suh, to some mo' of the chicken. Do you prefer the white meat or the dahk?"

Cartright would have preferred both, but, that being out of the question, he said either would do, and doubtless he could have eaten even the bones. Besides, he was observing Carey Randolph, whose southern beauty was especially pleasing to him. The dinner proceeded with marked attention on the part of all the family to the young captain, who, in the presence of a southern matron and her two attractive daughters, strove to make himself as agreeable as possible. The dinner finished, he was conducted to the drawing room, where he sat in the most comfortable chair in the room, surrounded by the Randolph family.

Nothing of moment occurred during this after dinner companionship except that the captain, looking out of a window, saw Jim, Mr. Randolph's body servant, riding down the lane leading from the house to the road. Then in a few minutes the officer saw his orderly, Mike Finegan, riding full tilt in the same direction.

Presently Cartright saw Mike riding leisurely back and felt relieved. Rising, he thanked the members of the family for their southern hospitality, which he declared was famed all over the world. All were extremely gracious to him and hoped that the fortunes of war would bring him their way again. Mr. Randolph assured him that he would always find a welcome at the manor house. There was an unobserved pressure of the hand between Cartright and Miss Carey Randolph and a soft look between the two. Then the captain went out, called for the horses to take him and his orderly on their way, and, mounting amid many goodbys, he rode away with Mike at the regulation forty paces in his rear.

They had not gone far before Mike called, "Captain!"

"What is it?"

"Are ye shure the dispatches are all right?"

"Yes." And the captain felt his breast with his fingers.

"Wouldn't it be well to take 'em out and look at 'em? Them people is bad secesh."

"They're fine people, anyway," replied Cartright. But he unbuttoned his coat, took out the envelope and looked at it with astonishment. There was no address or army stamp on the upper left hand corner. Tearing off the cover, he exposed blank paper.

"Great heavens!" he exclaimed.

"What is it, sorr?" asked Mike, riding up beside his superior.

"I've been tricked. Some one has substituted this for the dispatches."

"Begorra, that's bad!" exclaimed Mike.

The captain was pale and trembling. What excuse could he give for his incaution, his trustfulness? His delinquency might wreck McClellan's army.

"Orderly," he said, "draw your revolver and put a bullet through my brains; then destroy this blank paper, ride on to General McClellan and tell him that we were attacked on our way and robbed of the dispatches. You'll do that for me, won't you?"

"Oi'm thinkin', captain, that there's a betther way o' doin' it."

"What way?"

"Presintin' the real dispatches."

"But they're gone."

"They moight come back."

"What do you mean?"

"Well, sorr, they say all the nagurs of the south is wid us. One of 'em isn't, I know—that black spalpeen, the planter's body servant. I was eatin' me dinner, and I saw 'im goin' out to the stable, puttin' somepin that looked loike the dispatches in his shirt. Thin he kem out wid a horse, mounted and made off. Rushin' to the shtable, I took a horse and followed 'im. I caught 'im on the road and fired at 'im, bringin' 'im to a halt. 'O'll trouble ye for the papers in your shirt,' I said. 'Wha' papers?' he asked. Fur a reply I cut off his ear wid a bullet from me revolver. Wid that he tuk the papers from under his shirt next his dirty black skin, and here they are."

The captain seized the envelope, took out the contents, satisfied himself that they were really the dispatches, then fell on his orderly's neck.

"But how in the world could the rascal have got them?" asked the captain, wondering.

"I dunno, sorr. I only know he had 'em."

"There's but one way," the captain went on, half to himself and half to Mike. "He brushed my coat. Doubtless he made the transfer then. But I can't understand how he happened to have the dummy."

"Well, sorr," Mike put in, "before the nagur carried the wather upstairs for you I saw the planther hand it to 'im."

"I see it all," said the captain. "It was a neat trick, and but for you"—

He embraced Mike again.

After the surrender Captain Cartright went to Virginia and married Miss Carey Randolph. Then that which might have destroyed an army and ruined the dispatch bearer became simply an interesting episode.

You don't get much if you are satisfied with what the world gives you.

Don't Need Accident Insurance

There is no excuse for refusing to take out Accident Insurance as common as the one that the prospect "Don't Need It."

The average man thinks he never exposes himself to hazards that invite accidents.

Here are some of the aluminating facts in regard to the hazards of ordinary lives.

Is he the man who never goes anywhere, always remains at home? Whereabouts at home does he remain to escape danger? Inside the house? Out of every one hundred injurious accidents nearly 14 per cent occur inside the house. Is he safe there? Hardly.

While at home around the house, amid scenes of peace, is he free from danger? Out of every one hundred injurious accidents, nearly 13 per cent are met with amid these peaceful surroundings.

Is he safe while walking the streets? Out of every one hundred injurious accidents, nearly 16 per cent are met with by pedestrians. Hardly safe is he while walking?

A fraction of over 13 per cent of every one hundred injurious accidents are attributable to horses and vehicles. Nearly 7 per cent are attributable to Automobiles and Bicycles. Railroad and Steamship travel are not especially to be commended for possessing elements of safety as these contribute 14 per cent of every one hundred.

Even while engaged in recreation he is not safe, as its quota amounts to nearly 8 per cent of every hundred. There is only one place where a man is not liable to meet with injurious accidents, and that is—the grave. Sleeping there he is in no danger.

The above shows that everyone needs protection against Accident, and this protection can be obtained at a nominal cost by applying to

VISIT OF CANADIANS NOT POLITICAL SAYS MR. BORDEN

Premier and His Colleagues Are Banquetted in the Liberal National Club, the Fortress of Liberalism and Government Supporters in London—Sir Rufus Isaacs Says It Is Quite a Family Affair.

London, Aug. 2.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—"Not as politicians, but kinsmen," was a phrase used by Hon. R. L. Borden last night to describe the attitude in which he and his colleagues had come to Britain. That, too, was the attitude the National Liberal Club revealed at the banquet presided over by the Marquis of Lincolnshire.

Lord Strathcona received a demonstration of affection at the close of the proceedings, when in response to repeated calls he arose and spoke a few words.

A feature of the banquet was the address of welcome by Sir Rufus Isaacs, Attorney-General, in which he characterized the visit of the Canadians as a distinct epoch in the history of the Empire, at a time when the watchword of all parties must be Britain's supremacy on the sea.

The big banquet rooms of the club were completely filled when Premier Borden rose, following Hon. Mr. Isaacs, and his welcome was most enthusiastic. When he declared Canadian loyalty was more pronounced now than ever before, he caught the audience, which applauded long and loud. The Canadian Premier suggested amidst cheers that it might be well for British Ministers to visit Canada.

In closing, the noble chairman described the event as a glorious evening. The club had been much honored in the Canadians' visit, and had done honor to itself and the cause of represented in having "illustrious statesmen" as guests.

Hon. J. D. Hazen made a noteworthy declaration in emphasizing the desire of Canadian people to participate in Imperial problems in return for any assistance they would extend in defence of the Empire.

He declared for a navy with no divided control and which would fly to any part of the Empire menaced.

Hon. Rufus Isaacs, in proposing the toast to the visitors, said: "Although we are met as a political party, nevertheless our welcome is from all parties on questions arising out of the visit of Hon. Mr. Borden and colleagues. There is no division. We are animated by no political views, but simply and solely by a general desire for good of the Empire. I am quite certain we shall look on this period as a distinct epoch in the history of the whole Empire at the present time.

Forced against our will to expend huge sums on armaments, more particularly on our navy, it is not our seeking, but I am sure all Liberals agree that the first article in the political creed of all parties is that we must be supreme at sea." (Cheers.) "Let us not forget the significance of this visit. Hon. Mr. Borden in the speeches he has already made, leaves little room to doubt what his views are. I think we may well describe his visit as a family visit to discuss family affairs.

Hon. Mr. Borden, replying to the toast, expressed appreciation of hearty, cordial manner in which he had been received. "We have come here not as politicias but as kinsmen. We come here representing the great Dominion which has been founded by two great races, French and British, who have been working side by side in unison, harmony and brotherhood for the development and progress of a vast territory.

After touching upon the development of the Dominion in the past 30 years, the Premier declared: "No one more than myself rejoices at the great trend of immigration into the great dominion from the British Isles. Fifteen years ago only twenty per cent. of immigration went to the Dominion and eighty per cent. to foreign countries. Now the position is reversed. I do want to point out to you while the development of Canada has been so phenomenal it has also been absolutely sound and safe upon the enduring foundations of the British Empire, as organized at present a very modern affair with increasing rights and powers. Constitutional changes between the Mother Country and the Dominion have undoubtedly undergone certain important changes. Those changes resulted not in lessening the ties which have been so eloquently characterised but have strengthened the tie. I have no special rights to speak for any other great dominion, but so far as Canada is concerned it is stronger today than ever in the past."

Borden at Luncheon.

London, Aug. 2.—The Canada Club lunched Premier Borden and his colleagues yesterday in the Ancient Hall of the Merchants' Tailors Company, Lord Strathcona presiding over the large gathering. A large percentage of those present represented financial interests in the city.

Mr. Borden replying to the toast to his health, gave a warm eulogy of Lord Strathcona. No man in the Empire was a greater Imperial figure or had been closer associated with the growth and development of Canada in the old days before confederation. The situation was such that even we Canadians can hardly realize it. The men who undertook to lay the foundation of the Canadian confederation were possessed of supreme faith and courage.

TAFT MAKES KEYNOTE SPEECH

Washington, D.C., Aug. 2.—President Taft at noon yesterday received in the historic east room of the White House the committee appointed by the Chicago convention to formally notify him of his nomination. Senator Root, who was chairman of the convention, made the announcement and assured the President that no Presidential candidate ever had a clearer title to the nomination.

The President at once replied in a speech of such great length that many of those present supposed it to be his letter of acceptance. He took the precaution, however, of saying that he might supplement yesterday's speech by a further communication to the committee in writing.

MR. PUGSLEY GETTING TIRED

Montreal, Aug. 2.—Hon. Dr. Pugsley, M.P., and Sir Frederick Borden were in the city yesterday. Dr. Pugsley said that if there was a general election to-morrow he honestly believed the Liberal party would be returned.

"The people," he said, "are getting tired of so much talk. What Premier Borden's policy is going to be is, I believe, ye unknown to himself, and, therefore, to everyone else. Anyone could go to London and Paris and make speeches about the loyalty of Canada and Canadians, and that is all Mr. Borden and his colleagues have done, so far as I can see."

"It seems to me that Premier Borden is bound by his promises on several occasions to declare a general election immediately after he has submitted to Parliament his promised redistribution bill and his naval policy," said Sir Frederick Borden. "Unless the Nationalists are absolutely dishonest in their course, trouble in the Cabinet is inevitable."

THREE WARSHIPS FOR AUSTRALIA

Sydney, N.S.W., Aug. 2.—The principal feature of the Commonwealth budget is the proposal to spend almost £4,000,000 on new works and buildings. Details of the expenditure inculde the following: For fleet construction, £1,207,000; other naval works, £284,000; military works, £876,000; post office, including wireless, £1,055,000; other defence expenditure amounts to £2,748,000, including a provision for the full complement of three cruisers, two submarines and a depot ship. During the year ten wireless stations are to be constructed.

LITTLE DAMAGE TO WESTERN CROPS

Winnipeg, Aug. 2.—Providing the present fine weather keeps up a good crop is assured. In isolated districts reports are prevalent of damage by hail. However, what damage has been done is very small.

The Canadian Northern Railway, like the Canadian Pacific, will have all labor distributed from Winnipeg on regular special trains from the east.

During the past month the total rainfall was 6.095 inches. This is a record rainfall for July, when compare with the past sixteen years. Rain fell on 21 out of 31 days.

Seager Wheeler of Rosthern, Sask., who took the world's championship for wheat at Chicago last year with Marquis, has successfully raised a new variety of wheat, known as Prelude, which looks particularly well and is ten days earlier than Marquis.

International Bridge Opened.

International Park, Minn., Aug. 2.—With appropriate ceremonies, the steel bridge which spans Rainy River and connects the United States with the Dominion of Canada, was opened yesterday. Citizens of International Falls and Fort Frances, Ont., took part in the celebration.

FIREMEN LAID OUT FIGHTING FLAMES

Forty Montreal Fighters Overcome by Ammonia Fumes.

Montreal, Aug. 2.—Forty firemen, including numerous officers of the force, were overcome by ammonia fumes and by the clouds of smoke from burning lard and meat during a fire which raged all afternoon in the premises of the Montreal Abattoirs, Ltd., on the bank of the canal, in Point St. Charles. Several recovered and resumed the fight, but many had to be transported to the city hospitals, and to-day eleven men are still in various institutions. All are declared to be out of danger, but it will be several days before most of them can return to duty, while a few are seriously injured.

The fire was not extinguished until nearly six o'clock last evening. It started shortly after noon as the men were leaving for lunch, and is thought to have originated from an overheated pan of boiling grease. The entire brigade was called out and the fire was finally confined to the building in which it started, the packing plant, a four-storey brick building which was completely destroyed. The plant contained the cold storage department and it was from this that the ammonia fumes come. The slaughter house was saved.

Last night it was said that no accurate estimate of the damage could be given, but that it would probably approach $200,000. There was a very large amount of meat stored in the building with great quantities of lard. Valuable machinery was also ruined. The loss is covered by insurance. Three alarms were turned in in quick succession, so threatening was the outlook, as the plant is situated in the heart of the factory district.

Almost the first fireman to enter the building, Fireman Marquis, was overcome by fumes. He fell from the third storey and sustained severe internal injuries. A few other firemen sustained cuts from broken window glass, but the rest of the injured suffered only from smoke and gas.

It was a desperate fight for a time for firemen after firemen succumbed to the fumes, and their successors not only had to carry on the fight, but had to assist their comrades to windows from which they were lowered by ropes to the ground.

All afternoon reinforcements were constantly on their way to the scene to replace those who had fallen, and it was not until 6 o'clock that the victory was finally complete.

BUILDING FELL; TEN KILLED

Seventy two Workmen Were Buried Under Crumbling Walls

Special to the Review.

Nuremberg, Bavaria, Aug. 2— Ten workmen were killed, thirty-five seriously injured and five are missing, as a result of the collapse of an immense power station under construction here. The entire edifice crumpled up and fell in a heap of debris burying seventy-two laborers.

ANOTHER ARREST IS MADE FOR ROSENTHAL MURDER

He Is One of the Gunmen Charged In Rose and Webber's Confessions With Having Shot Down the Gambler—"Lefty" Louis and "Gip the Blood" Are Believed to Be In Hiding In Same Vicinity.

New York, Aug. 2.—"Whitey" Lewis, one of the four gunmen wanted by the police as the actual murderers of Herman Rosenthal, the gambler, was arrested in the Catskill Mountains yesterday afternoon, and was taken to Kingston, N.Y., to be lodged in the county jail. This was announced last night at police headquarters here by Inspector Hughes, who said that three of his detectives had located him at Fleishmann's, N.Y., a summer resort 46 miles from Kingston, working on a farm.

He was arrested just as he was about to board a train and make his escape. The prisoner will be brought down to New York to-day. It was reported at police headquarters last night, that "Lefty" Louis and "Gip, the Blood," two of the alleged murderers still at large, had been tracked to the same locality and that their arrest would soon occur. The news that at least one of the fugitives had been trapped was received with great elation at police headquarters last night, because of the criticism that has been directed towards the police department for their failure to arrest any of the men charged with the actual killing of the gambler.

Detective Harvey, one of the men who arrested Lewis, in a report made to Inspector Hughes over the long distance telephone late last night, said that the prisoner refused to talk about the assassination of Rosenthal and denied all knowledge of even the slightest details of the murder. Lewis seemed much depressed by his arrest and expressed surprise that he had fallen into the hands of the police. He had very little money.

MR. CHURCHILL IS COMING

He Will Make the Trip Here Probably In a Warship.

London, Aug. 2.—Winston Spencer Churchill, First Lord of the Admiralty, will make a visit to Canada, and it is expected that he will proceed to the Dominion on a warship.

The Canadian Premier, R. L. Borden, at a meeting of the committee for Imperial defence yesterday, which was attended by the British Prime Minister and most of the member of the Cabinet, extended an invitation to the Ministers to visit Canada.

HON. WINSTON CHURCHILL.

Mr. Asquith said that he would not be able to go, but Mr. Churchill accepted.

French Ministers May Come.

London, Aug. 2.—The latest suggestion in connection with the visit of British Cabinet Ministers to Canada is that members of the French Cabinet should also be invited to visit the Dominion aboard a French warship, simultaneously with Mr. Asquith and Mr. Churchill. If the invitation is offered and accepted, the program would probably include a big celebration at Quebec.

MUST KNOW HOW MONEY IS SPENT

Premier Borden and His Ministers Outline Their Position to Defence Committee.

Special To The Review.

London, Aug. 2— Hon. R. L. Borden, Premier of Canada, and other members of the Dominion Cabinet, who have been conferring with the Imperial Defence Committee on naval question, have let the British Cabinet know that Canada is prepared to assist Great Britain to maintain naval supremacy, but when she does she will want to be consulted as to the way the money is to be spent.

Daily Murder at Gotham.

New York, Aug. 2.—One murder a day was the average in New York City for the month of July, according to the official tabulation compiled by the police homicide bureau. Records show that the hot weather always stirs the murderers to action, but during the month just passed they outdid themselves in activity. A year ago the July total was about a fourth smaller than this year.

Minnesota's Bumper Harvest.

Minneapolis, Aug. 2.—That the wheat yield of Minnesota and the Dakotas will approximate 265,000,000 bushels this year is the declaration of a local milling paper, which states that the harvest will be the largest on record, 198,000,000 bushels in 1905 being the previous high mark.

TWO DROWNED AT SHERBROOKE

Sherbrooke, Que., Aug. 2.—While out rowing Wednesday evening in a skiff on Little Lake Magog, J. Massey and F. Horton changed seats and in doing so overturned the boat. Both men were drowned. Louis Brosseau, the third man in the boat, tried to drag Massey to the overturned craft, but he struggled so that he had to let him go in order to save himself. Both Massey and Horton were old country men.

Horton's wife and three children sailed from Liverpool for Canada on Wednesday, and Massey's wife and family were to have come out in September.

APPOINTMENT ON TRENT CANAL

A. M. Cameron Becomes Resident Engineer at Hastings

Mr. A. M. Cameron, C.E., of the defunct Newmarket section of the Trent Canal, has been appointed to succeed the late A. G. Craig as resident engineer of the canal at Hastings. His many friends in town were hoping that Mr. Wm. West, C.E., who has been temporarily in charge since Mr. Craig's illness, would receive the appointment.

THE TWO NATIONS TO WORK TOGETHER

London, Aug. 2.—Sir Edward Grey, the Foreign Secretary, speaking in the House of Commons yesterday on the atrocities in connection with the rubber industry in the Putomayo district of Peru, said that the British Government did not wish to rest content with making the facts public, but had done all possible through diplomatic means to impress Peru with the undesirability of permitting such a state of affairs to continue.

The British Government, he said, is keeping in the closest touch with the United States in this matter, and public opinion in the United States would undoubtedly prove a potent factor in preventing a recurrence. It had been arranged for the British and American consuls to leave together on Aug. 5 for Putomayor, and the consuls' presence in that district would be a guarantee that the horrors would not be repeated without the world knowing it.

FERGUSON PLEADS NOT GUILTY

Detroit, Aug. 2.—William Ferguson, who shot and killed Traveling Inspector H. A. Herbert of the Canadian immigration department, on a Windsor ferryboat, was formally arraigned before U. S. Commissioner Finney in the Federal Court, on a charge of murder. Ferguson pleaded not guilty, and was bound over for trial before the grand jury. The prisoner informed the court that he had sufficient funds with which to procure an attorney.

Bryce Returning to Washington.

London, Aug. 2.—Asked yesterday in the House of Commons by Sir Clement Hinloch-Cooke whether the resignation of James Bryce, British ambassador to the United States, was impending, and whether his successor had been appointed, Sir Edward Grey, Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs, replied:

"Mr. Bryce is returning to Washington early in September to resume the work as ambassador."

Trio Sentenced.

Toronto, Aug. 2.—For breaking into the liquor store of Frank Vardon at 413 West Queen street over a week ago, Patrick Lyon drew a one-year sentence in the Central, and William Bell and John Morrison were each given 30 days in jail by Magistrate Denison in the police court yesterday morning. Lyon's sentence was the most severe as the court thought he was the ringleader in the affair.

DUNDEE LODGE LOST APPEAL

Special To The Review.

London, Aug. 2.—The Grand Lodge of Free Masons, of Scotland yesterday dismissed the appeal against the suspension of Dundee Lodge in connection with irregularities in the initiation of Jack Johnston, the pugilist.

DR. OVEREND IS ON HIS VACATION

Former Peterboro Resident Visiting His Parents.

Dr. K. V. Overend, who for the past year, has been practicing his profession in New York, is spending his vacation with his parents on Lock street.

It will be recalled that Dr. Overend a few weeks ago, had a narrow escape from death. An Italian laborer, while digging a sewer in New York, was fatally injured by the caving in of a portion of the walls of the trench. Dr. Overend and a priest descended to the unfortunate foreigner, one to attend to his injuries and the other to administer the last rites of the church. While they were so engaged, another section of the clay walls fell in and physician and priest, narrowly escaped the fate of the laborer.

Dr. Overend says there is no place like New York for a doctor. Deeds of violence, accidents of all kinds and even murders are of daily occurrence and the services of medical men are in constant demand.

MR. ROWELL AND HIS PARTY INSPECT FAMOUS CLAY BELT

Mr. Rowell and Party Visit Cochrane and Received a Lesson In Possibilities of the Northland From Government Officials — Railways Primarily to Open Up the Country Declares Mr. Rowell.

Cochrane, Aug. 2.—N. W. Rowell, K.C., and the other members of the Liberal touring party were given a banquet at the Hotel Cedric last night by the Cochrane Board of Trade. The president of this body, Otto Thorning, spoke briefly of the great agricultural possibilities and development of Northern Ontario.

Mr. Rowell then addressed the gathering. He referred to the destruction of Cochrane by fire a year ago, and its prompt reconstruction as the most tangible evidence of the progress of the region.

"This," said Mr. Rowell, "is preeminently a young man's country. We have seen with our own eyes the evidence of the fertility of the great clay belt. The observations made on this tour have shown that roads are needed in some parts of this region. What has been done must be the commencement of still greater operations in the great work of developing Northern Ontario."

A paramount consideration, Mr. Rowell urged, was the urgent need of publicity in attracting settlers here. Also the primary object of railway transportation in opening up the northern country should be kept constantly in mind.

Yesterday's proceedings of the Liberal touring party began with a meeting in the school-house at Matheson yesterday morning, when Arthur W. Roebuck, speaking for the mayor, delivered an address of welcome to Mr. Rowell. Various local speakers followed.

J. F. Whitson, in charge of the Government construction of roads, told what he was accomplishing in North Ontario. Mr. Rowell explained that Mr. Whitson was present at the meeting by arrangement between himself and Mr. Hearst. Mr. Whitson is accompanying the party to point out what is being done and the condition of the farming lands.

A good start in the building of roads had already been made. Mr. Whitson explained he has 400 men at work, and preparations for five camps, three of which are now working. In a week or two he hopes to have 150 men busy in the vicinity of Matheson. Twenty-five years ago there were summer frosts in Essex County, but when the land was drained the frosts had disappeared. It would be the same in this region.

Mr. Rowell praised the action of the Government in selecting Whitson to have charge of the work. Mr. Rowell declared that the Lberal tourng party was learning somethings of the needs of the country, which was the object of the present trip. He condemned the action of the Government in withholding large portions of new towns from taxation, and said that if the Government didn't remedy this he would introduce legislation.

In the afternoon the party went westward 30 miles on the Transcontinental Railroad, viewing the clay belt and inspecting the lumber camps of Jackson Bros., who have a 90,000 acre concession.

MR. TAFT ACCEPTS

The speech of President Taft to the committee, who formally notified him of his nomination for a second term, cannot be regarded as an expression of his personal views, seeing that such addresses generally are composites of the opinions of the leaders of the party, and are taken as the keynote of the approaching campaign. The policies outlined by Mr. Taft yesterday are the policies that will be upheld by the Republican orators on the stump.

Protection is to be the main issue. So much is made plain by the president's assertion, that that bulwark of the prosperity of the nation is threatened by the free trade cry of the Democrats, who would rush the country into business depression and hard times. The Republicans propose to stand by their record on the trade question, and will not give way by so much as an inch to court the favor of the so-called Progressive element of the party, who have wandered away to follow false gods.

The president did not directly allude to Reciprocity, but he stated clearly that the tariff is not responsible for the present high cost of living, and that no remedy for such could be derived from mere political promises. It is thus that the emergencies of a campaign force politicians into a change of front. It is only a few months since Mr. Taft preached up and down the land the doctrine that Reciprocity with Canada would lower the price of living in the United States. And now he has dropped that issue as if it burned his fingers. In all his long speech yesterday he never once referred to his old friend, Reciprocity, by name.

Neither did Mr. Taft make personal mention of Col. Roosevelt and Governor Wilson, but with the same stick when he classed them as socialists, dangerous alike to the constitution and the commercial prosperity of the United States.

SET THE CITY IN ORDER

There are bright prospects at present that the annual meeting of the Canadian Horticultural Society will be held in Peterborough next summer, and it is not too early to begin to set the house in order for the entertainment of the distinguished guests, every one of whom, it is but natural to suppose, has a critical eye for the arrangements of a city and for everything in the way of civic adornment and improvement.

Peterborough not only has some of the most beautiful and substantial homes to be found anywhere in the country, but the terraces and lawns are of artistic beauty. Yet in some sections the landscape is defaced by weeds that thrive luxuriantly on almost every vacant lot, and in too many cases along the very sidewalk itself.

The sturdy burdock is the chief offender in this regard. It is to be met with everywhere. It's growth unchecked in the early spring has developed under favorable conditions until the tiny plant has become a small tree. It is in bloom now, and the troublesome burr that sticks closer than a postage stamp to anyone unfortunate enough to come in contact with it, will soon follow the flowers.

Members of the Horticultural Society cannot fail to be offended in their artistic taste, by the sight of the burdock. When it has reached maturity is the time to begin the work of erradication. If the stalk is severed several inches below the surface of the ground, it will never appear again. A united effort on the part of the citizens would soon free Peterborough from the unsightly pest and make the city in every sense a desirable place for the meeting of the Canadian Horticulturists, or any other national organization.

Some people are inclined to complain that the Board of Work's mar the beauty of the city when they cut down a tree on the petition of tax payers. Shade trees are all right, but it is possible that they may, when too plentiful, become a menace to public health. Too much shade is as undesirable as an entire absence of trees. Disease germs that flourish in the shadow, die, or at least, remain dormant, when exposed to the sunlight.

NOTE AND COMMENT

To visit New Ontario is now the fashionable stunt among politicians. Mr. Rowell is already there, Sir Wilfrid Laurier declares he is going and Sir James Whitney is to be invited.

The dock workers of England are not fretting much about the war scare. Their most imminent peril just now seems to be the danger of dying by the slow and painful process of starvation.

The City Council by persisting in discussing the power question in star chamber sessions places itself in the same position as a man who essays to do business without advertising. He may know what he is doing himself but the public certainly does not.

Now that he has been officially notified of his nomination for a second term, Mr. Taft doubtless feels easier in his mind. The repeated assertions by Col. Roosevelt that the President was not the lawful choice of the Chicago convention must have at times shaken the latter's faith that he was really the nominee.

Hon. F. D. Monk says he cannot understand how the canard, that he was to resign from the Borden Cabinet on account of the naval question, got into circulation. Mr. Monk by this time ought to be tolerably familiar with the aptitude of the Liberal press for inventing stories designed to make trouble for the Government.

The Globe cannot believe in the the correctness of its own market reports when it says that every owner of a steer loses $10 on its value because he cannot send it to the United States duty free. By its own commercial column is the Globe confounded for in that department of the paper almost any day it is made clear that the Canadian market is the best one for the man who has cattle to sell.

The latest false alarm with reference to the German peril is sounded by a London newspaper which announces not as a joke but with every appearance of good faith that Emperor William is going to build a matter of nine or ten dreadnoughts on the sly, the world to be kept in the dark until every destroyer is launched and equipped ready for battle. If the Kaiser could accomplish such a feat, all other naval powers might as well leave him the waters of the world.

MEN'S SUMMER SUITS.

Serious Plea That They Be Built on the Plan of Pajamas.

Criticism of the clothing of men in our really tropical summer has usually been exclusively destructive, confining itself to derision of his carotid squeezing collars, his heavy and unwashable serges and cheviots, his unsuitable hat and the like. As a matter of fact, the pajamas in which enlightened civilized man now lies down to pleasant dreams contain the hint for a sensible daytime dress. A two piece suit of linen or cotton in somewhat less gay colors than the nocturnal garb, but otherwise similar—the coat perhaps a trifle longer—worn over a suit of light underwear would be very moderate in cost, comfortable, modest and hygienic. The coat would button up to the neck, thus doing away with an unnecessary shirt and collar and their usual call for starch, and the suit would be frequently washed, thereby beyond a doubt abolishing a frequent source of infection and conferring a delightful sense of coolness and cleanliness.

We believe that only a few brave pioneers are wanted to make this same costume universally popular, to the great saving perchance of life in the avoidance of heat stroke and at least of ill temper, worry, discomfort and inability to work, all of which age us rapidly. The more rigidly bred and conservative could console themselves by donning evening dress at dinner time. Indeed, such discipline once a day is not without value in its influence on character, for we need to be trussed up occasionally to prevent us from letting go of all the safeguards of civilization. In this propaganda we look for no support from tailors, but we appeal to the more intelligent among the young bucks who set our fashions to give their best consideration to our proposal.—Medical Record.

Cook's Cotton Root Compound.

The great Uterine Tonic, and only safe effectual Monthly Regulator on which women can depend. Sold in three degrees of strength—No. 1, $1; No. 2, 10 degrees stronger, $3; No. 3, for special cases, $5 per box. Sold by all druggists, or sent prepaid on receipt of price. Free pamphlet. THE WHITE PLAGUE.

Beware the Perspiration of Patients, Says a French Scientist.

A sensation was caused among medical men of France by a paper read by Professor Poncet to the Academy of Medicine, proving that consumption is transmitted by the perspiration of patients.

Dr. Poncet, who occupies a high position in the profession, has made a germ culture from such perspiration by the application of hot air to cotton wool impregnated with it. After a short time this was found to contain tuberculosis microbes in the proportion of 42 per cent, and when it was injected into guinea pigs it rendered them tuberculous.

He thinks this disease is spread far more by perspiration than, as formerly thought, by sputum or saliva and has ascertained that germs from perspiration are virulent, not only in cases of pulmonary consumption, but in tubercular peritonitis and rheumatism.

One of the gravest aspects of the new discovery, as urged by Dr. Poncet, is that if a deadly bacillus is able to emerge from the body by means of the skin it can in all probability enter another organism by the same route. He pointed out the terrible danger thus run by all who touch consumptives and held that scientific prevention of contagion could henceforth be attained only by avoiding all contact with the bodies of patients in addition to measures observed hitherto.

Strict attention to the cleanliness of the skin was also urged by the lecturer on the general public as a precaution against accidental contacts. Clothes must now be recognized, he stated, as responsible for the spread of disease, and all objects touched must be rigorously disinfected.—New York Times.

Moving Pictures and Criminals.

An ingenious if cumbersome invention has been offered to the Paris police authorities for the detection of crime committed in the streets. The proposal is to install in the clock towers in the various streets a cinematograph apparatus directed by wireless. The apparatus would record all the movements in the street, at the same time fixing the hour and minute. It is claimed that by an examination of the films any person wanted by the police could be traced from one street to another until he disappeared into a hiding place or the railway station. The police would then know if he had quitted the city.

Postcard Craze in Switzerland.

In Switzerland last year 109,500,000 postcards of every kind, but chiefly illustrated ones, were sent through the postoffices, an increase of 7,500,000 on 1910. The postcard craze is likely to increase, as the cards are becoming cheaper every year and tourists more numerous.—London Standard.

Hope.

The miner in his cabin
Dines sparingly on crumbs
And dreams as he is feasting
Of wealth that never comes.
Hope, at his table sitting,
Smiles in a friendly way
And tells him he is certain
To make his venture pay.

Out on the dreary hillside
A hole is in the ground
In which, to lead him onward,
Some streaks of wealth are found,
And so he keeps on digging
Perhaps throughout the year,
But every shining pebble
Brings to him added cheer.

His hands are gnarled and calloused,
His beard is streaked with gray,
And there as he grows older
He slowly works away
And every evening hoping
The coming day will score;
That with another nightfall
Will come the yellow ore.

Thus with his pick and shovel
He toils in rain and sun;
At night in lonely [illegible]
Dreams of a fortune won.
On him the yellow metal
Has cast its awful spell,
For others have been lucky,
And why not he as well?

Good Idea.

"Kitty is such a nice little girl!"

"I never noticed anything remarkable about her, though."

"Why, she believes everything I tell her."

"Great Scott, man! There is your opportunity. Marry her at once."

CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS.

CURE

Sick Headache and relieve all the troubles incident to a bilious state of the system, such as Dizziness, Nausea, Drowsiness, Distress after eating, Pain in the Side, &c. While their most remarkable success has been shown in curing

SICK

Headache, yet Carter's Little Liver Pills are equally valuable in Constipation, curing and preventing this annoying complaint, while they also correct all disorders of the stomach, stimulate the liver and regulate the bowels. Even if they only cured

HEAD

Ache they would be almost priceless to those who suffer from this distressing complaint; but fortunately their goodness does not end here, and those who once try them will find these little pills valuable in so many ways that they will not be willing to do without them. But after all sick head is the bane of so many lives that here is where we make our great boast. Our pills cure it while others do not.

ACHE

Carter's Little Liver Pills are very small and very easy to take. One or two pills make a dose. They are strictly vegetable and do not gripe or purge, but by their gentle action please all who use them.

SMITHSON'S LANDING

Special Correspondence.

Smithson's Landing, Aug. 1.—A new threshing outfit has arrived in this part being the property of Mr. David Huggins and Mr. Thos. Nimmo. It is a Sawyer & Massey Daisy Cleaner and Traction engine. The above named owners, with the assistance of Mr. Howard Murney, have a bright lookout for a busy season's work.

Mr. George Smithson, carpenter, has completed Mr. Joseph Huggins new barn.

A short time ago a quantity of hay was stolen from Mr. Wallace Morrison's field. The offenders were seen crossing the road with their bundles, going north-east, but owing to the darkness it was hard to ascertain whether or not they were gypsies. It was rumored that they were.

Mr. Harry Kerr purchased a valuable horse last week, while Mr. Hector Jewison and Mr. John Gainer each sold one.

Mr. Frank Savigny and Miss Hazel Dawson attended the Baptist church on Sunday.

Mr. W. Murney, our telegraph student, took in the trip to Peterborough on Saturday.

Mr. Sterling and Miss Louise Waterman are home for their holidays.

Mr. Oscar Reid has been helping Mr. Charles Wicks with his hay.

Mr. T. W. Bradshaw's many friends are congratulating him on his success at the entrance.

Mr. James Whittington called at Mr. W. Waterman's on Sunday.

Mr. H. Gainer spent Sunday afternoon with Mr. H. Kerr.

Mr. Fred Dayell spent Sunday at Mr. George Murney's.

DAMAGE TO POWER HOUSE ABOUT $1,000

House Lighting Power Being Developed by New Seymour Power Station.

The damage resulting from the explosion at the London street power house a few days ago is heavy, being in the neighborhood of $1,000. The meters and guages on the switchboard in which the short circuit occurred, are severely damaged. Although power is being developed at this station to maintain the street car service, the house lighting power is being developed by the new Seymour power station. This station, besides supplying the old Otonabee Power Company's service, and now the Peterborough Light & Power Company is also supplying power to Campbellford and the Port Hope and Cobourg district.

LINDSAY PEOPLE APPEALED TO BY SPANISH PRISONER

The old Spanish prisoner fake, which has been used by a clever gang of crooks for many years with great success to extort money from gullible people who are anxious to get rich quick, is still doing duty. Recently several Lindsay citizens have received one of the pathetic appeals with which the country is periodically flooded. It tells the same old story of a Russian banker cooped up in a Spanish prison, with a motherless daughter who requires protection. He says he has a large fortune, a third of which he is willing to give to the man who will furnish the funds necessary to acquire his baggage, which has been seized.

The letter is as follows:

Prison of Madrid, 12-7-12.

"Dear Sir and Relative,—Although I know you only from good reference of my dead mother, Mrs. Mary Burkholber, your relative gave. I address myself to you for the first time and perhaps the last, considering my grave state of health, requesting your protection for my only daughter, a motherless girl, 15 years old, who is now in a college. Before being imprisoned I was established as a banker in Russia, and I beseech you to help me to obtain the sum of $210,000 I have in America. and to take care of my daughter for a reward of the third part of said sum and the interest of the whole stock during her minority, being your duty to advance the necessary funds to acquire my baggage seized.

As I am in prison it is prohibited to receive public correspondence. But you can send a cablegram signed with your full name (not letter) to the name of an old servant of my protector, who will deliver it to me as soon as received, to know if you received this letter, and instruct you in all my secrets.

I charge you absolute reserve about this letter.

Awaiting your cable, I am, dear sir, yours truly,

VOLKOFF.

On the back of the letter is the address: Jose Ripolles, Principe Vergara 35, Madrid, Spain. This is presumable the name of the "faithful old servant," who is to be communicated with.

FORMER PETERBORO MAN BELIEVES IN SEA SERPENTS

George E. Whiten, Once a Photographer Here, Says He Saw Such a Monster in Lake Simcoe Years Ago.

Mr. George E. Whiten, formerly a photographer in Peterborough, but now of Vernon, B.C., was for many years a resident of Orillia. Mr Whiten, in his far western home, read an account of where some person saw a hideous reptile in Lake Couchiching and the story recalled to him an incident in the days of his boyhood. He writes to an Orillia paper as follows:—

"I see by your paper that Elijah Yellowhead, a Rama Indian, claims he saw a sea serpent in Lake Couchiching. I have no doubt that he saw it, but this appears to be the first time the sea serpent has been seen in Couchiching. I would long ago have told what I know to be positive facts concerning the sea serpent in Lake Simcoe, but, as you know, there are a class of people who are skeptical and say there never was a sea serpent in Lakes Simcoe or Couchiching. When I was a lad living across Lake Simcoe, opposite Shanty Bay, I saw the sea serpent or reptile of some kind. I was about 100 yards from it. It had a large head that protruded out of the water about three feet. It went through the water at a terrific speed, throwing foam on each side. It appeared more like 20 feet in length, than ten.

"I will now give you what I think is conclusive proof that there is some terribe monster in Lake Simcoe. One of those grand women pioneers, the late Mrs. Wm Soules, Sr., who lived on the south shore of Kempenfeldt Bay, told me, when I was a boy, that one day she was sitting on the bank about 20 feet from the water, when suddenly a huge monster came up out of the water and crawled up on the beach and lay in the dry sand. Mrs. Soules was so frightened she couldn't move for some time. She said it was the size of a small sawlog, about 20 feet long, and had big scales or projections all over its back and a most awful looking head. Getting back her courage she ran for her husband who returned with his rifle but the monster had gone. The mark it made in coming out and returning to the water was plainly discernable on the shore, leaving the same impression as a log would make in being drawn in and out. I have not the slightest doubt that Mr. Yellowhead saw the monster as he says."

FIRE CAUSED $1575 DAMAGE

During July This Year—Lower in July 1911.

The record of fires kept by Chief Howard for July this year shows that during the past month there were ten fires, causing $1575 damage

In July last year there were twelve fires, but the loss was very slight, amounting to only $100.

"FOOL PROOF" FLYING BOAT GIVEN SUCCESSFUL TRIAL

Wonderful Invention by Glenn H. Curtis One of Whose Pupils W. B. Hemstrought, Will Give an Exhibition Here on Civic Holiday August 12.

A "Flying Boat," a new type of hydroaeroplane, declared to be "fool proof," has just been given its official trials on Lake Keuka, at Hammondsport, N.Y. It was designed and built by Glen H. Curtiss, and while similar to the "Flying Boat" with which he experimented at San Diego, Cal., last winter, is a great improvement over the former type. The trials were successful in every way, and three persons—the operator and two passengers—were carried with perfect ease.

"This new craft practically eliminates the one and only objectionable feature of aviation," says Mr. Curtiss; "that is, danger. With this hydroaeroplane, or 'Flying Boat,' as it seems destined to be called, a safe descent can always be made, and if, through the inexperience, or carelessness of the driver, a bad 'atterrissage' is made, no injury to operator or passenger will result. The worst that can happen to them is a 'ducking.'"

The "Flying Boat" resembles a speed motor boat, when resting or running on the water. The craft, just given its trials, is equipped with permanent seats for two persons, but is constructed to accommodate four, if desired. Three were carried with ease and comfort, and no difficulty was experienced in rising from the water with them.

"The craft handles as well on the water as any motor boat," said Mr. Curtiss, after he had given it a thorough try-out. "In fact, it will turn either to the right or left in a very short space. It runs on the water at a great speed, probably fifty miles an hour, but cannot be kept on the water at a greater speed than fifty miles. It flew perfectly in all the trials, at between 55 and 60 miles an hour.

The amphibious craft is driven by an 80 h.p. Curtiss motor. The boat is 26 feet long, 3 feet wide, and has a depth of hull about equal to the width. The planes are five and a half feet deep and thirty feet wide, and the operator and passengers sit well down in the hull and are protected from the spray by a collapsible, water-proof hood. The boat itself is so strongly built that it can be beached with safety, even through a high surf, and is capable of being handled the same as a fisherman would handle his dory. It may be housed afloat, like a motor boat, or anchored to a buoy like a yacht.

Mr. William B. Hemstrought, the daring young bird man, who will give an exhibition in Peterborough on Civic Holiday, Aug. 12, is a pupil of Mr. Curtiss, the inventor of the "Flying Boat."

PRICE OF COAL TAKES ONE MORE FLIGHT SKYWARD

Prices Advance Throughout the Country for August Deliveries—Increase in Peterborough is 15 Cents a Ton—Ottawa Will Save Some Money by Burning Peat.

The price of coal has been raised again throughout the country, the increase averaging 15 cents a ton on all varieties. A local [illegible] this morning said that the prices for the month of August will be as follows: Nut coal, $7.95; stove and egg, $7.70; pea coal, $7.00.

Prices for fuel are lower in Lindsay where the quotations for August are $7.50 for stove and egg coal, $7.75 for nut, $6.75 for pea and $7.05 for mixed.

In Toronto the price was raised 25 cents a ton for August deliveries.

There is relief in sight for the householders of Ottawa and the prospects are that the Capital City will next winter be burning fuel at a price ranging from $3.50 to $4.00 a ton. This fuel is peat though it does not come up to the standard of the best coal. As a power producing agent Government tests have shown that two and a half pounds of it will generate one horse power as compared with a pound and a half of soft coal.

Tests have shown that this peat burns in open fire grates and cooking stoves, though it rightfully handled it gives quite excellent results in furnaces. Last winter the Ottawa householder saved over thirty-four dollars by utilizing the local fuel instead of using coal. In other years he has burnt eleven tons of anthracite coal in a winter, for which an average of $7.50 a ton has been paid. Last year, however, he laid in fifteen tons of peat at three and a half dollars a ton, which carried him through the cold weather comfortably.

The peat which is obtainable at Ottawa comes from Alfred, a village 40 miles away from the capital. Here three years ago the Department of Mines established a demonstration plant beside a peat bog several hundred acres in extent, and with an average depth of eight feet, and at the same time a fuel testing station was established at Ottawa. Five miles of ditches have been dug to drain the bog, and the peat is cut by means of a steam-driven excavator. The peat is carried to the peat machine directly from the cutting ground by a conveyor, where the raw product is desiccated, moulded into briquettes, and pressed, after which the bricks are stacked in the open air so that the moisture can be dried out. The average capacity of the plant is about thirty tons a day and the total cost amounted to only $7,000. It has cost on an average $2.25 a ton to manufacture the fuel.

Victoria County also has several hundred acres of peat bogs.

In the two years the Alfred plant has been working the Department of Mines has shown that bog peat is capable of conversion to a practicable fuel, and an effective substitute for coal both for fuel and power.

One bog which might be utilized to relieve the fuel famines which occur periodically in Ontario is in Simcoe county. It has been examined by government experts, who state that in its sixteen thousand acres there are no less than nine million tons of fuel waiting manufacture.

Peat in its crude state has been utilized for centuries in Ireland, being cut by hand from the bog, and simply exposed to the sun to dry it. It burns with little flame but an intense red heat, leaving a whitish ash which makes a fairly good fertilizer. The manufacture of peat briquettes has been taken up recently, and at times when coal is high these find a fairly ready market as domestic fuel in the big British cities.

You may have noticed that "high flyers" never display wings.

It Is Not What I Say

But What My Customers Say

That Has Built My Extensive Business

My aim from the first was to build a reputation purely on recommendation, and every day goes further to prove that I have accomplished this to my entire satisfaction.

REMEMBER my great success is giving satisfaction in every case where I have fitted Glasses for the relief of Eyestrain.

REMEMBER ALSO that your eyes are thoroughly tested when you come to me. If Glasses are found necessary they are fitted to you in a perfect manner, and at a reasonable cost.

If you do not require Glasses I will be pleased to tell you so. I absolutely refuse to supply Glasses in any case that does not need them.

DEPARTMENT OF MILITIA & DEFENCE

New Drill Hall, Norwood Ont.

NOTICE TO CONTRACTORS

SEALED TENDERS, marked on the envelope, "Tender for construction of Drill Hall, at Norwood. Ont.," and addressed to the Director of Contracts, Department of Militia and Defence, Ottawa, will be received until noon, August 6, proximo, for the construction of a new Drill Hall at Norwood, Ont.

Specifications may be seen and full particulars obtained at the offices of the Officer Commanding, 3rd Division, Kingston, Ont., Officer Commanding "E" Company, 40th Regiment, Norwood, Ont.; and the Director of Engineer Services, Headquarters, Ottawa.

Tenders must be made on the form supplied by the Department and accompanied by an accepted cheque on a Canadian Chartered Bank for ten per cent (10 p.c.) of the amount of the tender, payable to the Honorable the Minister of Militia and Defence, which amount will be forfeited if the party tendering declines to enter into, or fails to complete the contract in accordance with his tender.

The Department does not bind itself to accept the lowest or any tender.

BREEZES FROM THE DIAMOND

London Free Press.—Why on earth did Peterborough let Colap go? He's just about the second best first sacker in the league. Powell, of course, being the local selection for first place.

In the recent series of six games between Guelph and Peterborough there was a total of 55 runs scored. Of these the White Caps obtained 31, and the Guelph Maple Leafs 24; the Petes leading by seven.

Of the hits: Guelph had 50, Petes 54; 4 hits to the good.

Errors; Guelph 20; Petes 14; 6 errors less. According to these figures it is evident that Peterborough's playing is superior to that of Guelph. In this series of 6, each team won three straight games.

Cincinnati, Aug. 1.—"Rube" Marquard, star pitcher of the New York Giants, was fined $25 to-day by the National Baseball Commission for pitching one innings for the Port Chester, New York, independent baseball team. In so doing, although not in uniform, the commission holds that he violated its ruling that no National-agreement player can play with or against outside clubs during their contract period. Marquard had telegraphed for permission to attend the game, and considered the commission's consent sufficient to pitch one innings.

HANSON LOOKS GOOD TO FANS; PETES WON FIVE-INNING GAME

New Pitcher Disputed Umpire and Fined $10—Ballinger Signed With Guelph

Hanson, a new arrival from the Chicago Independent League, made a splendid impression yesterday when he pitched two innings against Guelph for the "Petes." Because he disputed a hard decision of "Ump" Davis, in the second, he was retired and fined $10. The ruling gave Isaac, of Guelph, a run, after making second bag on a nice hit. Many of the fans were with Hanson, who was unwise in protesting.

Rain threatened to mar the whole game, which was late in being started. The "Petes" pulled out ahead by one, which gives each each team credit for three straight wins in a series of six.

"Pete" Behan did the mound work for the visitors, and Ballinger relieved Hanson after the controversy.

Pitcher Ballinger has been signed by Applegate of Guelph.

The score by innings—

MOTORED TO BURLEIGH

Medical Men Held Pleasant Annual Outing.

The members of the Peterborough Medical Association held their annual outing yesterday afternoon, going by auto to Burleigh, where they passed a highly enjoyable time. Quite a number of the medical practitioners are away on vacations, but notwithstanding, the representation was very good. At Lakefield, they were joined by the medical men of that village, who participated in the outing. They reached home about nine o'clock.

Dr. Amys is president of the Medical Association, and Dr. Hammond, vice-president.

CHEMICAL CO. WILL GET PRIVILEGES

Concern of Which J.H. Larmonth is Manager Secures Concessions in Belleville.

The Wood Chemical Company of Belleville, Ont., of which Mr. J. H. Larmonth, formerly manager of the Peterborough Light and Power, is at present manager, has been granted a $6000 site and a limited fixed assessment for ten years. A by-law to grant the two, was voted on by the rate-payers of Belleville yesterday and carried by 659 to 21.

The company is capitalized at $500-000. Buildings are to be started in three months to cost $150,000. From forty to sixty men will be employed at the start. The company owns 124 square miles of timber lands in Herschel, Sabine, and McClure townships, covered with great forests of hardwood. Material will be brought in by the Central Ontario and Canadian Northern Railways. The products of acetate of lime and wood alcohol. One of the by-products is charcoal. For all these there is unlimited demand in Europe and America.

START ON THREE WEEKS' OUTING

The Strathcona Club Will Summer at Bobcaygeon.

Clarence R. Wilson, Charles Curtis, Ross Kendry, A. Weatherstone and Herb McMillan, the latter of Toronto, the well known young men who comprise the Strathcona Club, start Saturday morning at 7.30 on their eighth annual outing. The party will leave the Wolfe street wharf in a brand new 24-foot 2-cylinder launch which will be under the control of and operated by Mr. Wilson, and are due to reach Bobcaygeon some time Saturday evening. They will make that town their headquarters during their three weeks' vacation, keeping bach in their own quarters," Cottage Point, on Sturgeon Lake. Boat trips will be made from Bobcaygeon to all available points.

The members of the Club have on these annual excursions travelled in various parts of the country and are well known especially in athletic circles, having distinguished themselves on various occasions, especially in base ball.

A SLIDE TO THE ALTAR

Bert Mollineux, the pitcher who was with Hamilton for a time and is now with St. Thomas, was married to Miss Pearl Ringer of this city. The young couple left on a short honeymoon trip, after which Mollineux will join the team at Brantford, where he will attempt to take a fall out of the Red Sox.

DOMINION MAY TAKE A HAND

Ottawa, August 2—The present typhoid fever outbreak and the apparent inefficiency of the civic authorities here to cope with the situation has given an impetus to the movement in government circles looking towards the creation of a Dominion public health department with a deputy minister and competent corps of medical men in charge.

With the recurrence of an epidemic which threatens to be more disastrous in its effect than that which left more than 75 deaths in its trail in the winter of 1911, the urgency of the creation of such a department has been forced upon the attention of the authorities. There are more than 7,000 men and women in Ottawa in the employ of the government whose welfare they are at least indirectly responsible for.

WEDDING BELLS

COUCH—HALL

The following item which appears in the issue of the Orillia News-Letter, will be of interest to many friends of the bride in the city.

"A quiet but pretty home wedding was solemnized at the residence of Mrs. Maxwell Hall, Wadena, Sask., when her second daughter, Gertrude Amelia, was united in marriage on July 23th, to Joseph D. Couch, eldest son of Dr. E. E. Couch, of Port Washington, Wisconsin, the Rev. H. B. Parnaby conducting the ceremony. The bride, unattended, wore her travelling suit of pale grey tweed, with dark blue velvet trimmings, large Panama hat with willow plume, and carried cream roses. After a wedding breakfast, Mr. and Mrs. Couch left on the noon train for Banff, Laggan and other points. They will reside in Wadena, Sask.

ATTRACTIONS BOOKED FOR COMING THEATRICAL SEASON

Patrons of the Grand Opera House Will Not Lack For Variety of Entertainment — Some of the Contracts That Have Been Made Already.

Theatre-goers are already pleasantly anticipating the opening of the theatrical season, and it is with pleasure that the proprietors of the Grand, Messrs Turner & Sons, are able to promise lovers of the play, some exceptionally fine offerings.

"Brewster's Millions" presented by the same capable company who played here last year, will be the initial production at the Grand, on September 21st. The story of "Monty" proved so popular here last season, that the management feel positive it will be accorded an even more cordial welcome.

Paul Gilmore will be seen here, on September 31st, in "The Havoc" a strong offering with glowing notices.

Those whose fancy runs to musical comedy, will be delighted to know that the "Red Rose," a spectacular production of metropolitan fame, will come to the Grand, on October 8th, with their own special orchestra and a heavy load of stage equipment and costly scenery. The "Red Rose" has a reputation practically second to none in the musical comedy field, abounding in tuneful hits, and extravagant costumes.

Margaret Illington the talented actress will be seen here, December 11th, the name of the vehicle in which she is starring not yet being known.

In the same class is the Schubert production "The Butterfly on the Wheel." It's wide and insistent popularity last season augurs a likelihood of being excelled this year. It comes to the Grand Jan. 10th.

Those who love music know "Dear Delightful Woman" to be yet one of the premier hits in the lighter musical vein. It is sung in the "Balkan Princess" the gorgeous extravaganza which will grace the Grand on February 7th. Packed houses have greeted the production wherever it has played.

"Officer 666" produced by Cohen and Harris, the immense New York offering, will also come to the Grand on March 13th.

Contracts for the appearance of the above have been received by Messrs Turner, and more are expected next week.

The Grand will present a bright spick and span appearance when thrown open on September 21st.

QUEBEC VS. RENO

You Can Pay Your Money and Choose Between the Two.

No need to go to Reno now for a speedy and easy divorce," mournfully remarked a citizen yesterday as his mind reverted to the Privy Council's decision in the marriage case. Quebec has Nevada beaten a block for first place as a divorce mill. Two Catholics in Ontario, married by a minister, or a Catholic and a Protestant so united, tire of each other. All they have to do is to move to Quebec has Nevada beaten a block one flesh under the laws of that province, and their children become as the offspring of those who are never married. For the sake of the helpless and unfortunate children, the Reno method is to be preferred for when parents are divorced, the standing of the former with regard to legitimacy is not impaired.

PROPRIETOR OF STORE FINED; BREACH OF CLOSING BY-LAW

Mr. Norman Sukloff, 166 Simcoe street, was fined $25.00 and costs or $28.80 in all, for selling after closing hour, Thursday afternoon, July 11th. He was allowed ten days' time to pay it in. The maximum penalty is $50.00.

VERY INDIGNANT.

Denis Daly's habits of life are well known. He appeared this morning on a charge of vagrancy, but indignantly protested against the allegation.

"Dinny" then went on to relate the list of places where he had worked lately.

He promised to hire for the winter with a man in Parry Sound, who was anxious to secure his services. The Magistrate allowed him to go, and "Dinny" departed with a brighter eye.

BERRY-PICKING FOR PROFIT.

Henry Smith said it was a year since he had been in court. He is addicted to drink and but recently came off the "Indian list."

Smith's past and his manner of living is not one that can be recommended. Work and Henry, so evidence showed, have an antipathy to each other. Smith has been in the habit of working intermittently, quitting jobs whenever feeling inclined. A good position was secured for him at the Canadian General Electric Company, but he left it. His reason for leaving was to go on an annual berry-picking expedition into the region around Ketchacoma Lake, accompanied by his wife and children. He claimed an ability to make more money in that way than by working at other occupations.

At that rate he will have to make $10 to pay a fine, within ten days, in response to the magisterial judgment.

HATCHET STORY NO LONGER ACCEPTED BY HISTORIANS

A local Sunday School Superintendent related to his class last Sunday the old story of George Washington and his hatchet, the recent prominence given to that implement by its adoption as a missile and instrument of destruction by the Suffragettes in Dublin, perhaps suggesting the anecdote. At all events the object of the recital was to impress upon the scholars the fact that truth is the proper policy to adopt no matter what the threatening consequences may be.

We all remember the story which was in the school books we studied in our youth, and how much was made of the moral that invariably is tacked on to such narratives. The future father of his country, was when a promising youth, presented by his paternal relative with a hatchet. No one ever thought of calling in question the judgment of the Senior Washington in placing in the hands of his son a weapon with which he could work damage to his own person, to the household goods or other articles of property. Young George, proud of his possession, made straight for the orchard and when no one was looking, so effectually hacked and girdled a cherry tree that it withered and died.

Noticing the ruin that had been wrought, the father, with some asperity we may imagine, demanded to know who had done the mischief, with a wrathful and suspicious eye upon his offspring. George never flinched, but owned up that he and his new hatchet were the culprits. The father, we are told, was so pleased with this veracity that he clasped his son in his arms and told him that he could go ahead and destroy the rest of the orchard so long as he did not depart from the pathway of truth, or words to that effect.

A pretty story, a great favorite in its day, but unfortunately lacking in the principle which it sought to inculcate. It was not true. After standing unchallenged on the pages of American histories and readers for years, creeping into the Sunday and Public School literature of Canada, and being woven into the earlier biographies of the first President of the United States, the bottom fell out of the anecdote when it was discovered by some stickler for fact that George Washington's father had died before the boy could, in the course of nature, wield a hatchet with destructive vigor. Accordingly the story disappeared by order of the Historical Association of the United States from current literature only to be replaced by another of similar import.

The anecdote which bears testimony to the assertion that the adolescent George was truthful and has been accepted by the historians of the present day has for its three leading characters the boy's mother, a sorrel colt and, of course, young George himself. The hue of the colt is insisted upon as horses of that color are noted for their fiery disposition. In the pasture on the farm where George was raised, there was such an animal, unbroken and untamed. One day while entertaining a party of youthful friends from a neighboring plantation, George led them to the pasture, and to display his horsemanship, mounted the colt, unbridled as it was, without fear of consequences. The colt in its wild rush about the field, stumbled, broke its neck and with a few spasmodic kicks, went the way of all flesh.

When his mother missed the animal, which was the family pride, she applied to the boy for information.

"I cannot tell a lie," he said, "I killed it with my little hatch ——, I mean I was riding it when it fell and killed itself."

Perhaps the mother realized the moral courage involved in the confession when in all probability the father of mendacity stood for the moment at the boy's elbow and tempted him to prevaricate. At any rate there was maternal forgiveness and commendation.

None of us like to have the delusions of youth shattered. We all parted reluctantly with our faith in Santa Claus, with our belief in the legend of William Tell and the apple, and other once favorite incidents in the traditions of our own land. And with regret we are compelled to regard as a myth the narrative of the cherry tree, the destructive youth and his hatchet.

LOCAL HORSES THAT EXCEL IN STYLE AND SPEED

Peterborough Will Send Representatives to the Cobourg Show—Entries for the Races in This City on Civic Holiday.

Peterborough will be well represented in the Horse Show, which opens at Cobourg, August 13th, and will continue until the 17th. Stinson Bros. will exhibit their black family driver in the class for horses 15 1-2 hands high or under. This is a high stepping, showy horse, well known in the city, and will doubtless capture a prize in the Cobourg show.

Mr. A. White's well known pair of ponies will be sent to the show. These little creatures, not over thirteen hands high, will be sent to Cobourg and will be exhibited both in double harness and singly.

The chestnut mare, owned by J. J. Turner, and which won a first prize at the show last year, will compete again in the same class.

All of the owners of these horses are now fitting them up in preparation for the event, and when the judges make their awards a share of the ribbons will fall to the local equines.

Lovers of fast horses will have a rare treat when the horses start at the Driving Park, August 12th, Peterborough's Civic Holiday. Owners of the racers are already training them on the track. Mr. Wm. Whittom has Susie Hal there getting that swift mare in shape for the free-for-all. She is a half sister of Darkey Hal, and has a record of 2.12 1-2. For the same race Lewis Bennett, of Port Hope, is training his bay gelding, Luke McKenney, on the local track. This horse is a good one, and in a trial spin yesterday reeled off a mile without a break or a skip in 2.10. Whichever horse wins this event will be forced to the limit by those behind him, and one of the best races ever seen in Peterborough is expected.

In the 2.18 race, Patterson, the bay gelding owned by Jones Bros., will be one of the competitors. He has a record of 2.22 but can, it is claimed, reduce that mark, easily. Another horse is Axtell Jr., owned by Herb Kendry, and which has a record of 2.16, but as this was made on a mile track, which is from three to four seconds faster than the half mile circle, Axtell will be allowed to enter the 2.18 race. He is trained by Jos. Timblin, one of the best known and most successful horsemen in Ontario. Any horse that attempts to pull down the money in this race will have to reckon with that staunch little pacer, Harry Direct, the property of Dr. Thomas Johnston. The doctor drove Harry in his professional rounds last winter and this summer until yesterday, when he had him shod for the track and sent him into training. Harry, as well known to the people of this city as the doctor himself, has a mark of 2.17 3-4. Dr. Johnston will drive his own horse in the race.

A number of fast horses from Toronto and other points will arrive in the city in a few days and will be entered in the Civic Holiday races.

Another event on the program is a half mile race for horses eligible to start with the 2.45 class. This is to encourage the owners of fast horses, as yet new to the track to give their promising equines a chance to show what they can do. Herb Kendry has a young stallion, Noble Alcone, in training for this race, and made the half mile circle the other day in 1.10. Merton Storey's Hazel Brook went the mile yesterday in 2.31.

All the races will be the best three heats in five.

The interest taken by local horsemen in the racing question just now in view of the approaching speed contests, recalls the fact that that pacing marvel, Joe Patchen II, performed a feat here two winters ago that stands unrivalled in the sporting annals of Peterborough. Patchen was at that time owned by T. Hodgson, of Orillia. On the ice from which the snow had been scraped by an ordinary road scraper, Patchen went a mile in 2.17. Mr. Hodgson sold the horse to R. Mackenzie, of Winnipeg, his present owner, for a price somewhere between seven and eight thousand dollars. Patchen has won three $5,000 stakes this season already, including the free for all pace in Detroit, when he cut the racing record to 2.03 1-4, and jogged in at that. He is probably worth now any sum the owner's conscience might permit him to ask.

One of the largest expropriation cases ever heard of in Western Canada, came to a conclusion this week when the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway agreed to pay the Union Iron Works of Calgary, the sum of $20,000. The company's right of way went through 100 feet of the iron work's property and under the railway act, only that amount of land could be expropriated. On the amount to be paid for the strip in question the arbitrators could not agree, two of them deciding that $1,000 was a proper sum and the others that $1,400 was sufficient. By the settlement now made by the railway with Mr. Edward Knapp, the owner of the works, the former acquires the whole property, 175 feet by 132 feet, for $20,000.

MR. BONAR LAW MAKES PLEA FOR IMPERIAL UNITY

Premier Borden Is Entertained by the Carlton Club, London's Leading Conservative Organization and Declares That Canada Must Work Out Destiny Along With the Empire—Many Notables Present.

London, Aug. 3.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—The Carlton Club last night, for the first time in its history, opened its doors to non-members, when it entertained to dinner Premier R. L. Borden and his colleagues. A distinguished company numbering 350 were in attendance, in which were included Lords Londonderry, Selborne, Desborough, Minto, Hardinge, Atkinson, Middleton, Messrs. Henry Chaplin and Walter Long, Sir Max Aitken, Donald MacMaster, Gen. Pole Carew, Sir Henry Kimber, Sir Edward Coates, Major Wigram and Sir Thomas Lawrence.

The Canadian Ministers were given a tremendous ovation, and were welcomed not as strangers but as brother Britons.

Bonar Law, on rising to propose the health of the guests, declared that "although we are members of a political party, it is not as partisans we welcome you. We take no share in Canadian politics, and the alliance of the Conservative parties of Britain and Canada is the last thing in the world I would desire."

"What is necessary to-day," said Mr. Law, "is co-operation, and that not only in time of war, but also in time of peace. That is why our party advocates an Imperial preference. We look forward to the time when self-governing dominions will share the responsibility of Empire difficulties. They are great, but not so great as when Alexandra Hamilton formed the union of the United States of America. It is a good omen for the Empire that a great Canadian leader has come to discuss the question of Imperial defence. The position is serious, but it has one advantage, that outside pressure tends to weld together the different parts of the Empire."

Hon. Mr. Borden, in responding, expressed great appreciation of the honor conferred on him by the club. He emphasized the work of confederation in Canada and suggested that it might prove an inspiration and guidance in the wider and greater task of Imperial consolidation.

"Anent naval negotiations, we shall return to Canada with valuable information, and will confer with our colleagues upon the proposals and will arrive at a result which we believe will make for the strengthening of the Empire. I believe in the future organisation of the Empire, and the preservation of a world-wide influence depends in no small measure indeed upon the attitude of the people of the British Isles—(hear, hear)—but the truth could not be too strongly or too firmly impressed upon them.

"The dominions of the Empire are all ready and willing to enter into some bond of Imperial organization by which the future work of the Empire should be maintained to the full. The people of Canada are determined, as they were at the last election, to keep control of their own destinies. They are capable of keeping their splendid heritage and completing their civilization in such a way as to be worthy of the British race." (Hear, hear.)

"The people of Canada are not of a type that will permit of them becoming merely silent partners in such a great Empire. If there is to be Imperial co-operation, then the people of Canada propose to have a reasonably fair voice in that co-operation, which, I do not doubt, is the wish of all statesmen in the British Isles."

Hon. R. L. Borden, who invited British Cabinet Ministers to visit Canada, has during his visit to London made his position very clear on some aspects of the subject of the naval assistance that Canada is to offer the Mother Country, said a London writer yesterday.

Mr. Borden and his colleagues of the Dominion Cabinet told the British Cabinet that Canada is prepared to assist Great Britain to maintain her naval supremacy, but when she does do so she will want to be consulted as to the way the money is spent.

When Mr. Borden and his colleagues, comprising J. Douglas Hazen, Minister of Marine; C. J. Doherty, Minister of Justice; L. P. Pelletier, Postmaster-General, and George E. Foster, Minister of Trade and Commerce, arrived it was announced with a great flourish that they [illegible] to offer to contribute a squadron of Dreadnoughts—four, to be correct—to England. This was accepted by the public, so there is certain to be some disappointment when the part Canada proposes to take is finally settled.

Must Oust Madero, He Says.

Washington, Aug. 3.—Peace in Mexico cannot come as long as President Madero is in power, according to Senor Juan P. Didapp, representative here of the revolutionary power in Mexico. In making this declaration yesterday, Senor Didapp said those opposed to the present Government had plenty of money back of them and would continue the fight for years, until the United States would be compelled to recognise the rights of the Orosco faction.

Senor Didapp accused Madero of failing to keep the promises he had made, excepting a few which benefited his own family. He declared Madero already had spent all, or practically all, of the $63,000,000 in the national treasury when the Government was turned over to him by temporary President De la Barra. Not even the $15,000,000 voted for the settlement of claims by foreigners had been used for that purpose, charged the Orosco representative.

LIBERALS SEE MINES

Party of Legislators Pay Visit to South Porcupine.

South Porcupine, Aug. 3.—The touring Liberal party began yesterday's proceedings by a visit to Timmins and an inspection of the Hollinger plant and mines. Many of the members of the party, including Mr. Rowell, went down into the mine. The party returned to South Porcupine in the evening. There a meeting was held in the Hotel Connaught.

Arthur W. Roebuck, the first speaker, said that nothing has meant so much to New Ontario as this trip of Mr Rowell and his party. "We are now able to send 106 missionaries to old Ontario," said Mr. Roebuck, "to tell the story of New Ontario and what it needs. We are also sending our able leader, Mr. Rowell, primed with the spirit of New Ontario. We intend to force the Whitney Government to do something adequate for this great region. The five-million appropriation is not sufficient. We have them on the run, and intend to keep them going."

Mr. Rowell devoted the greater part of his speech to the needs of New Ontario.

Mr. Rowell eloquently portrayed the astonishing development of this region. He said that the settlers felt that they had not received the sympathetic consideration and assistance from the Government that they felt they were entitle to. It was the Liberals, Mr. Rowell said, who fought for and obtained the title of Ontario to New Ontario.

It was a Liberal Government who first discovered the great resources of this region and who first developed it. Hence, Mr. Rowell said the Liberals would always fight for the rights and development of New Ontario. "We intend to see," said Mr. Rowell, "that this magnificent country is made the home of hundreds of thousands of prosperous, contented and happy people."

The most important consideration, Mr. Rowell urged, is a broad, comprehensive and business-like policy of opening up this country. More railway transportation is needed and also an adequate system of good roads. Also a great scientific campaign of publicity, he pointed out, is required to get settlers in. Mr. Rowell enlarged on these points, repeating more or less what he has said at other places here.

Messrs. Proudfoot and Marshall also spoke.

WILSON WILL NOT RESIGN

Seagirt, N.J., Aug. 3.—Formal announcement was made yesterday by Governor Wilson that he will not resign the governorship of New Jersey during his campaign for the Presidency.

The governor had kept his mind open on the question of resigning ever since the Baltimore convention. Leading Democrats in the state, however, have urged him to follow the precedent of Grover Cleveland, who was nominated for the Presidency, but continued in the office of governor of New York.

Governor Wilson is keenly interested in prospective reports from committees investigating the tax problem and the efficiency of state affairs in New Jersey, and prominent Democrats have asked him not to forsake his office unless called to a higher one.

Redemptorists New Canadian.

Quebec, Aug. 3.—The Redemptorist Order, as far as Canada is concerned, is no longer subject to control from the American mother house at Baltimore, Md. This change, which has been under consideration for some time past at Rome, was finally decided on the feast day of St. Alphonsus, founder of the order, which occurred on Thursday last.

Reduced to Manslaughter.

Toronto, Aug. 3.—The charge of murder against David Bigelow of 499½ Parliament street, has been changed to one of manslaughter. Bigelow is held for the death of Walter Colleran, who died after a fight in which he and Bigelow figured at the latter's boarding-house about three weeks ago.

GRITTY LITTLE POWER BOATS OFF ON LONG RACE TO BERMUDA

START OF THE BERMUDA RACE. Left to Right: THE KATHEMMA, THE DREAM.
THE DREAM JUST AFTER THE START.
THE "KATHEMMA" WITH SAILS SET SOON AFTER THE START

Although there were only two entrants in the Bermuda power boat race, the Kathemma and the Dream, enthusiasm was marked as they got under way at Philadelphia, the Kathemma in the lead. The Dream has a handicap of 14 hours, 14 minutes and 21 seconds, and friends of her owner and master, Charles L. Lagen, believe she will win. The boats were a pretty sight gliding down the Delaware in the sunshine.

WEATHER CONDITIONS PROMISE A BIG YIELD IN THE WEST

Generous Rains of July Have Resulted In a Vast Improvement and the Crop Is Expected to Beat All Previous Records by Fifty Million Bushels—Saskatchewan Grain Area Is Now Ahead of All Canada.

Winnipeg, Aug. 3.—The weather conditions for the past week have been ideal throughout the three prairie provinces, and as a consequence the crop outlook is very promising. The generous rains of July have had a good effect upon cereal vegetation and the straw, which at one time gave evidence of shortness, is now long, strong and healthy. The ever-increasing area coming under wheat and oat cultivation makes the assurance of a crop practically independent of local climatic conditions.

J. Bruce Walker, commissioner of immigration, who has just returned from an extensive trip through the prairie provinces, says: "This year's crop will be 50,000,000 bushels ahead of the best western record. In Manitoba, while the acreage sown to wheat is about the same as last year, the yield will be much greater, and to-day the outlook is for a bumper crop in both quality and quantity. In Saskatchewan the wheat and oat crop is really magnificent and will undoubtedly give a generous yield per acre. Something over 151,344 acres of new land came under wheat this year, that is about 9.20 per cent. over last year's area.

The total area of wheat in Saskatchewan will this year reach the enormous total of 5,385,000 acres, which exceeds all the rest of the Dominion of Canada by half a million. With the continuance for a couple of weeks of the present ideal conditions, it is a conservative estimate to say Saskatchewan alone will yield 151,000,000 bushels of wheat of the very best quality. In Alberta the conditions are equally gratifying and the yield is expected to be equally bountiful. Over the whole western country the crop is from ten days to two weeks earlier than last year. In Alberta they are now cutting barley, while within the next two or three days winter wheat cutting in the southern part of the province will be practically general.

SHAREHOLDERS ARE SATISFIED

Ball Club Finances Are in Satisfactory Condition.

A very satisfactory meeting of the shareholders of the Ball Club was held last evening, when it was agreed to go ahead and carry out the season. Things are going along nicely, financially, and every one was in favor of the season's games being played through.

Kingston May Lose More Hotels.

Kingston, Aug. 3.—W. K. Snider, Toronto, provincial license inspector, is here making an inspection. It is understood that if some proprietors are to retain their licenses, they will have to make extensive alterations along sanitary lines.

Kingston has lost ten hotels, and more may be chopped off.

A number of the hotels cut off in the reduction voted for by the people, are remaining open as temperance hotels. Just how successful the proprietors will be in the new venture, is in doubt.

Better Coal Delivery In Sight.

London, Ont., Aug. 3.—It would appear that the Toronto district will get better delivery of coal when the new Port Burwell to Aylmer line of the Grand Trunk is in operation.

A large quantity of coal now hauled via Niagara Falls and destined for Western Ontario points could be handled by the Grand Trunk and congestion of traffic at the border relieved.

SUES FOR HIS COMMISSION

Cleveland Man Says Hays' Death Prevented Deal.

Pittsburg, Aug. 3.—Growing out of the death of President C. M. Hays of the Grand Trunk Railway, who went down with the Titanic, suit was filed yesterday in the United States District Court over the sale of $3,500,000 worth of coal land in Ohio.

J. A. Paisley, a Cleveland capitalist, the plaintiff, will seek to recover $500,000, largely commission, for the sale of the River Coal & Coke Co. properties, including three fully equipped coal mines near Bellairs, Ohio, to the Grand Trunk Railroad.

The suit is directed in person against three officials of the company: President W. R. Woodford, Cleveland; Isaac W. Frank, treasurer, of Pittsburg, and president of the United Engineering & Foundry Co., and W. L. Kann, secretary, of Cleveland.

One of the defendants, Frank, is a millionaire, and all three are influential personages in financial and industrial circles in Pittsburg and Cleveland.

Paisley in a statement to be filed in the suit next week will, it is understood claim that he consummated the deal between the Rail & River Coal Co. and the Grand Trunk just previous to President Hays' departure on his ill-fated trip to Europe. Paisley will claim that papers signed by President Hays and lost with him in the sinking of the Titanic, would establish Paisley's right to commissions and a share in the $3,500,000 realized through the sale of the coal lands. Paisley's claim against the company will amount to approximately $500,000, which sum, he declares, he would have had no difficulty in establishing his right to had not the Titanic not rammed an iceberg and sank in mid-ocean April 14.

THIRD DEGREE METHODS ELICIT NOTHING FROM GUNMAN

New York Gangster Who Is Charged With Complicity In Murder of Herman Rosenthal Declares That He Can Prove an Alibi—Two Other Assailants Are Still at Large But Arrest Is Expected.

New York, Aug. 3.—"Whitey Jack" Lewis, one of big Jack Zellig's gunmen and one of the four men accused of shooting down the gambler Herman Rosenthal, was given a third degree grilling yesterday to glean further information that would supply corroboration of the confessions of "Bald Jack" Rose, Harry Vallon, and "Bridgie" Webber, that Police Lieut. Becker sought the death of Rosenthal.

The gunman declared that he could and would prove an alibi. He asserted that he was out of the city at the time Rosenthal was shot to death, but he did not tell where he was. He would not say what he was doing at Fleischmans, but reiterated that he was stopping at "a reputable place," and with "respectable people."

Police officials at headquarters noted that Lewis appeared very much downcast. Two of the three detectives who aided in Lewis' arrest remained behind, and it is thought they are on the trail of other gunmen wanted in the case. The two other gunmen wanted are Harry Horowitz, otherwise "Gib the Blood" and Louis Rosenberg, alias "Lefty Louis."

"Lefty Louis" is said to have been in Boston on Wednesday. District Attorney Whitman, when asked about the report that it was the bullet from Rosenberg's gun that killed Rosenthal remarked:

"Yes, I have heard that it was the bullet from 'Lefty Louis'' gun that killed Rosenthal, but that does not lessen the crime of the others engaged in the murder. They are equally guilty with him. I am anxious to get hold of all of them. They are a danger to the community."

"Lefty Louis" has a reputation in gangland as a sure shot. He is vain of his accomplishment.

That the two gunmen still missing are in hiding in the same region where Lewis was picked up, was the belief expressed at headquarters last night, and it was reported that a squad of detectives still scouring the neighborhod are hot on their trail.

Police Lieut. Becker, locked in the Tombs on the charge of instigating the murder, still maintained his attitude of silence yesterday, when efforts were made to elicit a story from him.

TENNIS CLUB TEA

St. John's Tennis Club will hold their third tea on the Nicholls Oval next Saturday, August 10, at 5.30 p.m. All members are asked to be present. The ladies will provide sandwiches and cake, and the gentlemen will supply the fruit.

Epidemic Is Growing.

Ottawa, Aug. 3.—The residents here are badly frightened over the typhoid epidemic here, which so far, has shown no disposition to diminish. The city authorities are endeavoring to secure with all possible speed, a new mechanical filtration system. Some of the city fathers are feeling indignant over the killing of the project to develop a new source of water supply in the Gatineau Hills last year, and the giving of the filtration of the Ottawa River water the preference.

There has been 650 cases reported, and there has ben 12 deaths so far. At one emergency hospital there are some 50 patients, and in the tents connected with the Rideau street General Hospital contain 45.

Made Hotelman Pay Up.

Kingston, Aug. 3.—When Conrad Haeg, late proprietor of the Hub Hotel, was arrested on a charge of defrauding creditors, the police found on him $1,035.77, and this was handed over to the creditors. In the police court, the charge against the ex-hotelman was withdrawn.

Haeg lost his license in the reduction.

Creditors will receive 60 cents on the dollar. They heard Haeg was going to leave and had him arrested.

Mount Sandford Conquered.

New York, Aug. 3.—The conquest of Mount Sir Sandford, the highest peak in the Selkirks, by Howard Palmer, secretary of the American Alpine Club, is announced in a message sent by Mr. Palmer to the American Geographical Society. The ascent of the mountain, which is 11,634 feet high and practically one continuous wall of ice, was made on June 24.

No less than eight separate attempts to scale the icy fastness of Sir Sandford have been made during the last half dozen years. Only five of the expeditions even reached the base of the mountain, and, aside from the present expedition, only one, that of Capt. Culver of Winnipeg, in 1911, actually set foot on the peak itself.

The glacier which covers the mountain's surface is what makes climbing so difficult. It is in the Canadian Rockies.

Lock Gates Smashed.

St. Catharines, Aug. 3.—The steamer Wiley M. Egan of the Quebec & Ontario Navigation Co., crashed into the head gates of Lock 23, Welland Canal, at Thorold at 11.40 yesterday and carried away four gates, tying up traffic and causing some damage to the steamer.

The damage to the gates is estimated at $8,000. Tugs are now proceeding from Port Dalhousie, carrying new gates and the canal will be open for navigation some time to-day.

HON. M. PUGSLEY

Minister of Public Works, under Sir Wilfrid Laurier. Very naturally he does not favor Premier Borden's naval policy.

PROTEST AGAINST HENRI BOURASSA

Montreal, Aug. 3.—La Patrie, writing in protest against Henri Bourassa's "No Navy" campaign, says:

"Let Mr. Bourassa, who all his life has been a wrecker, who, blinded by one knows not what aberration, seeks now to destroy even the sacred regard which the French-Canadians have for France, let him define to us these politics which he professes. How does he imagine that Canada will rise gradually to the rank of a respectable and respected nation, if she withdraws herself indefinitely from the responsibilities proper to her power and increasing wealth? It is not enough to overturn everything; one must know what one can build on the ruins which Mr. Bourassa would create.

"Mr. Bourassa fought the naval policy of Sir Wilfrid Laurier. He is now fighting that of the Conservative ministry.

"These two policies, nevertheless, meet the views of all Canadians, no matter what their origin.

"Mr. Bourassa, and him alone, they do not suit.

"Let him tell us clearly what he wants, towards what end he is dragging our fellow-countrymen with his eternal recriminations."

House Crashes Down.

Toronto, Aug. 3.—When the two-storey house, 20 Salem avenue, under which he was working, slid from its underpinning later yesterday afternoon, John Dunn was crushed under the building and died instantly. Dunn was a man of about thirty years of age, and lived at 206 1-2 Van Horne street.

The house was owned by Thomas Boston and had recently been moved from the adjoining lot to its present position. It was of frame construction and was supported on heavy beams. Dunn was employed in jacking up the building so that a cellar could be dug. Just at 5.45 p.m., the north side, under which Dunn was working, collapsed into a three foot excavation, burying him under the weight of the structure.

When the accident occurred, the owner of the house was asleep in one of the upstair rooms. He was jolted out of bed and ran down to the street.

Cotton Tariff Passed.

Washington, Aug. 3.—The House yesterday passed, 156 to 72, the cotton tariff revision bill, which the Democrat majority claims will reduce the duties on cotton and cotton manufactures by approximately 21 per cent. The measure is identical to that vetoed last year by President Taft on the ground that it was not based on official information. Some House members express the belief that the Senate will pass it and put the legislation up to the President again.

Empire Marriage Law Impossible.

London, Aug. 3.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—In the House of Commons yesterday, Premier Asquith said that the difficulties of creating a uniform marriage law for the whole Empire were too great for the Government to undertake to draft one.

Farmer Attacked by Cow.

Kingston, Aug. 3.—Ralph Donley, aged 65, a prominent farmer of Sunbury, is in the General Hospital here badly injured as a result of being attacked by a cow. He suffered a broken hip.

Havre Strike Finally Over.

Havre, Aug. 3.—The seamen's union last night formally voted to end the strike of its members, which has been in progress off and on for the past two months.

Shock Visits Toronto.

Toronto, Aug. 3.—It is reported that a volcanic shock lasting about three to four minutes visited the northwest portion of the city at 6.30 Friday morning. The vibrations were most violent in the neighborhood of Bathurst street, north of Bloor, where a number of the residents became considerably alarmed, but no panic ensued. No damage was done to property within the range of the shock.

DO YOU USE PILLS?

If In Doubt About the Right Pills to Use Read the Following Letter Carefully:

"I am one of those persons whose system requires aid," writes Mr. Young Gledhill, from Picton, "but it is so easily affected by reason of the great sensitiveness of the bowels that ordinary drastic pills inflict great injury to the delicate coating, and excite such persistent activity as to be with difficulty checked.

"I wish in the highest terms to express the great value of Dr. Hamilton's Pills in cases like mine, and I am sure also for elderly people and the very weak there is no pill like them.

"Speaking of my own experience with Dr. Hamilton's Pills, I can say they have proved the most stimulating pills for the liver I have found. I have proved their tonic action upon digestion, and the same results have been secured by friends upon whom I have urged their use. The manufacturers are to be congratulated upon possessing so valuable a prescription, and the public should know that so valuable a remedy has been placed at their command."

No other pill for constipation, for liver, kidney, or stomach trouble, compares with Dr. Hamilton's Pills; they are mild and sure always to restore health. Refuse substitutes. Sold by all dealers, 25c per box, or The Catarrhozone Co., Kingston Ont.

MR. ROWELL'S TRIP

The scales will fall from Mr. Rowell's political eyes during his trip through New Ontario, unless, indeed, his optics are beyond all hope of repair, when he sees what the Provincial Government has already done and what it proposes doing for the north. Mr. Rowell, too, can learn by personal observation under what difficulties this work is being carried on and the various obstacles that nature has placed in the way of progress. Mr. Rowell has been wont to boast of the resources and to make much of the possibilities of New Ontario, he has assumed to dictate to the Government as to the best policy to be pursued in developing that territory when he could not in the very nature of things be supposed to be even slightly familiar with the situation. Backed up by the press of his party he has charged the Whitney Administration with extravagance and held that the expenditure was not justified by the results achieved.

Now that he has looked over the ground, what will Mr. Rowell think about the matter of constructing a branch railway, or even a public highway through the new country? The people of Ontario, without regard to party, believe in Mr. Rowell's honesty of purpose, and have all respect for his ambitions to realize the lofty ideals which he has set up, and the hope of the public is that after a personal investigation of the needs of the north he will assist, rather than endeavor to hamper, the Government's efforts to colonise the country.

It is only a few years since anything like political amenity as between members of opposing parties was unheard of. It is different now. The Government road builder in New Ontario, acting on the instructions of Hon. W. H. Hearst, left his work and, in order to aid Mr. Rowell and to afford him every opportunity to investigate the system employed by the Government in the construction of highways, joined the excursion. Every branch of Government work in the north is open to him so that he will be able to form an opinion at first hand just what is being done in the interests of the New Ontario settler. No better proof that the Government has nothing to conceal is required.

The one great difficulty met with in the settlement of New Ontario, as Mr. Rowell will probably see, is not to find space for the settlers, but rather settlers for the space. Premier Whitney has done everything possible to colonise the north and yet there is room.

Where are to be found the farmers who are to take up the life of the pioneer and settle upon the land of New Ontario? Not in old Ontario, certainly, where the agricultural population, drained by the call of the West, is already too meagre. What the country needs most of all is the encouragement of the immigration of a desirable class of citizens, let them come from where they may. Mr. Rowell will find that the situation requires something more than flowery speeches and the promulgation of finely spun economic theories.

It is useless for Mr. Rowell to make plausible promises as to what he will do for the people of the north in the event of his becoming premier, a contingency so remote that it is unworthy of serious consideration. His speeches on his tour betray the fact that he is, not only inexperienced, but that he cannot refrain from [illegible] expressions of commiseration for the farmers, both in the old and the new sections of the province where these farmers, neither stand in need of sympathy nor appreciate it when it is offered. The farmers have had a trial of the party which Mr. Rowell represents, and all his sympathetic addresses cannot turn the tide of public opinion in his own direction.

In his address at Cochrane, Mr. Rowell declared that immigration should be encouraged by giving the widest publicity to the advantages, and the resources of the country. There, with scarcely a pause for breath he assailed the Government's new colonisation scheme, because the head of that movement is an American, and is under contract to settle one hundred thousand acres in the north with farmers, the majority of whom will probably be brought from the United States. What a veritable high carat jewel of consistency! To the Americans, he said, should not be relegated the task of settling the country and providing schools for our children.

Whether Mr. Rowell talks thus through ignorance of the details of the Government's agreement with the Jackson syndicate, or resorted to wilful misrepresentation in order to appeal to national prejudice, his spirit is unexcusable and unworthy of a man in a position of some political prominence. He must surely know that the American lumberman is not going to set up a system of education of his own or one peculiar to his native country, but that all these schools are to be established under the oversight of the Government and upon the same basis as that of the present system of education.

Political supporters and opponents alike have always given Mr. Rowell credit for honesty of purpose, for a measure of fairness in debate and his methods of warfare, a desire to do his duty as light has been given him, and ideals beyond those of the street corner politician. Not until his outburst of yesterday did anyone dream him capable of wilful misrepresentation or of assuming the role of a mere apostle of jingoism.

MR. TAFT WILL TALK

There was a time when the Republican party was credited with ability to conduct a presidential campaign without a blunder. One of the points upon which they insisted was that the candidate chosen by the National Convention preserve a dignified silence and remain in the background so that the enemy could not betray him into unwary speech by which his overthrow might be accomplished. When he was officially notified of his selection he was supposed to accept and acknowledge the honor with a few commonplace remarks to which the most hypocritical could take no exception. Then he was permitted to publish a formal letter of acceptance under the supervision of the National Committee who carefully revised the document which reflected not so much the opinions of the candidate as those of the party at large. After that, until the votes were counted, he was constrained to preserve the attitude of the Sphinx.

President Taft, however, has a fatal faculty of kicking over the party traces. He will talk when silence would better serve the purpose of himself and his friends. On two notable occasions in the recent past he brought confusion upon himself and disaster to a Canadian Ministry by untimely reference to certain features of the Reciprocity Treaty. Even then bitter experience taught him no lesson.

When he was notified the other day of his nomination he broke forth into speech again, and so tangled the party up in the trade question that it will keep Republican campaigners busy from now until election day inventing excuses and apologies. Mr. Taft deserted all his old time arguments with regard to the benefits to be derived from freer trade with Canada and stultified himself in the eyes of the world by doing so. His formal letter of acceptance is to come yet but the National Committee, acting as censors, will see to it that the document is orthodox. It is impossible to foresee into what further complications Mr. Taft will be betrayed by his unguarded tongue. Only one course is left the party unless all hopes for success are to be abandoned and that is to keep Mr. Taft silent at any cost, even if it is found necessary to gag him.

NOTE AND COMMENT

There was no murder in New York yesterday, so far as the dispatches show. Probably the police were otherwise engaged.

If a ball team persistently fails to swat the ball, what's the matter with giving the members a chance to practice on the pestiferous house fly?

For anything we know to the contrary there may be peat bogs all around us, so that we may yet be able to contemplate the price of coal with something like equanimity.

Ottawa with its appalling epidemic of typhoid fever, is agitating for a Dominion Health Department with a minister in charge, but it will be found that the Provincial authorities are well able to grapple with the situation.

Some of Mr. Rowell's friends should take him to one side and inform him kindly that the carpenter who erects the school building does not as a general thing have a say as to what course of study is to be taken up when the structure is completed.

Seeing that Hon. Dr. Pugsley has been out of office nearly a year, he has no reasonable excuse for pleading weariness of flesh, as he did in Montreal the other day. A man should be tolerably well rested up in the time that has elapsed since his relief from strenuous official duties.

MONTREAL, Aug. 2.—There was a fairly good enquiry for Manitoba spring wheat from foreign buyers, but as cables were all weak and 3d to 6d lower, no business was worked. The demand for oats was good and sales of several loads were made. The local trade in oats was more active and prices are firm. Canadian Cars on Austrian Railways

American Visitors may now, in the Familiar Type of Canadian Observation Cars, Visit the Most Wonderful Scenery of Europe.

Heilige Kreuz near Vienna where the Austrian Kings are buried

Tyrolese Peasant Costume

By Joseph Brown, Jr.

CANADIANS who this year visit Europe are being given the opportunity of travelling through the most wonderful scenic districts of Austria on Canadian railway coaches. Some months ago the Austrian State Railways decided that, in order to better cater to the tourist traffic, it was necessary to make some radical changes in their rolling stock. Looking into the matter the officials decided that their equipment did not allow the tourist to take away with him a full appreciation of the glories of the country served by the railways, and they decided that a type of cars should be obtained which would allow the traveller to obtain an unobstructed view of the passing scenery. Many types of cars, used in as many different countries, were investigated and [illegible] it was determined that the cars [illegible] suitable to Austrian conditions [illegible] those operated by the Canadian Pacific Railway through the Canadian Rocky Mountains. It seemed a long way to go for ideas, but negotiations were entered into with the C. P. R. which eventually culminated in an agreement being made whereby several services of Canadian Observation parlor cars are being operated over the lines of the Austrian railways.

That the introduction of these new services will have the effect of inducing an even greater number of Canadians and Americans to visit Austria is believed. In past years Canadians have shown a distinct partiality to Austrian scenery, and, in fact, last year, besides the large number who travelled by train, there were several parties of well known Canadians who motored through the length and breadth of the country. Certainly, however, whatever the effect on the tourist traffic, the inauguration of the services is important as marking another step in the development of Canada's railways. Hitherto it has been Europe developing Canada. Now Canada has reached that stage when it begins to develop Europe.

The cars which are being used in the new service were built by the Nesselsdorf Company, whose factory is well known in European railway circles. The private cars of the Sultan of Turkey are built here, and the company is patronized by many other continental princes. The designs used were those of a well known railway man of Montreal. In most respects they follow the lines of those used on the Imperial Limited very closely, but they differ in that they have been built with observation platforms at both ends. They are the longest four-axle cars in Europe, and they are provided with a well stocked library of the best books, just like Canadian observation cars. Travellers on the Austrian observation cars also have the services of a stenographer.

Eventually it is believed that the observation cars will be run over practically every branch of the Austrian State Railways. This year three services are being operated. The first of these runs between Zurich and Innsbruck over the Arlberg Route via Landeck. The second service is being operated between Innsbruck and Vienna, via Zell-Am-See and Salsburg. The third is from Salsburg to Trieste, over the Tauern and Karawanken Railways, by way of Badgastein, Villach, Veldes, and the Valley of Isonzo. This last is a new route that has only recently been opened by the Austrian Government, which has spent immense sums of money to provide a short cut from the North to Trieste, the country's greatest sea port.

There are several routes to Austria by which the traveller can connect with the observation car services. One of the most convenient of these is by way of Paris and Zurich. Another route via Switzerland, crosses the Austrian frontier at Bregenz, joining the line from Zurich, at the junction of Feldkirch.

That Canada should have chosen Austria for the introduction of its advanced railway ideas into Europe, is especially commendable. Austria is a land that cries out to the tourist to "come and see." It is a land of mountains, of fairy valleys, verdure-clad meadows and lovely lakes. Alike, both in its natural beauties and fascinating history, it has a paramount claim to the attention of all those who would know Europe. Without Austria, indeed, Europe can be but half understood, for her history is the history of the Continent itself. With her is bound up every great struggle that has shaken the nations since the days when the capital was a Roman outpost. Its vicissitudes have been many and romantic, and there is hardly a foot of Austria's soil that has not historic connection. For centuries Austria struggled against the Magyars, twice the Turk thundered at the gates of Vienna.

Austria is famous in the councils of Europe in her alliances with Spain. She played a memorable part in the Thirty Year's War, and in the war of the Spanish Succession.

The mountains of Austria are even more beautiful than those of its neighboring state of Switzerland. Those who love the terrific grandeur of high peaks, the colored loveliness of miniature lakes, and the appealing beauty of tinted meadows will find their hearts' desire in the mountain lands of Austria.

The peasantry of Austria are picturesque, lively and kindly. For a long time they have had the advantage of an excellent system of elementary education, and this, added to their natural charm and gaiety, makes them very agreeable to strangers.

Austrian cities are wonderful. Bregenz affords a happy foretaste of what is to follow. Its picturesque crooked little streets lead up the mountain side from the lake shore, ascending gently at first, and gradually getting steeper. Venerable buildings, quaintly gabled, lead the traveller's imagination back to the Middle Ages, and the whole is dominated by an ivy-clad castle, telling of the days when might was right. Further up still, the houses are lost among the tree-fringed slopes. Bregenz is the jewel of the Lake of Constance. Its surroundings can easily be explored.

Vienna, the capital city, with its long traditions of civilization, struggle, conquest, and patriotic valour, is most wonderful of them all. Its beauty, its gaiety, its fascination, its glorious architecture, its gardens, its picturesque surroundings, its knowledge of the secrets that make life pleasant, make it the most desirable of cities. Its atmosphere vibrates with the music of Strauss, for ever linked with the beautiful blue Danube, that rushes past its walls and under its stately bridges. Here open air life has become a finer art than in Paris. In its architecture may still be seen the reflex of an imperial past. The very paving stones of the narrow, crooked streets tell of its early patrician age, while on the other hand, imposing new buildings give evidence of modern development. All the restless activity of modern life is here apparent, while surrounding the city like a girdle is the Vienna forest, stretching away for miles.

Austria's great sea gateway is the beautiful port of Trieste, romantically situated on the shores of the Adriatic. In that busy harbor she transacts the greater portion of her sea trade. Trieste is a city that the traveller should on no account deny himself. There is no reason why he should, as the new Canadian observation car service makes the journey a delightful one. The line traverses the Upper Mur Valley, and along the Karawanker Mountains to Rosenbach, and passing through Gorz and Gradiska towards the border of Italy, it descends the slopes of Karst, where the Adriatic breaks upon the traveller's delighted gaze. And so to Trieste with its romantic Castle of Miramare dipping one foot in the sea.

Innsbruck, in the very heart of the Tyrol, is another picturesque Austrian city. Superb and glittering roofed; it stands on a small alluvial plain, engirdled by Alps that tower for nearly seven thousand feet aloft in the crystal airs. It is one of the few famous European towns that have escaped for the most part the devastation of time and war. It has conformed, it is true to modernity, but its modernity does not destroy its old-world charm. The Middle Ages still speak from its ancient gold roofed Hofkirche, where Maximilian sleeps, in a gorgeous tomb, and the country round is eloquent of patriotic memories. Innsbruck is the tourist centre of the Tyrol, and a welcome halting place for travellers, who from this base can command all the most notable places of the district.

There are many other points of interest in Austria that are well worth visiting. In fact, even if one never leaves the line of the railway, there is more than a plentitude of the things that interest and amuse. The railway takes one through the most wonderful and thrilling districts over a route that is remarkable both for its scenic beauty and for the skill with which it was constructed. There are high trestles and bridges to cross, tunnels to traverse, and mountains to skirt, where at times the track hangs at a giddy height over gorges cut by foaming mountain torrents.

One of the most interesting sections of the Austrian routes traversed is that eastward from Feldkirch, on the run to Vienna. Soon after leaving Feldkirch the line tunnels a spur of mountain crowned by the old Schattenburg, and comes out into the historic battlefields in the Valley of Ill, and so to Bludenz, where the steep ascent of the Arlberg Pass commences. Here the line leaves the Ill for the Kloster Valley, a part of the railway which was constructed under great difficulties. Half a million dollars were spent on the four kilometer stretch between Hintergasse and Dalaas. The grade is 3.-14 per cent., and the tracks climb over and through a succession of tunnels. On the left tower the rugged Alps, while on the right there is the valley sheltering numerous pretty villages. The track hangs at a giddy height over great gorges until at Langen, green with Alpine pastures and musical with a thousand cattle bells, the mighty mass of the Arlberg lies before one. Here the skill of the railway engineer has successfully pierced the mighty mountain with a tunnel that is the fourth largest in Europe. The tunnel took three years to build, and cost five million dollars. The highest point of the tunnel is 1,300 meters above sea level. It takes twenty minutes to traverse the tunnel, and then, on the St. Anton side, the glorious panorama of the Tyrol bursts upon the view.

Green pasture land surrounds St. Anton on every side. The upper region of trees the most beautiful elevated zone of the Alps, is close at hand, and less than five hundred yards above the railway the perpetual pasture lands stretch away for miles into the valleys sentineled by gleaming snow-capped peaks. St. Anton is famed as a winter resort for ski-runners. As the train travels further on its course a glimpse is caught of the giant Riffler, its glittering glacier sparkling in the sunlight, and further on, at the pretty little village of Flirsch, the houses of which recall those that came to delight our childhood out of the box that held the toy Alpine farm, is seen the majestic peak of the Valluga. Further on is reached one of the most impressive spots on the whole route, the gorge spanned by the single arch of the Trisanna Bridge, which springs sheer across the chasm for nearly one hundred and twenty meters. Nearly two hundred feet below roars and foams a glacial torrent, above, on all sides, tower huge mountains, while at the bridge head rises the ancient guard of these rocky fastnesses, the romantic Castle Wiesberg.

Austria is indeed a land that charms and enthralls. With wide open arms she welcomes the world to her cities, her fertile plains, and her glorious health-giving highlands, and ever she spreads before her guests an abundance of all things that are good.

FREIGHT RATES DISCUSSED AT MEETING LAST NIGHT

There is No Serious Discrimination by the Railroads Against the City—Complaints Made by Citizens Wil be Submitted to the Railway Commission.

The adjourned meeting of the City Council, the Board of Trade, the merchants and the Federal member, was held last night in the City Building. The discussion of the freight rate question showed that discrimination against Peterborough is not so general as is supposed and that any discriminations that do exist are of such a character as to require the united action of the municipalities.

Some startling information was given as to discrimination against cities in favor of foreign countries in exportation to the West. The Board of Trade has showed no interest in the matter but Manufacturers' Committee has been authorized to take the question up and the members will go into it in detail. It is to be hoped that people who have complaints to make will forward them without delay. The Manufacturers' Committee will make a report and forward it to Mr. Burnham who will bring it before the Railway Commissoin.

It will be a good thing for Peterborough if outsiders are given to understand that there is no serious discrimination against the city and what does actually exist will be speedily removed.

READING PUBLIC NOT FOND OF BIOGRAPHICAL WORKS

Very Little Call for Such Books at the Library—Parents Are Urged to Encourage Their Children to Pursne This Line of Study.

Article Number Three

Viewed from whatever standpoint one chooses, biography is one of the most interesting and instructive of studies. There are at the present time in the Peterborough Library about one thousand volumes of biography exclusive altogether of biographical dictionaries. Many of these contain memoirs of from eighteen to thirty persons, who, in one way or another have rendered their names immortal.

It will be seen therefore that in this section of reading matter our Library possesses an asset of peculiar value to old and young alike. In common with several other departments of literature however, biography, is to a large extent, neglected and the reason for this neglect is to be found without doubt in the home.

Schools busy themselves with teaching history, which, broadly considered, is biography in the concrete, in order to give their pupil's general grasp of the world's progress. Their curricula never embrace a specific course in biography. Yet, when one takes into account the plastic mind of youth, with all its wondrous aspirations and ardent hero-worship there can be little question that such a course, in the hands of a teacher, capable of infusing animation into the subject, would be of the highest service to a school and thus in a very real sense, to a community.

In early Victorian days, mothers were much more alive to the importance of biography in the home education of their children, than are the mothers of to-day. But that was before the era of Free Libraries and doubtless present day mothers, feel that with the resources of a Public Library at their childrens disposal, they can well be left to their own wills as to whether they read biography or not.

It can be safely stated however, that unless children are guided in that direction by their parents, or teachers, they are not going to take up the reading of biography of their own free will and accord. The very name deters them, and they look upon the perusal of it with about the same degree of enthusiasm as the ordinary being would look upon a suggested course of study of the Swedenborgian doctrine.

If they could be told in their homes, however, of the fascination attaching to the reading of such works and that inside their dingy covers lies matter infinitely more interesting than in half the current wish-wash that passes by the name of Fiction, surely it would help to create among them a demand for such reading.

Apart from the question of bringing the matter of biography before the children lies the question of bringing it before their parents and elders. Since the beginning of the year about 510 volumes of biography have been taken out by the public. This is about in the same ratio, perhaps a little larger, than the circulation of books of this class last year, but it is not as large as it should be, and would be if people made themselves better acquainted with what the Library has on its shelves.

There are, literally speaking, hundreds of men and women who have been eminent in all walks of life whose names do not appear on the title pages of any book, but concerning whom there are memoirs in the Library. The only way to obtain information as to any such is to consult the card catalogue. Great care was taken to make a record of every memoir in the Biographical department in order to make the catalogue as complete as possible, and a vast amount of information that can be obtained in no other way is available from this source.

If this short article is the means of influencing even a few fathers and mothers in directing their children to the study of biography much good will have been accomplished. It is needless to add that those connected with the Library are willing to do all in their power to further such reading.

ENTERTAINED AT STONEY LAKE

Mrs. J. R. Stratton Was Hostess at Delightful Bridge.

Juniper Island, Aug 3—Mrs. J. R. Stratton entertained about seventy-five ladies who are spending the summer at the lake at a delightful bridge on Thursday afternoon from 4 until 6 o'clock. The pavilion was tastefully decorated for the occasion with flowers, evergreens and bunting and a most enjoyable afternoon was spent. A flotilla of yachts brought the guests from their cottages and the event afforded the ladies at the lakes an opportunity of a delightful social afternoon, very pleasantly realizing the object of the occasion—a wider and more inclusive social "entente cordiale" between the ladies of the lake. A number of Mrs. Stratton's friends from Peterborough motored to McCracken's Landing, where they were met by her launch and taken to Juniper Island. Coleman Bros. of Peterborough catered for the occasion. An enjoyable feature was a number of vocal and piano solos contributed by several of the ladies who were present. Altogether a very pleasant afternoon was spent by the guests, many of whom were from distant cities.

A Lazy Liver

Upsets the Whole System.

Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills Put Things Right Again.

His liver is to sluggish—his stomach bad.

A bitter taste in the mouth—coated tongue—dizziness on rising suddenly—bowels alternately loose and constipated—these mean that the liver is out of order.

Instead of flowing into the bowels, to regulate them and aid digestion, the bile has been going all through the system, upsetting digestion, leaving the bowels constipated, and making the sufferer perfectly miserable. This is biliousness.

The quick, safe and certain cure is Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills. They clear out the clogged-up system, stir up the lazy liver, cleanse the stomach and bowels and purify the blood. The bile returns to its normal course, the food is again digested properly and all the disagreeable symptoms vanish.

Doctors prescribe Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills and they are known throughout the world as a proven cure for all digestive troubles. They are equally effective in strengthening weak kidneys and curing rheumatism.

HISTORIC CHURCH SOLD AT AUCTION

The quaint church of Notre Dame de Pitie, in Montreal, around which centre memories of worship extending over hundreds of years, was sold at auction for the comparatively insignificant sum of four hundred hundred dollars.

The city sold the old church after expropriating the site, just off Notre Dame street, in order that it might be torn down, and so make room for the extension of St. Lawrence Main to the waterfront. All of the other buildings acquired by the city between Notre Dame and the waterfront are also to be sold, the church being the first to go under the hammer.

An old commercial property on St. Paul street, Nos. 310-316, was also sold this morning.

The city's title to the other buildings which must be removed is not yet complete.

Although the church is reverently treasured by the Nuns, none of the Sisters appeared at the sale. They evidently foresaw the crowd of calculators who pried about the church with uncovered heads, smoking pipes and cigars the while.

The purchaser, Mr. J. A. Mailhot, must, according to the terms of sale, give back to the Nuns certain cherished relics and portions of the building. These include the corner stone and its contents, although no person knows just where the corner stone is located. The cross which tops the church must also go back to the order when the church is demolished and so must the two inscribed stones on the front, which read:

Mr. Adolphe Reeves bought the materials of the building on the site 310-316 St. Paul street for $650.00.

Don't Grow Bald, Young Man!

Take Care of Your Hair While You Have Hair to Take Care Of.

It's a safe ten to one bet that the young man who uses PARISIAN Sage as an occasional hair dressing will never grow bald.

There's a reason, of course, and it's a very good and sufficient one.

Dandruff germs cause falling hair and falling hair means thinner hair and in due time baldness.

PARISIAN Sage prevents baldness, by destroying the cause of baldness—the little persistent vociferous dandruff germ.

If you have dandruff or itching scalp it means that dandruff germs are sapping the vitality from the roots of your hair. Get rid of all hair troubles by using PARISIAN Sage.

It is not a dye, mind you, neither does it contain poisonous sugar of lead or even sulphur. It is a scientific preparation that abolishes dandruff, stops falling hair and scalp itch, and makes hair grow lustrous and luxuriant.

Many young women as well as men are growing bald and for the same reason.

Use delightful, refreshing PARISIAN Sage; it nourishes the hair roots, if the roots are not dead, and brings to every user a head of glorious hair—radiant and fascinating. Large bottle for 50 cents at drug stores and toilet counters. See that you get PARISIAN Sage.

Wm. Madill guarantees it.

WORK OF THE Y.M.C.A. AMONG THE PEOPLE OF JAPAN

Mr. G. E. Trueman, Stationed at Nagasaki, in the Island Empire, Reports Progress to Secretary Hainsworth.

To the Editor of the Review.

Enclosed please find copy of a letter sent to me from our representative in Japan. Mr. Trueman is helped supported by a number of our Y.M.C.A. members. If you care to publish this letter, I am sure it would be appreciated by those who are in touch with Mr. Trueman.

Very truly yours,

A. A. HAINSWORTH.

MR. TRUEMAN'S LETTER —

Circular Report Letter,

G. ERNEST TRUEMAN,

Nagasaki, Japan

July 1st, 1912.

Dear Fellow Secretary — Though Japan is not in the limelight of the world's interest just at present, her big sister across the Yellow Sea is. We, in Japan are now boasting of a sort of reflected glory. It is a big thing to have accomplished an almost bloodless revolution and to have upset an age-long dynasty, and national customs hoary with years, in a fortnight as it were, but in that tremendous cataclysm, our little island Empire played a bigger part than most people think.

In the first place, fully 75 p.c. of the leaders of the revolution were returned students from Japan; General Li Yuan Lung himself learned his military tactics at a school in Tokio. In the senate under Dr. Sen about one third were Christians. When the revolution broke out, one one the Chinese National Y.M.C.A. Secretaries volunteered for the Red Cross work and joined the staff of General Li and finally became one of his most trusted advisors. He is now Acting Minister of Commerce and Industry in Yuan-Shi-Kais cabinet. He still retains his secretarial connection however, and will return to his life work just as soon as he can conscientiously resign from the Government.

But all this is merely by way of introduction. We have had no big revolution in Japan, but from a national stand-point one or two things have taken place which show that Japan is evolving even if she is not revolving. The most important thing affecting us and our work was the Three-Religion Conference of which you have doubtless read.

On February 25th, representatives of Buddhism, Shinto and Christianity, met in Tokyo on the invitation of the Government. The chief motive underlying the plan was simply to give religion a greater sanction and so secure its aid to steady and to elevate public morality which has been sadly disintegrated of late by the inrush of materialistic thought from the West and the consequent break-down of the older standards and faiths. It was in no sense a legislative Conference and so nothing was enacted. Great gains accrued however, especially to Christianity, which for the first time was recognized as a reputable and established religion of the Japanese people and thus public amends made as it were for the suspicion and unfair treatment accorded it in the past. In an oligarchic form of Government like Japan, one cannot easily overestimate the value of Government sanction. Down here in Nagasaki we are just beginning to feel its effects.

About two weeks ago the heads of all the Christian schools received an official request from the city authorities, asking them to please propogate their religion among their students with all might and main — a request as unnecessary as it is strange, inasmuch as up to this time all teaching of the Bible even during school hours had to be classified by the name of ethics. Recently, the Vice-Governor visited the Methodist Boys' School and on being asked to speak at Chapel, at first refused but afterwards when prayers were over, changed his mind and himself asked permission to say a few words. His address was an earnest exhortation to the students to make the most of the advantages of this Christian school and to develop a strong faith in God. Whether owing to this I cannot say, but this spring, among the young men, a most heartening change of attitude has been noticeable. The Higher Commercial school Y.M.C.A. Bible Class has taken on new life and under the leadership of Mr. Enamata, the new Congregational Pastor, and Mr. Johns, the teacher of Commercial Practice of the school has had well attended sessions. The Medical School Y.M.C.A. too, though small is composed of a number of Christians, who are steadily making their influence felt. There seems to be some chance too of the organization of the Y.M.C.A. among the students of the Higher Normal School here. Three more students of that school were baptized last Sunday and there are still a number looking forward to baptism.

Our night school has just closed the most successful term in its history. For the first time we have had to consider the question of extension of quarters, owing to the fact that the old ones have been crowded out. The reason for this is partly due to the aggressive system of advertising which we adopted. In my December letter I spoke of the introduction of Chapel exercises in this night school with compulsory attendance. We have followed up this plan and all the teachers have been unanimous in their praise of effect on the general esprit-de-corps. During the first week in June we held special Evangelistic meetings for the students, shifting the Chapel hour to the last period in order to give the speaker longer than the ordinary twenty minutes. As a result sixteen young men gave in their names as "Inquirers." This means that they have decided to accept Christianity as far as they understand it, and to study the Bible diligently with a view to Baptism. In most of their lives this decision is the result of deep thought and is epochal. From the questions they still ask, though we can easily see that much more investigation is necessary before they receive Baptism. One of them wanted to know recently if it was alright for him to worship the sun when he got up in the morning. He was told that the spirit of worship therein displayed was praiseworthy but that his choice of objects to worship was not so laudible—that he ought to worship rather the Maker of the sun than the sun itself. These young men have already been introduced to the churches of their choice and are under the direct care of the various pastors.

In this connection the "Co-operative" Sunday School is playing, and will still more in the future play an important part. In case I have not already written you about it, it is a union school formed by the co-operation of the Y.M.C.A. and the two Christian Boys' schools. We closed for the summer on Sunday last and according to the secretary's summary exactly one hundred young men had been in attendance since April. Of these twenty-five were from the Y.M.C.A., either night school students or regular members. The majority of the boys who decided to become Christians were enrolled in this Sunday school. It is certain that with proper pushing we can make this school a powerful Evangelistic agency among our membership.

Since writing you last the Association's greatest gain here has been the completion of a new dormitory for young men. It is situated right beside the main building, is calculated to hold twenty-six young men and cost all told some five thousand, five hundred Yen. Those of you who have not been talking dormitory plans and dormitory finances for the last six months can scarcely estimate the sense of relief and thanksgiving which the dedication service brought. And if you are not familiar with what boarding house life in Japan is, neither can your at all gauge how out of all proportion to the cost and the effort is the boon that such a refuge brings to the men who get a chance to live within its walls.

You already know how that 1,000 Yen of the building fund was contributed by one man—a prominent Buddhist in the city, but one who recognizes the asset such a work as ours is to the class we aim to reach. Just recently we have had further evidence that the Japanese are gradually coming to take much broader views in regard to philanthropy than heretofore.

One man gave us 130 Yen for the new wall we wished to build in front of the dormitory, and two others 30 Yen each to equip a sort of temporary playground.

Just as an indication of the way the Y.M.C.A. is gradually winning its way into the confidence of the people in Japan, I want to recount the following:—A General Manager for the local branch of the Singer Sewing Machine Co. was needed, and our Secretary was asked to recommend a suitable man. He recommended one of our members, a young man, at that time an employee in the city office. His credentials proving satisfactory, the next question to be raised was the security he could offer. Ordinarily two men of considerable property are required in a case like this where so much business is transacted, but this time the Tokyo authorities sent down word that since the Y.M.C.A. secretary had recommended him, if he would go still further and be his security they would accept that as a sufficient guarantee. On that basis the young man was engaged.

You may have already guessed from the tone of this letter we feel greatly encouraged with, and extremely thankful for our first year's work in Nagasaki. Mrs. Trueman and I both have excellent health all the time. I myself have not even had a cold for the last fourteen months. About the 20th of this month we are planning to go north for the summer vacation, returning during the first half of September. We unite in wishing you an abundance of the best in all things. Hoping to hear from you soon, I am,

Very sincerely yours,

G. ERNEST TRUEMAN.

WHO WILL PAY THE FINE LEVIED ON PITCHER HANSON?

The $10 Will Come Out of Wages of the Twirler—Local Fans Propose a Subscription to Make up the Sum—No Game Yesterday on Account of Rain.

Pitcher Hanson, who arrived from the city of Chicago the other day to join the White Caps has been thrust into the limelight by reason of his run-in with Umpire Davis, in Thursday's game at Riverside Park, when the twirler was fined $10 and sent to the bench for disputing the umpire's decision on a close play at first.

It was the new pitcher's initail performance, and as he was mowing down the visiting batsmen, he captured the goodwill of the fans right from the start, and they are unanimously of the opinion that the referee was wrong. The decision meant a good deal to the new man as it recorded a base hit against him.

There have been a good many inquiries at this office, as to who will pay the $10 fine, the club or the ptícher According to the rules of the league, the club is held responsible for the collection of the amount and it is up to the directors to deduct the ten spot from the player's salary. The league holds that it is illegal on the part of any club to condone the offence of a player, or to encourage him in rebellion against the umpire, by paying the offenders compensation to that extent. If it could be proved that any club did so the latter would be fined, probably ten times the amount of the original penalty. This was made clear in the case of Ty Cobb, in the American League, a few weeks ago.

Local fans propose raising a subscription to reemburse Hanson for his financial loss, so satisfied are they that he had the right end of the dispute.

When a man begins to pay as much attention to a dime as he formerly did to a dollar it's a sign he is getting rich.

GUELPH BEAT OTTAWA

All Other Canadian League Games Were Postponed.

All the games in the Canadian League, scheduled for yesterday were postponed on account of rain, except the one between Guelph and Ottawa. The team that is floundering around in the cellar beat the Capital City leaders of the league by a score of 1 to 0.

THE GENEROUS EMPLOYER.

His Valet Found His Proper Vocation at Last.

Jack Martin of New York, Paris, London and other distributing centers was in the French capital without a valet, a valet being a person who is expert in the folding, pressing and draping of men's apparel. Mr. Martin employed the man who first applied for the position, but after half an hour of close observation went off like a geyser with this:

"What you don't know about valeting would break the heart of any real valet in Christendom! You don't know a sleeve button from a pressing iron. What on earth is your real vocation?"

Then the impostor confessed. He said he was not a valet, had never been trained as a valet and hoped he would never be a valet. As a matter of fact, he explained, his real business was that of chauffeur.

"Good!" exclaimed Martin. "I fire you as valet and engage you as chauffeur. You may drive my machines for me."

After the first day of the new job the chauffeur and Mr. Martin had narrowly escaped death about sixteen times.

"See here!" exclaimed the employer. "You're not a chauffeur. You don't know how to drive a car. You're fired!"

"I know it, sir," sobbed the valet-chauffeur, "but I'm an American, and I was hungry when I applied to you for a job. I hope you'll forgive me. My real business is pugilism. I'm some pugilist. Believe me, I'm some fighter!"

At last the truth was out, and at last Martin was enthusiastic.

"Fine!" he cried. "You're not fired. You're re-engaged. I make you my valet again."

Then the man and the manservant sailed for the United States. On the dock in New York a customs official told Martin to open his trunks. The valet did it. Then the official insisted on Martin's opening all the trays in each trunk.

"I won't do it," said Martin, "and I won't allow my valet to do it."

Whereupon the official converted the Martin trunks into a storm and scattered rainbow pajamas and silk socks to the four winds, all of which greatly pained Mr. Martin, who turned to the valet and said in a low but stern voice:

"Beat him up!"

As a beater up that valet was a blue ribbon performer, and he made the customs official's face look like scrambled eggs cold. A few minutes later the police appeared, the valet was taken to the lockup, and Martin jumped into a taxicab and started for his club with a friend.

"I don't think this is fair," objected the friend. "Why should that valet go to jail for obeying your orders?"

"Oh, he's got no kick," said Martin lightly. "I always pay him $20 a day extra when he's under arrest."—Popular Magazine.

Found His Place.

Two New England men were talking over the days of their boyhood when one referred to an old schoolmate who had a most unfortunate disposition.

"I often wonder what became of Dick," said his friend. "It always seemed to me that it wouldn't be possible for him to get any enjoyment out of life or to find any sort of work that suited him."

"Oh, he's fixed all right," said the other man. "I saw him in Chicago last year, where he has a job that suits him perfectly. He is station master in a place where there are fifty trains a day coming and going and Dick sees somebody miss every one of them."—Pittsburgh Chronicle-Telegraph.

The Big Hat in Germany.

A man has inserted the following advertisement in a Halle newspaper:

"Required—House in the neighborhood of Halle; size, rent, situation, length of lease no object provided the door is large enough to admit my wife's new hat. When wearing it she cannot get through the door of my present residence and is therefore obliged to stay with my friend Fritz."—Berlin Cor. London Standard.

MAINSTAY OF CHICAGO CUBS IN BOX.

JAMES S. LAVENDER.

James S. Lavender is the great pitcher of the Chicago Cubs. He has been the mainstay of the Chance crew all during the season, and his brilliant work has kept the Windy City boys up with the leaders throughout the campaign, and yet they tried to send him to the minors before the season opened.

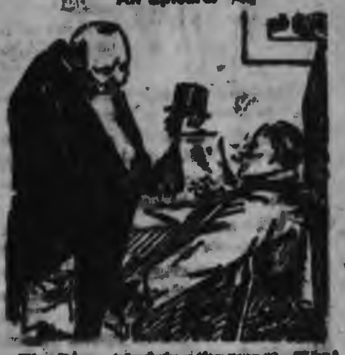
Beresford Believes Story.

New York, Aug. 2.—A London cable says:

The article printed in The London Daily Express on Wednesday, affirming that Germany is secretly building nine new battleships, is regarded seriously by Admiral Lord Charles Beresford, as is evidenced by a letter to the editor of that paper printed yesterday morning. He says, in part:

"Our position is much more serious than the First Lord of the Admiralty (Winston Churchill) dare confess. He cannot find crews for eight additional battleships; there are not enough men now for active service in the fleet alone. The First Lord's statements on the subject are inconsistent with one another."

An Epicure.



The Diner (studying the menu)—H'm! I don't know. What's your advice, waiter?

The Waiter—Well, sir, I 'ardly care. Y'see, we all of us 'as our own hideals. Mine I notice isn't on the meenoo today. I'm all over pork chops, I am.—London Sketch.

Took an Unkind Advantage.

In Oklahoma they have a baseball association called the Oklahoma State league. During one of their games at Tulsa recently an old man went to the park, paid his money and took a seat on the bleachers. He sat with a look of disgust on his face while the pitcher "fanned" the visitors in one-two-three order.

"How do you like the game, uncle?" asked a fan who sat next to him.

"It's all right, I reckon," said the old man, "but they ought to get another man to throw them balls. That there man can't throw a ball so's the other boys can hit it."—Kansas City Star.

His Mind at Ease.

Suspicious Character—Is the people of the 'ouse in?

Maid—No; they're all out.

S. C.—Are you got yer dog license yet?

Maid—We ain't got no dog.

S. C.—Well, I've come to look at the telefone.—Sketch.

LISTOWELL, Aug. 2.—At the cheese board to-day twelve factories boarded 2715 boxes of cheese, 1142 white and 1573 colored. On the board bidding started at 12 1-4c and went up to 12 3-16c, two sales having been previously effected at 13c, at which price one factory's production was sold. On the street all sold at 13c for white and 12 3-16c for colored.

Peace Celebration.

Washington, Aug. 2.—Senator Burton's bill for the appointment of a commission of seven members to consider plans for the celebration of the one hundredth anniversary of the treaty with Great Britain, made at Ghent in 1814, was favorably reported to the Senate yesterday by Senator Root from the committee on foreign relations.

The Girl and The Davenport

And the Sequel to Her Attempt to Buy It.

By FANNIE HEASLIP LEA.

In the twilight of a secondhand shop on Royal street Van Holden saw her first. She came toward him down an aisle of shadow between old mahogany sideboards and dusty armoires and laid her gray gloved hand upon one end of a quaint davenport on whose other end reposed the hand of Van Holden.

"This davenport," she said to the shopkeeper, "is the one you reserved for me, is it not?"

"Pardon me," said Van Holden firmly—the davenport was genuine mahogany and of a good shape—"I have just bought it."

The shopkeeper, a little creole with voluble eyes and a fierce mustache, looked from one to the other.

"Mais oui," he murmured politely, "it is vair good davenpo't"—

"You promised yesterday afternoon," she said with icy dignity, "to reserve it for me. I must have it. I wish it upholstered in the green rep you showed me, and I want it by Thursday morning."

"Pardon me"— Van Holden began again.

She ignored his existence and drew a card from her case of snakeskin.

"Here is my address," she said, scribbling something thereon, "and I will give you a check on delivery of the davenport. Eighty dollars I think you said?"

Van Holden's sense of humor, assisted by the pleasing picture of pale hair and gray eyes in a cool, pale face against a background of cobwebbed walls, began to rise.

"I was to have had it for fifty," he suggested plaintively.

"I will give you eighty for it," she said to the shopkeeper. And her face was noticeably less pale.

"It ees vair good davenport," said the shopkeeper, twisting his fierce mustache. "I pay hun'erd dollar fo' it, but I take eighty. Yas, I take eighty."

"Oh, you do?" said Van Holden sarcastically. "What about the fifty I'm giving you? I suppose you take that too? Now, see here, my man." He smoothed out the check between his fingers.

"If you have paid for it," said the lady icily, "I shall, of course, not take it. I had not understood"—

"Pray do not consider me in the matter," said Van Holden, with equal promptness. "I shall not take it now." He thrust the check into his vest pocket as the shopkeeper's dirty fingers closed clawlike over the lady's card.

"Upholster in green rep? Varnish? Me? I lose $20, yes—but—you take it—I keep my word."

"No," said the lady; "I shall not take it. My card!" She slipped it back into the case. "I do not care for the davenport." She walked to the door, holding her skirts away from contamination, and turned into the hot, narrow street, a slender figure in a gray gown and a gray hat with pale roses on the wide brim.

Van Holden lit a cigarette in the interval of regarding the shopkeeper with a piercing interest. "Overreached yourself that time, Mr. Montague," he remarked pleasantly.

"Dose Yankees," said Mr. Montague morosely.

"I dare say," said Van Holden. He walked to the front of the shop, the creole at his heels, and a humorous smile twitched the corners of his mouth. "That was a dirty trick of yours. And, by the way, you needn't send up that chair I looked at. I don't care to deal with you in future."

Mr. Montague shrugged his shoulders and lifted up his eyes. Van Holden turned on his heel and walked leisurely down the street, his annoyance lost in a sense of amusement.

"'Dose Yankees,'" he echoed to himself. Then his meditation took the form of manifest approval. "She would have been a picture on that davenport after it was done in green, with her coloring—lack of coloring, rather. Hello, Berden! Anything doing? Come over and have lunch at the Cosmopolitan."

"That's where I'm going now," said Berden. "You are just the man I want. I'm taking the girls to lunch today. Molly has a girl visiting her, you know. You'll just round out the party and make us happy foursome. Oh, come on! And see here, Van—what about that deal you made in cotton yesterday?"

They sauntered down the street, deep in discussion, until Berden stopped suddenly. "Jove! I've got to go over to some blamed store and meet those girls. You go on and engage a table; that's a good fellow. Order the lunch, if you want to. You do it better than I do anyhow. I shan't be long."

He darted off like a distracted water bug in linen clothes and a panama, and Van Holden set forth upon his quest of a table. He found one in a cool corner of the dining room and consumed some time in the ordering of a luncheon that should combine delicacy and a good deal of ice.

When the waiter had left him he fell to drumming on the table and thinking of the davenport girl, as he called her to himself. "Cool," he mused, "and self possessed—and, Lord, what a face—prettier, perhaps, for a touch of color."

Vaguely he remembered something about "the beauty of a blush to him who has caused it" and smiled to think that he had made her blush for anger.

"Heigh-ho," he sighed, entirely without reason, and on the moment Berden's voice was in his ears. "Wake up, boy! Look as if you were seeing ghosts, doesn't he, Molly? Miss McCollough, Mr. Van Holden. Did you order lunch, old chap?"

"I did," said Van Holden steadily. "It ought to be here in a moment. Mrs. Berden, sit here, then the light won't be in your eyes."

He changed seats with her deftly and faced across the white tablecloth, accusing gray eyes under a wide brimmed gray hat with pale roses. There was a blot of color in the face.

"Say, Van," cried the irrepressible Berden, "you ought to hear Miss McCollough's story of the way she was 'done' by an antique dealer today—promised to hold a desk or something for her"—

"Don't tell on me," pleaded Miss McCollough nervously, "please, Mr. Berden."

"Oh, the joke's not on you," said Berden consolingly. "And when she went there she found a chap engaged in buying her piece—a very decent looking chap, she says."

"Do make him hush, Molly." Miss McCollough's glass of water answered a despairing and surreptitious push by flowing across the tablecloth on to Berden's knees.

Miss McCollough gasped.

"Oh, that's all right," said Berden, jumping up. He beckoned a waiter and presently resumed his seat and his story.

"Chap was awfully good looking," he rattled on, "well dressed—manner—what was his manner, Molly? Oh, yes, 'the perfection of indifference and the dearest smile.'"

The quick crimson swept up to the gray hat brim, but Berden was merciless.

"She insisted on having the thing; so did he. She spoke of paying $80 for it. He let out that he was getting it for $50. I tell you those dealers are regular sharks. So she didn't take it, and—listen to this, Van Holden—she says she's willing to lose the furniture for the sake of the adventure—says she's found her affinity."

"For pity's sake, Bobbie, hush!" cried his wife. "Can't you see you're worrying Nora? Do eat your lunch."

"Did the man get the desk, Miss McCollough?" inquired Van Holden, with courteous interest.

"Probably so. I left him there," she answered vindictively. "Mr. Berden, is the old Hotel Royal open to visitors?"

"Why don't you go back and see?" asked the man across the table insistently.

"The hotel?" she inquired, surprised.

"No; the antique store"—

"Because I am not sufficiently interested." Van Holden smiled confidently and applied himself to the salad.

With the arrival of the finger bowls the conversation by easy stages, in which Berden's new motor, the last regatta and a projected house party across the lake were discussed, came back to Miss McCollough's adventure.

"So you think the man bought your desk?" said Van Holden. "If he didn't—I'll wager he will. Only it was not a desk, but a davenport."

Mrs. Berden arose, shaking out her skirts. "If he saw his affinity as she saw hers," she laughed, "he may have bought it for her sake."

"I was thinking of that," said Van Holden.

"And some day," said Mrs. Berden teasingly, "she may sit on it before his library fire—in a soft gray gown—the davenport was to be upholstered in dull green, you know."

"Don't be silly, Molly. We shall be late if you talk so long," Miss McCollough insisted feverishly.

"Well, you never can tell," said Berden. "Anything might happen, eh, Van?"

"I should think that was quite possible," said Van Holden.

"Of course," said Berden. "Come up and see us, old chap."

"We're going to motor out to West End for dinner tomorrow night. Don't you want to come?" echoed his wife.

"I do," said Van Holden earnestly. "But Miss McCollough hasn't asked me yet."

"Will you come?" asked Miss McCollough, with level defiance and something else in her gray eyes.

That day Mr. Montague sold the davenport.

It sometimes happens that when a man's wife dies he loses his only visible means of support.

Origin of the Manor.

Under William the Norman the village system of Saxon and Norse freeholders was practically replaced by the "manors" with which he rewarded hundreds and thousands of his barons and knights after the conquest of England. The manor might comprise one or more villages or a wide range of moor and forest sparsely inhabited, but for its possession the lord of the manor owed service and certain payments of money or property to his sovereign and in return had practical sovereignty over the people of his domain. His were the rights of "pit and gallows" to drown any woman and hang any man whom he might adjudge guilty under the stern Draconian code of a period when thief and poacher, heretic and railer, were fortunate if they escaped with mutilation or a whipping that was scarcely to be preferred to death.—National Magazine.

The Japanese Way.

The Japanese plan of ocean travel involves the idea of instilling in the minds of passengers the necessity of being prepared in case of danger. On steamships plying between Japanese ports and the Asiatic continent the passenger is informed as to the particular lifeboat which he is to seek, and he makes the acquaintance of the officer who will be in charge of that boat.—Boston Transcript.

WOMAN ESCAPES DREADFUL OPERATION

How She Was Saved From Surgeon's Knife by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Mogadore, Ohio.—"The first two years I was married I suffered so much from female troubles and bearing down pains that I could not stand on my feet long enough to do my work. The doctor said I would have to undergo an operation, but my husband wanted me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound first. I took three bottles and it made me well and strong and I avoided a dreadful operation. I now have two fine healthy children, and I cannot say too much about what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me."—Mrs. LEE MANGES, R. F. D. 10, Mogadore, Ohio.

Why will women take chances with an operation or drag out a sickly, half-hearted existence, missing three-fourths of the joy of living, when they can find health in Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound?

For thirty years it has been the standard remedy for female ills, and has restored the health of thousands of women who have been troubled with such ailments as displacements, inflammation, ulceration, tumors, irregularities, etc.

If you want special advice write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence.

(By Alice J. Nichols).

The Lord Christ wanted a tongue one day
To speak a message of cheer
To a heart that was weary, worn and sad,
And weighed with doubt and fear.
He asked me for mine, but 'twas busy quite
With my own affairs from morn till night.

The Lord Christ wanted a hand one day
To do a loving deed;
He wanted two feet on an errand for Him
To run with gladsome speed.
But I had need of my own that day;
To His gentle beseeching I answered 'Nay!'

So all that day I used my tongue,
My hands and my feet as I chose,
I said some hasty, bitter words
That hurt one heart, God knows
I busied my hands with worthless play,
And my wilful feet went a crooked way.

And the dear Lord Christ—was His work undone
For lack of a willing heart?
It is through men that He speaks to men,
His men must do their part,
He may have used another that day,
But I wish I had let Him have His way.

BRAIN POISON.

The State Charities Aid Association of New York has published a statement concerning insanity, which ought to have wide circulation, and which must certainly do very much good. This document points out the relationship of parents to diseases that come from immoral conduct, and after going into some detailed explanation, it says:

The number of patients having paresis, or "softening of the brain," admitted to state hospitals during the year ending 30th September, 1910, was 600 men, or 17 per cent. of all men admitted, and 263 women, 8 per cent. of all women admitted.

Another group of mental diseases are due directly to the habitual use of alcohol. Alcoholic insanity may be brought on by the regular use of alcohol, even in "moderate" quantities not producing intoxication. The close relation between alcohol and insanity has only recently been fully realized. Statistics as to the number of cases in which alcohol is the direct cause necessarily vary in different localities. Fully 30 per cent. of the men and 10 per cent. of the women admitted to the state hospitals are suffering from conditions due directly or indirectly to alcohol. So marked is the effect of alcohol upon the brain and the nerve tissue that it helps to bring about a number of mental breakdowns, in addition to the alcoholic insanities.

Alcohol is a poison. A long series of careful tests performed by eminent authorities show that even small quantities of alcohol may lower the mental capacity, and that it takes much longer than is usually supposed for this effect to wear off.

This is not a temperance tract. We are dealing only with scientific facts. It is difficult, however, to state the facts as now agreed upon by the highest medical authorities without seeming to preach.

In this day of keen competition every man needs the highest possible development of his mental capacities. Not only is the highest mental development impossible in the presence of the continued use of alcohol, but impairment of the mental faculties is likely to follow. The children of those addicted to alcohol often start in life with morbid tendencies.

MEXICO'S CURSE.

In most civilised communities, the manufacturer of spirits is placed under very rigid restrictions, and the number of persons or corporations who comply with the rigid regulations imposed is comparatively small. In the whole of Canada there are only fourteen distilleries, nine of which are in Ontario, four in Quebec, and one in British Columbia.

A statement going the rounds of the Canadian press and probably approximately correct, is that there are no fewer than 1,674 establishments in Mexico, authorized to manufacture spirits, either as a direct business or as a by-product in some other industry.

The annual output of all these distilleries is said to be 9,838,000 gallons. The total quantity manufactured in Canada during the year 1910 was less than 6,000,000 gallons, while the quantity of Canadian spirits taken for domestic consumption in that year was less than 4,000,000 gallons. The population of Canada is about 7,000,000; of Mexico about 10,000,000.

DIABETES

Sanol's Antidiabetes, the great discovery of a German Specialist, is the only practical and thoroughly tested Remedy for Diabetes-mellitus. It has a specific action against the poisons of the disease, and by its use the secretion of sugar almost immediately abates and disappears altogether after a short time. So long as the disease has not reached its last stages, a cure can be effected with "Sanol's Antidiabetes."

Open wounds heal after a little time, the disagreeable thirst disappears, after a few days the general health of the patient becomes speedily improved.

Sanol's Antidiabetes is used with an alternate diet regimen based on long experience in the study of this disease.

All sufferers from this terrible and hitherto considered incurable disease should not hesitate to give "Sanol's Antidiabetes" a trial, as we feel absolutely certain that it will justify all the claims we make for it.

This remedy is perfectly harmless to the organic system, being composed only of herbs and extracts, and containing no poisonous or injurious matter whatever.

SIX MONTHS IN CENTRAL

Drunk and Disorderly Cases in Police Court—Matthew Edward Arrested.

William Owen was charged with vagrancy in police court this morning and sentenced to six months in the Central Prison. The evidence of Detective Newhall proved him to have been consorting with tramps, drinking, carousing and sponging in barrooms for free drinks. He was arrested a few mornings ago and promised to leave the city. He comes from Toronto.

Matthew Edward, of Keene, shrouded in a big overcoat, was still drunk when brought before the Magistrate. He was picked up this morning, badly intoxicated on Simcoe street. P.C. Kane made the arrest after being sent for.

He was fined $2.

John Hughes and Michael Burke were each assessed $5.75. They were out for a time last night and became drunk and disorderly.

The last time Burke was arrested he accused the police of taking $10 from him.

OBITUARY

THE LATE MRS. CALDOR.

We regret to announce the death of Mrs. Caldor, of Westmount, Montreal, a sister of Mr. Charles Lauder, of Mt. Julian, Stoney Lake, after a short but severe illness, on July 16th.

The deceased was born in Montreal, but came with her parents and part of the family to the farm now occupied by Mr. Lauder, and lived there for a number of years. She then returned to Montreal, where she lived for nearly the rest of her life, except for a year or two spent in the States, and often came to visit her old home.

Mr. and Mrs. Lauder and her sister, Mrs. R. Darling, of Smith, on the news of her illness went to Montreal to see her, and remained ten days.

A short time after their return they received word of her death. The remains, accompanied by two sisters, three nephews, a niece and some other relatives, was brought to Lakefield, and met there by her friends from Mt. Julian and Smith.

The pall bearers were Mr. A. Darling and Mr. D. Darling, of Smith; Mr. J. Reid, of Lakefield; Mr. Israel Church, Mr. Allan Church and Mr. Bruce Reid, of Mount Julian. Rev. Mr. Coon conducted the funeral service in the Methodist church and at the grave.

Amongst those who came from Mt. Julian to show the last mark of respect to their former neighbor and friend, were: Mrs. Thomas Northey, Mrs. Sam Wilson, Mrs. Israel Beattie Reid, Church, Miss Emma Reid and Miss

Mrs. Caldor had a bright and cheerful disposition, which endeared her to her friends, and her death will make a sad break in the family circle.

TONIC TREATMENT FOR THE STOMACH

The Modern Method Most Successful in Treating Indigestion

The old-fashioned methods of treating indigestion and stomach troubles are being discarded. The trouble with the old fashioned methods was that when the treatment was stopped the trouble returned in an aggravated form.

The modern method of curing indigestion and other stomach troubles is to tone up the stomach to do its normal work. Every step toward recovery is a step gained, not to be lost again. The recovery of the appetite, the disappearance of pain, the absence of gas—all are steps on the road to health that those who have tried the tonic treatment remember distinctly. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are a tonic medicine, every constituent of which is helpful in building up the digestive organs, and is therefore the very best remedy for chronic cases of stomach trouble. The success of the treatment is proved by thousands of cases like the following. Mr. W. W. Swain, Grand Valley, Ont., says:—"For several years my mother had stomach trouble, from which she got no relief whatever, until she began the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. She was treated at different times by three doctors, but their efforts did not avail. Then she was advised to try an electric belt, but it proved worthless. She suffered much during this time and food became distasteful. The trouble also affected her nerves and her general health was on the verge of a breakdown. One day a friend who was in, asked her to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Without very much hope that the pills would prove successful when other medicines had failed, we nevertheless got her a supply. In a few weeks, we could see a decided change, and got six more boxes, by the time these were used mother was almost well, and she kept on taking the Pills for a short time longer and was completely cured. She is now a healthy and strong woman and is never bothered with her stomach in any way. I hope this statement will bring relief to other sufferers."

Why experiment with medicines of doubtful value, when you have such positive evidence of the benefit following the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills? Sold by all medicine dealers or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50, from the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

NEW STATION AT EDMONTON

The official announcement has been made of the erection at Edmonton of a Union Station costing approximately $400,000 by the Grand Trunk Pacific and Edmonton, Dunvegan & British Columbia Railways, as soon as negotiations with the municipality for the closing of certain streets have been concluded. The building will have a length of four city blocks, it will be two storeys in height and will have all modern conveniences for the comfort of the travelling public. Provision will be made for six sets of double tracks and four passenger platforms. The E. D. & B. C. Railway will operate its own freight from its own terminals. Contracts for the erection of the new $750,000 Grand Trunk Pacific Hotel in the same place will also be awarded shortly in Montreal. When the time for receiving tenders expired on July 15th, six bids had been put in, all from firms of repute throughout the Dominion, but these will require some little consideration before any announcement is made. Steel will be on hand in the Albertan Capital in three months' time, and construction will be prosecuted throughout the winter as in the case of the Fort Garry at Winnipeg.

BEAUTIFUL EYES

are made beautiful by long, silky lashes and well defined, lustrous brows. Eyes, like diamonds, depend on their setting. The beauties of the face are lost is the eye brows are thin and scanty, and the lashes are thing and scanty. Parisian Lash Lustre grows beautiful, soft, silky lashes. It has done so for society women throughout Europe, and it comes here well recommended to do the same for you. Parisian Lash Lustre is not a dye or colorator, but a scientific preparation for beautifying the eye lashes and brows. Our guarantee goes with every box of Parisian Lash Lustre. A two weeks' treatment will bring beauty to your eyes that you have never before possessed. By mail, prepaid, in opal boxes on receipt of price fifty cents. B. V. Don't Need Accident Insurance

There is no excuse for refusing to take out Accident Insurance as common as the one that the prospect "Don't Need it."

The average man thinks he never exposes himself to hazards that invite accidents.

Here are some of the illuminating facts in regard to the hazards of ordinary lives.

Is he the man who never goes anywhere, always remains at home? Whereabouts at home does he remain to escape danger? Inside the house? Out of every one hundred injurious accidents nearly 14 per cent occur inside the house. Is he safe there? Hardly.

While at home around the house, amid scenes of peace, is he free from danger? Out of every one hundred injurious accidents, nearly 13 per cent are met with amid these peaceful surroundings.

Is he safe while walking the streets? Out of every one hundred injurious accidents, nearly 16 per cent are met with by pedestrians. Hardly safe is he while walking?

A fraction of over 13 per cent of every one hundred injurious accidents are attributable to horses and vehicles. Nearly 7 per cent are attributable to Automobiles and Bicycles. Railroad and Steamship travel are not especially to be commended for possessing elements of safety as these contribute 14 per cent of every one hundred.

Even while engaged in recreation he is not safe, as its quota amounts to nearly 8 per cent of every hundred. There is only one place where a man is not liable to meet with injurious accidents, and that is—the grave. Sleeping there he is in no danger.

The above shows that everyone needs protection against Accident, and this protection can be obtained at a nominal cost by applying to

THE TYPHOID EPIDEMIC AT OTTAWA IS NOW ABATING

Twelve Deaths Have Been Reported, But There Are Few New Cases—Head Nurse Criticizes the Toronto Nurses Who Returned Home and Condemned the Work at the Capital.

Ottawa, Aug. 5.—Up to last night several cases were added to Friday night's total of typhoid fever, bringing it up to 750. The number of deaths from the disease is now officially given at the city hall as twelve. The daily number of new cases has now begun to taper off, as is the case when a typhoid epidemic passes its worst stage. On Wednesday there were 80, Thursday 70, and Friday 46. The total number Saturday was less than Friday.

Doctors say the spell of cool weather the city has experienced for the last two weeks has been the salvation of many of the patients. Had the outbreak occurred a couple of weeks sooner, during the extreme heat wave, the loss of life would have been very great.

Miss Florence Leamy, head nurse of the Ottawa typhoid emergency hospital, made a statement Saturday, in reply to criticisms by Miss Agatha Gamble and Miss Hurst, Toronto nurses, who came here to assist in the typhoid epidemic, but who have returned home and given interviews condemning the conditions under which they were obliged to work.

Miss Leamy ridiculed the idea that either Miss Gamble or Miss Hurst had any grievance, real enough to force them to leave their work.

"Why," said Miss Leamy, "if in emergencies such as this nurses and doctors stopped to consider their own troubles and comfort, nothing would be done. A real nurse always rises to an emergency cheerfully and readily—that is her test.

"In the first place, if they had been real nurses, or even women, they would have remembered that everything was being rushed. The other nurses we have from Toronto have stayed, and are content to do so while they can help. The accommodations with regard to sanitation and disinfection were as good as could be expected on the first day. With regard to having to get their food in restaurants, if they had endured this awful misery for one day longer they would have found that we made arrangements for them to have food at the hospital. There is no doubt that had they been suited for their work they would have stayed and helped."

SAYS THEY WOULD PREFER LICENSES

Mr. Rowell Admits North Does Not Favor Bar Abolition.

Toronto, Aug. 5.—"Dissatisfaction with the present Government's methods."

That's what Leader N. W. Rowell of the Liberal party says he found all through the north country. His party returned from its tour Sunday morning at 8 o'clock, Mr. Rowell leaving at once for Woodstock.

"We were greatly delighted with the trip, the wide areas for settlement, the character of the country and the fertility of the soil were far greater than we expected."

"Politically?"

"We found dissatisfaction with present conditions and the administration of laws relating to settlement and liquor is much greater and more widespread than seemed possible. Not all are dissatisfied with the same thing, though, but there is dissatisfaction all round, and far greater than we expected. But we never found a more optimistic people. They are doing all they can to develop the country, and there is no doubt that the new roads under construction by the Government will be of great value toward settlement of the north country and one step toward meeting a most urgent situation."

"And about the liquor situation," he was asked.

"More dissatisfaction," was the substance of Mr. Rowell's immediate reply. "I thought any law," said he, referring to the liquor laws of the north, "that was not reasonably well enforced and impartially administered should be modified."

Mr. Rowell was not in any "blind pigs" while up north. He admitted that cheerfully.

When asked if he thought that as the laws weren't enforced regarding the illegal sale of liquor, whether it wouldn't be better to have licenses. "Well, I'm out for abolishing the bar, but a great many people up north hold the opinion that licenses would be better."

"I think," he concluded, "that unless the Government makes some radical changes in the north that it will undoubtedly go against them."

NO REVIEW AT HALIFAX

Halifax, Aug. 5.—In the first program for the reception of H. R. H. the Duke of Connaught at Halifax, a grand review of the troops for the second day of the visit was included. This has now been abandoned because of the difficulty of getting men in the militia to leave their employment.

Instead of the review on the second day the available troops will line the streets between the dockyard and the city hall when the duke lands on the first day.

A Chicago Raffles.

Chicago, Aug. 5.—It is estimated that the stolen property found in the house of Jacob F. Guthrie, alleged social burglar and forger, now under arrest, is worth $300,000. He read the society column in the newspapers and when he noticed that some wealthy woman had left home for a few days he would break into the house and steal the most valuable articles he could find.

Has Emigration Scheme.

London, Aug. 5.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—Hon. Rupert Guinness, accompanied by his wife, Lady Gwendoline Innes Guinness, is on the Laurentic bound for Canada.

He proposes to remain in Canada for about two months and will consider plans for the development of his scheme for settling on the land young men trained at his farm, where Canadian farming methods are employed.

Walter Long, accompanied by Lady Doreem Long, Sir J. Armstrong and Major Morrison Bell, leave Thursday next on the Adriatic.

WILL REDUCE BILL OF EXPENSES

British M.P.'s May be Forbidden to Give to Charities.

London, Aug. 5.—A bill has been introduced in the House of Commons to prevent the indirect influencing of Parliamentary constituencies by candidates and members of Parliament by means of subscriptions to certain religious, charitable, public or semi-public institutions or enterprises. The bill would include all such payments in the candidates' election expenses, a return of which he has to make under the present law.

Payment of subscriptions to clubs or societies of which the candidate is a bona fide member would be excepted, provided they did not exceed $250 a year, while contributions to any fund or organization which is exclusively political are also expressly omitted from the scope of the measure.

The law against corrupt practices at elections in the British Isles is already very strict, and any expenditure beyond that specially permitted by law invalidates an election. There is a feeling, however, particularly among the candidates themselves, that the cost of securing election and holding a seat is excessive, and it is with a view of cutting this down that the present measure has been proposed.

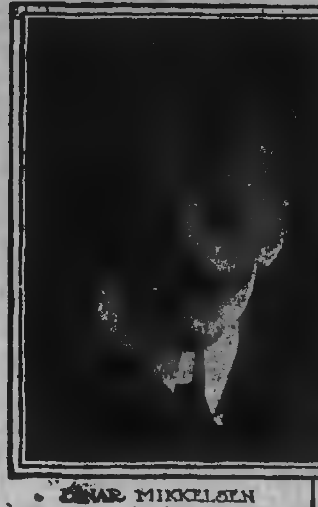
ARRESTED FIVE ENGLISHMEN

Berlin, Aug. 5.—The Lokal Anzeiger publishes a Kiel despatch saying that five Englishmen have been arrested at Eckernforde, in Schleswig-Holstein, on the charge of espionage. They appeared off the coast in a yacht, and two of them went ashore. It is alleged that they were making photographs when they were arrested. The police confiscated plates which they found on the yacht, and which when developed proved to be pictures of every harbor and bay of the Holstein coast.

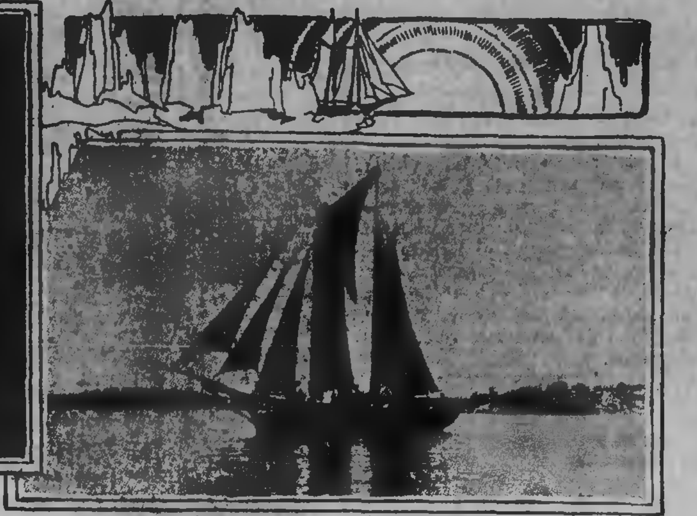
Noted Oddfellow Dead.

St. Thomas, Aug. 5.—James B. Squance, carriage-maker, and one of the most prominent Oddfellows in Canada, was so seriously burned by fire in his carriage works at five o'clock on Saturday afternoon that he died in the hospital six hours later.

MIKKELSEN'S GREENLAND TRIP IS REPORTED TO BE A SUCCESS



EJNAR MIKKELSEN



THE DUCHESS OF BEDFORD

Copenhagen is rejoiced at the news that Captain Ejnar Mikkelsen, a Danish Arctic explorer, who started in the summer of 1910 to cross Greenland, has arrived at Aalesund with Sversen, an engineer.

NEW YORK POLICE TRAILING GAMSTERS IN THE CATSKILLS

Bloody Fight is Expected When the Officers Close With the Gunmen—Commissioner Waldo Says Courts Support the Gamblers.

New York, Aug. 5.—Police Commissioner Rhinelander Waldo last night gave out his first formal statement relative to the Rosenthal case. The commissioner recommended an impartial and thorough investigation of the charges made relative to the alleged connection between the police and the gamblers. At the same time, he aimed a blow straight from the shoulder at the judiciary, declaring that gambling can exist only because the gamblers can obtain what amounts to protection from the courts, and asserting that gamblers do much of the corrupt election work of the political parties, who place the judiciary on the bench.

While the issuance of the statement was the most important development yesterday, it was reported at police headquarters that detectives were close upon the trail of "Lefty" Louis and "Gib the Blood" Horowitz, the two remaining gangmen sought by the police in connection with the murder. Inspector Hughes spent his third day in personal charge of a force of detectives near Tannersville in the Catskills.

It is now known positively that "Gib the Blood, "Lefty" Louis and "Whitey" Lewis were in Tannersville last week. Lewis left the others to go to Fleshmans, where he was captured. Horowitz and "Lefty" Louis, however, are believed to have remained in Tannersville.

Both "Lefty" and "Gib the Blood" are known as desperate men, reputed to be dead shots. They are believed to be armed. A hard fight is looked for by the police when the detectives finally attempt to place their hands upon the alleged murderers. Meanwhile private detectives and police officers are scouring Boston and the vicinity on the strength of the report that both men were recently seen in that city.

District Attorney Whitman, who has been spending the week-end at Manchester, Vt., will return to this city to-day and resume his work on the case. Lieut. Charles Becker, deposed head of the "Strong Arm Squad," was yesterday preparing himself in his cell in the Tombs for the ordeal today, when he will be arraigned in the Court of Sessions to plead to the indictment charging murder. Neither he nor the other eight prisoners held made any statements yesterday.

Commissioner Waldo declared in his statement last night that at no time in its history has the police department been so well prepared to stand an investigation as at present.

"The best interests of the public and of the police department itself demand that a thorough and impartial investigation be made without delay, in order that the guilty, if any, be brought to justice, and that the confidence of the people be restored in the police. My only desire is that every allegation which has been made shall be thoroughly investigated and that everyone who is guilty of any wrongdoing shall be dismissed from the police department, to the members of which they have brought disgrace, and that they may be sent to prison as a warning to other miscreants.

LUMBER JACK AT OLD TRICKS

Arthur Jarry Blossoms Out in Buffalo.

Toronto, Aug. 5.—Arthur Jarry, who came down from the north last November with a story that he had just sold a half million dollar mine, and would have plenty of money in a few days, and then proceeded to invest in a motor car, expensive jewelry, extravagant apparel, and also took to himself a wife, is now in trouble in Buffalo.

A week ago he blew into the Bison City, made arrangements to buy a house on a fine street, the same day meeting a comely young lady whom he married three days later, even as here, only not quite so speedily. He then started in to furnish the house and also to buy whatever any one would sell him. The police, acting for suspicious merchants, cut short his elaborate transactions, which for furniture alone ran over $2,000. His young bride is prostrated.

His Toronto millionaire antics secured him a five months' sentence, although they were not the charge. He was sent down for stealing an overcoat from his Toronto mother-in-law, with whom he and his wife lived.

Early Selkirk Settler Dead.

Selkirk, Man., Aug. 5.—By the death of Wm. Cumberland in the Selkirk Hospital on Saturday, the town loses one of its oldest settlers. He came from Toronto in 1891 and was at one time recognized as one of the wealthiest business men of that city, where, in partnership with his brother, he was engaged in the shipping industry. His first heavy financial loss was sustained in 1885, when his shipping equipment of barges and steam tugs were sunk in the big storm of that year.

He was born in Brockville, Ont., July 12, 1833.

Burrell Meets Demands.

Ottawa, Aug. 5.—Acting on the suggestion of the Ottawa cheese board and other organisations and individuals interested in the cheese trade, Hon. Martin Burrell, Minister of Agriculture, has enlarged the scope of the commission recently appointed to enquire into allegations of defects in the system of weighing cheese in Montreal. The question of payment will be included also.

LORD STRATHCONA.
Canada's grand old man, who will celebrate his ninety-second birthday to-morrow in London.

Bishop Appointed.

Halifax, Aug. 5.—Rev. James D. Morrison, D.D., of Vernon River, P.E.I., vicar-general and administrator of the diocese of Charlottetown, has been appointed Bishop of Antigonish, in succession to Bishop Cameron, who died about two years ago. He was educated in Charlottetown and at the College of the Propaganda in Rome, where he received the degree of doctor of divinity and doctor of philosophy, and twenty years ago was ordained to the priesthood. Then he became rector of St. Dunstan's College, Charlottetown, and afterwards rector of St. Dunstan's Cathedral, the erection of which, at a cost of about $250,000, was his great work, and which was entrusted to him by Bishop McDonald. Then he was transferred to Vernon River, where he became parish priest.

For several years he has been administrator of the diocese of Charlottetown, the health of Bishop McDonald making this necessary.

WEDDING IN HIGH SOCIETY

Marquis of Anglesey Married to Lady Majorie Manners.

London, Aug. 5.—Society and the world of art and letters were well represented at the wedding Saturday of the Marquis of Anglesey and Lady Marjorie Manners, eldest daughter of the Duke of Rutland. The marriage took place at St. Peter's in Eaton square. The guests included Prince Arthur of Connaught, the Crown Prince of Servia, Prince Christopher of Sweden, the German ambassador, Baron Marschall Von Bieberstein, the Duchess of Marlboro, and William Phillips, and Edward William P. Cresson of the American Embassy.

The church was decoratd with pink and red rambler roses, orange blossoms and bay trees. The Archbishop of Canterbury performed the ceremony. The bridal dress expressed the originality for which Lady Marjorie had been long distinguished. The long train of gold and white brocade, fringed with heavy gold bullion, was brought over the shoulders like a cloak. The bride carried a prayer book instead of a bouquet.

Lady Diana Manners, sister of the bride, was the only bridesmaid, but the bridal party was followed by five boys and ten girls attired in costumes representing a period of years ago.

THE INSPECTOR EXCEEDED POWERS

Brockville, Aug. 5.—An interesting fight is being waged by the lawyers appearing for the three Chinamen who were arrested in a skiff opposite Ogdensburg, and are being held by the authorities of that city. It is claimed the Chinks had no intention of entering the United States, and that the immigration inspector exceeded his powers when he went out in a boat after them and took them ashore. The contention of the Government is that they had actually entered the country in contravention of the immigration laws and should be deported. One Celestial hailed from Prescott and the other two from Montreal.

Early Harvesting in Manitoba.

Portage, Man., Aug. 5.—J. J. Beattie of this city will commence harvesting wheat on Monday at his Ingleside farm, south of the river. This date is exceptionally early, being fully a fortnight in advance of the usual time.

The growth around Portage has been exceptionally forward this season, particularly south of the river, where the wheat is coming in some days earlier than on the north side. With continued fine weather, wheat-cutting will be general on the Portage plains about the 12th of this month, with most of the barley cut by that date.

Nearly Killed Chum.

Kingston, Aug. 5.—The old story of not knowing the rifle was loaded was responsible for what might have proven a fatal accident. Harold Baker, a lad living at Napanee, was brought to the General Hospital yesterday afternoon suffering from a bullet wound in his side. He was with a chum, George Degroff, in a rowboat when the accident happened.

Degroff picked up the rifle believing that it was not loaded and in fun pointed it at Barker and let it go off, exclaiming, "Now I will have a shot at you." Barker fell over and his companion is broken-hearted over the sad affair.

OLYMPIC GAMES CAUSE TROUBLE

London, Aug. 5.—The discussion on England's position with respect to the Olympic games is made a feature of the Sunday papers. E. C. Lehman, a noted oarsman and former member of the House of Commons, in an interview, said that it was impossible for England to continue to be represented at the games which were not conducive to true sport, but tended to international friction.

He deprecated the idea of copying American methods; specialization would mean making sport of a profession. He preferred the English ideal—games as a relaxation.

ROOSEVELT LAYS DOWN LAW TO HIS PARTY FOLLOWERS

They Must Let Him Have His Own Way or he Will Jump the New Progressive Party Just as He Left the Republicans—Will Rule or Ruin.

Albany, N.Y., Aug. 5.—The national Progressive party must accept Co. Roosevelt's political doctrines if he is to be its standard-bearer. He said last night on his way to Chicago that he would insist upon making his confession of faith to the delegates before the committee which is to draft the platform makes its final report, and that he would not accept the nomination on a platform which did not meet with his approval.

Col. Roosevelt's speech was originally scheduled for Monday night. It was suggested to him that the time of its delivery be postponed, and he sent word to his managers that he would not consent to a delay until after the draft of the platform had been presented to the convention. Advanced copies of the speech reached the leaders of the new party several days ago. The colonel said nothing, however, to indicate that the suggestion for a delay in the delivery of the speech was due to the impressions of those who had read it.

Col. Roosevelt contends that it was upon a question of principle that he left the Republican party, and now that he has done so he cannot make a compromise of principle in accepting the leadership of the new movement.

His declaration of political faith, he says, is one which will be termed either socialism or anarchy, and probably both, but represents his convictions.

He goes to Chicago to make these views known, and to receive the Presidential nomination only if they are accepted in their substantial provisions to the new party.

Col. Roosevelt left Oyster Bay early in the afternoon by autimobile for New York, where at four o'clock he took a train which is due in Chicago this morning. He was accompanied only by Mrs. Roosevelt and his secretary.

Negroes Barred.

Chicago, Aug. 4.—A troublous world confronted the new-born Progressive party Saturday night at the end of its first day of political responsibility. After an almost continuous session that lasted from noon yesterday until nearly midnight, the provisional national committee of the new party adjourned weary and worn until nine o'clock this morning. In the long session the committee had heard arguments on three contests for seats in the convention and had decided one. In that one twelve negroes, contesting the seats of twelve white delegates from Alabama, were ruled out.

A bitter dispute over the negro and white delegates in the state of Florida was the cause of the late adjournment, after an animated argument that several times forced the committee to turn out the contestants and the newspapermen and go into executive sessions that were fraught with wordy battles. Throughout the day the committee several times barred the doors and went into star chamber session, while a few dejected negro contestants and weary newspapermen waited in the hotel corridor outside of the committee room.

ENGINEER KILLED IN COLLISION

Fatal Accident Yesterday on the C.P.R. Near Tweed.

Smith's Falls, Ont., Aug. 5.—Engineer Joseph Muldoon was almost instantly killed, Fireman T. Keller had his leg broken and Train Desptcher W. J. McCutcheon sustained serious injuries in a rear-end collision on the Canadian Pacific Railway Montreal-Toronto line at Tweed early yesterday.

Muldoon and Keller were on the engine of an eastbound freight which ran into another freight standing on the main line at Tweed. McCutcheon had just left his work at Havelock and boarded the standing train. Twelve cars were demolished, and the engine of the eastbound freight badly smashed. Engineer Muldoon is from Smith's Falls and Fireman Keller from Havelock.

An investigation is being held into the cause of the wreck.

ARCHBISHOP BRUCHESI.

He is mixed up in a dispute with a dispute with a section of his clergy over The location of Monnoir College and the matter will be carried to Rome.

NINE BOY SCOUTS WERE DROWNED

London, Aug. 5.—Nine Boy Scouts were drowned yesterday by the capsizing of a cutter off Sheppey Island. A large party of Boy Scouts were proceeding at the time to their summer camp on the island.

Four young men of the mission camp at Saltdean, near Brighton, were drowned yesterday while bathing. Several other bank holiday fatalities are reported.

Two Chinamen Missing.

Kingston, Aug. 5.—Local Chinamen are worried over the non-appearance of two Chinamen who were coming here from Vancouver. Their baggage arrived two days ago, but the Chinamen cannot be located. Likely they have been taken to some other place by mistake.

LOST AND NAKED IN SUDBURY WOODS

Gruesome Find Made by a C.P. R. Sectionman.

Sudbruy, Aug. 5.—A gruesome find was made by Wm. Robbiard, a C.P.R. sectionman of Romford Junction who had occasion to go into the bush Saturday afternoon. He found a starved half-naked man raving and frothing at the mouth. Robbiard carried him a mile to Romford Junction and brought him to St. Joseph's Hospital here the same evening, where he died about two hours afterwards.

The only information elicited from him was that his name was John Gleason and that he had been lost in the bush for two weeks. Except for a transfer employment slip identification is impossible. This slip may be traced back and identification made complete.

Railways Are Spending.

Grand Forks, B.C., Aug. 5.—Railway development is now being undertaken in this vicinity involving a total expenditure of $180,000.

TELEGRAPHIC PARAGRAPHS

The Massachusetts Institute of Technology in Boston will be the first educational institution in America to teach aeronautics.

An aeroplane with pilot and two passengers crossed the English channel from Duai yesterday in a storm and landed in Kent.

Magistrate Blake of Galt sentenced William Smith to 10 months in the Central Prison for criminal negligence of his wife and child.

An Australian aviator, Charles Lindsay Campbell, was killed Saturday when his aeroplane collapsed at Ryfleet, Surrey, England.

It is said that the Pope will receive a legacy of a million marks ($238,000) from the estate of the late Cardinal Anthony Hubert Fischer of Cologne.

The arrival of the steamship Savoie in New York yesterday was the first appearance of a mail steamer of the French line in six weeks. Strikes caused the break.

John Carroll, an attendant with Haag's Circus, who had his arm badly mangled last Monday by a lioness, died Saturday in the Moncton, N.B., Hospital from blood poisoning.

Corpl. G. Mortimer of Quebec, who made a world's record at Bisley, arrived on Saturday evening on the Corsican, and was greeted by his friends, who heartily congratulated him.

The founder of the Christian Society Church in Toronto and one of the very few personal students of the late Mrs. Eddy, Mrs. Isabella M. Stewart of Toronto, died on Saturday in Boston, Mass.

Five persons narrowly escaped death at Elkhart, Ind., Saturday when a bull, maddened by the sight of a big red automobile, charged the car overturning it into a ditch at the roadside.

As an object lesson in roadmaking the Provincial Government is having a mile of road built at Wolfe Island, near Kingston. This is being carried out as a result of the agitation of Anthony Rankin, M.P.P.

Representative Mondell of Wyoming introduced a bill in the U. S. Congress to appropriate $200,000 for the extermination of timber wolves, coyotes, mountain lions and other wild creatures that kill off sheep.

SUFFERED FROM VIOLENT CATHARTICS

The Warning of Mr. Geo. C. Fox Is One That Should Be Heeded by All.

Few men on the road are better known than genial George Fox, whose friends throughout the West are legion. In the following letter he expresses gratitude for special services rendered by Dr. Hamilton's Pills. He goes on to say: "Until I used Dr. Hamilton's Pills and experienced their wonderful mildness and curative power, I estimated the value of every pill by its activity. Talking about this to a well-known physician I met on the train the other day, he explained there are different kinds of drugs that act upon the bowels, the most active being known as drastic. Except in extreme cases where the life of the patient depends upon speedy evacuation of the bowels, pills should never be drastic. Purgatives cause catarrh of the bowels and inflammation; their dose must be increased, causing even more harm. With such a clear explanation I could see why Dr. Hamilton's Pills are curative and not irritating; why they are mild, yet most searching.

"From my experience I recommend everyone that takes pills to give up the old-fashioned harsh, purging pill, and, instead, to use Dr. Hamilton's. They cure headache, biliousness, constipation, and stomach, and keep the system in perfect condition."

THE MODERN MINISTER

The modern minister is not above unbending his professional dignity at times and standing on the same plane as the people, the shaping of whose moral and religious life is his chief care. He no longer considers it a surrender of the dignity of his high calling or an indication of a lack of zeal in the cause if he takes a vacation for a few weeks every summer and so gathers a store of new physical and mental vigor for the prosecution of his chosen labor. On week days he is given to laying aside the professional garb which distinguishes him from his fellows and appearing in the fashionable attire of the layman. He is wont to greet the members of his flock in a spirit of good fellowship. He takes an interest in the public question of the day and in public life can talk politics with the best of them or discuss with equal intelligence the social problems of the hour. He can go fishing, indeed he may even ride a bicycle or drive a high stepping horse without any loss of prestige or any lowering of his professional dignity. At the close of his Sunday services he generally stations himself at the exit of the church and gives friendly greeting to the members of his flock as they separate for their several homes.

It was not always thus. We can all remember the time when the minister, somber as to attire, terrible in his dignity and frosty in his attitude toward humanity at all times stood in a high pulpit and from that lofty pinnacle of power talked too often over the heads of his congregation who held him in awe as a superior order of being. Always he seemed to take it for granted that every man, woman and child before him was with the recklessness born of original sin, travelling along the broad road, at the end whereof was spiritual death. He never ended a discourse without threatening his hearers with the terrors of everlasting torture unless their sinful habits were corrected. Gloom pervaded the sacred edifice of the day not so long ago departed, and as the depressed congregation walked sadly and solemnly out of the church without so much as raising their eyes to each other, the minister from his lofty perch watched them as if with their last human hope and interest they were on their way to the cemetery for the last sleep into which the mortal sink.

In private life he abated none of his chilling dignity. At all times he was the professionally garbed shepherd, on the look out for moral mavericks. Children as well as adults of uneasy conscience fled from the dread presence when they saw him approach. Like J. M. Barrie's Little Minister, he invariably carried a staff, a recognized ensigna of office, with which he was accustomed to threaten the erring and to correct the morally weak. The pastor of a certain denomination was given to catechising his people in and out of season, and woe to the unfortunate who stumbled in his answer to that most difficult of all the questions in the book, "What is effectual calling? To dress in the garb of an ordinary mortal would be little less serious as an indication of clerical deflection as would have been a public renunciation of the doctrines of election. The spectacle of a clergyman on a wheel would have been followed by a meeting of his elders and a vacancy in the pulpit.

The result of all these changes has been no lessening of the influence of the pastor over his people or of the respect of the latter for their spiritual preceptor. Minister and laymen have been drawn closer together instead of falling apart. The power of the church either within the limits of its own peculiar sphere or as an influence in shaping the affairs of the nation is greater to-day than it has ever been in history. The statute books of Canada are filled with laws in the interests of social and moral reforms, the enactment of which has been secured by the united demands of the evangelical institutions of religion.

THE TRIP A FAILURE

Mr. Rowell's most ardent supporters must be forced to the unpalatable conclusion that his new Ontario trip has been to a large extent a failure, and that he returns home shorn of any prestige which he may have possessed before he started for the north. The extravagant claims of the Liberal press, led on by Mr. Rowell's personal organ, that he was blazing the trail through the wilderness so that Sir James Whitney might follow his lead, only served to set the leader of the opposition in a ridiculous light before the public, as did the equally wild statements to the effect that Mr. Rowell was to return to Toronto with the hearts and votes of the northern settlers dangling at his belt.

These settlers, who were to be won over so easily by plausible speeches regard the T. & N.O. Railroad as the very spine of their country's existence, and they could not be expected to forget that it was the Liberal majority of the Senate that deprived that road of a $2,000,000 subsidy from the Dominion Government and that Mr. Rowell, with all his high flown professions of friendship to the new land, never so much as offered one word of protest. His trip has afforded him an opportunity to read at first hand the sentiment of the people of New Ontario on this matter, and he returns to his home realizing, no doubt, that after all there is something higher and better than mere partisan devotion, even if the object of that devotion is the Senate holding for a time in its hand the whip of the majority.

That Mr. Rowell does not have the courage of his much professed convictions has also been made manifest, seeing that on his trip he was all but silent on his pet subject of the abolishing of the bar. At the Porcupine meeting his political friends who addressed the gathering, essayed to discuss the matter, concluding, no doubt, that it was a safe topic in a region where the mining law shuts off all liquor licenses, but the orators were unmercifully heckled and irreverently "guyed" by the audience. When it came Mr. Rowell's turn to speak, he preferred to remain silent on the temperance question rather than provoke his audience to further hostile criticism and pungent personal comment.

When the circus parade is a failure the subsequent tent performance is likely to fall flat.

NOTE AND COMMENT

Roosevelt's Bull Moose party is to be turned loose this week. We can all imagine what is likely to happen when such an animal is given the run of a china shop.

The Star says that there are thousands of people in Toronto living on 22 cents a day, thus putting forth a new claim that that city is the home of the most skilled financiers in the world.

A Canadian actress has bought a $500 coffin for her pet cat. While a feline may have nine lives, it is in this case fortunate for the owner that there cannot be more than one funeral.

An exchange asks the meaning of the term "bonehead." A good example of a member of that variety of humanity, is the fellow who, although he cannot swim persists in sitting upon the thwarts of a canoe.

"What does Henri Bourassa want?" asks La Patrie. Seeing that Mr. Bourassa to judge from his recent gymnastic performance, does not appear to know himself, who is to answer the question?

The Lindsay sleep walker who wanders around the streets of that town clad only in nocturnal garments probably has his rest disturbed by pondering on that sky-scraping tax rate.

The biggest story of a heavy agricultural yield, comes from Port Perry where a farmer announces that he has cut twelve tons of timothy hay from two and a half acres. Some one has been juggling the figures for the sun has never yet shone on a plot of ground so rich in production as this assertion would indicate. If the farmer will consent to cut the quantity of hay in two his story will be entitled to serious consideration.

Montreal Grain and Produce.

MONTREAL, Aug. 4.—The local grain markets were quiet on Saturday, owing to Liverpool being closed. Cable enquiries for wheat received were out of line to the extent of one cent a bushel and no business was reported. Oats were firm, but also affected as to business done over the cable by the closing of Liverpool market. The enquiries received were too low to suit sellers here. Butter and cheese continue firm. Receipts of butter for the week were 14,745 packages, a small decrease from the week before and the same week last year. From May 1 to date there is a decrease of 21,450 packages, as compared with receipts in the same period last year. Cheese shows a decrease of 35,071, as compared with receipts in the same period May 1 to date last year. The lighter supplies give the market a very firm tone. Eggs are steady at the advance of a few days ago. There is no change in the provisions market and the week end as usual was quiet.

No Attraction.

I know a little garden plot
Just down behind the hill,
Where any one who cares to work
May work and get his fill.
Oh, there are onions to be hoed
And lots of things to do—
Enough to keep a busy man
At work the summer through!

My wife is certain it would mean
A lot of health to me
As well as bringing down expense
[illegible]
[illegible]
At dawn and grab a spade
And work until the breakfast hour
As though it were my trade.

And I have neighbors who are wild
To get a patch of soil
On which to raise some corn and beans
And revel there in toil.
If they just had a chance like that
With work they would connect.
Just why they don't I do not know.
I'm sure I don't object.

It may be fun; I don't deny
That some may call it great
To go into the garden plot
And keep the pieplant straight.
Mine is a saner, milder taste
And always stands the test.
Let others juggle with the hoes
I'll exercise by rest.

Comforting.

"I feel like an accident."

"Don't worry over it."

"Worry? What do you mean?"

"I guess that you are merely a trifling incident."

Progression.

"How is Ann getting along?"

"Slowly."

"Progressing, I suppose?"

"Quite so. She is on her second alimony now."

Humor and Philosophy

PERT PARAGRAPHS.

NEVER neglect an opportunity to praise a baby. You can never tell who his grandmother may turn out to be.

The fellow who does, though he can't, may be considered the superior of the fellow who can.

A girl may not want to marry a man who looks like dad, but she certainly wants the man she marries to make good as dad did.

The handy man who works around the house and doesn't break more than four of the storm windows when he puts them away isn't considered by local dealers worth recommending.

Some women are a great deal more careful of their complexions than they are of their dogs or children.

The girl that has a nice crop of gingersnappy freckles when the flowers bloom in the spring can't see why poets should rave of the spring beauties.

As a general thing a man is willing to reconsider—if there are plenty of gentle persuaders beseeching him.

THE KAISER'S ENVOY

BARON MARSCHALL GOES ON DELICATE ERRAND.

The New German Ambassador to Great Britain Has Received the Highest Compliment That Can Be Paid to a Diplomat—The Present Situation Is Critical and Much Hangs on the Baron's Attitude.

It has taken a big man to have won from Europe the compliment that has been paid to Baron Marschall von Bieberstein. It has made his appointment to the German Embassy in London the sensation of a week. He goes there embodying the prize puzzle of European diplomacy. It is certain that he goes to England on no ordinary errand, and the eminence of the man and the lady-or-the-tiger nature of his mission make the sensation of his appointment.

Baron Marschall early surprised and alarmed the diplomatic corps at Constantinople by the freedom with which he took the press into his confidence on matters of state. It was his conception of how diplomatic affairs should be conducted — in the broad daylight. But one incidental effect of this—or was it deeply calculated?—has been to make him a thoroughly well known man.

The moment his transfer from the Porte to London was announced a hundred correspondents were ready to wire to their home papers a full description of the new man, his commanding height, his affable disposition, his ability as a musician, his skill as a grower of roses. But these interesting matters scarcely exhausted public curiosity, especially in England, about the diplomatic sensation of Europe.

The English are not to be outdone in punctilious observance of the properties of official procedure, and the British press at once gave him a welcome no less suave than hearty. Yet behind the suavity lurked a considerable anxiety as to what the Kaiser intended by playing his trump card at this moment in the relations of Germany and England. Does Baron Marschall come to frown or to smile, to heighten or to smooth the long-growing tension between the two peoples?

Sir Edward Grey's frustration of Germany's willingness to make war on France over the Morocco question last summer was bitterly resented by Germans of every degree. The national spirit was deeply offended by this high-handed interference. It seems clear now that Sir Edward took too seriously the German attitude, but the resentment was none the less bitter in Germany. Has Baron Marschall been placed where he can do the most good, face to face with Sir Edward, to see that German foreign policy is not again thwarted as it was?

Lord Haldane, British Minister of War, lately made a visit to Berlin, it was said at the invitation of the Kaiser, and admittedly to discuss means for putting Anglo-German relations on a better footing. He has since made another semi-official visit to the German capital, presumably to discuss means for reducing the bitter and costly race in armaments that is beginning to embarrass the two countries. Is Baron Marschall sent to lend his powerful abilities to the same cause? Or does he go as a superior analyst of British national feeling and policy, and to try his hand at checkmating it?

In the last ten years the London embassy has become the most important post in the German diplomatic service. Germany has been pursuing a policy of extra-European expansion. In this she has been brought into collision with England's own strongest interests, and the English, once having become conscious of the potential dangers in a great Germany, have had to take a hand in the European game and side with Germany's European opponents. The Kaiser on his own part has recognized that his people cannot realize their hopes of expansion without reckoning England above all the other Powers. What part is Baron Marschall to play in the big game?

The Times is sceptical as to his or any man's ability to alter the fundamental facts of the European situation. It has little hope in the efficacy of peace and disarmament missions. It extends the new ambassador a cordial greeting "without associating him with expectations that no ambassador can realize."

The London News prints a report from its Berlin correspondent to the effect that Baron Marschall is expressly appointed to take up the thread of the negotiations begun by Lord Haldane on his amiable visit to Berlin. The Paris Temps announces that on condition of undisputed possession of Zanzibar, Germany has agreed to withdraw her newest navy bill if England will agree to a similar reduction in armament. It further states that an actual Anglo-German entente was nearly reached last March, when for some reason negotiations were checked.

There is no doubt that, provided English interests suffered nothing in the process, Great Britain would cheerfully acquiesce in any attempt to improve the relations between herself and Germany. It is clear that for all the scepticism of the better informed British press, it entertains the hope that such is Baron Marschall's errand. If it is, even with English acquiescence, the magnitude of his task is freely acknowledged.

As The Saturday Review points out: "Baron Marschall has to show both peoples that an Anglo-German understanding is both desirable and possible. It is not our business to suggest to him the means of making this clear to Prussian conservatism. He knows his own countrymen, and may be trusted to handle them as well from London as he did from Constantinople. But what we may profitably say is that, as far as British opinion is concened, he has no substantial prejudice to overcome.

Corot's Pictures.

Corot's "Dance Beneath the Trees," purchased in 1874 for $700 and sold the other day for $92,000, showed an appreciation in value comparable with the extraordinary advance of other canvases of the artist. His "Lake Nemi," sold by the artist in 1867 for about $1,200, changed hands recently for $55,000, and his "La Femme a la Perle" rose from $800 to $30,000.

A Hermit for Five Years

WHAT would make the greatest impression on a man who had been shut away from human intercourse and denied the use of newspapers for five years—what would most forcibly attract his attention—on regaining the society of his fellowmen?

"Well," you say, "he is fairly certain to be interested in learning whether there's been a change of Government."

True, and probably he will show mild excitement if you can tell him there's been a big war in Europe. But it won't be until you get down to a recital of things that come closer to him, personally, that you'll bring him to his feet with eager questioning.

Tell him a mighty empire has fallen, and—so long as it isn't his empire—a drop curtain of highly embroidered indifference will mask his face.

But tell him the automobile has been so simplified that he can now buy one for the price of a horse and buggy, and he'll promptly bombard you with questions.

A revolution in China may be a world event, but it wouldn't mean as much to him as the perfecting of a shaving apparatus that would do away with the necessity of purchasing new blades or honing old ones.

If you had been a hermit for the past five years, the news of an earthquake in San Francisco wouldn't really mean so much to you as the information that you can now hear any famous opera singer in your own home at a cost of a few cents per hour.

Which is only another way of saying that the phonograph is of more personal interest than an earthquake.

You see how it is: Newspapers carry a "news of merchandise" that is just as interesting, just as vital, as the "news of events" which the editors gather for us.

And, since this "news of merchandise" finds its only expression in the form of Advertising, must we not admit that the Advertising columns are quite as worthy of our serious attention as the scariest "scare head" or the most ponderous editorial?

Shut your eyes to Advertising—and you shut out the news of commercial progress and development—the news of things that make life worth the living.

Advice regarding your advertising problems is available through any recognized Canadian advertising agency, or the Secretary of the Canadian Press Association, Room 503 Lumsden Bldg., Toronto. Enquiry involves no obligation on your part—so write if interested.

Prompt and business-like answers to those "help wanted" ads which look like "prospects" to you, will almost surely re-establish pay-day for you.

Wm. Spear, aged 19, an aviation pupil, fell 200 feet with his machine at Mineola, Long Island, but escaped with bruises.

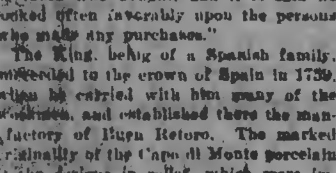
That man who does not read and answer and investigate want ads with considerable regularity is not quite in touch with the activities and opportunities of daily life in this city.

PORCELAIN ARISTOCRACY

Markings That Will Help You Detect the Gems of Your Cupboard

RANKING high in the porcelain aristocracy, is the Capo di Monte, or soft paste ware, first made at Naples in 1736. This ware has claim to royalty, indeed, direct patronage of King Charles IV., afterward Charles III. of Spain, whose penchant for this art often carried him to the very factory, where he would help mould the various beautiful ceramic forms. A letter written to Lord Chatham in 1760 tells of King Charles:—"He is particularly fond of the china manufacture at Capo di Monte. During an annual fair held in the square before his palace at Naples there is a shop devoted solely to the sale of a part of this china, and a note was daily brought to the King of what was sold, together with the names of those who bought, and it is said he looked often favorably upon the persons who made any purchases."

The King, being of a Spanish family, succeeded to the crown of Spain in 1759, when he carried with him many of the workmen, and established there the manufactory of Buen Retoro. The marked originality of the Capo di Monte porcelain is the designs in relief, which were impressed upon the plaques, and also upon tea cups, vases, &c. These were very delicately and carefully stippled in colors, and this distinguishes them from imitations and reproductions, which have been made in great numbers at Florence, and which are sold at very much smaller prices.



About 1760 Ferdinandus Rex 1780

Not only were these articles in relief and of great beauty made here, but also very excellent, creamy, soft porcelain, painted on the flat. These specimens have a character of their own. Work was continued with more or less success until 1821, when the moulds were sold to the Doccia manufactory at Florence. But after 1750, hard paste was made at this factory, under the patronage of King Ferdinand. The earliest mark used was a rudder form of fleur-de-lis. This fleur-de-lis mark was also used at Madrid, and as the work was almost identical, it is not easy to distinguish them. The marks on the hard porcelain were a crown, under which were sometimes the locked letters R. E. of F. K.

JAPANESE HOP VINES.

DEAR to the heart of the amateur gardener is the assurance that a vine is "of rapid growth—a strong annual, valuable for covering unsightly fences and other surfaces, and affording a pleasant shade when trained up the side of the porch." Yet a vine may be all these things, and possess other attractive qualities, and still be one to be selected with much caution. The much advertised Japanese hop vine, either the plain or variegated sort, is of a most insidious nature

As far north as Lake Erie, its tiny seeds take no harm from the bleak winters, and while your own initial sowing of them may have needed coaxing, the self-sown are all too vigorous. They come up in garden beds, paths, all through the grass, pushing out, and twisting around, with their wiry, prickly stems, delicate annuals and stout perennials alike. The more you pull up, the more seem to come up. The persistence of self-sown morning-glory seedlings is mere apathy beside the vigorous determination of these too "strong annuals" to enter in and possess your garden. The "blossom" of Japanese hops being so very small and inconspicuous—in no way resembling that of the perennial sort grown for commercial purposes in this country—one hardly realizes how abundantly the seeds are being produced until the following spring.

PRACTICAL TALKS BY THE APRIL GRANDMOTHER

ON OVERTIRING THE EYES.

"TIRED eyes," murmured the April Grandmother as she slowly paced the pavement of a fashionable thoroughfare in company with her eldest granddaughter, "Within the last half hour we've encountered a score or more of young girls whose eyes looked as if they had for ages been staring into space and expected to continue doing that until the end of time. The pathetic feature of this state of things is that two-thirds of these girl promenaders are less than twenty years of age, but, glanced at casually, appear to be approaching thirty, simply because they have ignorantly overwearied their eyes in ways that are almost innumerable. One of these ways is the habit of reading, writing or sewing while facing a strong light instead of seating themselves so that the glare will come from behind and fall directly upon the book, the table or the work. Moreover, the average youthful reader or writer or sewer gets so greatly interested in whatever she is doing that she continues it for too long a time at a stretch, and that, in addition to the harm worked by the strong light, is exceedingly hard on the eyes, which soon evidence their resentment by fading. And faded eyes invariably seem old and oddly out of place in a fresh complexioned, unlined face.

"This morning," continued the April Grandmother, "you came down stairs tardily and with the excuse that you had overslept, but it was easily seen that while your faculties had been asleep, your eyes had been keenly conscious that day had dawned brightly and warmly, and that for several hours its sun's rays had been beating directly upon your face. After extinguishing the light last night you drew up the blinds as well as the windows, and went to sleep in precisely the position where the rising sun's rays could work most mischief to your eyes. As a matter of fact, the morning sunlight should not be admitted at all to the sleeping room or the occupant of the chamber face its rays directly after awakening.

"Whichever windows are lowered from the top and raised from the bottom should be shielded above by a half drawn dark green blind and the remainder of the way by a tall, dull hued screen, neither of which should be disturbed until the room has been partially lightened by opening a door leading into a shadowy hall. The safest method is to cross a dim passageway into a bathroom where the light is only a few degrees stronger than in the chamber in which you have been sleeping, first, however, instructing some member of the household to raise the blinds in your room before you shall have returned to it. By the time that you are ready to dress the strong glare will not irritate eyes that have been gradually accustomed to it and previously freshened by a cold water douche.

"Excessive coffee drinking often produces tired looking eyes." The April Grandmother glanced swiftly at her companion, who flushed guiltily. "This morning at the breakfast table you thought that I was just a bit severe in my comments when you asked for a third cup of that stimulant, which, taken in excess, undoubtedly does affect the nerves of the eyes as well as those belonging to the other organs of the body. Not only does the nerve wracked eye tire itself thoroughly, but its appearance is distressing to whoever looks into it. If it were not for the nerve wearied eyes, I firmly believe there would be more marriages nowadays," mused the April Grandmother, half aloud. "Tired looking soul windows mislead men into the belief that the young women whom they fancy they are learning to love are semi-invalids, and so they whisper firmly to Cupid:—'Get thee behind me, boy.' And alack and alas! the tired eyed damsel is merely bilious.

"My chief objection to tired eyes," concluded the April Grandmother, "is that they lend a young girl a rather dissipated air. Not that her appearance suggests that she looks upon the champagne when it bubbles, but that she is too fond of going about to allow herself sufficient time for thorough rest, and thus older people get an impression that she is hopelessly frivolous. She may easily correct that impression by temporarily wearing glasses while in the open, by giving up all so-called harmless stimulants and by substituting for them a nerve tonic. By adopting this course, her eyes will shortly look as if they belong to herself instead of to a mummy.

Managing Without a Closet.

TO get along comfortably without a closet in which to keep your clothes is a problem which can only be solved by resorting to the rack scheme. Have racks consisting of two rows of hook-fitted bars at the inner side of each door on which to hang your frocks and coats, these, of course, to be protected by a curtain of printed cretonne swinging from a rod projecting six inches or more from the top of the door.

For your party gowns have made of enamelled wood a rack of the same surface measurements as a forty inch steamer trunk and about five feet high. This rack, fitted with five shelves, will hold a number of costumes, as in some of the cretonne covered boxes several garments may be hidden, and, because of their extreme length, the skirts of the gowns need not be folded over. They will keep in better condition than if hung up.

The better to accommodate your hats get rid of your present chiffonier and replace it with a rack which will accommodate two large sized hat boxes of the square shape, and above these three smaller boxes, one long and narrow for blouses and two of half the shirt waist case size for veils and gloves. Or you may have a chiffonier rack accommodating six shirt waist boxes, which may be used in part for lingerie, and then get a dressing table rack holding two boxes of dress dimensions, above these a square hat box and beside that twin receptacles for veils and gloves.

If, however, you prefer to have all of the rack space for large sized boxes the veils, gloves and handkerchiefs may be kept in a set of oblong and square boxes covered to match the hangings of the bedchamber. If you do not care to incur the expense of having these racks fitted with specially covered boxes considerable money can be saved by buying cardboard receptacles of the desired sizes and then covering them at your leisure.

The Stars and Their Influence

FOLLOWING are the delineations, according to planetary law, of persons born during the present week. Up to noon of May 21 the sign Taurus still rules; after that Gemini is dominant:—

May 19—Persons born this day have the sun posited in the 28th degree of Taurus, and they will be careful, economical and conservative in their views. They will carefully weigh both sides of a question before making a decision; will be slow to anger and quick to forgive. They will not make friends easily because of a natural timidity and coyness, but when once a friend they can always be trusted to keep that friendship sacred. They will accumulate money, though they will experience some hardships before they gain independence.

May 20—Excellent physical conditions and plenty of vital reserve, so that any weakness or illness can be easily fought and conquered. Taciturn, diplomatic and no desire to enter into any disputes or arguments, though capable of worsting an adversary. Good commercial ability and keen observer and reader of human nature. Able to pick out the right man for the right place and will always win respect for their fairness and consideration of the rights of others. A deeply religious nature, but not given to any display of it or ostentation of any kind. Charitable and generous.

May 21—Nervous, sensitive and fidgety; a tendency to worry over unnecessary matters; extremely uncomfortable unless everything about the house or in business is in the right place. Will often overwork themselves unnecessarily and likely to bring on a nervous breakdown. Should study conservation of their energies in order not to waste their strength. Will go out of their way to help others and are ever ready with their sympathy. Are refined and spiritual and ever striving to attain their ideal. Given to fits of depression, and will find outdoor life the best.

May 22—Critical and fault finding, and as a result will unwittingly bring dislike. Like to pry into things and to study out unique problems. Make good mathematicians and accountants, but should get over the idea that nobody else can do things as well as they do. Slow and deliberate, and not given to any haste. Weigh carefully everything they do and, therefore, rarely make a mistake. Seek admiration and become angered when they feel that their efforts or their knowledge are not appreciated by others. Will do better in the employ of others than in their own business.

May 23—Those born this day come this year in the range of the beneficial rays of Uranus. This will continue for some time and bring new and powerful friendships, promotions and changes of great benefit. The health, too, will be good and the vitality strengthened. It also brings an awakening of the consciousness to higher things and a broadening of the horizon. At this time opportunity, long awaited, will come, so that the foundation of future prosperity and independence will be laid. Those who were born with this aspect of Uranus and the sun at birth rise to high positions and are men and women of consequence.

May 24—Analytical, discriminative and keen. Excellent administrative ability, though lacking executive capacity. Can be depended upon to do thoroughly whatever they undertake. Are excellent in positions of trust, very conscientious and careful of the welfare of others. Have artistic ability, but will not have the opportunity of developing it because of hardships and inharmonious conditions in early life. However, much of these will be overcome by strength of will, and middle age will bring more harmonious conditions.

May 25—A good birthday generally. Lover of the beautiful and aesthetic, a fine, evenly balanced disposition, seldom given to anger, and then only when greatly provoked. Optimistic and always hopeful of the best, believing in the divine good in human nature. Neat and orderly, excellent taste in clothes without ostentatious display. Careful of the health and given to temperate habits. Will succeed best along artistic lines of endeavor and creative work. Have great respect for their elders and are always considerate of others, thereby making many friends. Unselfish is their keynote and optimism their philosophy.

WENT-UP IN THE AIR ALMOST AT ONCE

William B. Hemstrought, a young man, 23 years old, and a resident of Binghampton, N.Y., is the newest accession to the ranks of the birdmen. Hemstrought learned to fly both the aeroplane and the hydro-aeroplane at Hammondsport, N.Y., under the tutelage of Glenn H. Curtiss. He became proficient within a short time, and made such a splendid showing in his flights at that place that he was engaged by the Curtiss Company, as one of their exhibition fliers. His first dates were at Lima, Ohio, on June 6th, 7th and 8th, where he flew, not only with success but with remarkable distinction

On the first day there was a wind of 35 miles an hour, but in spite of this Hemstrought made three flights doing everything that was done by Charles F. Walsh, the veteran exhibition flier appearing at the same time.

On the second and third days, Hemstrought did even better than on the first, making every flight on scheduled time, an ascending to a height of 4000 feet on each day, and then volplaning back to the starting place. His landings were exceptionally clever, and all those who saw him fly predict that he will make one of the best aviators in the world.

LOCAL PASSENGERS HELD UP BY FOG WHERE TITANIC SANK

Mr. and Mrs J. J. Turner, Sr. Are Back From Two Months Travel Abroad—Met Many Distinguished People.

Feeling to a large degree the beneficial effects of ocean travel Mr. J. J. Turner Sr., and Mrs. Turner returned home early Sunday morning after an absence of two months. Mr. and Mrs. Turner and are enthusiastic over the enjoyable and profitable results of their trip.

They made the return voyage on the comfortable White Star liner Teutonic. The vessel carried a heavy passenger list of about fourteen hundred. The trip occupied a period of about one week. A rather peculiar thing connected with their visit was that Mr. and Mrs. Turner left Peterborough on a Sunday morning and returned on a Sunday.

The Teutonic passed over the locality where the Titanic foundered. A thick, impenetrable fog delayed the ship for twelve hours at the spot, during which period, Mr. Turner said, the vessel rested motionless until the mist lifted. The passengers also noticed a huge, towering iceberg, about twenty miles off, and which appeared to be fully a mile in length.

On the return voyage Mr. Turner again had the honor of being Chairman of a committee of arrangements for a popular concert that was given on board. He also rendered a vocal number during the programme. The printed programme was very attractively designed, the concert being given by the kind permission of Commander R. W. James, on Thursday August 1st. The handsome sum of £4 7s was realized the proceeds going toward the Seamen's Fund. The sum of £15, 7s was gathered from the results of the concert on the outgoing trip.

Mrs. Turner herself collected the sum of £6, 10s in aid of prizes for the winners in the sporting events. Incidentally the trip was the third which Mrs. Turner has taken across the Atlantic.

Five weeks of their period abroad was spent in London, Eng. Here both Mr. and Mrs. Turner had the honor of personally meeting Hon. and Mrs. R. L. Borden, Prime Minister of Canada. and the Ministers and their wives who are with him in England. They also were greeted by Lord Strathcona, and the Manager of the Bank of Montreal in London, who used to reside in Peterborough. They also met the Governor of the Bank of England, which is considered a very high honor amongst Londoners. They found them all to be most courteous and friendly.

Mr. Cole, the Governor of the Bank, married a daughter of Col. Williams, who led the troops in the North West rebellion in Canada.

Mr. and Mrs. Turner were extended an invitation to the National Club Banquet, but were unable to attend.

Mr. Turner secured an expert sailmaker at Ramsgate in Kent, named Herbert Hopley, who will commence work at the factory to-morrow.

This makes the forty-seventh time that Mr. Turner has crossed the Atlantic.

FORMER REVIEW EMPLOYES IN CITY

The Toronto Civic Holiday, Aug. 5, let loose out of the city some thousands of people, glad to get a breath of fairly pure air and a quaff of decently safe water. DAMAGE BY LIGHTNING

Massive Poplar Struck and Split by Bolt Other Freaks of the Fluid.

The bolt of lightning that came with a ripping clap of thunder, on Sunday afternoon, gave Mr. Matt Young a surprise. He was sitting on a camp bed, with a wire mattress, at the river drivers camp, on the high bank of the river below the Hydraulic Company's dam, Mr. Young was consuming a dish of pork and beans with an early August appetite. He avers he was struck in or on one leg but scrambled out of the camp, retaining with presence of mind, the provender. The ground shook and trembled

A big silver poplar tree, standing at the gate of Mr. L. Dobbin, received the attentions of the bolt and was split from top to bottom, a large piece being torn off, and hurled some distance, smashing eight or ten feet of perfectly good fence. The fragments flew all about. Inside the home the dishes in the pantry rattled and things shook generally. A phone or light wire passing through the tree may have attracted the current, but the tree received the shock.

WEDDING BELLS

MANNING—HARE.

A pretty wedding was solemnized in St. Paul's Methodist Church, Brampton, when Miss Kate Elvina Manning, youngest daughter of Rev. H. M. Manning, of Oshawa was married to Mr. James H. Hare of Whitby. After giving his daughter away, the bride's father conducted the ceremony, assisted by Rev. W. N. Chantler, pastor of St. Paul's church. The bride was assisted by Miss Margaret Smellie, and Miss Katie Scott. Miss Doris Miller, niece of the bride, acted as flower girl. The groom was assisted by his brother, Mr Clarke Hare, of Cobourg. Miss Jennie Milner of Brampton, played the wedding march in her usual impressive style. During the signing of the register, Mrs. J. E. Middleton, of Peterborough, sister of the bride, sang "Beloved, it is Morn." H. G. Manning, B. A., of Lindsay, and Dr. H. K. Manning, of Toronto, brothers of the bride, acted as ushers. Mr. and Mrs. Hare will reside in Whitby.

FAINT—McILMOYLE.

A pretty wedding was solemnized in George street Methodist church Saturday afternoon, when Miss Lottie McIlmoyle, daughter of Mr. W. A. McIlmoyle, of Peterborough, became the bride of Mr. W. Herbert Faint, son of Mr. Wm. Faint, of Winnipeg. The Rev. Isaac Couch performed the ceremony. The bride was charmingly attired in ivory Liberty satin with baby Irish lace and pearls, and carried a bouquet of cream roses, while the bridesmaid, Miss Ethel McIlmoyle, wore a dress of pink charmeuse trimmed with pearls and carried a bouquet of pink roses. The bride's mother wore a dress of black Duchess mousseline.

The best man was Mr. B. C. Throop, and the ushers were Messrs. Holly McIlmoyle and Alvin T. Morrow. During the signing of the register, Miss Ella Sanderson sang, "O Fair, O Sweet, O Holy." Mr. J. H. Renwick played the bridal chorus from Lohengrin and Mendelssohn's wedding march.

LANDED 19 POUND "LUNGE"

While fishing down the river on Saturday afternoon, a lunge weighing 19 lbs measuring 44" long x 15," was caught by Spencer Bugg and Arthur Theobald, after an exciting struggle in the water, it was eventually landed in the boat. This was the first time either of them had been fishing this year.

SALVATION ARMY HAS FEATURE SELECTION

Will Render Anthems of "All Nations" at Tuesday Evening Band Concert.

The program that was given by the Salvation Army band in the park last week drew a large and appreciative audience. This week another splendid program has been supplied, which should bring out another good crowd. One special feature of the program is a selection known in Army circles as "All Nations." It is composed of the anthems of twelve countries. The local band has made a special feature of this, and during the selection, as each country's national anthem is played, the flag of the country is displayed, from a special stand designed for the purpose.

Next week's program will be as follows:

March, "The Leeds"—Band.

Selection, "Harvest Strains"—Band.

Selection, "The Love of God"—Band.

March, "Victory,"—Band

Part Song, "The Soldier's Song"—Male Choir. (This is a new departure this year, being composed of 12 of the best singers of the band.)

Grand Selection, "All Nations"—Band. (As this selection is being played the national flag of each country will be placed on the stand behind the band in the following order:—America, Norway, India, Sweden, France, Germany, Japan, Denmark, Holland, Belgium, S.A., Canada and Great Britain.

Band Song, "Rule Jehovah."—Band

March, "Glorious Tidings"—Band.

This march arrived from England last week, and is therefore being played for the first time.

Selection, "Old Scotch Memories —Band.

God Save the King.

PRESENTATION TO MR. J. H. MOSS

Valued Member of St. James' Church Leaving the City.

Yesterday afternoon the members of the Young Men's Bible Class of St. James' church gave an address and presented a scarf pin to a valued member of the class, Mr. J. H. Moss, who is leaving the city and severing his connection with the membership. Mr. C. W. Barrett read the address, as secretary, and the presentation was made by Mr. Wm. McLaren. Mr. Moss has been the president of the class for some time, and his services and advice and counsel have materially helped to make the work bring very tangible results. While Mr. Moss leaves the city on Monday, his family will remain to follow further on when he is located.

BODY HAS NOT YET BEEN RECOVERED

Father Tells How His Brave Son Lost His Life

Mr. Ed. Clendennan has arrived at his home in Lindsay from Owen Sound, after spending all week in a futile search for the body of his son, Maxwell who was drowned in the bay off Owen Sound on Sunday last. Mr. Clendennan describes the affair in this way:

"In company with my son and several other men, which included the party we want for a sail in a good seaworthy vessel, large enough to hold two or three more persons. We glided around the bay for some time and were rounding an island, when the craft was suddenly struck by a squall, or violent wind, which lifted the boat as if it were a sheet of paper and tossed it several yards away. All on board were thrown here and there into the water, which was showing a choppy sea at the time."

Mr. Clendennan supposes he was struck by something when the boat went over, as he was stunned for a time, and floated around in the bay. His son Max, who was a good swimmer, shouted to the other boys that he would save his father, and swam towards him, keeping his head over the waves, which were now rolling high. Max, after receiving assistance from one of the party to save his father, said he would swim towards the boat and procure a rope. He got close to the boat and asked one of the men to throw it to him.

Mr. Clendennan was horrified on turning around to find that the brave young man had disappeared. The water at this point is about one hundred feet deep, and where the body went down it is about 250 yards from shore. Previously all bodies have been recovered and it is expected this one will rise in nine or ten days.

Harvest Excursion

Preparations are now being made by the Grand Trunk Railway to handle a large share of the expected harvest excursion traffic to the three prairie provinces. It is estimated that over 50,000 men will be required and in all six excursions will be run, the first, from the Maritime Provinces, leaving August 12th. The second will leave Montreal, August 16th and the remaining four from Toronto, August 20th, 23rd, 28th, and 30th respectively. The latest report, received by the freight department in Montreal from Mr. C. E. Dewey, General Freight Agent, of the G. T. P. states that, with the recent rains in the West, the crops might be expedited by warmer weather, but that in other respects the general outlook is favorable.

MONSTER "LUNGE" PULLED IN AT HALES' BRIDGE

Messrs. Flowers, and Quartermaine Had a Twenty-Minute Fight With a Beauty.

One of the largest lunge of the season was caught Saturday by Messrs. Flowers and Quartermaine at Hales' Bridge, about 9 miles down the river.

These young men have returned from a week's camping at Jubilee Point, and report the fishing magnificent in Rice Lake and vicinity.

They had already lost one large fish, and as they were passing the bridge, this big fellow was hooked. After a hard struggle of over 20 minutes the monster was landed. On weighing, he tipped the scales for a little over 27 lbs and measured 54 inches from snout to tail and 20 inches in girth.

GARMENT WORKERS RETURN TO WORK

Many Clothing Houses Short of Stock as a Result of Strike

According to Dunn's Bulletin there were 24 business failures in the Dominion last week as compared with 42 for the corresponding week of last year.

The principal feature of last week was the settlement of the garment workers' strike in Montreal. The majority of the hands returned to work, but many of the clothing houses will fall materially short on their fall deliveries.

Kuntz's ORIGINAL LAGER

There's greater pleasure in drinking a lager brewed from naturally pure spring water than beer which has artificially purified water for its base. There's a sparkling, refreshing vigor to a spring-water lager that places it above the commonplace. Such a lager is Kuntz's ORIGINAL Lager. It is brewed from that wonderfully pure and clear-as-crystal water for which Kuntz Springs are famous.

HAROLD HILL MADE SPLENDID SHOWING AT PENMAN MEET

Peterborough Won Third Place — Hill Won 100 Yds and Quarter Mile Without Trouble.

The speedy performance of Harold ible for Peterborough's splendid showing at the Penman Athletic Hill, the local athlete was respons- Meet held at the Y.M.C.A. camp at Lake Couchiching last week.

Peterborough won third place. The Toronto West End Association won the trophy by again defeating the Toronto Central team.

The games drew a very big attendance, the sports awakening much interest.

Hill finished first in his heat of the 100 yards' dash, after being put back two yeards, for as many false starts. In spite of this handicap he won his heat in clever fashion; time 10 3-5 seconds.

In the final heat he demonstrated that he could show them all the way, when he won the final heat in 10 3-5 seconds.

In the quarter mile he ran away from them all, and won easily in 53 3-5 seconds.

His showing was certainly fine.

C.G.E. CHAMPS PLAY DRAW WITH OSHAWA

Prospects Now Bright to Annex the Third League Championship

Our local champs journeyed to Oshawa Saturday to play the first of the Midland League finals with the club of that name, and although not at their full strength, managed to pull out even. They feel confident of being able to do the needful in the return game next Saturday, and bring the Midland Ontario championship to Peterborough for the third successive year.

A high wind interfered somewhat with the game, but it was fast throughout. There was no score in the first half, and Oshawa scored within five minutes of the restart, Mitchell planting a good shot beyond the reach of Evans. This acted as a tonic to the locals, who swarmed continually round the Oshawa goal, but Dame Fortune smiled not.

Fifteen minutes after Oshawa's success Pagett equalised the score with a fine volley, and although they pressed to the end, there was no further scoring. The Oshawa team gave the visitors a good time, and Mr. A. Mason, of Oshawa, handled the game satisfactorily.

To show their appreciation of the good work done by the C.G.E. champs during the last three years, the football public should beat up in good numbers next Saturday to cheer them on to victory.

A regrettable accident occurred to Simmonite, one of the Peterborough players, who had his knee badly twisted at the commencement of the game.

C.G.E. lined up as follows:
Goal—Evans
Backs—Gribb and Hull.
Half Backs—Ward, Pagett and Vickers.
Forwards—French, Moralty, Mason, Simmonite and Davey.

CHOOSING A RULER.

A Reply That Won the Throne For the Maharaja of Baroda.

The [illegible] is still the land of the strange and romantic. Straight from everyday modern life in India comes a story that might have been invented by Scheherazade herself for the entertainment of the sultan. It is an account in T. P.'s Magazine of how the present maharaja of Baroda won his throne.

In 1875, after the Maharaja Malhar Rao was deposed, the council sought a youthful member of the family as his successor. Four sons of the house lived in the city, but the council felt that they were all too old and incompetent to become efficient rulers.

In a distant village, in a mud hut, the council found a poverty stricken family of the royal race. In this family were three sons, each of whom was young enough to be molded into a capable ruler. After some deliberation the council decided that one of these boys should have the throne, but left the selection to the dowager maharanee.

Accordingly the three brothers—Gopal, Dada and Sampat—were summoned to the city of Baroda. Shortly after their arrival they were admitted to the presence of the maharanee. Her highness asked each in turn why he had come to Baroda.

The youngest was so awed and bewildered by the magnificence of the court that after smiling foolishly for a moment he burst into a storm of tears and sobs.

The next in age, who was more stolid, did not behave so hysterically. He answered the query as any well behaved Hindu lad of his age would have done. He had come to Baroda, he declared, because his relatives had brought him there.

But when Gopal was asked the same question he airily responded:

"I have come to be the maharaja of Baroda."

The maharanee and her councilors with one accord decided that the youth who gave this bold reply showed the most promise of becoming an able ruler of his people. He was chosen, and there has been no need to regret the choice.

Boy's Prank Fatal.

SPEEDING TO A FIRE.

Motor Engines Versus Horses, Particularly on Long Runs.

The automobile in fire departments throughout the country signalizes the passing of the horse, and yet it is neither the time nor the occasion for sentiment. It is rather a measure for greater safety for lives and property, for increasing the serviceability and efficiency of a department, and, while the horse has proved faithful and has done his work well, the time has arrived when the gasoline motor can do that same work better. How many times have we watched the engines arrive at a "three alarm" fire? The first alarm brings out the apparatus in the immediate vicinity. The horses arrive comparatively fresh, and reasonably quick time has been made. But how about those from fire houses at a distance that have waited until the second or the third alarm before answering? Before the fire is reached the heavy engine literally lumbers along. The horses are completely fagged, and with each succeeding block their pace is slower—at just the time when their speed should be greatest, to compensate for the delay entailed by the longer distance.

The automobile knows no fatigue. With such seventy-five horsepower hose wagons and trucks as those recently purchased by New York city, the tenth mile can be run at as high a speed as the first, and the average for the entire distance will be thirty miles an hour. At the end of this strenuous exertion the machine will be in readiness to respond to a second alarm almost before the chauffeur can "get his breath." Sufficient fuel for several hundred miles may be carried in the main tank. The motor fire truck is always ready. A whirl of a crank or the push of a button and the power plant is throbbing, as anxious to be off and away as the best fire horse that ever lived and fifty times as powerful. —Leslie's.

London's Baby Artist.

London has just unearthed the youngest artist in the world. He is David Walton, three-year-old son of a Teddington man, and so far has he progressed in his art that he is an exhibitor at the show of the Royal Drawing society, now open in the metropolis. His exhibition consists of a clever portrait of himself, a water color painting of a glass of lemonade and a rose and a design of a spring from his toy engine. He commenced to draw with charcoal when he was eleven months old it is said, and progressed to pencil, colored chalk, pen and ink and finally water color.

Born Lawyers in Africa.

A recently published book on Africa gives certain native tribes credit for greater intellectuality than has usually been ascribed to the negro race. "Every central African," it says, "is a born lawyer. Should the need arise he can act as his own pleader and set forth his case with fluency and lawyer-like adroitness." It will be remembered that Bishop Colenso also had a high opinion of the acumen of certain native Africans as Biblical critics.

C.G.E. TEAMS PLAY BALL

Meterites and Brass Department in an Exciting Game.

A very interesting and exciting game of baseball took place on Saturday afternoon at the King Edward school grounds, when the Meter and Brass departments of the C.G.E. had a terrific clash. The Meter certainly handed it to the Brass, like a lemon, in the last two innings. When they came up from behind and tied the score in the eighth, and by a great batting rally in the ninth, scored the winning run, with the bases full and nobody out, and won by the score of 11 to 10. It was a shame to beat the undefeated boys of the Brass Department, as they went to the trouble of importing a pitcher from the Lock Works. But they all look the same to the Meterites. The line up for the winners was—

Walker c, Eakins p, Williams 1b, Anderson 2b, Asta 3b, Sandercock, ss, Barclay lf, Cooke cf, Thurker, rf, Carey, spare.

The Meterites are out for scalps and are now in a position to take the Armature, Assembly or Punch Press into camp, and they would also like to complete their game with Giant Gordon's aggregation.

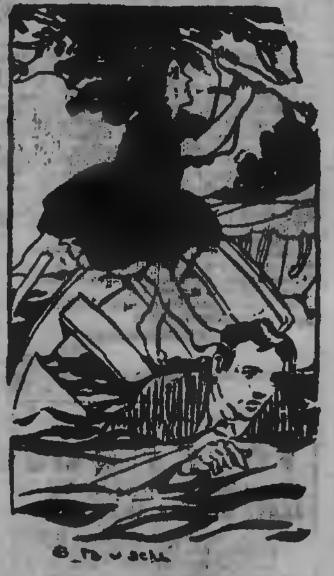
THE NEW FOURTH OF JULY

There Are Worse Inflictions Than Mere Noise

By EDWARD B. DOUGLAS

"How glad I am," said Mrs. Brewer, "that firecrackers, pistols, guns and all explosives by which the Fourth of July has been celebrated are going out. They used to commence the racket a day or two before the Fourth and keep it up till the day after. This year, I am happy to say, the sale of such articles for celebration is prohibited, and we will have a peaceful day. The children have been given the money usually burned up to spend in other ways, and I shall not be tortured with the expectation that Tommy has had his eyes blown out with his little cannon or that Alec has been poisoned by a toy pistol."

These words the good lady said to me the evening before Independence day, I having been invited to spend the anniversary with her at her country place. Notwithstanding the laws against a fiery celebration in the city there is still a great deal of noise. I am inclined to be nervous, and noises trouble me exceedingly.



SHE CAUGHT AN OVERHANGING BRANCH AND ESCAPED.

The Brewer family consists of Margaret, aged twenty-two—and I may as well admit here that she was the principal inducement for my visit; Helen, commonly called Nell, aged seventeen; Gus, a boy of twelve, and Alec, ten.

I closed my eyes on the night of the 3d thinking how much pleasanter would be my awakening than it had been on other Fourths, when from 4 o'clock in the morning there had been a succession of explosions. Breakfast was to be at 9 o'clock, and I need not arise till after 8. I slept soundly till half past 4, when I awoke, thought how delightful it was to hear no sound, turned over for another nap, when a bright light was flashed in my eyes.

Surprised, I sat up and looked toward the window from which direction it seemed to come. The only light was the morning dawn beginning to glimmer through the casement. Not a sound broke the stillness. Thinking that I had been disturbed by a meteorite or a huge firefly—possibly a flash of lightning, though I could see stars through the window—I closed my eyes again. I was sinking into a delicious slumber when another flash awakened me. This time it was of longer duration, and a vivid point of light just above the window sill blinded me to everything else. It lasted for perhaps ten seconds, then went out suddenly.

I had suffered so much of Fourth of July mornings from small boys or girls arousing me by means of firecrackers that I was long in divining the cause of this altered method of torture. Some youngster had flashed an electric hand lamp in my eyes. Probably Gus or Alice, who, deprived of the pleasure of annoying persons on this Fourth of July morning with explosions, had invented a method of achieving the same end. My hopes of a quiet Fourth "fell thick in the blast." I realized that while we may pass laws against youthful armaments, while we may bribe the youth to discontinue harmful and annoying practices, we simply jump out of the frying pan into the fire, or, rather, in this case I had jumped out of the fire into the frying pan. I had simply got rid of the hammering of the cracker on the drum of my ear to receive the flash of the electric hand lamp on the retina of my eye.

I lay tossing in bed till 7 o'clock, then arose, dressed myself and went out on the porch. The morning was beautiful, though the day promised to be hot. An hour and a half must elapse before breakfast, and I experienced the pangs of hunger. Sitting down in a wicker chair, I threw my hat on the porch, for my brow was perspiring, and waited. Happily I fell asleep.

I dreamed of pastures green and cool streams. But presently there came in my dream a great winged insect and perched on a little bald spot on the top of my head just where the Indian wore his scalp lock. He tickled the skin, and I put my hand up to scare him away. He flew away for about six inches and, returning, lit again in the same place. A second time I drove him away, but he flitted about my hand, biting it and bounding from it as though angry at being disturbed.

I awoke, and, true enough, there was the monster just settling again on my bald spot. I fought him, and he fought me, till, becoming thoroughly awake, I got a better view of him and saw he was composed of yellow and blue paper. Moreover, one end of a string was attached to his body and the other to a stick which protruded from a window just above my head. Suddenly my tormenter was jerked up into the window, and I heard a confusion of giggles.

"Wherein," I asked myself, "is the new Fourth of July superior to the old? Formerly there was but one point of attack on a man's sensibilities—the ears. When youngsters were permitted to make noises their attention was fixed on the articles with which they caused the torture. Now that they are not permitted to make noises, their attention is fixed on the tortured, and where their firing of crackers, guns, cannons and other death dealing articles caused but one kind of suffering their inventive genius now causes a multiplicity. Would that the great republic had never been born—or I."

I left the house to the young scamps and went off into the grounds, sitting on a rustic seat under a tree. But here real insects—mosquitoes—were evidently celebrating an anniversary of their own, for they bit my face, my hands and my neck, and I was forced to keep in constant motion to drive them away. So I got up and walked. Yes, I was forced to walk for an hour treadmill fashion, when I was relieved by a call to breakfast.

"How nice it was this morning," remarked Mrs. Brewer, "not to be awakened by those horrid crackers! I don't remember ever before sleeping on a Fourth of July morning after daylight. Did you enjoy it, Mr. Collamore?"

"Very much," I replied. I cast my eyes about the table to detect who had annoyed me, my gaze lighting on the boys. To my surprise, they showed no consciousness of guilt. But by the way Nell poked her nose down near her plate in an effort to conceal her features I knew that she had been my torturer.

And here I will remark that, despite the reputation of the small boy for waywardness, for causing his mother distress by climbing trees and getting into mudholes while dressed in his best suit, for smashing things without reason or provocation, he is not to be compared for pure cussedness with certain girls from fifteen to eighteen. I refer to the kind of girl commonly called hoyden and in some cases tomboy. And I will further remark that Nell Brewer was the quintessence of this kind of girl. Such girls always have what we call an innocent way with them. They can look purer, sweeter, more pious, than any other girl. But when Satan comes out in them he dances a highland fling.

I was sitting after breakfast with Margaret on the porch near the door of the conservatory. Margaret was discoursing on the changed Independence day—how much more restful, more quiet than the old Fourth. Everybody seemed to be harping continually on the subject. They didn't harp so much before it had ended. I was sitting with my back to the conservatory when I felt cold water sprinkled against the back of my neck run down my spine.

"Oh, Mr. Collamore," cried Nell, "I'm so sorry! I was watering the plants, and the sprayer slipped."

"Nell," said Margaret, "you should be more careful."

"It's of no consequence, I assure you," I said, with the politeness expected of a guest.

"I hope I didn't wet you," said Nell.

"Not at all, only a few drops; they feel deliciously cool," and I rubbed my neck and ruined shirt collar with my handkerchief.

But as the day wore on I had my revenge on this family who delighted in the new Fourth. Tommy fell off the roof of the barn and broke his arm. Alec, not having any firecrackers to set off, set fire to the dry grass and came near burning up all the buildings on the premises. For Nell's annoyances to me I resolved to punish her, so I invited her to go rowing with me on the river, intending to give her a ducking if I could. I was willing to suffer myself from the water if I could put her into it, and I wouldn't have minded drowning her. I upset the boat, but so agile was she that she caught an overhanging branch and escaped with no more serious damage than a pair of wet feet, while I was obliged to swim for dear life.

When I got into dry clothes I asked Margaret to go for a drive with me in the auto. While we were driving she said:

"Isn't it nice to ride on the Fourth of July not fearing the horses will be frightened by a cracker? We neither have horses now nor crackers." She had hardly spoken the words before one of the forward wheels struck a stone, wrenching the steering wheel out of my hands, and before I could recover it the auto had swerved, struck a telegraph pole and thrown both Margaret and myself into a ditch. It was a miracle that we were not both hurled against the pole and killed. We were black as your hat with mud.

Such was the finale of the new explosionless Fourth. I have endured many a cracker anniversary, but never have I suffered as on this regenerated Independence day, when all was still. The ending was worse even than I have depicted it, for Margaret was so mad at having a new and costly dress spoiled in the ditch that she never has forgiven me for putting her there. She says it was all due to my carelessness.

King Alfonso of Spain acted as a salesman at the bazaar at the Isle of Wight.

Many well known Canadian military men will attend the British military manoeuvres at Aldershot this autumn.

W. A. Stewart, superintendent of Ontario St. Lawrence canals, has been forced to resign, the Government having abolished the position.

Jas. F. Ward, engineer at the Lake Superior Corporation's sawmill at Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., was instantly killed in a peculiar accident.

Fred. Wilcox, who was crushed between two trucks at the R. M. McDougall Co.'s works at Galt, died in the hospital yesterday, as a result of his injuries.

Tariff revision legislation, with the passage of which the U. S. Congress hopes soon to terminate its present session, was pushed forward yesterday in both Houses of Congress.

Policeman Caught Patient.

Montreal, Aug. 3.—A smallpox patient, his body covered with the marks of the disease, escaped from the Moreau Street Hospital last night clad only in a nightshirt and with a blanket wrapped around his head, Turkish fashion. A crowd gathered about the strange-looking man but quickly scattered when a policeman appeared and announced the identity of the escaped patient. The policeman then braved smallpox and took the patient back to the hospital, where the doctors made the constable a prisoner, took away his uniform and promptly burned it.

For some time the policeman had to remain clad in the garb of Eden in one of the spare rooms of the hospital, but finally a new uniform arrived for him and he returned to duty.

Competing French Aviators.

Paris, Aug. 3.—The French Aero Club has selected Jules Vedrines, Maurice Prevost, and Andre Frey to represent France in the international aviation contest for the Gordon Bennett Cup at Chicago. The substitutes who will accompany them are Guillaume Busson and M. Leger.

Chicago May Have Car Strike.

Chicago, Aug. 3.—Employes of the street railway lines in Chicago began voting yesterday on whether a strike is to be declared. The polls are to close at 4 p.m. to-day, and a few hours later the result will be known.

If you carefully read the store advertisements and follow them in your buying.

Merchants advertise certain lines because they know these lines will advertise their stores. Because there is something about certain goods, they are put in conspicuous places and the people are told about them. It may be the exclusiveness or newness of design, it may be an unusual quality, it may be an attractive price.

But there is at least one definite, sure reason why a merchant advertises an article and is willing to stake the reputation of his store upon it.

Therefore, when you see an article advertised in THE REVIEW, depend upon it, that article is good value, as good value as can be obtained in that particular store.

MEMBERS OF PARLIAMENT AFRAID TO MEET AT OTTAWA

The Epidemic of Typhoid Fever in the Capital City Lead to an Agitation to Have the Coming Session of Lawmakers Held in Some Other City—Some Members Afraid to Risk Their Lives Even in the Cause of Their Country.

Parliament may not meet in Ottawa this winter, if a movement, which is now on foot among an influential number of members from the other provinces, materializes.

A prominent M. P., who was in Ottawa Saturday said that there is a strong feeling against meeting there in the very teeth of a typhoid epidemic.

"A number of members have been in communication with each other," he said, "and it has been practically decided that in the eventt of the present epidemic being unchecked we will, when Parliament opens here this fall, move its adjournment and agitate for a session in some other city—perhaps Toronto or Winnipeg—where we will have protection from foul disease.

"The citizens of this city cannot, and the citizens of the country do not expect us to come here, where because of the apathy, or sheer incompetence of the civic authorities, there is not pure water to drink and the health and even lives of our families are endangered.

"But do you not think that it would be impracticable, and well nigh impossible to transfer the work of Parliament to another city at such short notice?" was asked.

"We quite realize the difficulties and obstacles which would be encountered, but nevertheless the scheme is not an impossible one; while on the other hand it is quite justifiable; and should this epidemic, which you have here now, continue to grow at its present rate, it is inevitable," was the reply.

"Our wives and our children object to our coming to a city which is a menace to health.

"If Ottawa desires to continue as the national capital, surely the least it should do or is expected to do is to guarantee as far as possible the health of Government employees. The people of this country are spending huge sums to beautify this city and make it worthy of a national capital, and their efforts are being undone by a record of civic maladministration, which is advertising this city from Vancouver to Halifax as a pest hole of disease."

It is learned in connection with this somewhat startling move that the agitation is in fact very widespread, many members endeavoring to get up a "round robin" against meeting there this fall, or at least against meeting there until the present epidemic is checked or over.

DR. G. E. MARSHALL EXPIRED SUDDENLY WHILE BOWLING

Prominent Physician Succumbed to Heart Trouble—Was President of Local Bowling Association.

Dr. G. E. Marshall, 242 Hunter street, one of the city's most prominent physicians, dropped dead from heart failure this morning at the Peterborough Lawn Bowling grounds.

His death occurred under almost tragic circumstances and with a suddenness that has cast the whole community into gloom.

Dr. Marshall was engaged in bowling this morning, in the competition against the Oshawa bowlers for the Stratton trophy. The game had been in progress for about one hour, the doctor being opposed by Donald Hall, of Oshawa. Without any warning he staggered and dropped to the ground immediately lapsing into unconsciousness. Several medical men were on the ground, and Dr. Eastwood and others gave all the assistance in their power to render under such conditions. But without avail and within ten minutes death had set in without him recovering consciousness. A large flag was placed over the body, and the games were all stopped, while Dr. Eastwood and a friend walked to the deceased's residence, conveying the sad news to his wife. Dr. Marshall was stricken while standing under a large sign bearing the words, "Welcome."

It is learned that he had not been feeling in his usual good health for the past few days, but that there was anything seriously wrong was never for a moment imagined. He had however, some years ago, been warned against over exertion, and of ill effects that may follow any undue exertion.

Immediately after the tragic occurrence, and after the body had been removed, a meeting of the Bowling Executive was held to decide whether to continue or postpone the games. The Peterborough players felt that under such circumstances and while carrying such saddened hearts, it would be impossible for them to continue. The Oshawa players also were of the same mind, their vote to a man being opposed to proceeding. Such magnanimity and thoughtfulness was a greatly appreciated feature of the sad event. The competition was, according called off, the rinks were disbanded, and the visitors left.

A SKETCH OF HIS LIFE.

The late Dr. Marshall was born in 1864 in the township of Emily. When his father moved to Bailieboro, he attended school there, where he received his public school education. From there he went to the Toronto Normal School, graduating in 1885. He then returned and taught for a number of years in Bailieboro and South Monaghan schools.

He graduated from the Detroit College of Medicine in 1897 and practiced for a number of years in the State of Michigan. Coming to Canada again he graduated from Trinity Medical College in Toronto in 1904, and it was in 1905, seven years ago that he established in Peterborough. Since then he won hosts of friends, besides developing a large and lucrative practice. Always interested in out-door recreations, he became an expert bowler and was this year elected president of the Peterborough Lawn Bowling Association. He was a member of the Canadian Order of Chosen Friends, The Woodmen of the World The Peterborough Orange Association and No. 193 O.C.H.C. He was a valued member of Charlotte street Methodist church. He was also the Physician for the Mutual Benefit Society of the Canadian General Electric Company, and a member of the Peterborough Medical Association.

Surviving him, are his sorrowing wife, and three children, all at home, namely, Bruce, Olive and Frederick. Six brothers and five sisters also are living, viz.—J. G. Marshall, William and Charles of Midland; Robert, of Sudbury, Ont.; Isaac and Elmer, of Selwood, Ont., and the sisters, Mrs. (Rev.) Mowatt, of Seattle, Wash.; Mrs. John Foster, Midland; Georgina, of Toronto, and Pearl and Edna, of Midland.

The funeral arrangements will be given later.

OBITUARY

Mrs. William Brown

Mrs. William Brown, whose maiden name was Isabella Wood, passed away Sunday morning at 10.30, aged seventy-six. By her death, Peterborough loses a time honored, respected and beloved resident, and one whose departure will be greatly felt.

The late Mrs. Brown was a sister of the late James Wood, of Bailieboro. She was born in the township of Cavan, and resided on the old homestead until moving to Peterborough seven years ago, taking up residence at 298 Pearl avenue, with her family. Her husband was a prominent and respected resident, who predeceased her a number of years ago.

All who enjoyed fellowship with the late Mrs. Brown, could speak only in terms of love and respect of her kind, gentle and charitable disposition. She enjoyed the comforting friendship and high regard of hosts of acquaintances who unite in mourning her passing.

She was a communicant of All Saints' church and highly valued in church circles.

Surviving her are one son, Wilfrid, on the homestead in Cavan, and three daughters, namely, Margaret, Ella and Mrs. Bonus, at the home, 298 Pearl avenue, and Mrs. James McCamus in Bailieboro.

The funeral will leave the family residence on Tuesday at 1 p.m., to St. Paul's church cemetery, near Millbrook, Rev. W. C. Allen, of Millbrook, will officiate.

A lot of tasks are shortened and made easier to-day for the readers and answerers of want ads!

Don't Need Accident Insurance

There is no excuse for refusing to take out Accident Insurance as common as the one that the prospect "Don't Need It."

The average man thinks he never exposes himself to hazards that invite accidents.

Here are some of the illuminating facts in regard to the hazards of ordinary lives.

Is he the man who never goes anywhere, always remains at home? Whereabouts at home does he remain to escape danger? Inside the house? Out of every one hundred injurious accidents nearly 14 per cent occur inside the house. Is he safe there? Hardly.

While at home around the house, amid scenes of peace, is he free from danger? Out of every one hundred injurious accidents, nearly 13 per cent are met with amid these peaceful surroundings.

Is he safe while walking the streets? Out of every one hundred injurious accidents, nearly 16 per cent are met with by pedestrians. Hardly safe is he while walking?

A fraction of over 13 per cent of every one hundred injurious accidents are attributable to horses and vehicles. Nearly 7 per cent are attributable to Automobiles and Bicycles. Railroad and Steamship travel are not especially to be commended for possessing elements of safety as these contribute 14 per cent of every one hundred.

Even while engaged in recreation he is not safe, as its quota amounts to nearly 8 per cent of every hundred. There is only one place where a man is not liable to meet with injurious accidents, and that is—the grave. Sleeping there he is in no danger.

The above shows that everyone needs protection against Accident, and this protection can be obtained at a nominal cost by applying to

POLICE RAISE FUND TO DEFEND LIEUT. BECKER

Attorney Whitman Says That $50,000 is to be Provided to Hire Lawyers for the Defence of the Accused Officer — Becker Arraigned and His Friends Are Busy in His Behalf.

New York, Aug. 6.—A police fund of $50,000 is being raised for the defence of Charles Becker, the police lieutenant charged with instigating the murder of Herman Rosenthal, according to the information in the hands of District Attorney Whitman yesterday.

The money is being collected, it is said, by the so-called system which, aside from the murder case, is to be the subject of a separate investigation by the district attorney, who believes there is a corrupt alliance between the "system" and the gambling fraternity founded on graft and blackmail.

The information came to the prosecutor yesterday in connection with the arraignment of Becker to answer the indictment against him. During five hours of legal procedure, which included the withdrawal by Becker for the purpose of offering motions to invalidate the indictment, the prisoner was represented by three lawyers, one of whom entered the case and mysteriously withdrew, while the status of the other two seemed doubtful in their own minds when the proceedings were over. It was said that the lawyers engaged by Becker were not satisfactory to the collectors of the defence fund, who, the district attorney heard, have practically engaged a prominent criminal lawyer to defend the lieutenant, superseding the prisoner's own personal choice.

John W. Hart, who has thus far represented Becker, was the lawyer who conducted the public part of yesterday's legal proceedings. After withdrawing his client's plea of "not guilty," he made one motion to dismiss the indictment on the ground that it was irregular, and another to review the grand jury minutes and take evidence to show whether the ground for the indictment was sufficient. Judge Mulqueen refused to hear arguments on the motion yesterday and set the case over until Wednesday. Hart in his application to inspect the jury minutes held that the evidence produced was not legal in that it was testimony of accomplices in the alleged crime, namely, "Jack" Rose, "Bridgie" Webber and Harry Vallon.

Becker, looking somewhat pale from his week of prison life, walked from he Tombs across the Bridge of Sighs to the court room with a firm step and maintained a self-possessed but grave demeanor during the proceedings.

Although the district attorney says that he has evidence in his possession that he could use in pressing a charge of extortion with his relations with gamblers as head of the "strong arm" squad, the prosecutor said last night that he proposed to press only the murder charge at the present; that he would not hasten the trial until his evidence to support the latter was in shape.

While the police are searching the Catskills for 'Gyp the Blood" and "Lefty Louis," two of the alleged real murderers of Rosenthal, private detectives employed by the district attorney are looking for them in Boston. Mr. Whitman on his visit there on Saturday was told by his men that "Lefty Louis" had been seen there recently and that they hoped to capture him soon.

The district attorney had a voluntary witness before him yesterday, who accused the two missing men when he pointed them out to the officers of West 42nd street two days ago. The man said he knew them both, but that the policemen refused to leave their fixed posts to arrest them. Both policemen admitted that the witness had pointed two men out to them as "Gyp the Blood" and "Lefty Louis," but declared that they did not dare to leave their fixed posts for fear of being shot.

ANGLICAN CHURCH IS NOW REVIVING

Prof. Duff Says it is Taking on a New Lease of Life in England.

Montreal, Aug. 6.—"The Churches of England are empty these days," said Prof. Archibald Duff of the United Congregational College of Bradford, England, in the course of an interview here.

Prof. Duff said that there were signs of a spiritual reawakening in England, however. He also thought that England would see the disestablishment of the Anglican Church there within 25 years. This disestablishment would be brought about by Anglicans and the King.

Speaking of the Congregational Church in Canada, the professor said it was dying because the people had not been faithful to the mission of its founders.

Congregationalists in the Dominion appeared to fear all the time that they were losing their orthodoxy, and in giving so much thought to this question of orthodoxy they had lost sight of the real aims and objects of the church.

Canadian Motor Cars for N. Z.

Montreal, Aug. 6.—The steamship Rakaia, which sails from this port for New Zealand, will have on board a consignment of 156 Canadian automobiles.

During the past year the demand for Canadian automobiles has increased steadily, and every vessel which sails from this port for New Zealand carries a consignment of cars. The demand for Canadian-built cars is based principally on the fact that they are the lightest and best suited cars obtainable for Australian and New Zealand roads.

Chance to Celebrate Event.

London, Aug. 6.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—The London Daily Telegraph, when editorially expressing the hope that Premier Asquith and Winston Churchill will accept the Canadian invitation to visit Canada, says: "Such great events lose nothing, but gain much through being emphasized with due dramatic ceremony. We can imagine nothing better calculaed to signalize the entry of Canada into a full responsible partnership with Britain in councils of peace and war than the presence of the leading British Ministers in Canada, especially if they are accompanied by a squadron of British warships. It will certainly be a general disappointment to all concerned if so dramatic an opportunity is missed."

SMUGGLERS CAUGHT AT BROCKVILLE

Five Hundred Excursionists Held up by Custom Officials.

Brockville, Aug. 6.—Five hundred excursionists were detained by the local custom officers and many of them found to have contraband goods in their possession early Sunday morning on the return of a party which had gone on a moonlight excursion to Ogdensburg, N.Y., on Saturday night. The surprise of the excursionists on finding the Canadian Pacific Railway dock securely guarded from exit, was voiced in loud protestations, but the officers were adamant.

Search brought to light large quantities of dress goods, shoes, tobacco, personal effects of every kind and description and sorts, men's wearing apparel, trinkets, feminine trinkets and all sorts of odds and ends which the shoppers had accumulated.

PASSENGERS ON SLEEPING CAR HAVE A CLOSE CALL

Gasoline Exploded While a C.P.R. Crew Were Filling a Tank in a Sleeper and the Passengers Escaped in Their Night Clothes.

Toronto, Aug. 6.—When a gasoline tank attached to a sleeping car of the C.P.R. Ottawa train, No. 34, exploded at about 11.20 o'clock last night at the Union Station, the John McLean party of Philadelphia, who had retired in the sleeper, were forced to hurriedly vacate their berths in night attire to escape death from fire.

Much of their clothing and some hand bags were left behind in their escape, and were either destroyed by the flames or damaged by water.

The McLean party had arrived from Philadelphia last night and made connection with the Ottawa train, which was scheduled to leave Toronto for Ottawa at 11.30. There were about 20 in the party. The train was made up about an hour before it was due to depart and the people who occupied one of the sleepers had retired for the night.

The train crew were filling the tank under the car with gasoline to supply the lamps. The hose connected with the main running under the yard tracks leaked. One of the crew was passing with a lighted lantern, when the escaping gas fumes were lighted by the lamp.

An explosion followed.

Flames flared up from the gas tank and in a moment the car itself had caught fire. The explosion broke windows. The noise of the breaking glass awakened the sleeping party. They quickly jumped from their berths and made a hurried exit, snatching whatever was handy.

An alarm was sent in to the fire department. After 30 minutes' continuous labor the fire was extinguished, but the car was badly damaged.

None of the party were injured in any way, although all were badly frightened. The company will make good any loss they sustained.

RED BANDANA IS THEIR EMBLEM

The Progressives Adopt a Handkerchief as Ensign.

Chicago, Aug. 6.—The red bandana handkerchief, as an emblem of the new party yesterday almost supplanted the moose head. Nearly every delegate wore a bandana knotted about his neck or his hat band. Street dealers drove a large trade in the handkerchiefs, selling all qualities from cotton to silk.

"Buy a 'Roosevelt battle flag'," shouted the vendors at every downtown street corner, and the crowds responded with liberal purchases.

Women as well as men wore the new party emblem and milliners already are besieged with orders to trim hats with the gaudy handkerchiefs.

Montreal Claims 602,000.

Montreal, Aug. 6.—John Lovell & Son, Ltd., publishers, have issued the new city directory. The estimated population of Montreal is 530,437, or 602,000 with the suburbs. In 1891 the city population, according to the census, was 220,181; in 1901 it was 266,826; in 1911 it was 466,197, while the present estimate is 530,437.

Wool Tariff Bill Adopted.

Washington, Aug. 6.—The conference report on the compromise Lafollette-Underwood wool tariff bill was adopted by the Senate yesterday by 35 to 28. Six progressive Republicans joined the Democrats. The compromise bill goes at once to the President. It is identical with the one he vetoed in 1911.

Hot Spell Helps Crops.

Winnipeg, Aug. 6.—A general improvement in crop prospects yesterday is the result of 48 hours of hot, dry weather all over the prairie provinces. Showers prevail in Manitoba, but otherwise crop conditions are ideal.

TOURISTS BARELY ESCAPE DEATH

Toronto, Aug. 6.—Swaying and swerving down the grade on Huntley street, toward the ravine bridge yesterday afternoon, a big Dominion sightseeing motor with twenty visitors aboard, missed by a few feet instant death.

Just above Elm avenue, the driver lost control of his car. It swung suddenly to the east side of the street, and just avoiding the trees as quickly lurched to the opposite side.

If the car had continue southward a hundred yards on its career, it might have plunged into the Roserale ravine.

Poincare Off for Russia.

Paris, Aug. 6.—Raymon Poincare, the French Premier, started yesterday for Russia surrounded by all the signs usually accompanying a great state pilgrimage.

Near eastern questions and the Franco-Russian naval convention, the signature of which by M. Poincare in St. Petersburg will bring the whole of the fighting forces of the allies within the terms of an offensive and defensive treaty of alliance, are to be the main subjects of discussion between the Emperor of Russia, Sergius Sazanoff, Russian Minister for Foreign Affairs, and the French visitors.

Port Arthur Strike Over.

Port Arthur, Aug. 6.—Employes of the Canadian Northern Coal & Ore Dock Co. returned to work yesterday, after a week's strike, featured by a riot on the first day, in which six were injured and for which the militia were brought out. The new arragement is a compromise by which the men get a raise which will average about 2 1-2 cents an hour.

GERMANY HAS A NEW SCARE

Englishmen Arrested as Suspected Spies on Fortifications.

New York, Aug. 6.—A cable from Kiel yesterday says:

Germany is in the grip of another spy scare to-day. Following Saturday's arrest in Eckernafoerde of five Englishmen just landed from Copenhagen and suspected of spying on the Kaiser's coast fortifications, a German sergeant, a corporal and a private were arrested yesterday accused of furnishing military information to England and France.

From the Englishmen, who had crossed from the Danish capital in a cutter, it is said that many photographs and notes were taken. The men were sent to jail at Metz, where they will be tried.

Germany has punished eighteen foreigners or Germans said to be in foreign employ in little more than two years on charges of spying.

LORD MORLEY MAY RETIRE

Rumors of Impending Changes in the British Cabinet.

London, Aug. 6.—Rumors of Ministerial changes are current, based on the impending retirement of Lord Morley from the Lord Presidency of the Council, and the return of Lord Gladstone from South Africa.

Lord Morley has been able to give very little time to the House of Lords lately, and has been in attendance only when his presence has been required in some particular debate. Mr. Augustine Birrell is another Minister who is overworked, and his transition from the Irish Chief Secretaryship to the India Office would be a relief to him, and a promotion that would be appreciated by Ministerialists generally.

Such a change at the same time would be a certain embarrassment to the Prime Minister, as it would undoubtedly be ominous of the fate of the home rule bill, even if it were accompanied by an explanation. Mr. Birrell, however, would still be available to take part in the debates on the bill and would retain charge of it. If Mr. Birrell finds a less onerous post there is reason to think that Mr. Herbert L. Samuel will succeed him at the Irish Office. It is understood that he is next on the list for promotion in the Cabinet.

MERSEY REPORT BEARS FRUIT

Belfast, Aug. 6.—The White Star Co. has issued orders that the third steamer of the Olympic class under construction here, shall be provided with a double skin, rising well above the water-line. This is in accordance with the suggestions in the Mersey report.

Three Aged Peers.

London, Aug. 6.—Three nonogenarian peers celebrate their birthdays this week. The Earl of Wemyss was 59 on Sunday last, Lord Strathcona is 92 to-day, and on Wednesday Lord Nelson, the "Father of the House of Lords," begins his 90th year.

DR. WILLIAM H. METZLER.

Famous as a mathematician. He is a graduate of Toronto University, but has spent most of his life abroad. He proposes to demonstrate that one meal a day is all that is required to support life.

TAFT WILL VETO TARIFF BILLS

Washington, Aug. 6.—President Taft yesterday began preparing his veto message on the steel, wool and cotton tariff revision bills, soon to come before him from Congress. His vetoes will be based upon his understanding that the bills have been drawn almost regardless of the tariff board's reports on those schedules.

The steel bill probably will be sent to the White House first. The President yesterday had not decided which he would first disapprove.

REBEL LEADER NOW A FUGITIVE

Jaurez, Mexico, Aug. 6.—Inez Salazar, the rebel leader responsible for the disarming of the American colonists, is heading for the border with his rebels. On his way Salazar is destroying the Mexico northwestern railway. In this way he hopes to delay pursuit by the two federal armies which temporarily pursued at Casa Grandes.

Brakeman's Serious Injuries.

Belleville, Aug. 6.—J. Emmes, a G.T.R. brakeman, while on a train running to the Lehigh cement work, was looking out of a window when his head came in contact with an obstacle. He received a terrible scalp wound and concussion of the brain is feared. He has been unconscious since the accident.

Heavy Claims on Titanic Fund.

London, Aug. 6.—Although the Mansion House and other funds for the relief of the Titanic sufferers exceed $2,000,000, reports made to the Lord Mayor indicate that all of this will be required to maintain the allowances now made for the relief of the dependents of the victims of the disaster.

NEW PARTY CONVENTION LOOKS LIKE A LOVE FEAST

Amity Marks the Opening of the Proceedings and ex-Senator Beveridge is Appointed Temporary Chairman—A Spread-Eagle Keynote Speech.

Chicago, Aug. 6.—The first session of the first convention of the new national Progressive party, of which Col. Theodore Roosevelt is sponsor, was held in the Coliseum yesterday, and while the sitting was attended by all the usual ceremonies of a national political gathering, the actual proceedings were suggestive of a love feast.

Not a dissenting voice was raised during the session. The question of negro representation from the south had caused friction earlier in the day in the national committee, but there was no echo of this fight on the floor of the convention. The delegates were at times explosive in their enthusiasm. Many of the state delegations came into the hall singing and shouting in their delight to the birth of the new party, and three hours later left the building in the same happy frame of mind.

Although green hands were supposed to be at the helm, the machinery of the convention worked smoothly and efficiently. There was no roll call of delegates, but the delegate section of the floor, arranged in the same manner as the Republican National Convention a few weeks ago and accommodating nearly 1,100 people, was entirely filled. The alternate section also had its full quota.

There was not the same crush of spectators yesterday as at the Republican gathering. But when the proceedings began the galleries had few empty seats. The convention leaders were enthusiastic over the showing made in the Coliseum yesterday and made the claim that no better looking, more substantial set of delegates was ever seen upon the floor of a national political convention.

Former Senator Albert J. Beveridge was presented as the choice of the national convention for temporary chairman. He was elected with acclaim and then delivered the keynote speech of the convention.

"We stand for a nobler America. We stand for an undivided nation. We stand for a broader liberty, a fuller justice. We stand for social brotherhood as against savage individualism. We stand for an intelligent co-operation instead of a reckless competition. We stand for mutual helpfulness instead of mutual hatred. We stand for equal rights as a fact of life instead of catch word of politics. We stand for the rule of the people as a practical truth instead of a meaningless pretence. We stand for a representative government that represents the people. We battle for the actual rights of man.

"To carry out our principles, we have a plain program of constructive reform, which was wrong and out of date and where we tear down, we mean to build what is right and fitted to the times. We hearken to the call of the present. We mean to make laws fit conditions as they are and meet the needs of the people who are on earth to-day. That we may do this, we found a party through which all who believe with us can work with us, or rather, we declare our allegiance to the party which the people themselves have founded."

Mr. Beveridge was cheered throughout his speech, a tumultuous interruption coming when he assailed the "Boss-ridden old parties." The rulers of the old parties, he said, were "invisible."

"They are the invisible government behind our visible government," he declared. "It is this invisible government which is the real danger to American institutions."

A committee was appointed to invite Col. Roosevelt to appear before the convention at noon to-day. The motion was carried with a whoop and last night, with due ceremony, the colonel formally accepted.

A decided feature of the convention was the large number of women delegates. This called forth great cheering when the temporary chairman reached that part of his speech advocating suffrage.

To-day's session of the convention promises to be largely one of speechmaking, with Col. Roosevelt's "confession of faith" as the centre of interest. The adoption of a platform and the nomination of Presidential and vice-presidential candidates will come Wednesday, followed by adjournment that evening.

The probable slate will be: For vice-president, Governor Hiram W. Johnson of California; for permanent chairman, Judge Ben B. Lindsey of Denver.

Negroes Were Shut Out.

Chicago, Aug. 6.—Contesting negro delegates from Florida and Mississippi were barred from the Progressive convention yesterday by the national committee. The contests were decided at a stormy executive session of the committee, that lasted for three hours, just before the convention met.

While the committee deliberated, the negroes gathered in the corridors outside the committee room and raised their voices in indignant protest. When the decisions were made known the leaders declared they would continue their fight for seats before the credentials committee of the convention.

SASKATOON STILL STRIVING FOR BRANCH OF QUAKER OATS

Business Man of That City Says It Would be Worth $100,000 a Year for Publicity Purposes.

Saskatoon evidently means business That city will not rest until a branch establishment of the Quaker Oats Company, similar to the one in Peterboro is secured, and the citizens seem to be alive to the opportunity and to realize the extent of the pretige that the new industry would bring to them. In an interview, in the Saskatoon Star, Manager Bell of the Industrial League says—

"If I were given the choice of $100,000 in cash for publicity purposes or having the Quaker Oats Company for Saskatoon, I would certainly take the latter, for it would mean that I would be able to produce far great results in the making known of Saskatoon's name from one end of the continent to the other."

"It is only those people in Saskatoon, who are acquainted with the industrial life of the United States who can appreciate what an enormous plant the Quaker Oats Company has in the different cities of the United States, some of which are, Akron, Ohio, Chicago, Cedar Rapids Ia., Richford, Vt., and Battle Creek Mich., as well as Peterborough in Canada. The prestige that these mills have in the United States and the prestige which they give the city in which they locate one of their plants cannot be imagined by one, who is not acquainted with the gigantic proportions on which they carry on their business.

The Quaker Oats products go all over the world, and on every one of their packages they give a list of their branches. At the present time there are only six names and when Saskatoon is added to the list we will be marked out as the city of the whole west which the astute Quaker Oats directorate picked out to go to The three prairie provinces are naturally looked upon as the leaders in the grain producing countries of America, and the fact that the Quaker Oats people have picked this city out of the many prosperous cities of the northwest in which to locate is going to put Saskatoon's stock away up in the eyes of those investors who look around for the signs of prosperity such as these.

"The fact that the Quaker Oats Co., have selected Saskatoon as the place in which to locate above all in western Canada will go the rounds of every financial newspaper in Canada and the United States as well as the ordinary news despatches which will be sent out on the matter. There is no doubt in my mind but that Saskatoon will receive an immense amount of advertising from the locating of this company.

The world's highest jumpers, the speediest roadsters, the highest stepping hackneys, the best horses of every class, also a special feature there will be a red coat race every day. Now for something everybody likes, the famous Royal Canadian Dragoons and the 48th Highlanders bands.

MAY HAVE ROUTE TO PETERBORO

That the Canadian Northern Railway has secured the new lease of the Midland Division of the Grand Trunk Railway systems, that connects the main line of the latter road at Scarboro Junction and connects it with Peterboro, is a well defined rumor that has gained great credence in York County.

The orginal lease was made out for thirty years, and this has now expired. Since then the Grand Trunk Railway has secured a direct line with Peterboro. Although this rumor could not be confirmed at the local offices it was ascertained that the present lease was acquired from the Toronto and Nipissing Railway.

There is also a revival of the rumor that the line will be deflected at Milliken and from there will run east and north to Markham. This will mean that the village of Unionville will be overlooked by the new owners of the road.

OTTAWA'S CALAMITY

Ottawa has practically admitted that it is unable to cope with the situation and sends in to the Dominion authorities a cry for help, thus refusing all offers of aid and all suggestions from the Provincial Board of Health.

When the typhoid epidemic first broke out in the Capital City Dr. McCullough, the Provincial Health Officer, went to Ottawa to investigate and soon discovered the source of all the trouble was the water supply. He told the City Council what could be done to remedy the evil, but no attention was paid to his suggestion and the result of that neglect is one of the most appalling epidemics in the history of Canada. It is claimed that the aldermen are at loggerheads and that for political reasons they are unable to agree upon any policy which has to do with the securing of a supply of pure drinking water for the city.

This question is not one which concerns the people of Ottawa alone. Every person throughout the Dominion has an interest in the matter, seeing that the entire country has been made to contribute to the improvement of the city of Ottawa as the Capital of the Dominion. That, by reason of mismanagement the part of the civic authorities the city has become a pest hole, shunned by visitors and even avoided by the members and servants of the Government, cannot be regarded as other than a national disgrace. To crown all, the Federal legislators are talking of holding the approaching sessions of Parliament in some other city where their lives will not be in daily danger.

In other cities of Ontario the public health has been threatened by impure drinking water, but the local authorities assisted by the Provincial officers have risen to the occasion so that such a calamity as that, which now over-shadows Ottawa, has been averted. Let the Capital City follow the advice of the experts from Toronto, regardless of any expense that by so doing may be incurred, and the present epidemic can be speedily stamped out, and a recurrence of an affliction so overwhelming, effectually guarded against.

CHARITY AND POLITICS

The bill introduced into the British House of Commons making it illegal for a member of parliament to contribute to any purely charitable institution, will in the event of its enactment into law, not only reduce the expenses of the lawmakers, but will place the poor man who aspires to political honors on something like an equal footing with his richer opponent. Such a law placed upon the statute books of Canada would do more to prevent political corruption in a disguised form than any measure now extant.

The man in this country who is looking for public place, or who seeks to retain his hold on a position already secured, can, if possessed of the required means, make himself solid with a certain section of the community and cover up a multitude of shortcomings by contributing of his means to every object of a charitable nature which is brought under his notice. The public man to-day is regarded as an easy mark and is made the victim of the citizen with the subscription paper. Even his donations to the cause of religion tend to make or unmake him in proposition to the generosity with which he lays down his offering.

A man with unlimited wealth can practically buy his way into a place of power, or fortify himself in a public position by liberality in the cause of charity. He may be actuated by purely selfish motives, he may have no confidence in the object of his open-handedness, but no questions are asked and his object is attained. What matters it if he gives of the fullness of his possessions! His gifts overshadow the mite laid upon the plate by some one whose meagre worldly possessions vanish with the gift.

We have all seen the political dives scatter his alms in public, to the sound of a trumpet, that he might have glory of men. His right hand never makes a move of which his left is kept in ignorance. Too often his reward comes to him in the shape of preferment over the opponent who lacks nothing of superiority as compared with the other, save in the matter of riches.

RULE OR RUIN

Roosevelt will rule or ruin. He will be the chief actor, the dictator, the boss or he will not play the game. He will be commander in chief of the forces or remain sulking in his tent. Jettisoned by the party which spoiled him by its blind idolatry in the past, he scorns the rescue proffered by another organization, unless he be taken on board as captain, crew and cook.

So much he declared before starting for the Chicago Convention which is to set in motion a new party machine. The steam roller is once more put into commission, this time to crush out the negroes from the southern states, who aspire to recognition by the Progressives. But the colored men are to be turned down and denied a place in the convention hall as delegates.

The ways of politics are certainly as strange in the repudiation of old friends as in the acquisition of new allies. Roosevelt posed as the friend of the colored man when it was policy to do so. That was in the days when looking for no help from the South, he sought to cement the colored vote of the north, by championing the cause of the African race. Now, under his new colors, he hopes to split the southern electoral vote with Governor Wilson. He knows that if he admitted a single colored delegate to his wildcat convention, he would, on election day, be an unknown quantity south of the Mason and Dixon line. And so the astute colonel trims his sails to catch any breeze that may be stealing over the political sea.

NOTE AND COMMENT

What does a Toronto fireman expect anyway, when he turns down an offer of $1500 a year to take charge of the brigade in this city.

The whole trouble seems to have dwindled down to a race between Ald. Johnston and Chief Howard with the fire fighter a lap or so to the good.

Don't envy the pleasure resorter these cool days. He is probably suffering more than any of us who are obliged to remain at home.

The Ottawa Free Press says that any man who preaches annexation is a fool and a libeler. Whereat Henri Bourassa proceeds to crawl under the barn.

For cool, calm, comforting philosophy, recommend us to the average citizens of Hamilton. One of them has just announced that he is glad he has not money enough to buy an automobile, because if he had, he would never be able to decide on the best style of car.

Latest Quotations in Grain Dairy Products, Live Stock Etc

Chicago Wheat Futures Close Lower, Liverpool Exchange Closed—Live Stock—Latest Quotations.

CHICAGO, Aug. 5.—Huge receipts at primary markets to-day carried wheat prices down. It was a nervous close, ⅝c to 1c under Saturday night's figures. The outcome in corn varied from a shade to 1c lower; oats finished ⅛c to ⅜c off, and provisions less expensive by a shade to 5c.

The Liverpool grain exchange was closed to-day (bank holiday). Wheat at Berlin closed 1⅛c to 1¼c higher; Buda Pest, ⅜c lower, Paris ¼c to ½c higher, Antwerp unchanged.

Montreal Grain and Produce.

MONTREAL, Aug. 5.—The local grain market continues quiet, with little or no business doing for export. Liverpool's closing is a factor in the present situation, but such enquiries as were received for wheat from the continent were shaded off again from the bids of Saturday, in sympathy with the weaker feeling in the option markets, and proportionately out of line with sellers' views here. As a result no business was done. Oats are quiet, but firm. Export trade in flour is as usual slow at this time of the year, but a fair business is passing to meet local demands.

An easier feeling prevails in the butter market, owing to the decline of prices of Cowansville and Ste. Hyacinthe boards on Saturday. The market was in a waiting position to-day, buyers holding off evidently in the expectation of further lowering of prices. Cheese is firm on the advance at the country boards on Saturday. Eggs are steady.

Montreal Live Stock.

MONTREAL, Aug. 5.—At the Montreal Stock Yards, West End Market, the receipts of live stock for the week were 1,800 cattle, [illegible] calves, [illegible] sheep and lambs and [illegible] hogs. The offerings to-day were 1,100 head of butchers' cattle, [illegible] calves, 2,000 sheep and lambs and [illegible] hogs.

Owing to the large run for the day and the relatively lighter demand the tendency was to lower prices. Top steers, which sold as high as $7.[illegible] per cwt. a week ago, ranged $6.75 to $7. The bulk of the trading was done in cattle, with prices per cwt. from $5.25 to $6.[illegible]. Sheep were easier, with old sheep selling at $[illegible] to $5.50, and lambs, 6¼c to 7c per lb.

The market for hogs was active and irregular. Eastern hogs sold at $8.25 to $8.50 per cwt.; short-run selects, $8.75, and long-run, $9; sows, $[illegible], and stags $4.

East Buffalo Cattle Market.

EAST BUFFALO, Aug. 5.—Cattle—Receipts, 6000 head; active; good to choice steady to strong; common, 15c to 25c lower; prime steers, $9.15 to $[illegible]; shipping, $8.50 to $9; butchers, $[illegible] to $8.75; heifers, $4.50 to $8.50; cows, $3 to $[illegible]; bulls, $4 to $6.25; stockers and feeders, $4.25 to $5.65; stock heifers, $[illegible] to $4.50; fresh cows and springers, steady, $30 to $[illegible].

On the Golf Links at Banff. Alberta

Herd of Buffalo in Canadian National Park, Banff, Alberta

IMAGINE playing golf on a links in the midst of the Canadian Rocky Mountains, five thousand feet above sea level. Sounds almost too good to be true doesn't it? And yet that is what everyone who travels through the Canadian Rockies this summer has the opportunity of doing. At Banff, Alberta in the very midst of the big Canadian National Park, there has recently been opened a new golf course, which is just about the most picturesque links on the continent.

Golf enthusiasts who have played the game on the ordinary country golf links will find the sport at Banff even more fascinating. Here the environments are such as no country club could hope to duplicate. Nestling among the mountains, completely surrounded by gigantic peaks, and with the glacier-fed Bow River flowing throughout its length, the course is superbly located, Nature making it not only one of the highest courses on the American continent, but also one of surpassing beauty.

The links are reached from the Banff Springs hotel by a foot-path which leads directly to the club-house. The house is nicely furnished and provided with all conveniences.

The difficulties that had to be met in building this new course can be realized when it is stated that in preparing for the advent of the golf enthusiast, no less than between five and six thousand trees had to be cut down or removed. Besides this considerable leveling had to be done at the points where the greens are located and altogether the work was a big one.

Now, however, with the links in first class condition, they are proving one of the most popular attractions at Banff. When you come to look into the matter, that is saying a good deal, because Banff has probably more than [illegible] attractions, that please [illegible]. Everybody, of course, who comes to Banff does not play golf, [illegible] the greatest admirers of the game cannot play it all the time, so Banff has taken everybody's welfare to heart and has provided many other attractions. The bathing facilities, for instance, are unsurpassed. Behind the hotel is Sulphur Mountain containing the hot springs that would have brought fame to Banff even if it had not been in so picturesque a locality. The story goes that the engineers, when they were at work on the railway, observed a cloud of smoke continually arising from high up on one of the neighboring mountains. They investigated this curious phenomenon and discovered a great cave through which the smoke emerged. A rope was procured and one of their number was lowered down into the cave, afterwards reporting the presence of a great pool of hot water. The cave itself is covered in by a natural roof of rock and is fed by water from the springs still higher up the mountains. It is not much larger than a goodsized room, but the curious deposits of sulphur about its roof make it well worth a visit. The water at the cave has a temperature of 111.3 degrees Fahrenheit and possesses wonderful curative properties.

Of even greater attractiveness than the cave baths, however are those operated in connection with the Banff Springs Hotel. Here there has been opened this season what is probably the finest bathing establishment on the continent, situated at an altitude of over 5,000 feet above sea level. It is built in the form of three terraces, the outer and lower one of which forms the great semi-circular cold water swimming pool, which is one hundred and twenty feet in diameter and varies from three to five feet in depth. The second terrace contains the sheltered warm sulphur-water pool which is supplied by piping the water direct from the Hot Springs on Sulphur Mountain at the rate of 1,165 gallons per hour. This pool measures 28 feet by 80 feet and varies from 4 feet to 5 feet in depth. The water in the pool is maintained at a temperature of 110 degrees Fahrenheit about five degrees lower than at the source of supply—by the continuous flow of water. The bathing space is enclosed by a screen of plate glass between concrete posts, to protect the bathers against the breezes.

In connection with and adjoining the sulphur plunge, there are ten shower baths, and complete Turkish and Russian baths finished in marble and fitted with all the latest plumbing devices. One hundred dressing rooms are provided at this level and on the third terrace there are the cooling rooms, private sulphur baths, and rooms for the Swedish masseur and his attendants who were brought from Europe to take charge of the bathing establishment.

The roof of the third terrace forms a wide promenade upon which chairs are placed to enable guests to obtain both a view of the bathers below and of the whole magnificent panorama of the mountains. The whole structure is of reinforced concrete and the pools are lined throughout with white glazed tile, and lighted by electricity so that they may be used at night as well as by day.

The pools were designed by Painter and Swales the well known Canadian architects who contrived to give the swimming pools the unique effect of a garden, the only one of its kind on the continent.

The Canadian Rockies are unique for their abnormally high percentage of sunny days, their corresponding minimum of rain, and the entire absence of foggy or misty weather and dew. From the 1st of June to the 1st of October there is practically no rain, except passing showers of short duration, preceded and succeeded by bright sunshine. The climate of Banff is Alpine in character, but it is distinctly drier than the Swiss Alps and has the advantage of having more sunshine. Yet it is seldom ever sultry. This charming town bears a strong resemblance to St. Moritz in the upper Engadine part of Switzerland and the Paracelsus Spring at St Moritz has the same elevation as the main spring at Banff.

Very shortly Banff will be a stop-over point on one of the most magnificent automobile highways in the world. This road is now being built by the Dominion Government, the British Columbian Government and the C. P. R. It starts at Calgary, Alberta, and runs through the mountains to Banff. Near Banff, at Castle, it branches off through the beautiful Vermillion Pass to connect with a road already in existence running from Golden to Cranbrook on the Crow's Nest Pass line of the C. P. R. This section of the road traverses the beautiful and rich Windermere valley, one of British Columbia's best fruit growing districts. From Cranbrook there is a road to MacLeod, from which point there is a good trail to Calgary, making a six hundred mile automobile circuit, which when completed will be unsurpassed as a motor highway.

The carriage drives radiating from Banff are numerous and beautiful in the exereme.

Of the shorter drives "the Loop" is a beautiful roadway around the Bow Valley, in full view of the superb Bow Falls—distance about seven miles—skirting the base of Mount Rundle, to the banks of the Bow Rver. Another pretty drive is along the north side of the Vermillion lakes, as far west as Edith Pass, from where a beautiful and entirely new view of Mount Edith is obtained.

Tunnel Mountain affords another delightful drive to the visitor. A spiral roadway has been cut through a charming wood and from the summit the views up and down the valley of the Bow are superb.

Of the longer trails that have been opened, probably the most important is that up Brewster Creek, at the head of which is a huge glacier. This is the nearest glacier to Banff, and can be made in a day by pack train. A day could be spent here and another making the return journey to Banff, giving an ideal three day trip

For those who wish to go still further from the railway, there is a new trail from Lake Minnewanka, west through Aylmer Pass and down the Ghost River, returning to the Lake by way of the Devil's Gap. There is also another magnificent trail from the Spray Lakes to Kananaskis Loke. The first of these trips require about a week while two weeks can be profitably spent on the second. Both trails open up magnificent country for the fishermen and sportsman.

During the summer season another source of amusement for visitors at Banff are the animal cages near the museum. Here in their steel barred enclosures are fine specimens of bear, mountain lions, deer and all the other big game found in the Canadian Rockies. The Museum itself contains exhibits of the game and also of the fish and bird life to be found within the Park. Indian relics are shown and also pieces of Indian workmanship of more than ordinary interest.

A band of buffalo, relics of the countless thousands which once ruled the central plains of North America, occupy an enclosure near the town. With them are a number of elk and moose, together with other specimens of the wild life of the Northern plains and woods.

For the botanical student the flora of the district present a wide field for research. Here the profusion and variety of wild flowers is greater than in any other part of the continent. Almost every known species of wild flower can be found within a short distance of the Banff Springs Hotel, making the district one good to live in,—a district where "edelweiss and heather, forget-me-nots and wood anemones, blue-bells and ferns convert all the valleys into flower gardens."

In the Aviary there are some two hundred specimens of the bird life of the continent. Of the pheasant family alone there are many varieties, among them being Japanese Golden, Japanese Copper, Mongolians, English Silver, English Ringnecks, Prince of Wales, Rieves, Lady Amherst and Common. The eagle cage is also a great attraction to all visitors. Many other specimens of birds are to be found in the Park, and they are all interesting.

Good opportunities for boating are had on the Vermillion lakes, and on Lake Minnewanka. These are lovely stretches of water and they give the visitor unrivalled views of the giants that surround them. From Banff to Lake Minnewanka is nine miles, the drive skirting Cascade Mountain and following Devil's Head River until the precipitous sides of Devil's Head Canyon are crossed by a rustic bridge. The lake is sixteen miles long, with a width of from one to two miles. Here a launch can be chartered by visitors. This interesting trip usually occupies three hours. Fishing tackle, boats, etc., may be procured, this being a favorite resort for anglers. A cluster of Hoodoos (natural concrete pillars), and the Devil's Gap, on the way to Ghost River, are among the points of interest in this locality.

Truly Banff was born amidst wonderful environments. The very fact that it is in the centre of the Canadian National Rocky Park is evidence of the scenic splendor of its location. This is the largest National playground in the world and contains more than 5,000 square miles of territory within which far flung boundaries there is contained the continent's most magnificent scenery. It is a region unparalleled for majestic mountain ranges, immense ice caps and glaciers, falls and cascades.

Everywhere in the mountain the visitor finds himself in strange surroundings, and over all stand the majestic snow-tipped peak, ever extending a challenge to the newcomer to scale the granite barrier and view a new world, with its endless combinations of light and shade, parks and passes and gorges, always pervaded by a clear electric atmosphere which is a revelation to persons accustomed to living in the close, damp air of the lower altitudes.

It Is Not What I Say
But What My Customers Say
That Has Built My Extensive Business

My aim from the first was to build a reputation purely on recommendation, and every day goes further to prove that I have accomplished this to my entire satisfaction.

REMEMBER my great success is giving satisfaction in every case where I have fitted Glasses for the relief of Eyestrain.

REMEMBER ALSO that your eyes are thoroughly tested when you come to me. If Glasses are found necessary they are fitted to you in a perfect manner, and at a reasonable cost.

If you do not require Glasses I will be pleased to tell you so. I absolutely refuse to supply Glasses in any case that does not need them.

YOUNG LADY MET SUDDEN END AT CHEMONG YESTERDAY

Miss Irene Rosenburg Drowned While Bathing—Three Doctors Work Vainly for Hours to Resuscitate Her.

Miss Irene Rosenburg, of Buffalo, was drowned when she got beyond her depth, while bathing in Lake Chemong yesterday afternoon, about 4.30.

Miss Rosenburg, who is only 17 years old, was in swimming in company with a number of other young people. She could swim only a few strokes, and she got out too far, became confused and immediately sank. Although her companions made every effort to rescue her the body was not located until 25 minutes later, when Mr. William O'Brien, of this city, grappled it with a trawling hook.

Doctors Young, Carmichael and Walmsley were on hand, and worked over the victim for 3 hours untiringly, but their efforts were unavailing. Life was extinct.

Miss Rosenburg had been at the Park for a few days only, and was visiting at the cottage of her friends, Mr. and Mrs. Wyld, of Buffalo. She was very popular among the young people, and her death has cast a gloom over the whole community.

The body was sent back to Buffalo to-day.

ESTIMATED COST OF DALHOUSIE STREET BRIDGE WAS $87,875

City Engineer's Report Was Thought Very High—Matter Laid Over Till Another Time.

The price of $87,875.00 estimated by the City Engineer as the cost of a steel bridge across the Otonabee River at Dalhousie street, appealed to the City Council last night as being too high. It was felt that the matter was of such importance as to warrant a special meeting of Council at a later date when details would be discussed.

Mr. Hay's report was as follows:

To His Worship, the Mayor:

Dear Sir,—As requested I have made an estimate of cost of erecting a bridge across the river on a line parallel with, and distant northerly 200 feet from the line of the Canadian Pacific Railway, from the end of Dalhousie street to a point on the east bank 75 feet south of the end of Maria street, into which street the eastern approach will gradually merge at the south end of Engleburn Ave.

The total length of river crossing including embankments, will be 793 feet, consisting of three spans of steel truss, 125 ft. each, and embankments 250 feet long where the line of bridge intersects the islands, and 150 feet long from east approach.

The plan provides for a roadway 27 ft. 4 in., total width, consisting of space in centre, 8 feet wide for single track street railway, and roadway 9 ft. 8 in. wide on each side, clear of car. Sidewalks 6 feet clear width on each side, hung outside of truss work.

It is possible that objections may be raised by Department of Railways and Canals to the plan submitted by reason of insufficient waterway, necessitating an additional span, and thereby shortening embankment. In which event the cost of bridge would be considerably increased.

There is also the possibility of a demand for a swing span for navigation purposes, in which case the Government might be expected to assume the cost, which would reduce the amount payable by the City.

In order to procure required material for forming embankments and approaches in addition to what can be got by cutting down hill on Maria street, it may be necessary to purchase a borrow pit in the vicinity, or as an alternative, a temporary trestle work could be used and the embankments raised gradually by dumping waste material, which would be a very slow process.

On the east bank the approach from Maria St. will cross over a vacant piece of land, the whole of which should be acquired.

As the nature of river-bed is unknown, I have included in estimate an amount for driving piles for foundation of abutments and piers. This may be found unnecessary, on examination, when excavations have been made, with a reduction in cost of $1,500 or $2,000.

Owing to the fact that an estimate is required at once, I have not been able to get all information desirable, but have based it on sufficiently high prices for the various items included.

The estimate is as follows:

Excavation, unwatering and pile driving	$ 4800 00
Machinery, pumping and power	2100 00
Reinforced, concrete, abutments and piers	18840 00
Steel superstructure, 3 spans of 125 feet	43125 00
Hand-rail, lamps and conduits	1125 00
Deck of roadway, asphalt on concrete	4687 00
Sidewalks (on steel superstructure only)	675 00
Embankments, approaches and rip-rap	5012 00
Land purchase on east approach	3000 00
Engineering and supervision	2411 00
Interst. debentures and legal expenses	2100 00
	$87875 00

Sketch plan herewith explains the position of proposed bridge.

Yours truly,
T. A. S. HAY,
City Engineer.

AUTOMOBILE FACTORY WILL ESTABLISH IN PETERBOROUGH

If By-law is Endorsed by Rate-payers on Sept. 5th.—Concessions Asked Are Mild.

At the meeting of the City Council last night, a by-law to aid what will be known as the Canadian McIntyre Automobile Company Limited passed its first two readings.

For some time past Council has been in negotiating with the above company, with the result that a by-law, specifying the conditions upon which the firm must commence operations here, was drafted.

Briefly stated, the proposal is, that the firm purchase the site, east of Mark Street in East City upon which to erect a building for the manufacture of automobiles, and employ, at least thirty hands. The city must agree to repay the firm $2346.00 the cost of the site, and grant a fixed assessment for the period of ten years.

The terms require that that sum of $111.44 be raised annually for twenty years, and $79.79 to be raised annually during the same period, making in all $191.23 to be raised annually for the above mentioned period by the city.

The Company, under the conditions enacted by Council, must guarantee to commence operations on or before the thirty-first day of December, 1912 employing at least twenty hands at commencement, and after the first year, at least, thirty operatives. The Company must have on or before Dec. 31st., 1913, have erected on the site chosen, a brick building suitable for its business, at least 150 feet by 50 feet, and have the same equipped with suitable machinery and a plant costing at least $5000.

The vote of the electors on the by-law will be taken on Sept. 5th, 1912, and if it carries, the by-law will undergo its third reading.

ITALIANS OUT FOR JOY RIDE

No Motor Car for Them, Just an Ordinary Rig.

Two natives of Sunny Itlay, who who had evidently been partaking too freely of the stuff that cheers, were, as a result of the frequent imbibings incapable of managing a runaway horse. This occurred on Park street yesterday. When the jovial pair reached a crossing, their happiness prevented them from seeing a woman crossing the street with a baby carriage, and it was only by the merest chance that the buggy missed them. A little farther along, a small sapling was knocked over when the tree got in the road of the madly careering rig. At the next corner they turned around for the open country, with two wheels on the ground and the other two in the air. It is still uncertain whether the happy couple have reached the city yet.

There's no excuse for failure unless you yearn for the unattainable.

AUTO REPAIRS AT HOME

Get Your Work Done at Millard's on Hunter Street.

There is no longer any need for automobilists to send their tubes and tires to Toronto to be vulcanised; neither is there any use of their pulling and sweating at a hand pump, when the tires need inflating, when it may be done in a few seconds by the air compressor with a pipe leading to the road, at Millard's shop on Hunter street. The air is free and may be used at any time of the day. All kinds of repairing done, both rapidly and satisfactorily.

A HAND SLEIGH IN AUGUST

A boy, a hand sleigh and a roll of carpet, was one of the star attractions in the city to-day, as the combination made its weary way along King street. The outfit was from a second hand store, the carpet being for a customer on Park street, and the sleigh was nothing so much as noticeably out of place. The steel clad runner almost drew sparks from the ashphalt pavement and the boy was weary and perspiring. When cross-examined by some spectators as to his object in so rushing the season, the boy replied that anything was better than carrying the carpet and that no other vehicle was available.

THE PROBLEM OF EXCESS BAGGAGE

Discussing the recent order of the Dominion Railway Commission placing discriminatory charges on all trunks in excess of a certain size, Mr. J. E. Quick, General Baggage Agent of the Grand Trunk Railway, said in an interview the other day: "The problem of the increased size of baggage receptacles has been made acute for the railway companies by the fact that the width of baggage cars cannot be increased. They run, as a rule, from 102 to 104 inches, and baggage is stowed away in two rows so as to leave an aisle down the centre of the car. When the length of trunks is excessive this cannot be done. The cars cannot accommodate nearly so many trunks of increased length and so the number of baggage cars per train would have to be made greater. It is planned by the railway companies to allot only one baggage car per passenger train and when two have to be employed it increases the expense of haulage and the weight of the train as well as diminishing its speed all of which are important factors in these modern days of high speed and fine estimates of the cost of operation. The carriers consider that it would be unnecessarily harsh to prohibit altogether large trunks, but that the imposition of a moderate penalty will tend to discourage their use in future. When the passengers become used to the new regulation the companies will decline to accept baggage above a definite size. The railways are permitted by the order in question to make an extra charge for each inch in excess of 45 inches." It is understood that the Canadian companies will wait before enforcing the order for the passage of a similar measure by the Interstate Commerce Commission so that Canadian and United States baggagemen may act in concert in the matter.

ALD. W. J. JOHNSTON RESIGNS

Chairman of Fire, Water and Light, Was Incensed Over Defeat of His Motion Calling for Chief Howard's Dismissal.

REFUSED TO RECONSIDER THE DECISION

When the meeting of the city council opened all the members were present at the regular meeting last night, save Ald. Graham. He dropped in later.

A large number of communications were read and referred to the various committees.

Mr. Thomas Lane was heard regarding the erection of a stable at 248 Hunter street, a storey and a half in height.

Ald. Johnston thought the request of Mr. Lane was quite reasonable. Mr. Lane wanted permission to use only a nine inch wall upon which to build the structure, although such was in contradiction to the building by-law. Ald. Johnston felt that the request was but another evidence of the necessity for the revision of the building by-law.

Ald Gillespie moved that Mr. Lane's request be granted, as it was quite reasonable and right. Seconded by Ald Johnston and carried.

Mr Eastwood was present to explain how the walls of the addition to his Hunter street building came to go up, in violation of the conditions laid down by the Council. Mr. Eastwood claimed that Mr. Rutherford said he could not build a nine inch brick wall upon the lower 11 inch wall. Mr. Eastwood said that Mr. Rutherford had certainly made a splendid job, and that the building was doubly fire-proof.

Ald Johnston—"I quite agree with what Mr. Eastwood says about it being a good job. But that building is in a district where the fire by-law requires certain conditions. But the thing is that the way it is now is not quite safe, as a nine inch wall would be. I think, therefore, that Mr. Rutherford is to be censured for what he has done."

Ald Duncan—"I think he should be made to live up to the by-law conditions."

Ald Morgan—"We grant a privilege one night and rescind it the next, if we allow Mr. Rutherford to have his way in this matter."

Moved by Ald. Buller, that the matter be referred to the city engineer to report, seconded by Ald. Gillespie.—Carried.

In the meantime Mr. Eastwood must hold back any further work on the building until the report is submitted.

Mr Michael Donohue, corner Hunter and Aylmer street, was present, and lodged a complaint against the way he was being taxed for the removal of the garbage.

Referred to the Property Committee.

The report of the chairman of the Board of Works was read and adopted, after the alteration of the clause relating to the construction of the building over the Hunter street creek to what was agreed upon by council.

The Finance Committee report was read and adopted, as was that of the legal committee.

HOW IT STARTED.

Ald. Johnston reviewed steps that had been taken to secure a successor for Chief Howard. He said that on instructions he had visited Chief Thompson, of Toronto, in reference to securing a successor for Chief Howard. Chief Thompson told Ald. Johnston that he had several promising looking men in view, especially one who was away on his holidays.

Ald. Johnston read a letter which he had since received from Chief Thompson, in which he stated that several likely men had refused to leave him. The men stated that a salary of $1,500 would not tempt them to come. Chief Thompson also advised retaining Chief Howard until a successor could be obtained.

Ald. Johnston also referred to the council's tenders for uniforms for the firemen. Mr. J. L. Anderson, the tailor, claims he received instructions from Chief Howard to make a civilian's suit for the Chief, contrary to the council's orders.

Ald. Johnston further stated that the Chief violates the rules governing the fire hall, compelling sufficient men to be always at the hall, under competent command. On four different occasions on which the chairman had visited the hall at meal hours, he found only four or five men there, and the Chief absent. He claimed that this left the fire hall undermanned.

Moved by Ald. Johnston that Chief W. A. Howard be informed that his services will not be required after September 30th, and that the Fire, Water and Light Committee be authorized to advertise for a successor. Seconded by Ald. Duncan.

Ald. Gillespie—"It is a serious matter to leave the brigade at the present time without a competent man. I strongly favor advertising before asking for the resignation of the Chief."

Mayor Bradburn was in favor of advertising for a successor, as Ald. Gillespie suggested.

Ald Anderson, on thinking the matter over, said that he did not think that the latest offence of the Chief warranted his dismissal. Moreover, he felt that no local man was competent to fill the position, and that it would be difficult to secure a successor save at a salary of $1,800 to $2,000.

Ald. Duffus put himself on record as not in favor of dismissing the Chief.

"I believe we have one of the best fire fighters in in Canada," he said.

The motion introduced by Ald. Gillespie was again placed before the council for vote.

Ald Johnston, Duncan, Morgan and Graham voted aye, the others nay.

The motion was lost.

Ald Johnston immediately tendered his resignation, avowing that under no consideration would he remain at the head of the Fire, Water and Light Committee.

"I am out of the Cabinet," he announced definitely.

Asked to reconsider his resignation, he flatly refused.

Ald Graham said that he would move that Ald. Johnston's resignation be accepted, but no seconder was forthcoming.

Ald. Graham was asked to put his recommendation in form of notice of motion.

TRIED THE GAME HERE

Arthur Jarry Once Failed to Victimize Local Merchants.

Arthur Jarry, the Canadian lumber Jack, who is now in trouble in Buffalo, played his favorite role as an alleged bonanza striker from Cobalt, on a visit to Peterborough about a year ago. He tried his game on several local merchants, but the latter were not so gullible as the business men of Toronto and Buffalo and the young man with the stories of untold riches faded from sight before the police had a chance to cultivate his acquaintance.

NO BOGUS BILLS HERE

Local Bank Manager Discredits Story From Lindsay.

The Lindsay Warder alleges that there are two secret service men in that town looking for bogus one dollar bills, numbered 508,269, which the Warder claims have been in circulation for some time. The bills are said to be such clever imitations that even the banks have been deceived.

The manager of a local bank said to the Review this morning that no such counterfeits have ever been circulated here. The story from Lindsay, he added, is improbable on the face of it, because a clever counterfeiter never confines his efforts to the reproduction of a bill of so small a denomination as one dollar.

WON TWO MORE FROM GUELPH; PETES ARE FORGING AHEAD

Tracey and Osborne Twirled—Former Petes' Pitch'rs Lost Their Game.

The White Caps made it five straight wins from the Guelph Maple Leafs, when they won both the games yesterday, the first by a score of 3—0, the second [illegible] the pitching of Osborne and Tracey was too much for Guelph. The Petes won the afternoon game in the last innings, when Dunn misjudged Nichols' fly to centre and let in three runs.

Guelph's only run was in the first innings, when Dunn hit a home run.

Both the Guelph pitchers, Ballinger and Schaeffer, were once with the White Caps, but were released for indifferent work. Schaeffer in Tempin's time and Ballinger last Thursday.

ONE DOSE WAS ENOUGH.

Too Much Prosperity, He Feared, Might Prove His Undoing.

A lawyer picked his way to the edge of the subway excavation and called down for Michael Finnerty.

"Who's wantin' me?" inquired a large, rawboned voice.

"I am," said the lawyer. "Mr. Finnerty, did you come from Castlebar, County Mayo?"

"I did."

"And was your mother named Mary and your father Owen?"

"They was."

"Then, Mr. Finnerty," said the lawyer, "it is my duty to inform you that your Aunt Kate has died in the old country, leaving you an estate of $20,000 in cash."

There was a pause and a commotion down below.

"Mr. Finnerty," called the lawyer, craning his neck over the trench, "are you coming?"

"In wan minute," said Mr. Finnerty. "I just stopped to lick the foreman!"

For six months Mr. Finnerty, in a high hat and with hard shoes on his feet, lived a life of elegant ease, trying to cure himself of a great thirst. Then he went back to his old job at one seventy-five a day. It was there in the excavation that the lawyer found him the second time.

"Mr. Finnerty," he said, "I've more news for you. It is your Uncle Terence who's dead now in the old country, and he has left you another twenty thousand."

"I don't think I can take it," said Mr. Finnerty, leaning wearily on his pick. "I'm not as strong as I wance was, and I'm doubtin' if I could go through all that ag'in and live!"

The Great Amazon River.

In South as in North America nature does her work on the grand scale, and one of her noblest achievements is the Amazon river. Rising in the Andes, it flows across the continent and discharges into the Atlantic ocean at the equator. The vastness of the area which it drains, amounting to 2,368,000 square miles, will be evident when it is borne in mind that this is more than the area of Russia in Europe and Austria-Hungary. It has a length of nearly 4,000 miles, is navigable for 2,300 miles from the sea and is fed by numerous streams, which in any other country would be ranked as great rivers. In the wet season, which lasts for about eight months, its width varies from five miles to 400. No wonder the Amazon has been called a gigantic reservoir rather than a river.

SEALED TENDERS addressed to the undersigned, and endorsed "Tender for Supplying Coal for the Dominion Buildings," will be received at this office until 4.00 P.M., on Wednesday, August 28, 1912, for the supply of Coal for the Public Buildings throughout the Dominion.

Combined specification and form of tender can be obtained on application at this office.

Persons tendering are notified that tenders will not be considered unless made on the printed forms supplied, and signed with their actual signatures.

Each tender must be accompanied by an accepted cheque on a chartered bank, payable to the order of the Honourable the Minister of Public Works, equal to ten per cent (10 p c) of the amount of the tender, which will be forfeited if the person tendering decline to enter into a contract when called upon to do so, or fail to complete the contract. POSSIBLE HEIR TO TAYLOR MONEY

Lorne A. Taylor of Nappan Station N.S. Claims Relationship

Another possible heir to the Taylor millions has been heard from. The Mayor of Montreal has received a letter from Mr. Lorne A. Taylor, of Nappan Station, Cumberland county, N.S., stating that he believes himself to be a descendant of the Scottish minister, who is said to have left an estate of $25,000,000, and about whose heirs inquiries are being made from Scotland.

Mr. Taylor states that his grandfather, the late Geo. Taylor, came from Scotland with a brother and one or two sisters when he was eight years old.

Handing Out a Hint.

School Director (to teacher) — We were thinking of having a nice motto framed and put over your desk to encourage the children. How would "Knowledge Is Wealth" do?

Teacher—That wouldn't do at all. The children know how small my salary is, and they might draw conclusions of their own.

Easy to Answer.

"Why is a burglar's tool called a 'jimmy?'"

"For the same reason that a policeman's tool is called a 'billy.' What else would you like to know about?"

As Others Knew Her.

"She seems to be a natural flirt," he said.

"Natural?" the woman impatiently replied. "There's nothing natural about her but the framework."

VETERAN "BOB" HARRISON LAYS DOWN THE BATON

Toronto's Best Known Officer Retires to Private Life—Was Once a Familiar Figure in Peterborough and Lindsay.

"Bob" Harrison, probably one of the most familiar figures on the Toronto police force, to the travelling public, has laid down his staff of office and will take up the life of a civilian. The ex-constable is well remembered in Peterboro as an old time athlete and a champion in the manly arts of wrestling and tossing the caber. He was a resident of Lindsay in the eighties, when he was a railway employe.

The Toronto Star pays the veteran officer, on the eve of his retirement, the compliment of an extended notice in which it says—

Robert N. Harrison, for six years the constable of Scarboro Beach Park, Toronto, and formerly at the King Edward Hotel and the Union Station and also at one time a well-known resident of Lindsay, has banded in his resignation and given up his duties at the east end amusement Park.

Mr. Harrison was one of the best known figures to the travelling public of a decade back, when he was on gate duty at the Union Station. For twenty-two years, he was employed first at the old station and then at the present Union Station. The first person to pass through the doorway to the trains in the station had his ticket examined by Mr. Harrison and was directed to the track where his train was standing. After his twenty-two years service as a constable, Mr. Harrison felt the desire to secure outdoor employment and purchased a farm in York County, with his earnings that he had saved. When the King Edward Hotel opened, the management sought the services of the former station officer and he returned to the city and was employed for six months at the hotel. Then, through the personal urging of the late President C. M. Hays, of the Grand Trunk, Mr. Harrison returned to his former post at the station as supervisor, but the few years he had spent on the farm brought about the desire for the out-of-door work, and when Scarboro Beach was opened in 1906, Mr. Harrison was engaged as the park constable and now retires from active work to look after some horses in which he has taken a great interest. For several months he has been trying to attend to the horses as well as his duties at the park, but both were impossible, and Mr. Harrison decided to give up his position.

In his younger days, Bob Harrison was an athlete. In tossing the caber and putting the shot and in hammer throw he carried off the laurels at many a field day. It was as a wrestler, however, that he became best known.

PETERBORO'S FALL FAIR IS TO BE BETTER THAN EVER

Attractions Secured for the Midway Will Form a Good Sized Show Themselves—Prize List to be Issued in a Day or Two.

The Peterborough Industrial Exhibition, which will be held September 12, 13 and 14, will be concluded along the same general lines as those of former years, but the coming show will be bigger and better in every respect. To accomplish this end the Board of Directors are sparing neither time nor labor.

This year the shows on the Midway will eclipse anything ever before offered in Peterborough, and Secretary F. J. Hall has closed contracts with the best talent on the market. Claude Hamilton, of Cincinnati, O., will be at the Fair with a tent 160x60 feet, in which not a foot of space is wasted. It will contain ten pits of living curiosities, chief among which will be a witch, a midget, a Hercules, Adelka, the Voltex woman, and the ossified man. The latter is probably the greatest curiosity in existence, a living man, every part of whose body has turned into solid bone. The witch is a weird relic of olden days, when the members of that sult, famed for eldritch screeches and broomstick tides, were when captured ruthlessly burned at the stake that the populace might escape the influence of the evil eye. The midget is the smallest tot of humanity so far discovered, and the strong man is warranted to perform feats of strength, the like of which has never yet been equalled. This show has been booked for all the leading fairs in Canada, including the Toronto Exhibition.

Kenny and Cardell, of New York, will be on the Midway with a Ferris wheel and a merry-go-round, for the benefit of those who hanker for an aerial flight, or a ride around the endless circle.

Gills' United Midway Show, that was so popular at the last fair, will be here again this year with a new list of attractions. The nature student will find rare specimens here from members of the reptile tribe to the higher branches of the animal kingdom.

All these attractions are offered in addition to the regular performance, which will, as usual, be given every afternoon and evening in front of the grand stand. For this part of the program the Cora Youngblood Sextette have been engaged, an aggregation of half a dozen handsome young ladies, who will appear in their entertaining musical acts. Besides this trio other first-class vaudeville acts will be put on the boards.

Prof. Hand, of Hamilton, will give an exhibition of fireworks on Thursday and Friday evenings of the Fair.

The prize list will be out in a day or two, and a copy will be sent to each member at once. Any others who desire to obtain a copy will be accommodated if they send a postal card to Secretary Hall.

The directors have applied to the Provincial Government for judges for light and heavy horses, beef and dairy cattle and poultry. These judges, it can be taken for granted, will be experts in their various departments, and, as strangers in the city, naturally free from bias, so that all exhibitors in these classes may rely upon a just verdict upon the merits of their exhibits.

DOCTORS WILL DISCUSS A NEW KIND OF RECIPROCITY

Canadian Medical Association at Its Meeting in Edmonton Will Advocate Free Trade in the Medical World.

Peterborough may be represented at the meeting of the Canadian Medical Association, which will be held in Edmonton, August 10th to 14th inclusive, as several physicians are talking of going. The distance and the time consequently required to make the trip is all that prevents a large delegation of local doctors from attending. This is the first time in the history of the Association that an annual meeting has been held west of Winnipeg.

Medical reciprocity will be one of the most important and interesting questions to be discussed.

Medicos from all parts of the British empire will be present, and prominent among them will be Dr. A. E. Giles, of London, England, who is a recognized authority on diseases. He is attached to the Chesley hospital in London. Dr. Giles will address the convention on surgery.

The Roderick bill of medical reciprocity will, it is believed, be discussed at length, the Canadian medicos especially being interested in it. Ramification of this bill would enable all medical men within the British empire to practice his profession anywhere, without first taking examination, providing he had passed successful initial examinations. Of course Canadian medical men registered in Great Britain are permitted to practise their profession in Australia, but those there and elsewhere are not allowed to come to Canada or vice versa and practice without first successfully passing the standard examination.

Other questions of importance will also be dealt with by prominent medical men of Toronto and Montreal.

Edmonton members of the profession are arranging for pleasure parties garden parties, etc.; also for the mayor and members of the council to visit the university. It is also planned to take in the Yellow Head Pass, the corresponding point to Banff from the C.P.R.

CAPT. WILLIAMS VISITING HERE

Old Military Man at Port Hope Visiting Here.

Captain C. H. Williams, of Port Hope, who retired from the command of the Port Hope squadron of the 3rd Dragoons, in 1883, is still hale and hearty, though evidently well up in years. He was in the city yesterday for the first time in nine years and dined with his daughter, Mrs. O. M. Wallbridge at the Oriental Hotel.

Captain Williams is one of those affable, friendly old veterans, with whom it is a pleasure to chat. He likes to recall old incidents of by gone days, when the blood was young in his veins, and to speak of experiences dim in the memory, but which when recalled cause the eye to sparkle.

One incident in particular which Captain Williams remembers well was a banquet tendered the officers of the Dragoons by W. H. Scott, M. P. for West Peterborough, many years ago.

The member cracked a good joke at the banquet when he stated that while the Dragoons might be good at charging, they had serious rivals in the lawyers—of which profession he was a member—when it came down to a matter of "charging"—meaning fees.

Captain Williams had a touch of rheumatism about nine years ago which confined him to Nicholls Hospital. He is now quite recovered, and is going the rounds of the city renewing old acquaintances and extending the glad hand.

ROOSEVELT'S NEW POLICY SIZZLES WITH ANARCHY

Advocates Recall of the State and Federal Judges and Other Public Officials—Repudiates His Own Canal Treaty With England.

Chicago, Aug. 7.—Declaring that the United States stood upon the brink of a revolution and that neither of old party platforms dealt with any of the great social and economic problems which are now commanding attention from the statesmen of all other countries in the world, Col. Theodore Roosevelt, in his speech to the National Progressive Convention urged the necessity for a new political party. Progressive ideas he declared to be neither socialistic nor anarchistic; they were in truth a corrective for socialism and an antidote for anarchy. The trusts in his opinion should be regulated, with Governmental control of prices and wages. The Republican party was represented as willing to foster monopoly rather than endanger business, while the Democratic party sought to prevent the present unequal distribution of prosperity by bringing on a financial panic and doing away with the prosperity itself.

Col. Roosevelt's speech was a carefully prepared effort, restrained in tone and studied in statement, lacking much of the fire which characterised his stump speeches during the campaign for the Republican nomination. He dealt in no personalities and frankly admitted the possibility of the Progressive party meeting with defeat in its first campaign. He took sharp issues with the Democratic position on the tariff question, declaring himself in favor of the principle of protection. He recommended the creation of a non-partizan permanent tariff commission, to be composed of scientific experts. He denounced as dangerous to all progress the revival of the doctrine of "states right," which figures so prominently in the Baltimore platform. He did not refer to the Canadian reciprocity treaty except in inference, when he declared against reducing the tariff duties on farm products. He favored building up the navy, fortifying the Panama Canal and exempting from tolls American vessels engaged in the coasting trade.

The outstanding feature of the address was an appeal for advance legislation respecting the social, industrial and economic conditions of the people. Col. Roosevelt declared himself in favor of practically all the measures of reform now prominent in England, including the insurance of workmen against accident, trade diseases, unemployment, old age and death. He also declared himself in favor of the Government regulating, in some cases at least, the hours of labor, the wages of employes and the selling price of products of concerns engaged in interstate commerce. By such regulations he believed that the trust evil could be mitigated to the benefit alike of the workers and the public. Such regulations in his opinion should prohibit night work for women and children and should limit the labor of those employed in the "continuous industries" to 48 hours a week. No scheme was submitted, however, for any revision of the constitution, although the colonel reaffirmed his faith in the review of judicial decisions, the recall of officials, the short ballot and the referendum.

Referring to the opening sentence of his address, namely, "that we are now in the midst of a great economic revolution," Mr. Roosevelt presents an advanced and comprehensive plan to insure the rights and better conditions for labor. He gives it the paramount place in his speech. "The first charge upon the industrial statesmanship of the day," he said, "is to prevent human waste. The dead weight of orphanage and depleted craftmanship, of crippled workers and workers suffering from trade diseases, of casual labor, of insecure old age, and of household depletion due to industrial conditions are, like our depleted soils, our gashed mountain-sides and flooded river bottoms, so many strains upon the national structure, draining the reserve strength of all industries, and showing beyond all peradventure the public element and public concern in industrial health."

Col. Roosevelt will go to the convention again to-day after the nominations have been made, and in a brief speech will accept the honor. This simple ceremony probably will do away with the necessity for a formal notification ceremony.

There seemed to be no change last night in the plan to nominate Governor Hiram W. Johnson of California as the colonel's running mate. A vice-presidential boom for Judge Ben B. Lindsay of Colorado gained some headway during the day, but was practically abandoned last night.

PRESCOTT PEOPLE STEAL A MARCH

The G.T.R. Terminal Has Been Won From Brockville.

Brockville, Aug. 7.—According to an agreement entered into between the Grand Trunk Railway and the Town of Prescott, the company will remove its terminals from Brockville to Prescott within the next two years in consideration of a fixed assessment, cheap water and light and the building by the corporation of a subway at a dangerous crossing at an estimated cost of $25,000.

The Grand Trunk binds itself to expend $150,000 in terminal facilities, and has already 845 acres of land purchased or under option to meet the requirements of the new engine shops and yards. The change will mean the removal from Brockville of at least 500 men, who represent a pay roll of about $350,000 annually. All that now remains to give Prescott a boom is ratification by the ratepayers of a bylaw authorizing the subway expenditure and necessary land purchases, which it is said will carry by a sweeping majority.

Brockville has been a terminal of the Grand Trunk since its construction fifty-seven years ago.

OFFICERS ELECTED

Next Meeting of Ontario Association to be Held in Hamilton

St. Mary's Ont., Aug. 7.—The Firemen's Association of Ontario will meet in Hamilton next year. This was the decision arrived at yesterday. The following officers were elected for the coming year: Past president, Thomas A. Skinner, Niagara Falls; president, Thomas Hastings, Merritton; first vice-president, John Caven, Paris; second vice-president, Frank Ekins, Thorold; secretary, W. J. Armstrong, West Toronto; treasurer, Geo. Ekins, Thorold. The following were elected life members: Frank Ekins, Thorold; Michael Skelly, Paris; J. Cavan, Paris; George Ekins, Thorold, and John Little, Milton.

United States Marines to Front.

Washington, Aug. 7.—Marines from Panama have been ordered to Nicaragua to supplement the force of bluejackets now in Managua guarding Americans and their property. The collier Justin, now steaming from San Juan Sur, was yesterday ordered to Panama to embark 350 marines for Corino.

Lionel Rothschild to Wed.

London, Aug. 7.—The engagement is announced of Lionel de Rothschild, M.P., and Marie Louise, youngest daughter of Mme. Edmond Beer of Paris, and sister of Baroness Robert de Rothschild.

Lionel Nathan de Rothschild was born in 1882, and sits in the House of Commons for the Aylesbury division of Buckinghamshire.

ST. LUKE'S CONGREGATIONAL EXCURSION TO STONY LAKE AND POINTS.

Reserve Friday, August 16th, for the best excursion of the season, per steamer Stoney Lake, over the lift lock to Stony Lake and return. Adults 60c. Children 30c.

WELLAND VOTES FOR HYDRO POWER

Private Interests Beaten in a Battle of Ballots.

Welland, Aug. 7.—Welland citizens yesterday carried the Hydro-Electric bylaw to provide for an expenditure of $45,000 for a municipally-owned plant. The vote was 388 to 183 in favor of the bylaw, although a desperate attempt was made to defeat it.

A gang of men, it is alleged, were imported from Buffalo and personation was in evidence. Chief Lang, late in the afternoon, arrested Samuel B. Morris of 73 Aldridge street, Buffalo, on a charge of impersonating R. B. Keeler of Grand Halley. At first he made denials, but later admitted his guilt. He was taken before Magistrate Burgar and remanded.

A second member of the party, which is said to have numbered five, was driven rapidly to the trolley station with the chief in pursuit, but the fugitive boarded an outgoing car and escaped.

Evidence is also to hand, it is said, of the buying of votes, and altogether Welland has experienced the most exciting election incident of her career. Ald. McKay, chairman of the light committee, states that a full investigation will be made of the alleged fraudulent practices.

Western University Appointments.

London, Aug. 7.—At a meeting of the board of governors of the Western University yesterday afternoon, it was decided, on the recommendation of Prof. Hill, director of the Institute of Public Health, to appoint Prof. Slack of New York as professor of chemistry, and Prof. Fiddler of Hamilton as professor of bacteriology and pathology to the staff of the institution.

Brantford's Labor Alderman.

Brantford, Aug. 7.—William Sutch, Labor candidate, was elected alderman in ward four here yesterday, succeeding C. H. Emerson, who was recently appointed industrial commissioner. The fight was a three-cornered one, with the vote as follows: Sutch 288, W. J. Mellen 151, J. W. Bowlby 91.

Teacher for Juvenile Court.

Montreal, Aug. 7.—Sheriff Lemieux has started an innovation in the juvenile court, by appointing a teacher for the instruction of illiterate children under detention awaiting trial.

LATEST PICTURE OF COLONEL "TEDDY."

THEODORE ROOSEVELT

Here is the latest picture taken of Colonel Roosevelt. It was made on the day that he announced to the country that he would again be a candidate for the Presidency.

When not leading the new Progressive party by the nose he holds it in the hollow of his hand.

PRESIDENT TAFT TO HAVE CONTROL OF PANAMA CANAL

A Governor Will be Appointed to Administer the Whole Concern—Senator Root Stands Firmly by the Hay-Paunceforte Treaty.

Washington, Aug. 7.—The future of the Panama Canal will rest in the hands of a "one-man government" through the decision of the Senate yesterday, to support a plan already endorsed by the House of Representatives. By a vote of 43 to 14 it adopted a provision giving the President control of all affairs at Panama, with power to appoint a governor to "complete, govern and operate" the canal and canal zone.

Spurred on by a special message from President Taft, urging the need of immediate legislation to provide for the organisation of a canal operating force, the Senate made marked progress yesterday on the canal bill. The question of tolls and the proposed free passage of American ships was under discussion when adjournment was taken last night.

Senator Burton moved to strike out that section which would exempt American coastwise traffic from payment of tolls. Senator Brandegee opposed it on the ground that it was not good business. He said he did not believe the United States had the right under the British treaty to exempt American vessels, but that that was not the reason he opposed the free toll provision.

"The fact that he had a diplomatic note from Great Britain is absolutely immaterial and irrelevant to me," he said.

Senator Lodge declared the United States, if compelled to go before The Hague court with the question of its rights to exempt American ships, would surely lose its case, "no matter how good it was." The only alternative he said would be to refuse to go to The Hague, or else to drop the free toll provision and accept his plan of governmental rebate, or subsidy equal to the amount of toll.

Senator Root expressed the opinion that the United States did not have any right of sovereignty at Panama which would exempt the canal from the provisions of the Hay-Pauncefote treaty.

"I know of no higher rule of ethics," he added, "than that which requires nations to observe good faith in relation to their treaties."

SIR CHAS. FITZPATRICK.

The rumor that he was to be appointed to the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council, falls flat. He has been a member of that body since 1908 and for the past month has been attending its sittings in his official capacity.

NEW YORK COP ENDS HIS LIFE

The Police Scandal Drives One Officer to Suicide.

New York, Aug. 7.—James Tobin, a mounted patrolman, who was attached to the College Point police precinct, shot and killed himself yesterday. Worry over the present police scandal, although personally not in the least affected by its revelations, is supposed to have caused him to take his life. Tobin said before he killed himself:

"A man might as well be dead as to be a policeman. Everybody thinks a cop's a crook. Even if you get off the force people are suspicious of you, just because you were once on the police force."

To "look after" your business interests means answering a good many want ads in the year's course. It may mean some of that work TO-DAY.

SIR GEORGE REID AGAINST UNITY

London, Aug. 7.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—Sir George Reid, Australian High Commissioner, prior to sailing for Canada yesterday, declared that he did not agree with the demand for a closer Empire unity. The fewer and more slender the ties had become, the more loyal and attached were the Dominions to the Mother Country. Law and progress must assert itself, and the Dominions cannot remain in their present state, but he had not met the man who could bind them afresh.

Australians had a great belief in their capacities and destinies, but though they were great, they were not unmindful of the home whence it came. If ever the clouds threatened, he added, none would more readily respond to the call than the gallant, devoted Australians.

WILL PROBE HORRORS

English Government to Suppress Atrocities in Peru.

London, Aug. 7.—Premier Asquith, in reply to a question in the House of Commons yesterday, stated that the British Government had decided to appoint a select Parliamentary committee of enquiry into the atrocities reported by Sir Roger Casement to have occurred in the Putumayo rubber district of Peru.

The questioner requested the Government to enquire if any responsibility for the outrages rested on the British directors of the rubber company.

Lima, Peru, newspapers assert that reports of the outrages in the rubber fields were spread to discredit the Arana family, whose influence in the Peruvian Amazon Co. was unpalatable to some of the British shareholders.

Duluth Strike Over.

Duluth, Aug. 7.—The strike of freight handlers on the Northern Pacific docks is ended. At a meeting yesterday the men voted to accept the recommendation of the council arbitration committee.

The terms of the compromise are 22 1-2 cents an hour for merchandise, 35 cents for cement, no discrimination against the men, and pay for time lost in shifting ships.

LATEST REVOLT IN NICARAGUA

Government Forces Are Victorious in First Battle.

Managua, Nicaragua, Aug. 7.—(By wireless to Colon.)—The revolution has rapidly extended. Gen. Mena established his headquarters at Masaya, and tried to enter into an alliance with the Liberals, and especially with the followers of the former dictator Zelaya against whom he fought two years ago.

A letter was captured by the Government troops on Aug. 2, which was signed by Gen. Mena and several partizans of Zelaya. It was addressed to certain Liberal leaders of the Province of Leon.

The allies captured two boats belonging to the American company which operates the service on the great lakes, and also seized the American railroad, taking possession of one locomotive, and a number of cars. They tore up a portion of the track near Masaya. The trains, however, continued running on their regular schedule to Corinto under American management, but communication with Granada was cut.

The first engagement between the Government troops and the rebels occurred at Tipitapa on Lake Managua. The Government forces were victorious and held the place. Several wounded men were brought to Managua.

SENTENCE HAS BEEN RESERVED

The Quartette of Suffragettes Found Guilty at Dublin.

Dublin, Ireland, Aug. 7.—Four militant suffragists were put on trial here yesterday on the charge of having committed serious outrages at the time of the visit to Dublin of the British Prime Minister. Gladys Evans was found guilty of setting fire, on July 18, to the Theatre Royal, where Mr. Asquith was scheduled to speak the following day on home rule. The charge against Mabel Capper, who was accused of being an accomplice of Gladys Evans, was withdrawn, while Lizzie Baker, also charged as an accomplice, pleaded guilty to damaging property.

The jury disagreed in the case of Mary Leigh, and she will be tried today on the charge of wounding John E. Redmond, leader of the Irish Parliamentary party, who was hit by a hatchet that was thrown at the Premier's carriage while it was proceeding with the Ministerial party to the hotel. Sentence was reserved in the case of the convicted women.

A great crowd filled the court room and gathered outside. Timothy Healy, chief counsel for the women, was hooted when he entered. He demanded the exclusion from the jury of all members of the Society of Molly Maguires. He said that he refused to be insulted by them and did not doubt that they were there by the Government's orders.

The Attorney-General for Ireland, C. A. O'Connor, with three assistants, conducted the prosecution. He described the attempt to burn the theatre, and said it was only by a miracle that it escaped destruction. Witnesses testified to seeing Gladys Evans and another woman putting oil on the carpet and box curtains, and trying to set them on fire, and also to putting matches in the cinematograph box.

The police testified that the first performance was ended and the house was nearly empty when the attempt was made. The Evans woman struggled when arrested and said: "This is only the beginning. There will be more explosions at the next performance."

Miss Evans declared that she had gone to the theatre for the purpose of burning it. A Cabinet Minister, C. E. Hobhouse (Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster), had told them that they would be justified in doing so.

Mr. Healy's cross-examination developed the assertion that Mr. Hobhouse, in the course of a speech, had said that the suffragettes would accomplish nothing until they began to burn houses. Mr. Healy, in addressing the jury, said that Miss Evans was not a criminal.

"She is one of those," he added, "who claim a right to vote for the selection of the members of Parliament, who, from what I have seen of them, are not the extraordinary body of sacrosanct persons they imagine themselves."

TEN THOUSAND ARE READY TO STRIKE

Street-car Men in Chicago Will Force a Settlement.

Special to the Review.

Chicago, Aug. 7.—Irritated by the delay of the companies in giving them a direct answer to their demands for increased wages and improved conditions, ten thousand street railway employees, of this city, are getting ready to bring about a clash and force a settlement.

Chatham Fathers Have Row.

Chatham, Aug. 7.—The Chatham board of education finds itself in a rather peculiar position, the city council's patience being exhausted by the extravagant drains made on the public treasury by the board of education, the council has finally put its foot down and refuses to make further appropriations unless the board gives an itemized account of how the money is to be spent.

GAMBLERS WERE RAIDED THEN MADE PAY TRIBUTE

Lieut. Becker Used to Scare the Fraternity Into Paying Him a Percentage on Their Profits by First Raiding Their Premises.

New York, Aug. 7.—"Bald Jack" Rose, the gambler, upon whose testimony was chiefly based the indictment of Police Leutenant Charles Becker, on the charge of instigating the murder of Herman Rosenthal, yesterday furnished District Attorney Whitman with a written statement disclosing in detail the history of his relations with Becker as one of the police officers' alleged graft collectors.

In his confession, Rose reiterates his previous allegation that Becker was one of four high police officers who collected between $2,000,000 and $3,000,000 yearly from illegal resorts, and gives a complete table of his collections from gamblers, which, he says, he turned over to Becker.

These collections, according to the confession, averaged from $12,000 to $15,000 a month, and came from a dozen or more gambling houses. The names of about ten of them Rose gave to the district attorney.

Becker, he says, was continually hounding him for more money, telling him that "the bunch down town isn't getting enough."

Rose's statement covered thirty pages of finely written notepaper.

Rose declared that he had always turned his collections over to Becker in cash, frequently at Rose's home, and that his wife and servants had seen the money and could [illegible] the truth of his statement.

Becker's method of bringing the gamblers to terms was to raid them first, Rose said. This was the police officers' way, he explained, of "getting acquainted." After the raid he would offer to "fix" the case before the grand jury, Rose charged, provided the unfortunate gambler would "come across." If he did, then Becker's man, he said, would give harmless evidence before the grand jury of what they had told in the police court. To further impress the gambler that his case was hopeless, Becker would procure extra warrants for his arrest and threaten to raid again as long as the gambler refused to pay his blackmail.

Rose detailed two specific instances of Becker's alleged methods, giving names, dates and places.

Describing his own relations with the police lieutenant Rose said that his acquaintance began when Becker raided his gambling house on the east side. Rose asked him jocularly, he said, why he had been "picked out," whereat Becker with a wink, "Orders, my boy, orders." The outcome was, Rose said, that he became stool pigeon for Becker in his raiding activities and then his collector, with others whom Becker employed for the same purpose.

BRITISH HOUSE HAS ADJOURNED

Wireless Circuit to be Formed Around the Globe.

Special To The Review.

London, Aug. 7.—The House of Commons adjourned to-day, until October 7, having sat, with two short recesses, just seven months. The Postmaster-General explained to the House the contract with Marconi by which the government supplies the company with three million dollars for the construction of five great wireless stations, and Australia gives half a millions for another station, the whole forming a wireless circuit around the globe.

MINISTERS ARE RETURNING

London, Aug. 7.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—Hon. Messrs. Pelletier and Doherty return to Canada on Aug. 16. Mr. Hazen leaves on the 21st. The date of Premier Borden's return is uncertain owing to the amount of business still to be completed. It is probable, however, that he will leave on the 23rd or 24th.

In an interview yesterday Mr. Borden paid tribute to the debating strength of the Commons and to the earnestness with which Imperial matters are discussed. He was present for the greater part of the debates on the supplementary naval estimates and the Imperial defence committee, in which Asquith, Grey, Churchill, Balfour and Bonar Law took part. The absence of controversial party spirit in regard to great questions of Imperial interest was, he said, particularly noticeable and impressive.

SECRETARY KNOX.

An American statesman who says the United States has no right of sovereignty at Panama, which would exempt the canal from the provision of the Hay-Paunceforte treaty.

Dr. Roche and the Medicos.

Ottawa, Aug. 7.—Hon. Dr. Roche, Secretary of State, who has been absent from the capital for the past two months, will return next Tuesday. One of the first matters to be considered by Dr. Roche will be the meeting of the medical representatives of the various provinces in connection with the bringing into effect of the medical reciprocity bill. The meeting will be held in October, but certain details must be worked out in the meantime.

Found Dead on Farm.

Weyburn, Sask., Aug. 7.—Hoddel McWilliams, a homesteader, a few miles south of Pangman, Sask., was found dead early on Monday morning at his farm. It looked as though he had fallen from a rig and got entangled in the wheel, whereat the horses became frightened and dragged him along.

McWilliams was a young man, aged 27. Some years ago he was considered a star player of a Toronto hockey team.

He is a son of Dr. J. McWilliams of Dundalk, Ont., and came west with his brother, Bethune, five years ago. He was married last year.

James Lainson Takes His Own Life at New Liskeard.

Special to the Review.

New Liskeard, Aug. 6. — James Lainson, twenty-eight, who came from Toronto five months ago and engaged in brickburning, shot himself Tuesday. His dead body was found in the brick yard. He worried over business troubles. Lainson leaves a wife and two children.

CHIEF JUSTICE WILL STAY HERE

Ottawa, Aug. 7.—The report which apparently originated in Montreal, that Sir Charles Fitzpatrick would be appointed to the judicial committee of the Privy Council, and that he would be succeeded as Chief Justice of the Supreme Court by Hon. L. P. Pelletier, Postmaster-General, is not considered seriously here.

It is evidently not taken into account that Sir Charles Fitzpatrick is already a member of the British Privy Council since 1908, and that for the past month he has been attending its sittings in his capacity as a member.

Acute Dyspepsia

Restoration of Stomach Power Comes Quickly With the Right Medicine.

"My food seemed to decompose in my stomach," writes Mr. Ralph Clemmons, of Newbridge, P.O. "I had a stomach that failed in some way to perform its work. Digestion seemed more or less arrested and I grew thin, yellow, nervous. The stomach became distended and impeded apparently the action of the heart, for often at night it would do great stunts. At times I would vomit a mucous mass, and at there times my head ached most terribly. A friend, who had been cured of a similar condition, advised me to take Dr. Hamilton's Pills regularly, which I did. The result in my case was simply marvelous. Dr. Hamilton's Pills removed the cause, strengthened the stomach, excited the liver to normal action, the kidneys were released of excessive work. Health soon glowed within me. I can now eat, sleep, and live like a live man."

Be advised—Use Dr. Hamilton's Pills—they are made for your good. 25c per box, at all dealers, or The Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Canada.

The Daily Review.

WEDNESDAY, AUG. 7, 1912.

A PASTOR SPEAKS OUT

There is something seriously amiss with our daily walk and conversation when the pastors of the city begin to read us from their pulpits homilies on social ethics. One of the leading and most conservative divines in Peterborough recently stated in his evening discourse that the young people of to-day are sadly lacking in respect for their elders and that this tendency is made manifest by a total disregard for the rights of others in the smaller affairs of life. Often, he said, an aged woman is crowded off the sidewalk by a party of young people who refuse to yield even an inch of the right of way. The pastor explained that he was not speaking from personal knowledge or observation but that he had been so informed by a prominent public official and had every reason to believe that the information was correct. If so he deplored such a condition for, he claimed any one deficient in respect for the aged would be found wanting in all the essentials for good citizenship and exemplary life.

To those who are much on the streets at night, when the thoroughfares are crowded, the words of the clergyman aptly described the situation. Sometimes three young persons, marching abreast in solid phalanx, pay no attention to the pedestrians who may be unfortunate enough to meet them but pursue the even tenor of their way. The result is an awkward jam unless the aggrieved party takes to the gutter as a matter of precaution. Two mothers sometimes are seen wheeling baby carriages abreast, or two nurses engaged in the same laudable occupation, so engrossed in conversation as to be oblivious of all things living—their tiny charges apparently included—except themselves. The wary and discreet foot passenger who sees such a combination approaching, pauses not for consideration but avoids the impending collision by making a detour into the street.

All of this apparent disregard of the ordinary rules of politeness is not really due to boorishness or an innate desire to be rude. It is thoughtlessness, pure and simple, and in nine cases out of ten the offender does not realize that anything has been done amiss. But when public officials and ministers, the latter by no means of the sensational order, begin to notice our actions and to make unfavorable comment, it is time to take sober thought so that all just cause for criticism may be removed. Politeness costs nothing but it is the applied essence of the Golden Rule, and when practised in our daily dealings, struggling humanity is spared many a cruel jolt.

Let it no longer be said to our reproach that the man with a paint pot in his hand is the only individual who is assured of undisputed right of way along our city streets.

A GATHERING OF SOREHEADS

Col. Roosevelt's "Confession of Faith," so called, because it is a promulgation of the creed of a new political party to which every one must subscribe as a test of membership, has been given to the public and has startled even those who were prepared for the enunciation of radical principles. A few days ago, the colonel, prepared the world for what was to come when he asserted that his keynote speech or "Confession," might be regarded as anarchistic in some quarters, and such it certainly is in every clause. Two months ago, he was considered sufficiently radical by his most ardent supporters, but in the interval of silence, since the nomination of Mr. Taft, it would seem that the colonel has been employing himself by hatching out new theories of government and giving broader scope to those which he had already adopted.

During the campaign in the primaries, he advocated the recall of the judges who were elected by the people. Now he goes further and would extend that dangerous system to the Federal Judges, who are appointed for life, and who, consequently, represent the only truly independent branch of the American Judiciary. Further yet would the colonel go and apply the principle of recall to the very president himself, thus robbing not only the judiciary, but the executive branch of the Government to the last vestige of independence by making them subject to the whim of the mob. With such a system in operation the entire country could be kept in a continual turmoil, judges and president could be turned out of office at any time if their decisions or official acts did not meet with popular approval. The person worsted in an action at law, could clamor for the head of the judge who decided against him, and the official life of the president would be in danger at any time he might find himself on the minority side of a public question. If such a system does not mean government by the mob, not by the people, if it would fail to breed an epidemic of national turbulency, if it does not mean anarchy in its most virulent form, then it is not within the power of human genius to devise a scheme more dangerous to the peace and safety of a commonwealth.

Col. Roosevelt shows his disregard for everything in the shape of international honor, when he advocates the free use of the Panama Canal by the United States vessels of the coast-wise trade, while a toll is exacted from all vessels belonging to other nations. The Hay-Pauncefote treaty was made with England while he was president, and now, without a blush, he refuses to recognise the obligations of his own agreement. Then as a further menace to the world he would fortify the canal a right upon which he did not insist when he was anxious to secure permission from the other powers to construct the waterway.

And as all through his speech his senatorial pathway was marked by the remnants of ruthlessly broken faith, and the remains of shattered idols before which he only yesterday bowed down to and worshiped, he insists that what his left of his followers, accept the new creed in its integrity without so much as suggesting a change. The gathering of soreheads that he addressed, the board of disappointed office seekers, who came, not so much that Roosevelt may win, as that the regular wing of the Republican party may come to disaster, will no doubt subscribe their names and pledge their fealty without a murmur. From the chairman of the convention, a defeated and discredited United States senator, down to the humblest delegate on the floor, every man probably has a personal grievance against the old party that they followed only four years ago, with such noisy devotion. They prate against the evils of bossism and are themselves content to be led around by the nose by the high priest of autocracy, the czar of American politics.

MONTREAL, Aug. 6.—The local grain markets continue quiet and almost featureless. The opening of the Liverpool market after the holiday failed to stimulate business over the cable in wheat, as bids from that direction are still one to two cents a bushel out of line. Some small business was done with the continent. The flour trade is in a waiting position pending the harvesting of the new crop. Export trade in oats is slow.

Oats—Canadian western, No. 2, 46c to 46½c; do., No. 3, 44c to 44½c; extra No. 1 feed, 45c.

Italians Occupy Zuara.

Rome, Aug. 7.—The Italian naval and military forces yesterday occupied the town of Zara, Tripoli, and the surrounding oases only a small number of the men being wounded. The Turks, with their Arab allies, retired to the desert.

Platinum.

Platinum, one of the most useful of the metals in many ways, was named by the Spaniards on account of its silvery color, plata signifying silver. It was found in the auriferous sands of the river Pinto, in South America, and was unknown in Europe prior to 1741, when Don Antonio Ulloa announced its existence in his narrative of a voyage to Peru. It was not until 1830 that platinum was rendered malleable and ductile by a Dr. William Hyde of Wallaston. Platinum is largely employed in the manufacture of chemical utensils, owing to its immunity to the effects of heat acid, etc.

ONE HE DIDN'T KNOW

A Story of a Narrow Escape

By CLARISSA MACKIE

There is a Chinese proverb that runs something like this: "A devil you know is safer than a devil you do not know."

Although Jim Westcott had lived in China for ten years, this proverb had never been driven home to him for the reason that his natural bump of cautiousness had heretofore prompted him when dealing with Asiatics to confine his dealings with persons who were recommended to him. Sometimes these recommendations were exceedingly slight.

Jim Westcott was the Shanghai representative of a large New York silk importer. It was his business to negotiate for shipments of silk as they came down from the interior via Nanking and thence by railway to Shanghai.

Westcott had agents, Chinese, of course, scattered among the silk provinces, and through these agents he was enabled to make many negotiations that proved very profitable to Fredericks & Co. of New York. So Jim Westcott's salary mounted higher each year as he increased his firm's business. As Jim was a single man and without near relatives he had much more money than he could conveniently spend for a man of his quiet tastes, and so he took to gem collecting.

At the time of this story Jim Westcott had seven fine precious stones. There was a very large diamond, three flawless emeralds, two small pigeon blood rubies and one great milky pearl that he had secured at a great bargain from an impoverished mandarin from the back provinces.

About a month after this Jim was seated in his office one morning when his native servant or "boy" entered with a long strip of red paper that proclaimed it the visiting card of one Ting Tai, private secretary to the mandarin Wen Hao To, from whom Jim had bought the great pearl, the gem par excellence of his little collection.

After the first ceremonies of the visit had been concluded and the boy had served tea and sweetmeats and had withdrawn to the outer office Ting Tai drew his chair close to Westcott's desk and spoke in English:

"My master, the Hon. Wen Hao To, has again sent me to open negotiations with your respectable firm," he began politely.

"More pearls?" asked Westcott eagerly, for he had a comfortable balance at the bank awaiting just such an opportunity as this might be.

BEAUTIFUL EYES

are made beautiful by long, silky lashes and well defined, lustrous brows. Eyes, like diamonds, depend on their setting. The beauties of the face are lost is the eye brows are thin and scanty, and the lashes are thing and scanty. Parisian Lash Lustre grows beautiful, soft, silky lashes. It has done so for society women throughout Europe, and it comes here well recommended to do the same for you. Parisian Lash Lustre is not a dye or colorator, but a scientific preparation for beautifying the eye lashes and brows. Our guarantee goes with every box of Parisian Lash Lustre. A two weeks' treatment will bring beauty to your eyes that you have never before possessed. By mail, prepaid, in opal boxes on receipt of price fifty cents. R. V. Marion, sole distributor, Bridgeburg, Ont.

Ting Tai shook his head and smiled, but back of the smile was a look of greed that should have warned Jim Westcott. "I am filled with regret that my master has suffered many losses during the past year and has been compelled to part with many precious possessions. This time it is not gems. If your perfectly respectable firm could negotiate for rich and handsome brocaded coats—gold and silver and some woven with seed pearls—my master may be persuaded to part with them."

Jim drew a long breath. If there was one thing that his "perfectly respectable firm" liked to get hold of it was a handsome mandarin coat. There was always a demand for the genuine article, and not only collectors, but private persons, fought for possession of them at any price. Some of the patterns were worth their weight in gold, too, to silk manufacturers who could copy them.

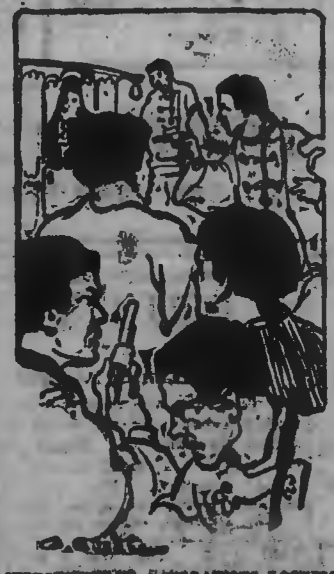
"That sounds good to me," Jim said in response to Ting Tai's remark. "Got them with you?"

"No," returned Ting Tai cautiously. "They are at my master's palace in Sicheng."

Jim was disappointed. It meant more delay, and he had hoped to include this shipment of coats with a cargo that sailed on the 25th.

"Then you will bring them down for inspection?" he inquired.

Again Ting Tai shook his head. "My master has bidden me inform you that the coats are too precious to be intrusted to any one other than the owner. He is suffering from an attack of rheumatism that confines him to his palace. He has requested me to ask if you can spare enough of your very valuable time to make the journey to Sicheng and select the coats and complete the negotiations there."



SURROUNDED BY A VILLAINOUS LOOKING BAND.

Jim Westcott sat in deep thought for several moments. This was an entirely new proposition to him, and it required consideration. His business might be left for the week that it would require to make the journey to Sicheng and return, for he had made up his shipment for the month. He felt not the slightest doubt of the secretary's sincerity, for he had done business with him for several years. The mandarin Wen Hao To was an inveterate gambler and after squeezing his inferiors to the utmost farthing now made a yearly sacrifice of some precious possession in order to satisfy his craving for the gaming table.

"How shall we go?" asked Jim to gain further time.

"By railway to Nanking, where my master's junk lies; thence up the river of golden sands to Sicheng."

"I'll go," concluded Jim hastily. I'll be through with my business at 4 o'clock. If you will meet me at the railway station I will accompany you to your master."

DOCTORS ADVISE OPERATIONS

Saved by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Swarthmore, Penn. — "For fifteen years I suffered untold agony, and for one period of nearly two years I had hemorrhages and the doctors told me I would have to undergo an operation, but I began taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and am in good health now. I am all over the Change of Life and cannot praise your Vegetable Compound too highly. Every woman should take it at that time. I recommend it to both old and young for female troubles."—Mrs. EMILY SUMMERSGILL, Swarthmore, Pa.

Canadian Woman's Experience:

Fort William, Ont.—"I feel as if I could not tell others enough about the good Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me. I was weak and tired and I could not rest nights. A friend recommended your Compound and I soon gained health and strength and could not wish to sleep better. I know other women who have taken it for the same purpose and they join me in praising it."—Mrs. WM. A. BUFFY, 631 South Vickar Street, Fort Williams, Ontario.

Since we guarantee that all testimonials which we publish are genuine, is it not fair to suppose that if Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has the virtue to help these women it will help any other woman who is suffering in a like manner?

If you want special advice write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence.

The rest of the morning was filled by Jim's preparations for departure. Wah Loo flew hither and thither at his master's bidding, his slant eyes glittering expectantly. If there is one thing more than another that a Chinese servant thoroughly enjoys it is a hubbub of any sort.

Almost at the last moment Jim called the servant to him.

"Boy," he said, "can so get all same ready, chop-chop."

"Can so!" squealed Wah Loo, delighted at the idea of a journey.

"Skedaddle, then!" commanded Jim. And, although that wasn't English or even pigeon English, Wah Loo understood the order and skipped away to make his scanty preparations.

Jim Westcott had two reasons for taking Wah Loo with him. He believed the boy to be faithful, for he had been seven years in Jim's personal service, and he felt that going into the interior, where there is constant danger from bandits and river pirates, he needed some loyal henchman who might at least report his master's death in case anything did happen. And in these isolated provinces things were very likely to "happen" in the most casual way.

The journey to Nanking was uneventful, as was the trip up the river. They were attacked by river pirates one dark night, but a violent thunderstorm effectually put the rascals to flight, and the frightened crew of the mandarin's pleasure craft returned to their posts after much persuasion from the fat captain.

At Sicheng wharf they were met by sedan chairs, in which they were promptly whirled away to the mandarin's palace a few miles beyond the city.

Suddenly that old Chinese proverb came to Jim's mind, "A devil you know is safer than one you don't know."

"I'm mighty glad I brought Wah Loo along," he soliloquized. "I certainly know that little yellow devil."

It was an added comfort to feel the two loaded automatic revolvers in his pockets.

All at once they entered a desolate region, where the road was merely a rough track. Jim wondered that the highway that led to the mandarin's palace should be so ill kept and apparently little traveled. If the men had deliberately chosen this out of the way route it was evidence that some mischief was brewing.

It was not only brewing, but bubbling over, for Jim had no sooner snatched his weapons out than they were surrounded by a villainous looking band of highway robbers. The bodyguard gave back instant fight, but Jim noted at once that it was a sham battle.

He had been delivered into the hands of his enemies. There was little doubt that some one had passed the word along that Jim Westcott possessed these precious gems. Wen Hao To was in sore straits. He needed them. What more likely to happen than that the honorable representative of Fredericks & Co. should be attacked by robbers on his way to the mandarin's palace to purchase the silk coats?

"Boy!" called Jim sharply, glad that he had brought Wah Loo along.

When he saw that Wah Loo had deserted him and was fighting vigorously to permit the robbers to approach the chair of his master Jim understood. Wah Loo was the traitor who had told about the gems his master carried.

Because they had counted on Wah Loo's stealing his master's weapons before the ambush sprang upon them the robbers were quite unprepared for the fusillade of bullets that poured from the opening in Jim's chair. When he was all alone there, spattering the dust in the road after the last flying heels, Jim realized that the artful secretary, Ting Tao, had fallen a victim to his own treachery. The man was lying, slightly wounded, beside his chair, deserted by the cowardly soldiers who had fled with their allies, the robbers.

Jim did what he could for the secretary with the little emergency medical case he carried, and he was glad when a party of missionaries in bullock carts came along and volunteered to carry the secretary and the American back to Sicheng.

So, after all, the gems that Jim carried in his belt were quite untouched. After that he kept them in safe deposit at his bank. He found a steamer going down the river, and the following day found him back in Shanghai.

The first thing he did was to send for another house boy to take the place of the departed Wah Loo.

For that was the devil he really didn't know.

ANY WOMAN CAN HAVE BEAUTIFUL HAIR

Dandruff Disappears, Falling Hair Ceases, When You Use Parisian Sage.

No preparation has done so much to stop falling hair; eradicate dandruff and make women's hair beautiful as PARISIAN Sage.

It is the only certain destroyer of the dandruff microbe, the cause of most hair troubles.

PARISIAN Sage is most daintily perfumed. It is an ideal preparation not sticky or greasy. It does not contain poisonous sugar of lead or sulphur or any dye.

It is a magnificent dressing for women who desire luxuraint lustrous hair that compels admiration and for men and children nothing can compare with it.

It does away with terrible scalp itch over night and causes the hair to grow in abundance.

And a large bottle of PARISIAN Sage costs only 50 cents at all drug and toilet goods counters.

Wm Madill guarantees it.

The Motive.

It was an evening party. A young man with a tall collar and pale hair was reciting a poem. He had ground out forty-seven stanzas, and the end was not yet.

"What's going on?" whispered the guest who had just come in.

"Rhymer is letting out his latest poem," answered the pessimistic person.

"What's the subject—the motive?" queried the late comer.

"I have forgotten the subject," replied the P. P., "but I suspect the motive must be revenge. At least I can't see any other reason for it."—London Tit-Bits.

Sane Solution.

"She is the most practical woman I know of."

"What has she done?"

"You know they had a skeleton in the family closet."

"So I have heard."

"Well, she varnished it up and uses it as a clothes rack."

His Wife's Don't Count.

"A man can't withstand a woman's tears."

"That depends upon whether he is a married man or not."

"And if he is a married man?"

"Then it depends upon the woman."

A Mystery.

"Does any one know what the Mexican war is about?"

"Sure! There is one fellow who knows."

"But will he tell?"

"How can he? He's dead."

The Reason.

Back to the land! is all the cry.
You understand the reason why—
The backers hope the land will double
In price and pay for time and trouble.

Active Business Requires Adequate Telephone Service.

The essentials of adequate telephone service for a busy establishment are:—

1. An open door for outgoing telephone calls.
2. An open door for incoming telephone calls.
3. Facilities for immediate intercommunication between offices and departments.

Private Branch Exchange telephone service meets these requirements. Outgoing and incoming messages can be handled simultaneously. Interior intercommunication can be carried on independently.

Private Branch Exchange telephone service is recognized as the only suitable service for active organizations, and it costs even less than the simpler form of telephone service.

Let us send our representative to explain it in detail and to quote rates.

Please Kill That Fly!

HOUSEHOLDERS PLEASE READ

BECAUSE

1. The fly is the most dangerous wild animal in America.

2. Flies breed in manure and other filth. Filth is the flies' food. Flies carry filth to our food.

3. Flies walk and feed on excreta and sputa from people ill with typhoid fever, tuberculosis, diarrhoeal affections and many other diseases.

4. One fly can carry and may deposit on our food 6,000,000 germs.

5. One fly in one summer may produce normally 195,312,500,000,000,000 descendants. Therefore kill the flies before they begin to breed.

6. A fly is an enemy to health, the health of our children, the health of our community!

A fly cannot develop from the egg in less than eight days. Therefore if we clean up everything thoroughly every week and keep all manure screened there need be no flies. Will you help in the campaign against this pest!

RULES FOR DEALING WITH THE FLY NUISANCE

Keep the flies away from the sick, especially those ill with contagious diseases. Kill every fly that strays into the sickroom. His body is covered with disease germs.

Do not allow decaying material of any sort to accumulate on or near your premises.

Screen all food and insist that your grocer, butcher, baker and every one from whom you buy foodstuffs does the same.

Don't buy foodstuffs where flies are tolerated.

Don't eat where flies have access to food.

Keep all receptacles for garbage carefully covered and the cans cleaned or sprinkled with oil or lime.

Keep all stable manure in vault or pit, screened or sprinkled with lime, oil or other cheap preparations, as 98 per cent of the flies come from stable manure and 2 per cent from garbage and other filth.

Keep the streets and alleys clean.

See that your sewage system is in good order; that it does not leak, is up to date and not exposed to flies.

Pour kerosene into the drains.

Burn pyrethrum powder in the house to kill the flies or use a mixture of formaldehyde and water, one spoonful to a quarter pint of water. This exposed in the room will kill all the flies.

Burn or bury all table refuse.

Screen all windows and doors, especially in the kitchen and dining room.

If you see flies you may be sure that their breeding place is in nearby filth. It may be behind the door, under the table or in the cuspidore.

Remove all refuse and filth from house, yard and outhouses and thus prevent flies from breeding on your premises.

If there is no dirt and filth there will be no flies.

IF THERE IS A NUISANCE IN THE NEIGHBORHOOD WRITE AT ONCE TO THE BOARD OF HEALTH.

"Health is wealth," and "an ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure."

There is more health in a house well screened than in many a doctor's visit.

The only safe way is to keep out the flies.

AGED PASTOR DIES AT KINGSTON

The Late Rev. John Hay Was Stationed for Four Years at Campbellford.

Kingston, Aug. 6.—After having been minister of St. Andrew's Presbyterian church, Renfrew, for thirteen years, and retiring from the charge owing to ill-health, Rev. John Hay died at his late residence, 189 Alfred street, Kingston, on Sunday day afternoon. His passing away was at the end unexpected, pneumonia being the final illness. Mr. Hay had been confined to his room about ten days, but up to the end of the week it was thought he would recover. About one year and a half ago the late Mr. Hay was forced to give up the active work of his charge at Renfrew and was superannuated. He and his family moved to this city a few months ago.

The late Mr. Hay was born at Lanark fifty-nine years ago. He graduated at Queen's University as Bachelor of Arts in 1882, and completed his theological course in 1885, taking the degree of Bachelor of Divinity. For many years he was a valued trustee of Queen's.

He was ordained into the Presbyterian ministry in Chalmers Church, Kingston. His first charge was at Campbellford, for four years, and from here he went to serve the church at Cobourg. He afterwards succeeded the late Rev. Dr. Robert Campbell at Renfrew.

He is survived by his wife and two children, John, and Miss Jean, a student at Queen's. Neither of the latter was at home at the time of the father's death, Miss Hay being in Saskatchewan, where is is teaching school.

HOSPITAL BOARD WAS IN SESSION

Accounts for Hospital Charge Referred Back for Information

The Mayor, Dr. Halliday and Ald. Duncan were present yesterday afternoon at the meeting of the Queen Mary Hospital Board.

A letter was read from Geo. A. McConnell regarding a hospital charge for Eva Overell. The matter was referred to the M.H.O. to obtain information for the city solicitor.

A letter was read from Miss J. G. Kennedy to the city solicitor, regarding a hospital account for Kathleen Watts. It was moved that the city treasurer write to Mr. H. O. Fiske regarding the account.

A number of accounts were ordered to be paid.

Dr. A. W. McPherson, M.H.O., submitted a report of the hospital for July.

A grass catcher was ordered to be purchased for the lawn mower belonging to the hospital.

YOUNG CRANDELL WAS NOT KILLED

A few days ago word was received to the effect that young Freemont Crandell, of Prince Rupert, B.C., and formerly of Lindsay, had been killed in an accident at Hazelton. The report, however, was without foundation, as the following from the Prince Rupert News will testify:

"The rumor regarding a fatal accident at Hazelton, in which young Freemont Crandell was reported as having been killed, was unfounded. The young man was injured, but not seriously, and is doing well, much to the relief of his many friends here."

The young man is employed on the Grand Trunk Pacific, and was in Hazelton on a visit.

CEASE SELLING GUARANTEES

From a late issue of Saturday Night we clip the following, printed in answer to an inquirer:—

"The 'guarantee' of the Dominion Lightning Rod Company which you sent us is nothing but an insurance policy issued contrary to the Ontario Insurance Act, and these people are liable to you for doing a business that they were not empowered to transact. The Superintendent of Insurance, when informed of this business, with commendable promptitude took action and asked for an explanation. This was given that they were not aware that this was in violation of the Ontario Insurance Act. They have agreed in writing to not do any further business of this nature, and have notified all agents to cease selling these 'guarantees. Any further transgressions will no doubt be severely dealt with by the department. You have right of action against the Dominion Lightning Rod Co., if they do not refund the money collected at once."

CITIZENS COMPLAIN

A Bumper Crop of Burdock Near the G.T.R. Depot.

Several property owners have called the attention of the Review to a lane in the vicinity of the Grand Trunk depot, and running from Charlotte to Simcoe streets. There are in the lane living both sides of the roadway, some of the healthiest specimens of burdock to be met with anywhere. Some of the vigorous weeds are over five feet in height, and all are in full bloom. In a short time fruitition will be effected, and the pestiferous burr will be ready for business.

The objecting property owners who take pride in their surroundings, and whose private premises are models of neatness, naturally object to the conditions which prevail in the adjacent lane. They are anxious to know if the city authorities are not invested with the power to abate the nuisance.

The Noxious Weeds Act, of Ontario, which was assented to April 16th of this year, gives municipalities full authority to deal with such matters. A city can appoint a special officer whose duty it shall be to prevent the spread of weeds. He is required to give due notice to tenants or property owners in case there are such weeds in existence. If no attention is paid to such notice the officer is empowered to have the wor kdone by city employes, the cost for the same to be assessed against the property. Where premises are unoccupied and the owner is not a resident of the city, no notice is necessary, but the work of cleaning up is to be done by the city, the cost to be assessed as in the other case referred to. In the act special mention is made of the prolific burdock.

Householders who can furnish rooms and board to Normal school students will confer a favor by sending their names and addresses to the Principal on or before August 15th, after which date the boarding house list for the session 1912-1913 will be made out.

NOTHING HOLDS THIS HORSE

A horse attached to a Canadian express wagon started from M. Storey's livary barn on Chambers street shortly before one o'clock to-day, dragging along with it the weight which was attached to the bridle. The horse tore along Chambers to Brock and turned west on the latter thoroughfare. Near Aylmer street the outfit became tangled up with a telegraph pole and came to a sudden stop without doing any damage.

PETERBOROUGH MATTRESS CO. VISITED BY DESTRUCTIVE FIRE

Damage Estimated to be Around $800—Blaze Started in the Picking Room—Building Suffered Heavily.

The factory of the Peterborough Mattress Company, Hunter street, East City, was again visited by a destructive fire this morning, the damage being approximately $800, to building and stock.

The fire was first discovered by one of the girls in the factory, who 'phoned in the alarm, but in her excitement she must have fainted, as her words became unintelligible to the man who answered at the fire hall.

An alarm, however, was sent in from box 24 near the Quaker Oats and in a very few minutes the brigade was on the spot.

The outbreak originated in one of the picking machines, as far as could be learned. It sometimes happens that a nail or some flinty object is found amongst the wool when it is being put through the spinning machines. It is thought that a nail came in contact with the needles of the revolving cylinder, causing a spark, which immediately ignited the wool.

The flames spread swiftly, and although the brigade responded with great speed, they found the picking room of the factory burning fiercely.

Chief Howard rapidly sized up the situation and a line of hose was taken around to the rear of the building and trained upon the flames. The brigade also prevented the blaze from spreading into the main building where large quantities of stock was stored. The picking room, where the fire started, was at one time a mass of flames, and required two heavy streams to finally bring them under control. The room was badly gutted and the interior scorched and blackened, and the contents including, machinery and other equipment suffered heavily.

The brigade fought the outbreak until after twelve o'clock, before everything was quiet.

A big crowd gathered outside the fire line, and all along the Hunter street bridge, including many of the excursionists who were in the city from Frankford.

Mr. James Ellis is manager of the mattress factory, the premises being rented. The building was insured in the Sun Life Company.

WHITE CAPS WON FOURTEEN INNINGS GAME FROM LEAFS

"Petes" Tied Score in the Ninth, and Pulled in Three Runs After—Hanson Did the Pitching.

In a fourteen innings battle at Guelph, the Petes came out on top, doubling the score on the Leafs, 6—3.

An error by Behan and a wild pitch by Applegate allowed the Petes to tie the score in the ninth, and after battling until the fourteenth, three hits and a walk gave them three runs and the game, the third of the series. Isaac played a wonderful game at third, and Brandt at short. Score:

TRACEY HAD THE LEAFS UP A TREE

Had Speed to Burn and Wonderful Control.

Tracey of the Petes must have made an excellent impression on the Guelph fans, in the first of two games there on Aug. 5th. The Guelph Mercury has the following to say about the two games—

THE FIRST GAME

As was before remarked, Tracey, ex-hurler for the Busy Bees, had the Leafs up a tree in reality. He had speed to burn, and beautiful control and the Leafs could not connect. Only seven men got safe to first, and of these, two were caught off, not one getting as far as third base.

THE SECOND GAME

The crowd at the afternoon game was the largest seen this year, filling the grandstand and bleachers and overflowing to the foul lines.

Dunn started off for the Leafs with a hit, the ball hitting near the foul line, but inside. It went ahead of White, and before the latter could relay it to the plate, Dunn had scored. From that time on Osborne tightened up, and though four hits were made off his delivery there was never a semblance of run, the men almost invariably being nailed, trying to get to second. The Leafs had only three men left on bases.

Schaeffer worked well all through the game, especially with men on bases, until the ninth. With only three men to get out to win the game, for Guelph's one run looked very big, he went to the bad. Trout the first man up was hit with a pitched ball. Beard sacrificed him to second. Byrne singled to left, scoring Trout with the tieing run. Nichols hit a fly to centre field. Dunn misjudged it, an dit went for three bases, Byrne scoring with the winning run. Dunn threw to hold Nichols at third, the ball going through Behan's hands, and before Brady could recover it, Nichols scored. That made it a total again of three again for the Petes, and on ground hits the Leafs went out in the half in the ninth, having lost the second game also.

Adding Insult to Injury.

"Why am I gloomy?" demanded the undesirable suitor whom she had heartlessly ignored. "Isn't it enough to make a man gloomy to be cut by the one he loves best?"

"The idea!" exclaimed the heartless girl. "I didn't even know that you shaved yourself."

There's a notable difference between seeing the point of a joke and feeling the same.

One of the most desolating thoughts in the world is that you made your initial mistake when you permitted yourself to be born.

BREEZES FROM THE DIAMOND

Pitcher Silcox, of the London Ball Club, has been released, and will probably be signed on by Brantford or Hamilton. Manager Deneau of the Berlin Busy Bees wanted him, but he declined to go with them. He pitched fair ball, but the management did not think he was keeping himself in the condition to do his best.

Pitcher Erd, the "dummy" pitcher of the White Caps, has been released, his work not proving satisfactory.

Marie's Birthday.

"Marie is going to have a birthday party."

"Really? How old will she be?"

"She was twenty-one last year."

"I see. After twenty they always use the minus sign."

"What do you mean?"

"We'll probably be invited to help celebrate her nineteenth birthday this time."

Nine English boy scouts were drowned when a cutter capsized off Sheppey Island.

YOU CAN BE ABSOLUTELY SURE OF VALUES

If you carefully read the store advertisements and follow them in your buying.

Merchants advertise certain lines because they know these lines will advertise their stores. Because there is something about certain goods, they are put in conspicuous places and the people are told about them. It may be the exclusiveness or newness of design, it may be an unusual quality, it may be an attractive price.

But there is at least one definite, sure reason why a merchant advertises an article and is willing to stake the reputation of his store upon it.

Therefore, when you see an article advertised in THE REVIEW, depend upon it, that article is good value, as good value as can be obtained in that particular store.

Bachelor's Kitchen.

The players sit in a row, with the exception of one, who goes to each of the others and asks what he will give to the bachelor's kitchen. Each answers what he pleases, but no two must mention the same article. Then the questioner goes back to the first child and asks all sorts of questions, which must be answered by the name of the article he has given and by no other word. We will suppose that one of the children gave a box of matches to the bachelor's kitchen. The questioner asks, "What did you have for breakfast?" "A box of matches." "What do you wear on your head?" "A box of matches." "What kind of a house do you live in?" "A box of matches." The object is to make the answerer laugh, and he is asked a number of questions until he does laugh or is given up as a hard subject. Those who laugh or add another word to their answer must pay a forfeit.

Riches!

A rusty nail, a bit of string,
Keys that won't fit anything,
A "Sally Walker," piece of chalk,
Peppermints, a broken cork,
A jewsharp and a postage stamp,
A wick that once burned in a lamp,
Shotgun shell, one cent in cash,
One-half of a false mustache,
A broken knife, a piece of wax,
Two bullets and a carpet tack—
These things, together with a rag,
A ring, a comb, a little tag,
Rubber bands and a five cent locket,
I found in Bobby's little pocket!

Importance of Little Belgium.

Belgium is virtually the smallest independent country in the world in point of size and yet stands eighth in a list of the wealth of nations and sixth in the total of her export and import trade. Belgium is the commercial and industrial balance wheel of the trade of the world. With a slightly lower wage scale than prevails elsewhere, even in Germany, Belgium is able to shave prices just sufficiently to act as a check upon bids for international business. A Belgium twenty times as great as it is and preserving the same intensity of industrial life and purpose would dominate the trade of the world.—James Davenport Whelpley in The Century.

The Difficult Persian Tongue.

Of the difficulties in the language of Persia a traveler writes: "The words one uses in a letter are almost entirely different from those used conversationally, and those in an ordinary prose history are again different. Then it is almost impossible to distinguish the tenses and, lastly, the adjective is generally indistinguishable from the substantive, and the link between an adjective and the term which it qualifies is the same as the sign of the possessive. For instance, the text 'This is my beloved son' may be read in the Persian Bible 'This is the son of my beloved' without the slightest violence to the grammar."

Don't Need Accident Insurance
There is no excuse for refusing to take out Accident Insurance as common as the one that the prospect "Don't Need It."
The average man thinks he never exposes himself to hazards that invite accidents.
Here are some of the illuminating facts in regard to the hazards of ordinary lives.
Is he the man who never goes anywhere, always remains at home? Whereabouts at home does he remain to escape danger? Inside the house? Out of every one hundred injurious accidents nearly 14 per cent occur inside the house. Is he safe there? Hardly.
While at home around the house, amid scenes of peace, is he free from danger? Out of every one hundred injurious accidents, nearly 18 per cent are met with amid these peaceful surroundings.
Is he safe while walking the streets? Out of every one hundred injurious accidents, nearly 16 per cent are met with by pedestrians. Hardly safe is he while walking!
A fraction of over 13 per cent of every one hundred injurious accidents are attributable to horses and vehicles. Nearly 7 per cent are attributable to Automobiles and Bicycles. Railroad and Steamship travel are not especially to be commended for possessing elements of safety as these contribute 15 per cent of every one hundred.
Even while engaged in recreation he is not safe, as its quota amounts to nearly 8 per cent of every hundred. There is only one place where a man is not liable to meet with injurious accidents, and that is—the grave. Sleeping there he is in no danger.
The above shows that everyone needs protection against Accident, and this protection can be obtained at a nominal cost by applying to
